II. Senate Election

- The Scott Brown - Elizabeth Warren race is one of the closest watched in the country and one of the few in which Democrats have a very good chance of gaining a seat.
- Both Brown and Warren are popular candidates
- Brown is remarkably popular for a Republican and Warren is also well liked for a newcomer to MA politics.
- No big split between liberal and moderate/conservative Democrats yet, but there are hints of it.
- Very high percentage of voters not decided – the race is wide open.

Currently, 54% of likely voters have a favorable opinion of Brown, 29% have an unfavorable opinion of him, 10% are neutral and 7% don't know enough about him to say. Brown's net favorability rating is +25%.

- Republicans, conservatives and residents of southeastern MA, Cape & Islands are most likely to have favorable opinions of Brown.
- Democrats and liberals give Brown his lowest favorability ratings.
- Moderate/conservative Democrats are split in their views of Brown – 39% have a favorable opinion of him and 39% have an unfavorable opinion.
- Minorities are also split in their views of Brown – 39% have a favorable opinion of him and 35% have an unfavorable opinion.

Warren is not as well-known as Brown, but is well liked – 47% have a favorable opinion of Warren, 23% have an unfavorable opinion, 6% are neutral and 25% don't know enough about her to say. Warren's net favorability rating is +24%.

- Democrats, liberals, upper class voters, and voters with post-graduate educations give Warren her highest favorability ratings.
- Republicans and conservatives are most likely to have an unfavorable opinion of Warren.

Marisa De Franco is essentially unknown -- 5% have a favorable opinion of De Franco, 4% have an unfavorable opinion, 8% are neutral and 82% don't know enough about her to say.
