President and Chief Executive Officer

Chicago, IL 60606-4716

Dear Mr. Hoplamazian:

The Committee is writing to request your company's assistance in identifying and preventing the ongoing and extreme threat of further violent attacks in Washington, D.C., and elsewhere, over the coming days.

On January 6, 2021, insurrectionists stormed the Capitol building in an act of domestic terrorism to prevent Congress from performing its Constitutional duty to affirm Joe Biden and Kamala Harris as the next President and Vice President of the United States. Five people died as a result of the attack, including U.S. Capitol Police Officer Brian D. Sicknick, who was reportedly viciously attacked by the mob.¹

Immediately prior to the attacks, thousands of President Trump's supporters descended on Washington, D.C., to attend a rally, answering the President's call to "Be there. Will be Wild!"² The President and his agitators urged the crowd to "send a message" to Members of Congress who did "nothing to stop the steal"³ and engage in "trial by combat."⁴ The President then encouraged his supporters to "walk down to the Capitol," adding "you will never take back our country with weakness."⁵

On January 5, one day before the attack, the Washington Post published a story with the headline, “Pro-Trump Forums Erupt with Violent Threats Ahead of Wednesday’s Rally Against the 2020 Election.” According to the report, violence featured prominently in the posts about the event: “More than half of the top 50 posts on [one forum’s] homepage Monday related to Wednesday’s certification featured calls of violence within the top five comments.” According to one group that tracked the site, recent postings that called for violence in the run-up to January 6 had more than 40,000 engagements.⁶

Even Vice President Mike Pence’s former homeland security and counterterrorism advisor acknowledged in December that the President was “encouraging” violence on January 6, stating that she was “very concerned.”⁷

Alarming, the FBI has now warned that there are ongoing threats of continued violence and armed attacks in Washington, D.C., and around the country, through Inauguration Day, including calls by white supremacist groups for a “Million Militia March” on January 20, 2021. Mayor Muriel Bowser has urged Americans to stay away from Washington, D.C., because of the threat of violence.⁸

While the inciters and attackers bear direct responsibility for the siege on the Capitol and will be held fully accountable, they relied on a range of companies and services to get them there and house them once they arrived—companies that law-abiding Americans use every day, but whose services were hijacked to further the January 6 attacks. Trump supporters chartered scores of buses and vans and drove in caravans to the nation’s capital.⁹ They stayed in D.C. hotels, with videos showing attackers relaxing in the lobby of one hotel after the insurrection.¹⁰

Several companies have voluntarily taken action to prevent domestic terrorists from using their services to support further violence. On January 13, 2021, Airbnb announced that it “will cancel reservations in the Washington, D.C., metro area during the Inauguration week” and that “we will prevent any new reservations in the Washington, D.C. area from being booked during that time by blocking such reservations.”¹¹ In addition, before the January 6 attack, the Hotel Harrington took measures to prevent people with violent intent staying at the hotel.¹² In previous acts of domestic terrorism, such as the Oklahoma City Bombing in 1995, private companies took important action to improve their security and deny extremists access to their services.¹³

Given that the ongoing threat of violence in the Washington, D.C., area, and around the country in the coming days, the Committee requests that you:

1. Develop and put in place additional screening measures to ensure that your services are not being used to facilitate violence or domestic terrorism;
2. Retain all records regarding service requests and reservations from January 1 to January 31, 2021, for potential use, if necessary, in future law enforcement or Congressional investigations; and
3. Produce to the Committee by January 29, 2021, all company policies and procedures currently in place or being developed to ensure that your services are not used to facilitate violence or domestic terrorism.

The Committee on Oversight and Reform is the principal oversight committee of the House of Representatives and has broad authority to investigate “any matter” at “any time” under House Rule X. An attachment to this letter provides additional instructions for responding to this request. If you have any questions regarding this request, please contact Committee staff at (202) 225-5051. Mr. Geoff Ballotti
Chief Executive Officer
Wyndham Hotels and Resorts

Parsippany, NJ 07054

Dear Mr. Ballotti:

The Committee is writing to request your company's assistance in identifying and preventing the ongoing and extreme threat of further violent attacks in Washington, D.C., and elsewhere, over the coming days.

On January 6, 2021, insurrectionists stormed the Capitol building in an act of domestic terrorism to prevent Congress from performing its Constitutional duty to affirm Joe Biden and Kamala Harris as the next President and Vice President of the United States. Five people died as a result of the attack, including U.S. Capitol Police Officer Brian D. Sicknick, who was reportedly viciously attacked by the mob.¹

Immediately prior to the attacks, thousands of President Trump's supporters descended on Washington, D.C., to attend a rally, answering the President's call to "Be there. Will be Wild!"² The President and his agitators urged the crowd to "send a message" to Members of Congress who did "nothing to stop the steal"³ and engage in "trial by combat."⁴ The President then encouraged his supporters to "walk down to the Capitol," adding "you will never take back our country with weakness."⁵

On January 5, one day before the attack, the Washington Post published a story with the headline, “Pro-Trump Forums Erupt with Violent Threats Ahead of Wednesday’s Rally Against the 2020 Election.” According to the report, violence featured prominently in the posts about the event: “More than half of the top 50 posts on [one forum’s] homepage Monday related to Wednesday’s certification featured calls of violence within the top five comments.” According to one group that tracked the site, recent postings that called for violence in the run-up to January 6 had more than 40,000 engagements.⁶

Even Vice President Mike Pence’s former homeland security and counterterrorism advisor acknowledged in December that the President was “encouraging” violence on January 6, stating that she was “very concerned.”⁷

Alarming, the FBI has now warned that there are ongoing threats of continued violence and armed attacks in Washington, D.C., and around the country, through Inauguration Day, including calls by white supremacist groups for a “Million Militia March” on January 20, 2021. Mayor Muriel Bowser has urged Americans to stay away from Washington, D.C., because of the threat of violence.⁸

While the inciters and attackers bear direct responsibility for the siege on the Capitol and will be held fully accountable, they relied on a range of companies and services to get them there and house them once they arrived—companies that law-abiding Americans use every day, but whose services were hijacked to further the January 6 attacks. Trump supporters chartered scores of buses and vans and drove in caravans to the nation’s capital.⁹ They stayed in D.C. hotels, with videos showing attackers relaxing in the lobby of one hotel after the insurrection.¹⁰

Several companies have voluntarily taken action to prevent domestic terrorists from using their services to support further violence. On January 13, 2021, Airbnb announced that it “will cancel reservations in the Washington, D.C., metro area during the Inauguration week” and that “we will prevent any new reservations in the Washington, D.C. area from being booked during that time by blocking such reservations.”¹¹ In addition, before the January 6 attack, the Hotel Harrington took measures to prevent people with violent intent staying at the hotel.¹² In previous acts of domestic terrorism, such as the Oklahoma City Bombing in 1995, private companies took important action to improve their security and deny extremists access to their services.¹³

Given that the ongoing threat of violence in the Washington, D.C., area, and around the country in the coming days, the Committee requests that you:

1. Develop and put in place additional screening measures to ensure that your services are not being used to facilitate violence or domestic terrorism;
2. Retain all records regarding service requests and reservations from January 1 to January 31, 2021, for potential use, if necessary, in future law enforcement or Congressional investigations; and
3. Produce to the Committee by January 29, 2021, all company policies and procedures currently in place or being developed to ensure that your services are not used to facilitate violence or domestic terrorism.

The Committee on Oversight and Reform is the principal oversight committee of the House of Representatives and has broad authority to investigate “any matter” at “any time” under House Rule X. Dear Ms. Burtwistle:

The Committee is writing to request your company's assistance in identifying and preventing the ongoing and extreme threat of further violent attacks in Washington, D.C., and elsewhere, over the coming days.

On January 6, 2021, insurrectionists stormed the Capitol building in an act of domestic terrorism to prevent Congress from performing its Constitutional duty to affirm Joe Biden and Kamala Harris as the next President and Vice President of the United States. Five people died as a result of the attack, including U.S. Capitol Police Officer Brian D. Sicknick, who was reportedly viciously attacked by the mob.¹

Immediately prior to the attacks, thousands of President Trump's supporters descended on Washington, D.C., to attend a rally, answering the President's call to "Be there. Will be Wild!"² The President and his agitators urged the crowd to "send a message" to Members of Congress who did "nothing to stop the steal"³ and engage in "trial by combat."⁴ The President then encouraged his supporters to "walk down to the Capitol," adding "you will never take back our country with weakness."⁵

On January 5, one day before the attack, the Washington Post published a story with the headline, “Pro-Trump Forums Erupt with Violent Threats Ahead of Wednesday’s Rally Against the 2020 Election.” According to the report, violence featured prominently in the posts about the event: “More than half of the top 50 posts on [one forum’s] homepage Monday related to Wednesday’s certification featured calls of violence within the top five comments.” According to one group that tracked the site, recent postings that called for violence in the run-up to January 6 had more than 40,000 engagements.⁶

Even Vice President Mike Pence’s former homeland security and counterterrorism advisor acknowledged in December that the President was “encouraging” violence on January 6, stating that she was “very concerned.”⁷

Alarming, the FBI has now warned that there are ongoing threats of continued violence and armed attacks in Washington, D.C., and around the country, through Inauguration Day, including calls by white supremacist groups for a “Million Militia March” on January 20, 2021. Mayor Muriel Bowser has urged Americans to stay away from Washington, D.C., because of the threat of violence.⁸

While the inciters and attackers bear direct responsibility for the siege on the Capitol and will be held fully accountable, they relied on a range of companies and services to get them there and house them once they arrived—companies that law-abiding Americans use every day, but whose services were hijacked to further the January 6 attacks. Trump supporters chartered scores of buses and vans and drove in caravans to the nation’s capital.⁹ They stayed in D.C. hotels, with videos showing attackers relaxing in the lobby of one hotel after the insurrection.¹⁰

Several companies have voluntarily taken action to prevent domestic terrorists from using their services to support further violence. On January 13, 2021, Airbnb announced that it “will cancel reservations in the Washington, D.C., metro area during the Inauguration week” and that “we will prevent any new reservations in the Washington, D.C. area from being booked during that time by blocking such reservations.”¹¹ In addition, before the January 6 attack, the Hotel Harrington took measures to prevent people with violent intent staying at the hotel.¹² In previous acts of domestic terrorism, such as the Oklahoma City Bombing in 1995, private companies took important action to improve their security and deny extremists access to their services.¹³

Given that the ongoing threat of violence in the Washington, D.C., area, and around the country in the coming days, the Committee requests that you:

1. Develop and put in place additional screening measures to ensure that your services are not being used to facilitate violence or domestic terrorism;
2. Retain all records regarding service requests and reservations from January 1 to January 31, 2021, for potential use, if necessary, in future law enforcement or Congressional investigations; and
3. Produce to the Committee by January 29, 2021, all company policies and procedures currently in place or being developed to ensure that your services are not used to facilitate violence or domestic terrorism.

The Committee is writing to request your company's assistance in identifying and preventing the ongoing and extreme threat of further violent attacks in Washington, D.C., and elsewhere, over the coming days.

On January 6, 2021, insurrectionists stormed the Capitol building in an act of domestic terrorism to prevent Congress from performing its Constitutional duty to affirm Joe Biden and Kamala Harris as the next President and Vice President of the United States. Five people died as a result of the attack, including U.S. Capitol Police Officer Brian D. Sicknick, who was reportedly viciously attacked by the mob.¹

Immediately prior to the attacks, thousands of President Trump's supporters descended on Washington, D.C., to attend a rally, answering the President's call to "Be there. Will be Wild!"² The President and his agitators urged the crowd to "send a message" to Members of Congress who did "nothing to stop the steal"³ and engage in "trial by combat."⁴ The President then encouraged his supporters to "walk down to the Capitol," adding "you will never take back our country with weakness."⁵

On January 5, one day before the attack, the Washington Post published a story with the headline, “Pro-Trump Forums Erupt with Violent Threats Ahead of Wednesday’s Rally Against the 2020 Election.” According to the report, violence featured prominently in the posts about the event: “More than half of the top 50 posts on [one forum’s] homepage Monday related to Wednesday’s certification featured calls of violence within the top five comments.” According to one group that tracked the site, recent postings that called for violence in the run-up to January 6 had more than 40,000 engagements.⁶

Even Vice President Mike Pence’s former homeland security and counterterrorism advisor acknowledged in December that the President was “encouraging” violence on January 6, stating that she was “very concerned.”⁷

Alarming, the FBI has now warned that there are ongoing threats of continued violence and armed attacks in Washington, D.C., and around the country, through Inauguration Day, including calls by white supremacist groups for a “Million Militia March” on January 20, 2021. Mayor Muriel Bowser has urged Americans to stay away from Washington, D.C., because of the threat of violence.⁸

While the inciters and attackers bear direct responsibility for the siege on the Capitol and will be held fully accountable, they relied on a range of companies and services to get them there and house them once they arrived—companies that law-abiding Americans use every day, but whose services were hijacked to further the January 6 attacks. Trump supporters chartered scores of buses and vans and drove in caravans to the nation’s capital.⁹ They stayed in D.C. hotels, with videos showing attackers relaxing in the lobby of one hotel after the insurrection.¹⁰

Several companies have voluntarily taken action to prevent domestic terrorists from using their services to support further violence. On January 13, 2021, Airbnb announced that it “will cancel reservations in the Washington, D.C., metro area during the Inauguration week” and that “we will prevent any new reservations in the Washington, D.C. area from being booked during that time by blocking such reservations.”¹¹ In addition, before the January 6 attack, the Hotel Harrington took measures to prevent people with violent intent staying at the hotel.¹² In previous acts of domestic terrorism, such as the Oklahoma City Bombing in 1995, private companies took important action to improve their security and deny extremists access to their services.¹³

Given that the ongoing threat of violence in the Washington, D.C., area, and around the country in the coming days, the Committee requests that you:

1. Develop and put in place additional screening measures to ensure that your services are not being used to facilitate violence or domestic terrorism;
2. Retain all records regarding service requests and reservations from January 1 to January 31, 2021, for potential use, if necessary, in future law enforcement or Congressional investigations; and
3. Produce to the Committee by January 29, 2021, all company policies and procedures currently in place or being developed to ensure that your services are not used to facilitate violence or domestic terrorism.

The Committee is writing to request your company's assistance in identifying and preventing the ongoing and extreme threat of further violent attacks in Washington, D.C., and elsewhere, over the coming days.

On January 6, 2021, insurrectionists stormed the Capitol building in an act of domestic terrorism to prevent Congress from performing its Constitutional duty to affirm Joe Biden and Kamala Harris as the next President and Vice President of the United States. Five people died as a result of the attack, including U.S. Capitol Police Officer Brian D. Sicknick, who was reportedly viciously attacked by the mob.¹

Immediately prior to the attacks, thousands of President Trump's supporters descended on Washington, D.C., to attend a rally, answering the President's call to "Be there. Will be Wild!"² The President and his agitators urged the crowd to "send a message" to Members of Congress who did "nothing to stop the steal"³ and engage in "trial by combat."⁴ The President then encouraged his supporters to "walk down to the Capitol," adding "you will never take back our country with weakness."⁵

On January 5, one day before the attack, the Washington Post published a story with the headline, “Pro-Trump Forums Erupt with Violent Threats Ahead of Wednesday’s Rally Against the 2020 Election.” According to the report, violence featured prominently in the posts about the event: “More than half of the top 50 posts on [one forum’s] homepage Monday related to Wednesday’s certification featured calls of violence within the top five comments.” According to one group that tracked the site, recent postings that called for violence in the run-up to January 6 had more than 40,000 engagements.⁶

Even Vice President Mike Pence’s former homeland security and counterterrorism advisor acknowledged in December that the President was “encouraging” violence on January 6, stating that she was “very concerned.”⁷

Alarming, the FBI has now warned that there are ongoing threats of continued violence and armed attacks in Washington, D.C., and around the country, through Inauguration Day, including calls by white supremacist groups for a “Million Militia March” on January 20, 2021. Mayor Muriel Bowser has urged Americans to stay away from Washington, D.C., because of the threat of violence.⁸

While the inciters and attackers bear direct responsibility for the siege on the Capitol and will be held fully accountable, they relied on a range of companies and services to get them there and house them once they arrived—companies that law-abiding Americans use every day, but whose services were hijacked to further the January 6 attacks. Trump supporters chartered scores of buses and vans and drove in caravans to the nation’s capital.⁹ They stayed in D.C. hotels, with videos showing attackers relaxing in the lobby of one hotel after the insurrection.¹⁰

Several companies have voluntarily taken action to prevent domestic terrorists from using their services to support further violence. On January 13, 2021, Airbnb announced that it “will cancel reservations in the Washington, D.C., metro area during the Inauguration week” and that “we will prevent any new reservations in the Washington, D.C. area from being booked during that time by blocking such reservations.”¹¹ In addition, before the January 6 attack, the Hotel Harrington took measures to prevent people with violent intent staying at the hotel.¹² In previous acts of domestic terrorism, such as the Oklahoma City Bombing in 1995, private companies took important action to improve their security and deny extremists access to their services.¹³

Given that the ongoing threat of violence in the Washington, D.C., area, and around the country in the coming days, the Committee requests that you:

1. Develop and put in place additional screening measures to ensure that your services are not being used to facilitate violence or domestic terrorism;
2. Retain all records regarding service requests and reservations from January 1 to January 31, 2021, for potential use, if necessary, in future law enforcement or Congressional investigations; and
3. Produce to the Committee by January 29, 2021, all company policies and procedures currently in place or being developed to ensure that your services are not used to facilitate violence or domestic terrorism.

The Committee is writing to request your company's assistance in identifying and preventing the ongoing and extreme threat of further violent attacks in Washington, D.C., and elsewhere, over the coming days.

On January 6, 2021, insurrectionists stormed the Capitol building in an act of domestic terrorism to prevent Congress from performing its Constitutional duty to affirm Joe Biden and Kamala Harris as the next President and Vice President of the United States. Five people died as a result of the attack, including U.S. Capitol Police Officer Brian D. Sicknick, who was reportedly viciously attacked by the mob.¹

Immediately prior to the attacks, thousands of President Trump's supporters descended on Washington, D.C., to attend a rally, answering the President's call to "Be there. Will be Wild!"² The President and his agitators urged the crowd to "send a message" to Members of Congress who did "nothing to stop the steal"³ and engage in "trial by combat."⁴ The President then encouraged his supporters to "walk down to the Capitol," adding "you will never take back our country with weakness."⁵

On January 5, one day before the attack, the Washington Post published a story with the headline, “Pro-Trump Forums Erupt with Violent Threats Ahead of Wednesday’s Rally Against the 2020 Election.” According to the report, violence featured prominently in the posts about the event: “More than half of the top 50 posts on [one forum’s] homepage Monday related to Wednesday’s certification featured calls of violence within the top five comments.” According to one group that tracked the site, recent postings that called for violence in the run-up to January 6 had more than 40,000 engagements.⁶

Even Vice President Mike Pence’s former homeland security and counterterrorism advisor acknowledged in December that the President was “encouraging” violence on January 6, stating that she was “very concerned.”⁷

Alarming, the FBI has now warned that there are ongoing threats of continued violence and armed attacks in Washington, D.C., and around the country, through Inauguration Day, including calls by white supremacist groups for a “Million Militia March” on January 20, 2021. Mayor Muriel Bowser has urged Americans to stay away from Washington, D.C., because of the threat of violence.⁸

While the inciters and attackers bear direct responsibility for the siege on the Capitol and will be held fully accountable, they relied on a range of companies and services to get them there and house them once they arrived—companies that law-abiding Americans use every day, but whose services were hijacked to further the January 6 attacks. Trump supporters chartered scores of buses and vans and drove in caravans to the nation’s capital.⁹ They stayed in D.C. hotels, with videos showing attackers relaxing in the lobby of one hotel after the insurrection.¹⁰

Several companies have voluntarily taken action to prevent domestic terrorists from using their services to support further violence. On January 13, 2021, Airbnb announced that it “will cancel reservations in the Washington, D.C., metro area during the Inauguration week” and that “we will prevent any new reservations in the Washington, D.C. area from being booked during that time by blocking such reservations.”¹¹ In addition, before the January 6 attack, the Hotel Harrington took measures to prevent people with violent intent staying at the hotel.¹² In previous acts of domestic terrorism, such as the Oklahoma City Bombing in 1995, private companies took important action to improve their security and deny extremists access to their services.¹³

Given that the ongoing threat of violence in the Washington, D.C., area, and around the country in the coming days, the Committee requests that you:

1. Develop and put in place additional screening measures to ensure that your services are not being used to facilitate violence or domestic terrorism;
2. Retain all records regarding service requests and reservations from January 1 to January 31, 2021, for potential use, if necessary, in future law enforcement or Congressional investigations; and
3. Produce to the Committee by January 29, 2021, all company policies and procedures currently in place or being developed to ensure that your services are not used to facilitate violence or domestic terrorism.

Dear Ms. Taylor-Broughton:

The Committee is writing to request your company's assistance in identifying and preventing the ongoing and extreme threat of further violent attacks in Washington, D.C., and elsewhere, over the coming days.

On January 6, 2021, insurrectionists stormed the Capitol building in an act of domestic terrorism to prevent Congress from performing its Constitutional duty to affirm Joe Biden and Kamala Harris as the next President and Vice President of the United States. Five people died as a result of the attack, including U.S. Capitol Police Officer Brian D. Sicknick, who was reportedly viciously attacked by the mob.¹

Immediately prior to the attacks, thousands of President Trump's supporters descended on Washington, D.C., to attend a rally, answering the President's call to "Be there. Will be Wild!"² The President and his agitators urged the crowd to "send a message" to Members of Congress who did "nothing to stop the steal"³ and engage in "trial by combat."⁴ The President then encouraged his supporters to "walk down to the Capitol," adding "you will never take back our country with weakness."⁵

On January 5, one day before the attack, the Washington Post published a story with the headline, "Pro-Trump Forums Erupt with Violent Threats Ahead of Wednesday's Rally Against the 2020 Election." According to the report, violence featured prominently in the posts about the event: "More than half of the top 50 posts on [one forum's] homepage Monday related to Wednesday's certification featured calls of violence within the top five comments." According to one group that tracked the site, recent postings that called for violence in the run-up to January 6 had more than 40,000 engagements.⁶

Even Vice President Mike Pence's former homeland security and counterterrorism advisor acknowledged in December that the President was "encouraging" violence on January 6, stating that she was "very concerned."⁷

Alarming, the FBI has now warned that there are ongoing threats of continued violence and armed attacks in Washington, D.C., and around the country, through Inauguration Day, including calls by white supremacist groups for a "Million Militia March" on January 20, 2021. Mayor Muriel Bowser has urged Americans to stay away from Washington, D.C., because of the threat of violence.⁸

While the inciters and attackers bear direct responsibility for the siege on the Capitol and will be held fully accountable, they relied on a range of companies and services to get them there and house them once they arrived—companies that law-abiding Americans use every day, but whose services were hijacked to further the January 6 attacks. Trump supporters chartered scores of buses and vans and drove in caravans to the nation's capital.⁹ They stayed in D.C. hotels, with videos showing attackers relaxing in the lobby of one hotel after the insurrection.¹⁰

Several companies have voluntarily taken action to prevent domestic terrorists from using their services to support further violence. On January 13, 2021, Airbnb announced that it “will cancel reservations in the Washington, D.C., metro area during the Inauguration week” and that “we will prevent any new reservations in the Washington, D.C. area from being booked during that time by blocking such reservations.”¹¹ In addition, before the January 6 attack, the Hotel Harrington took measures to prevent people with violent intent staying at the hotel.¹² In previous acts of domestic terrorism, such as the Oklahoma City Bombing in 1995, private companies took important action to improve their security and deny extremists access to their services.¹³

Given that the ongoing threat of violence in the Washington, D.C., area, and around the country in the coming days, the Committee requests that you:

1. Develop and put in place additional screening measures to ensure that your services are not being used to facilitate violence or domestic terrorism;
2. Retain all records regarding service requests and reservations from January 1 to January 31, 2021, for potential use, if necessary, in future law enforcement or Congressional investigations; and
3. Produce to the Committee by January 29, 2021, all company policies and procedures currently in place or being developed to ensure that your services are not used to facilitate violence or domestic terrorism.
