

MONCLER

GROUP

UPDATE ON MALWARE ATTACK

Milan, 18 January 2022. Concerning the cyberattack reported in the press releases dated 23 and 30 December 2021, Moncler informs that the Company has received a ransom demand which has been rejected, firmly believing the request to be against its founding principles. As a result of this decision some data, that was exfiltrated by cybercriminals, have been published on the dark web today.

While the investigation related to the attack is still ongoing, Moncler confirms that the stolen information refers to its employees and former employees, some suppliers, consultants and business partners, as well as customers registered in its database. With regard to information linked to customers, the company informs that no data relating to credit cards or other means of payment have been exfiltrated, as the company does not store such data on its systems.

Moncler reminds that all information in the possession of cybercriminals is the result of illegal activities and that consequently, the acquisition, use and dissemination of the same constitutes a criminal offense.

As previously communicated, the Company promptly notified all the competent authorities, including the Data Protection Authority. Furthermore, the stakeholders affected by the data breach have also been informed.

Moncler is deeply sorry for what happened and for any inconvenience and concern this situation might have caused to its stakeholders. As soon as the incident occurred, the Company immediately activated a team of cybersecurity experts to contain the attack and has strengthened its IT security measures on all its infrastructures.

Lastly, Moncler informs that the reactivation of its IT systems is almost completed and confirms that the temporary interruption of its logistics services has not caused a material impact on the Group's economic results.
