Every citizen's vote is sacred. The vote is how we guarantee that our government remains of the people, by the people, and for the people. Americans need and deserve elections that they can trust. As we head into an important midterm election, our focus must be dedicated to ensuring that it is easy to vote, but hard to cheat.

As state legislatures convene this month across the country, election integrity will be taking center stage once again. In order to help voters, state legislators, election officials, and all Americans who are interested in ensuring a fair and secure election process, The Heritage Foundation released the Election Integrity Scorecard last month. This new interactive tool grades each state's laws against best practice standards and provides model legislation to shore up vulnerabilities at all stages of the electoral cycle.

Join us for a panel discussion where we will preview Heritage's new Scorecard, outline what to anticipate in states from upcoming legislative cycles, and plans for grassroots advocacy on the ground. We will be joined by an esteemed panel of state officials, leading election law experts, and advocates.
