

Full statement from Florida Crystals:

“While disappointing, it is not surprising that the Palm Beach Post would publish a story that challenges the validity of a fair and democratic election that had record voter turnout and resulted in the election of the first Hispanic City Commissioner to hold one seat and of two well-known and well-respected Black community leaders in the others. The Palm Beach Post is not only attempting to undermine a free, fair and accessible election but also to harm the reputations of three highly regarded Glades leaders, the consequence of which will be a chilling effect on future leaders who will rethink entering public service.”
