FBI Figures Show Rise In Anti-Asian Hate Crimes

NBC News (10/25) reports, "Anti-Asian hate crimes increased more than 73 percent in 2020, according to newly corrected FBI data. It's a disproportionate uptick compared to hate crimes in general, which rose 13 percent." According to NBC News, "The FBI's data, originally released in August, was reposted Monday morning after an error was found in Ohio's reporting system. The misreported statistics have been corrected, according to a bureau press release, and the new data reflects the accurate count for the 15,138 law enforcement agencies that reported numbers. An online breakdown confirmed what scholars, activists and community leaders have known for a long time – that anti-Asian incidents took a dramatic upswing during the pandemic. The FBI reported 279 hate crimes against Asians in 2020, compared to 161 in 2019."

The Washington Times (10/25, Zantow) reports, "The Justice Department on Monday announced a national campaign to combat hate crimes after the FBI released new data showing a 13% uptick in incidents last year compared to 2019." The Times adds, "Jay Greenberg, deputy assistant director of the FBI's Criminal Investigative Division, said during a DOJ virtual anti-hate crime conference that the initiative will be focused on area-specific efforts, including billboards, social media posts and national-local partnerships. 'Every hate crime that's motivated [in] bias is an attack against an entire community and not just an attack on a single person, and we're here to support those entire communities,' Mr. Greenberg said."

City Workers Help People Move From Homeless Camp In Boston

The AP (10/25) reports, "Workers with the Boston Public Health Commission's Homeless Services Bureau...helped people" move from a homeless camp in Boston, Massachusetts. City officials have cited substance use disorder-related problems, including ones that involve opioids, as a reason for Monday's effort to clear that camp. The AP adds, "It's not clear where the city plans to relocate people displaced by the removal" of the camp, which is located in a part of Boston that "has long been a haven for crime and illegal drug sales and use, often in the open."

New Jersey Judge Objects To Plan To Cut Sentences For Non-Violent Drug Crimes

The New Jersey Star-Ledger (10/25, Nelson) reports, “A coalition of prosecutors and public defenders are trying to revive a plan to reduce sentences for hundreds of people currently in New Jersey prisons, part of a years-long effort to ease racial disparities behind bars.” According to the Star-Ledger, “Over the summer, a New Jersey judge partially objected to a plan to speed up when some prisoners convicted of non-violent drug crimes are eligible for parole. Superior Court Judge Susan J. Steele wrote that she ‘lauds’ efforts to eliminate certain mandatory minimum sentences, but the judge said New Jersey’s attorney general overstepped earlier this year when he unilaterally moved to speed up parole eligibility.”

Movie Set Shooting Prompts Calls For Ban On Real Guns In Hollywood

Reuters (10/25) reports, “The fatal shooting accident on the set of an Alec Baldwin movie has prompted calls for a ban on the use of real guns in TV shows and movies, with two producers already saying they will stop the practice. ‘Booksmart’ film director Olivia Wilde called on Hollywood to implement what she called ‘Halyna’s Law,’ and a petition urging Baldwin to take the lead in a campaign to ban the use of real firearms had attracted more than 27,000 votes by Monday.” The campaign “was prompted by the death of cinematographer Halyna Hutchins and the wounding of director Joel Souza on the set of the Western indie movie ‘Rust’ at Bonanza Creek ranch near Santa Fe last week. The two were hit when a revolver containing live rounds that was being used by Baldwin in a rehearsal discharged.”

A message from an IACP partner:

A new global research study from Motorola Solutions, conducted by Goldsmiths, University of London, reveals the pandemic accelerated public acceptance of safety technology and its adoption by public safety agencies. Based on a survey of 12,000 citizens and interviews with 50+ public safety experts, it is an essential resource for understanding how to assess risk, integrate the right technologies, and secure community support. Increase In Drug Overdose Deaths Reportedly Putting Strain On First Responders

The Hill (10/25, Sullivan) reports, “An increase in drug overdose deaths is putting a strain on first responders, prompting the development of new strategies to better help people with addiction and training mechanisms to teach paramedics, police and firefighters how to cope with what they experience on the job once they are off the clock.” CDC data released in October “found a record high of almost 97,000 drug overdose deaths in the 12 months ending in March, a 29.6 percent increase.”

Two Dead, Four Injured In Idaho Mall Shooting

The AP (10/25, Boone) reports, “A suspect is in custody after two people were killed and four injured – including a police officer – in a shooting” that occurred on Monday in an Idaho shopping mall. During a news conference, authorities “said officers exchanged gunfire with the suspect. Police on Monday evening said in a news release that the suspect was in critical condition at a hospital and that the officer who was hurt had been treated and released. Police haven’t released any other information about the victims, officer or the suspect.”

USA Today (10/25, Tabor) reports, “Boise Police Chief Ryan Lee said officers responded to a report of shots fired at Boise Towne Square shopping mall at about 1:50 p.m. The mall is located in Idaho’s largest city and is the city’s largest mall. When police arrived, authorities say they saw someone who matched the description of a suspect. An exchange of gunfire followed, which led to one police officer being injured, according to Lee.” Lee “said a suspect is in custody and believes there was only one shooter. The suspect is in critical condition, and the officer was treated and released according to Boise police.”

The AP (10/25, Asadu) reports that “at least 18 worshippers were killed by gunmen who attacked a mosque in northern Nigeria during early morning prayers Monday, local authorities and police told The Associated Press.” The attackers, “believed to be ethnic Fulani nomadic herders, were able to escape.”

Illegal Drugs Suspected Of Causing Three Deaths In California

The AP (10/25) reports, “Illegal drugs are suspected after three people were found dead at a home in” Newport Beach, California. On Monday, Newport Beach Police Lt. Keith Krallman “told reporters that investigators suspect drugs, possibly fentanyl, were involved.” The Orange County (CA) Register (10/25) publishes a similar story.

Study Finds Big Increase In Marijuana Vaping By School-Aged Youth

An online CNN (10/25, LaMotte) article says, “Carmen Lim, a PhD candidate on Health and Behavioural Sciences at the University of Queensland in Australia,” authored a study that found marijuana vaping “by school-aged youth doubled between 2013 and 2020.” The study , which was “published Monday in JAMA Pediatrics, analyzed 17” other studies that were conducted in Canada and the US. Lim’s study “found that teens in their senior year of high school were most likely to be vaping marijuana compared to younger adolescents.” Lim stated, “The use of cannabis products with high THC (that are) easily achievable through vaping raises several potential problems.” Lim added, “Not only it is linked to poorer cognitive development in adolescents, it could increase risk of dependence, other substance use and many other health, social, and behavioral problems later in life.”

Judge Rules Two Men Charged With Plotting “Race War” May Be Sentenced As Domestic Terrorists

The Washington Post (10/25, Mettler, Duggan) reports, “A federal judge decided Monday that he will consider adding a ‘terrorism enhancement’ to the prison terms of two white supremacists who prosecutors said plotted to carry out deadly violence at a Virginia guns-rights rally last year to provoke what one of them called ‘a full-blown civil war.’” Patrik Mathews, 29, and Brian Lemley Jr.,

35, “pleaded guilty to firearms- and immigration-related charges in US District Court in Greenbelt, Md., and are scheduled to be sentenced Thursday. After hours of legal arguments Monday, Judge Theodore D. Australia Planning Parental Consent Requirement For Social Media

The AP (10/25, McGuirk) reports a newly released draft version of a law shows that Australia plans to make “social media platforms seek parental consent for users younger than 16 years old to join or face fines of 10 million Australian dollars ($7.5 million).” Assistant Minister to the Prime Minister for Mental Health and Suicide Prevention David Coleman “said the new code would lead the world in protecting children from social media companies.” While expressing concern about a “consistent increase in signs of distress and mental ill health among young people” in Australia, Coleman said, “While the reasons for this are varied and complex, we know that social media is part of the problem.”

When we decide to make the solving of our homicide case public based on the DNA, we should “market” our accomplishments – SEE BELOW:

DNA Identifies Suspected Killer In 1980 California Cold Case

The Orange County (CA) Register (8/9, Rasmussen) reports, “A man who died 22 years ago was publicly identified by police on Monday, Aug. 9, as the suspected killer in a 1980 case in Newport Beach after they used DNA, genetic genealogy and a process that never before had been used to solve a murder in the United States.” Kenneth Elwin Marks “was the man who shot and killed Judith ‘Judy’ Nesbitt, 42, while showing him her family’s boat on Nov. 26, 1980, Newport Beach police said.” The OCR adds, “In 2002, investigators first tried to use DNA taken from roots of the hair and entered that information into the FBI’s Combined DNA Index System, but the profile did not find a match. About three years ago, a more expanded DNA profile was taken from the remaining hair shafts. That type of extraction was the first of its kind used to identify someone in a murder investigation in the nation, police said.”

Planning for body cameras 2022 and beyond:
3 dates and locations: Elgin, Fairview
Heights, Springfield

Training sponsored by Axon, Genetec and Motorola Solutions (Watchguard)

General description:

The Illinois Law Enforcement Officer-Worn Body Camera Act was effective January 1, 2016. It was amended by the SAFE-T Act of 2021, which requires all Illinois LE agencies to implement a body-worn camera program, depending on agency type and size, no later than January 1, 2025.

Only about 10 percent of Illinois agencies have implemented body cameras so far. To help prepare all agencies for the new law, this training from ILACP will provide you the collective experience of agencies in northern, central, and southeastern Illinois that have been using the cameras.

You will learn what's in the law, but more important, you will learn how you can best plan for and implement a successful body-worn camera program. The session will address policies, practices, and lessons learned from these agencies. You will learn about interaction with state's attorneys' offices and how the use of cameras can assist with citizen complaints.

Who should attend? Chiefs and command staff who oversee or plan to oversee a BWC program. It will be helpful for agencies already using cameras and the other 90 percent that are looking into it.

COST: FREE - Registration is required

OFFICER AMBUSH AWARENESS SKILLS... Lessons Learned

NOVEMBER 9, 2021
AN ONLINE TRAINING EVENT

TOPIC:

During the past few years, there has been an emerging trend in felonious officer deaths as a result of ambush confrontations with armed individuals.

From Dallas to Philly, Florida to New York, law enforcement officers face the threat of someone opening fire as they arrive at a call or when they are sitting in the patrol car writing a report.

Not every law enforcement encounter involves an officer involved shooting and no officer is totally immune to ambushes. Officers must train to be alert and sharpen their situational awareness skills on and off duty. With the increasing proportion of police murders being classified as ambushes, education must include skills developed from lessons learned in the field. Officers must be prepared for the unexpected.

There are generally four factors that define an ambush assault:

- The element of surprise
- Concealment of the assailant, their intentions or weapons
- The suddenness of the attack
- A lack of provocation

This four hour class offers the following:

- A brief look at the history of ambush attacks on law enforcement.
- A review of definitions, classifications and types of ambush attacks.
- A review of current data provided by the Department of Justice COPS Program and IACP.
- A review of ambush attack cases on law enforcement officers.
- The Importance of Developing Situational Awareness Skills.
- The effective use of cover and the dangers associated with arriving at a scene, approaching a stopped car, parking to take a break, fueling up your car and entering and exiting the police station.

- The importance of your distance and the speed you approach each call.
- The importance of hands-on training: Beginning at the academy and throughout an officer's career.
- Preparing for the aftermath: Dealing with the mental and physical toll on the mind and body.
- Learning to develop a mindset of survival and the will to win. Safety is Job One!

THIS IS NOT A TACTICAL HANDS-ON TRAINING CLASS

TARGET AUDIENCE: All sworn members of the criminal justice and legal community.

INSTRUCTOR: Thomas Gillan is the Founder and Director of the P S U Crisis Management and Training Group, Inc. This non-profit organization has been providing peer support, counseling, training, and educational programs since 1992.

Thomas Gillan is a Certified Law Enforcement Trainer and Criminal Justice/ Public Safety Instructor. Law Enforcement officers are continuously facing challenges, being tasked with solving more crimes with lower budgets and fewer officers. Robbery, burglary, thefts, and all types of organized crime continue to grow in scope and violence. What are police, retailers, businesses, and communities to do to stay safe?

To address these challenges, more agencies and businesses are turning to technology. Leading security solution providers like 3SI partner with these groups and, together, can work to arrest criminals and recover stolen property. The impact on quality of life in the affected communities is significant – and the positive public-police interactions serve to create stronger relationships and build trust.

Led by 3SI's Senior Vice President & Director of Global Law Enforcement, Richard Long, CPP, you will hear real-world success stories from 3SI Law Enforcement Division (LED) Bureau Chiefs to illustrate the impact that technology can have on crime. We'll also discuss how your agency can proactively use this technology to address serial crimes. From protecting bikes to cars to packages, truck tires, lawn maintenance equipment, and more, police departments have solved hundreds of crimes and put away many career criminals using 3SI technology.

Nashville, Tennessee Police Oversight Board To Recommend Change To Use-Of-Force Policy

A Tennessean (10/22, Friedman) article says, “Nashville’s community oversight board is preparing to recommend a serious change to the way police file use of force reports.” In a draft document that is “expected to be submitted to the Metro Nashville Police Department and Metro Council later this month, the board recommends officers file a use of force report anytime they use only their hands to grab or restrain a person.” Currently, the Metro Nashville Police Department “only requires reports for hand tactics used to control a person when they lead to an injury or there is an allegation of an injury. Officers also must file force reports when they use other more brutal arrest tactics, like striking a person with their hands or feet, or using weapons like a taser, tear gas or gun.”

WPost Analysis: Upcoming Vote On Minneapolis Police Force Has Fractured City Further

A Washington Post (10/22) analysis says that even as George Floyd’s killing prompted pressing “calls for police reform, the question of how to get there has exposed deep divides across Minneapolis, exacerbated by a spike in violent crime. A Nov. 2 ballot question that would dramatically reshape the size and scope of the Minneapolis police force has fractured the city even more in the first major electoral test of the police reform movement since Floyd’s death.” The question would modify “the Minneapolis charter to allow the police department to be replaced by a Department of Public Safety overseen by both the mayor and city council.” The Post also says “the initiative would remove decades-old language from the charter requiring a minimum number of police officers based on the city’s population. The new department ‘could include’ police officers ‘if necessary’ – wording that has left some residents afraid the city would descend into lawlessness.”

Baltimore Monitors School-Issued Laptops For Safety, Mental Health Reasons According To Officials

The Washington Post (10/24, Bowie) reports, “The Baltimore City school system is monitoring its laptops with software that alerts officials when a student might be considering suicide, a controversial innovation that came about during the coronavirus pandemic after the system loaned families tens of thousands of the computers for use at home.” Two recently released reports “question the use of such technology across the country to track students, warning that it might be used for disciplinary purposes, unintentionally out LGBTQ students or squash student expression.”

Utah Gun Permit Applications Down After Training Requirement Dropped

The Deseret News (UT) (10/23, Romboy) reports from Salt Lake City, Utah, “Certified firearms instructor Aaron Turner has no one to teach. Earlier this year, his courses covering gun safety, shooting fundamentals, federal and state laws, and suicide prevention for would-be concealed carry permit holders were booked solid,” but “since Utah did away with the law requiring the state-issued permit on May 5, Turner’s classes have dried up. That means thousands of Utah gun owners can now legally carry a firearm under a shirt or jacket without any training. ‘My fear is that people don’t know what they don’t know. If they don’t do some serious homework.. ... Probably the biggest challenge in my classes was debunking all the stuff people came into the room with, their preconceived notions, or worse, things that they’ve heard around the water cooler,’ Turner said.”

Florida Governor Plans $5K Bonus To Relocate Police Officers Avoiding Vaccine Mandates

The Hill (10/24, Schnell) reports Florida Gov. Ron DeSantis (R) on Sunday told Fox News’s Maria Bartitomo that the state is “actively working to recruit out-of-state law enforcement,” and announced plans to offer a $5,000 bonus to police officers to relocate to the state. DeSantis said he expects to sign a bill approving the bonuses “in the next legislative session,” adding that the Biden Administration’s vaccine mandate is “unconstitutional” and will “wreak havoc in the economy.”

HuffPost (10/24) reports DeSantis argued that “most of those first responders have had COVID and have recovered,” adding that natural immunity “influences their decision” not to get vaccinated.

American University’s School of Public Affairs released a report addressing police training needs. Police, members of non-government organizations, community leaders and academic experts were all key stakeholders in developing this report. The report, entitled, Re-Envisioning Police Training in the U.S.: Rejecting the Status Quo, Speeding the Pace of Progress Toward a True 21st Century Model identifies gaps in training. Major Colombian Drug Lord Captured

The AP (10/24, Suarez, Goodman) reports, “Colombian security forces have captured the country’s most wanted drug trafficker, a rural warlord who stayed on the run for more than a decade by corrupting state officials and aligning himself with combatants on the left and right.” President Iván Duque “likened the arrest Saturday of Dairo Antonio Úsuga to the capture three decades ago of Pablo Escobar. Colombia’s military presented Úsuga to the media in handcuffs and wearing rubber boots preferred by rural farmers.” Úsuga, “better known by his alias Otoniel, is the alleged head of the much-feared Gulf Clan, whose army of assassins has terrorized much of northern Colombia to gain control of major cocaine smuggling routes through thick jungles north to Central America and onto the US. He’s long been a fixture on the US Drug Enforcement Administration’s most-wanted fugitives list, for whose capture it had been offering a $5 million reward.”

Reuters (10/24, Acosta, Griffin) reports, “The man Colombia describes as the world’s most dangerous drug trafficker told security forces: ‘You beat me’ when he was captured during an operation this weekend, the government said on Sunday, pledging to extradite him swiftly to the United States.” Usuga “was caught by Colombia’s armed forces during an operation in a rural area of Colombia’s Uraba region, Antioquia province, which involved more than 500 members of Colombia’s special forces and 22 helicopters, officials said on Saturday.”

Axios-Ipsos Poll: Most Americans Incorrectly Think “Violent Crime Is Worse Now Than It Was 30 Years Ago”

Axios (10/23, Walsh) reports an Axios/Ipsos poll shows most Americans erroneously think “that violent crime is worse now than it was 30 years ago,” with the share of respondents feeling that way coming out to 58%. Roughly two-thirds of Republicans felt that way as well as slightly more than 50% of Democrats. However, partisan fissures rapidly materialized “when those who believe violent crime went up were asked to identify the main causes.”

Axios Analysis: Homicide Rate In 11 Biggest Border Communities Was Below National Average During 2020. Axios (10/23, Contreras) reports that while the US homicide rate rose during 2020, “the murder rate in 11 of the largest communities along the U.S. border stayed below the national average, an Axios analysis found.” Axios also says, “The wide disparity between majority-Mexican American and Mexican immigrant border communities and other similar-size cities further north conflicts with images and myths of the U.S.-Mexico border as a region filled with crime and disarray.” The analysis utilizing FBI data as well as the 2020 census determined that “11 border communities from San Diego to Brownsville, Texas, had a homicide rate of 4.1 per 100,000 residents – well below the national average.”

One Dead, Seven Wounded Following Shooting Near University In Georgia

The Hill (10/23, Vakil) says, “Georgia authorities reported early Saturday morning that a shooting that took place at an off-campus party near a university left seven people injured and one person dead.” On Saturday, the Georgia Bureau of Investigation, which is probing the incident, said via Twitter, “The GBI is investigating a shooting incident that happened at an off campus party in Fort Valley. A total of eight people were shot. Of the eight people, one person has died.” Officials subsequently indicated that the individual who was killed had not been a Fort Valley State University student. WSB-TV reported Peach County coroner Kerry Rooks identified that individual as Tyler French, 27.

Uganda President: Kampala Blast Likely A Terrorist Attack

The AP (10/24, Muhumuza) reports an explosion “at an eatery in Uganda’s capital was an apparent terrorist act, President Yoweri Museveni said on Sunday. Museveni said three people entered the eatery in a suburb of Kampala on Saturday evening and left a plastic bag whose contents later exploded.” Police “said in a statement that at least one person had died and seven others were injured in the blast.”

Rise In “Needle Spiking” Puts UK Women On Alert

The Washington Post (10/23, Suliman) reports from London, “Britain is increasingly feeling like a hostile place for women. There have been multiple reports of ‘needle spiking’ – which involves an injection being administered to someone without their knowledge or consent, usually in a nightclub or bar setting – as opposed to the more commonly known method of contaminating alcoholic drinks.” According to the Post, “The Nottinghamshire police said this week that it had received a total of 15 reports of alleged spiking with a sharp object since Oct. 2, with the majority of reports made by women, in venues across the popular university town. Two men had been arrested so far on ‘suspicion of conspiracy to administer poison with intent to injure, annoy or aggrieve,’ the police added on Friday. Cases have also been reported elsewhere in Britain, mostly among college students, in Glasgow, Exeter and Birmingham.”

Technology

News Analysis: License Plate Scanners Reshaping American Neighborhoods

The Washington Post (10/22, A1, Harwell) reports, “License plate readers are rapidly reshaping private security in American neighborhoods, bringing police surveillance tools to the masses with an automated watchdog that records 24 hours a day.” According to the Post, “With ‘safety-as-a-service’ packages starting at $2,500 per camera a year, the scanners are part of a growing wave of easy-to-use surveillance systems promoted for their crime-fighting powers in a country where property crime rates are at all-time lows. Once found mostly in gated communities, the systems have – with help from aggressive marketing efforts – spread to cover practically everywhere anyone chooses to live in the United States,” but “the explosion of such systems...has created a new point of friction between crime-fearing residents and their privacy-minded neighbors, who note that by cataloguing time-stamped photos of every car’s comings and goings, the systems can generate a revealing portrait of drivers’ daily routines – residents and strangers, alike.”

Axios (10/23, Contreras) reports that while the US homicide rate rose during 2020, “the murder rate in 11 of the largest communities along the U.S. border stayed below the national average, an Axios analysis found.” Axios also says, “The wide disparity between majority-Mexican American and Mexican immigrant border communities and other similar-size cities further north conflicts with images and myths of the U.S.-Mexico border as a region filled with crime and disarray.” The analysis utilizing FBI data as well as the 2020 census determined that “11 border communities from San Diego to Brownsville, Texas, had a homicide rate of 4.1 per 100,000 residents – well below the national average.”

One Dead, Seven Wounded Following Shooting Near University In Georgia

The Hill (10/23, Vakil) says, “Georgia authorities reported early Saturday morning that a shooting that took place at an off-campus party near a university left seven people injured and one person dead.” On Saturday, the Georgia Bureau of Investigation, which is probing the incident, said via Twitter, “The GBI is investigating a shooting incident that happened at an off campus party in Fort Valley. A total of eight people were shot. Of the eight people, one person has died.” Officials subsequently indicated that the individual who was killed had not been a Fort Valley State University student. WSB-TV reported Peach County coroner Kerry Rooks identified that individual as Tyler French, 27.

Uganda President: Kampala Blast Likely A Terrorist Attack

The AP (10/24, Muhumuza) reports an explosion “at an eatery in Uganda’s capital was an apparent terrorist act, President Yoweri Museveni said on Sunday. Museveni said three people entered the eatery in a suburb of Kampala on Saturday evening and left a plastic bag whose contents later exploded.” Police “said in a statement that at least one person had died and seven others were injured in the blast.”

Rise In “Needle Spiking” Puts UK Women On Alert

The Washington Post (10/23, Suliman) reports from London, “Britain is increasingly feeling like a hostile place for women. There have been multiple reports of ‘needle spiking’ – which involves an injection being administered to someone without their knowledge or consent, usually in a nightclub or bar setting – as opposed to the more commonly known method of contaminating alcoholic drinks.” According to the Post, “The Nottinghamshire police said this week that it had received a total of 15 reports of alleged spiking with a sharp object since Oct. 2, with the majority of reports made by women, in venues across the popular university town. Two men had been arrested so far on ‘suspicion of conspiracy to administer poison with intent to injure, annoy or aggrieve,’ the police added on Friday. Cases have also been reported elsewhere in Britain, mostly among college students, in Glasgow, Exeter and Birmingham.”

Technology

News Analysis: License Plate Scanners Reshaping American Neighborhoods

The Washington Post (10/22, A1, Harwell) reports, “License plate readers are rapidly reshaping private security in American neighborhoods, bringing police surveillance tools to the masses with an automated watchdog that records 24 hours a day.” According to the Post, “With ‘safety-as-a-service’ packages starting at $2,500 per camera a year, the scanners are part of a growing wave of easy-to-use surveillance systems promoted for their crime-fighting powers in a country where property crime rates are at all-time lows. Once found mostly in gated communities, the systems have – with help from aggressive marketing efforts – spread to cover practically everywhere anyone chooses to live in the United States,” but “the explosion of such systems...has created a new point of friction between crime-fearing residents and their privacy-minded neighbors, who note that by cataloguing time-stamped photos of every car’s comings and goings, the systems can generate a revealing portrait of drivers’ daily routines – residents and strangers, alike.”

Nashville, Tennessee Police Oversight Board To Recommend Change To Use-Of-Force Policy

A Tennessean (10/22, Friedman) article says, "Nashville's community oversight board is preparing to recommend a serious change to the way police file use of force reports." In a draft document that is "expected to be submitted to the Metro Nashville Police Department and Metro Council later this month, the board recommends officers file a use of force report anytime they use only their hands to grab or restrain a person." Currently, the Metro Nashville Police Department "only requires reports for hand tactics used to control a person when they lead to an injury or there is an allegation of an injury. Officers also must file force reports when they use other more brutal arrest tactics, like striking a person with their hands or feet, or using weapons like a taser, tear gas or gun."

WPost Analysis: Upcoming Vote On Minneapolis Police Force Has Fractured City Further

A Washington Post (10/22) analysis says that even as George Floyd's killing prompted pressing "calls for police reform, the question of how to get there has exposed deep divides across Minneapolis, exacerbated by a spike in violent crime. A Nov. 2 ballot question that would dramatically reshape the size and scope of the Minneapolis police force has fractured the city even more in the first major electoral test of the police reform movement since Floyd's death." The question would modify "the Minneapolis charter to allow the police department to be replaced by a Department of Public Safety overseen by both the mayor and city council." The Post also says "the initiative would remove decades-old language from the charter requiring a minimum number of police officers based on the city's population. The new department 'could include' police officers 'if necessary' – wording that has left some residents afraid the city would descend into lawlessness."

Baltimore Monitors School-Issued Laptops For Safety, Mental Health Reasons According To Officials

The Washington Post (10/24, Bowie) reports, “The Baltimore City school system is monitoring its laptops with software that alerts officials when a student might be considering suicide, a controversial innovation that came about during the coronavirus pandemic after the system loaned families tens of thousands of the computers for use at home.” Two recently released reports “question the use of such technology across the country to track students, warning that it might be used for disciplinary purposes, unintentionally out LGBTQ students or squash student expression.”

Utah Gun Permit Applications Down After Training Requirement Dropped

The Deseret News (UT) (10/23, Romboy) reports from Salt Lake City, Utah, “Certified firearms instructor Aaron Turner has no one to teach. Earlier this year, his courses covering gun safety, shooting fundamentals, federal and state laws, and suicide prevention for would-be concealed carry permit holders were booked solid,” but “since Utah did away with the law requiring the state-issued permit on May 5, Turner’s classes have dried up. That means thousands of Utah gun owners can now legally carry a firearm under a shirt or jacket without any training. ‘My fear is that people don’t know what they don’t know. If they don’t do some serious homework.. ... Probably the biggest challenge in my classes was debunking all the stuff people came into the room with, their preconceived notions, or worse, things that they’ve heard around the water cooler,’ Turner said.”

Florida Governor Plans $5K Bonus To Relocate Police Officers Avoiding Vaccine Mandates

The Hill (10/24, Schnell) reports Florida Gov. Ron DeSantis (R) on Sunday told Fox News’s Maria Bartiromo that the state is “actively working to recruit out-of-state law enforcement,” and announced plans to offer a $5,000 bonus to police officers to relocate to the state. DeSantis said he expects to sign a bill approving the bonuses “in the next legislative session,” adding that the Biden Administration’s vaccine mandate is “unconstitutional” and will “wreak havoc in the economy.”

HuffPost (10/24) reports DeSantis argued that “most of those first responders have had COVID and have recovered,” adding that natural immunity “influences their decision” not to get vaccinated.

American University’s School of Public Affairs released a report addressing police training needs. Police, members of non-government organizations, community leaders and academic experts were all key stakeholders in developing this report. The report, entitled, Re-Envisioning Police Training in the U.S.: Rejecting the Status Quo, Speeding the Pace of Progress Toward a True 21st Century Model identifies gaps in training. Major Colombian Drug Lord Captured

The AP (10/24, Suarez, Goodman) reports, “Colombian security forces have captured the country’s most wanted drug trafficker, a rural warlord who stayed on the run for more than a decade by corrupting state officials and aligning himself with combatants on the left and right.” President Iván Duque “likened the arrest Saturday of Dairo Antonio Úsuga to the capture three decades ago of Pablo Escobar. Colombia’s military presented Úsuga to the media in handcuffs and wearing rubber boots preferred by rural farmers.” Úsuga, “better known by his alias Otoniel, is the alleged head of the much-feared Gulf Clan, whose army of assassins has terrorized much of northern Colombia to gain control of major cocaine smuggling routes through thick jungles north to Central America and onto the US. He’s long been a fixture on the US Drug Enforcement Administration’s most-wanted fugitives list, for whose capture it had been offering a $5 million reward.”

Reuters (10/24, Acosta, Griffin) reports, “The man Colombia describes as the world’s most dangerous drug trafficker told security forces: ‘You beat me’ when he was captured during an operation this weekend, the government said on Sunday, pledging to extradite him swiftly to the United States.” Usuga “was caught by Colombia’s armed forces during an operation in a rural area of Colombia’s Uraba region, Antioquia province, which involved more than 500 members of Colombia’s special forces and 22 helicopters, officials said on Saturday.”

Axios-Ipsos Poll: Most Americans Incorrectly Think “Violent Crime Is Worse Now Than It Was 30 Years Ago”

Axios (10/23, Walsh) reports an Axios/Ipsos poll shows most Americans erroneously think “that violent crime is worse now than it was 30 years ago,” with the share of respondents feeling that way coming out to 58%. Roughly two-thirds of Republicans felt that way as well as slightly more than 50% of Democrats. However, partisan fissures rapidly materialized “when those who believe violent crime went up were asked to identify the main causes.”

Axios Analysis: Homicide Rate In 11 Biggest Border Communities Was Below National Average During 2020. Axios (10/23, Contreras) reports that while the US homicide rate rose during 2020, “the murder rate in 11 of the largest communities along the U.S. border stayed below the national average, an Axios analysis found.” Axios also says, “The wide disparity between majority-Mexican American and Mexican immigrant border communities and other similar-size cities further north conflicts with images and myths of the U.S.-Mexico border as a region filled with crime and disarray.” The analysis utilizing FBI data as well as the 2020 census determined that “11 border communities from San Diego to Brownsville, Texas, had a homicide rate of 4.1 per 100,000 residents – well below the national average.”

Ottawa's City Safety Strategy Relies Less On Police

CBC (CAN) (10/21, Porter) reports, "A City of Ottawa committee has approved a strategy to tackle issues such as poverty and mental health." The strategy, which "relies less on police," comes as the government of Ontario is requiring all municipalities to "approve something called a community safety and well-being plan." Those plans fall "under the Police Services Act because the province is trying to move away from the practice of police sent to incidents that aren't criminal. Instead, other organizations will soon deal with the root causes of problems before they become high risk. Ottawa's version sets out broad goals tailored to this city that include having fewer people use food banks, informing women and others who face gender-based violence about available resources, and seeing police deal with mental health crises less often."

Howard County, Maryland Considers Creation Of Police Accountability Board

The Baltimore Sun (10/21, Hardy) reports, "Howard County Executive Calvin Ball on Thursday pre-filed legislation that would create a Police Accountability Board, which would receive complaints about police misconduct from the public and work with the Howard County Police Department and Howard County Sheriff's Office. 'Focusing on public safety and reinforcing public trust remains a priority of my administration, and this Police Accountability Board is a critical component to ensure transparency,' Ball said in a statement. 'This board is an important tool to engage our residents in matters of policing and adds another layer of accountability.'" The board "would receive complaints of police misconduct from members of the public and review the outcomes of police disciplinary matters, according to the legislation. Complaints filed with the board would be forwarded to the appropriate law enforcement agency within three business days."

Corbin, Kentucky Lawmakers Move To Alter Hiring Process For Certified Police, Firefighters

The Corbin (KY) Times Tribune (10/21, Mills) reports, "The Corbin City Commission took the first steps in making it less complicated for certified police and firefighters to join the city's police and fire department during its regularly scheduled meeting Monday evening.” According to the Tribune, “commissioners unanimously approved the first-reading of Ordinance 2021-3, which amends Ordinance No. 6-83 to change the criteria standards and procedures for hiring police and fire department members in the city. Primarily, the ordinance will see that those applicants already certified under the Kentucky Peace Officer Professional Standards Act (POPS) and who meet the Kentucky Law Enforcement Council’s (KLEC) standards shall not be required to take the required written examination given to all applicants during the hiring process.”

Law Enforcement Leaders Meet In Arkansas To Discuss Increase In Violent Crime

KHBS-TV Fort Smith-Fayetteville, AR (10/21, Zimmerman) reports, “Law enforcement agencies from the federal, state and local levels met at the FBI field office in Little Rock to discuss the increase in violent crimes in Arkansas. ‘In 2020 we did see a 26% increase in violent crime. We tied our all-time record of homicides,’ said Captain Bradley Renfro with the Fayetteville Police Department.” KHBS-TV adds, “According to the FBI, crimes and assaults on officers are also trending upward in the Natural State. ‘In the last 60 days we have had three troopers that have been fired on,’ said Colonel Bill Bryant with the Arkansas State Police. Several departments in Northwest Arkansas have experienced assaults on police officers in the last few years. At the meeting in Little Rock Thursday, agencies discussed the importance of training, preparation, and working together to try to reverse the violent crimes trend.”

AP Examines Prosecutors’ Non-Use Of “Brady Lists”

The AP (10/21, Bellisle) reports that “reform activists and civil rights advocates say prosecutors already have powerful tools at their disposal to curb bad behavior by police: They can use Brady Lists” that flag “officers whose credibility is in question due to misconduct” to “shine a light on troubled officers, and they can then refuse to put forward cases from those officers with tarnished histories.” The AP “found that prosecutors sometimes don’t even compile the lists and that wide disparities in what offenses land officers on them are prevalent across the country, with excessive force often failing to merit inclusion,” and “now, defense attorneys, public defenders, civil rights groups and even some prosecutors are calling for an increased use of Brady Lists and a broadening of the offenses that will land a police officer on them.”

Establishing a culture of wellness and support for officers and their families can help them thrive on and off the job.

The IACP and U.S. Department of Justice's COPS Office have released a new podcast series on family wellness, as a part of the IACP’s Serve.Protect.Lead. podcast series and the COPS Office podcast series, The Beat. The five-episode series features discussions with law enforcement, family members, and subject matter experts about healthy sleep habits, family communication skills, financial wellness, suicide prevention, and family resilience. Multi-Country Effort Forced REvil Offline This Week

Reuters (10/21, Menn, Bing) reports the REvil ransomware group was itself “hacked and forced offline this week by a multi-country operation, according to three private sector cyber experts working with the United States and one former official.” VMware head of cybersecurity strategy Tom Kellerman said the “FBI, in conjunction with Cyber Command, the Secret Service and like-minded countries, have truly engaged in significant disruptive actions against these groups,” adding, “REvil was top of the list.” A REvil leadership figure “known as ‘0_neday,’ who had helped restart the group’s operations after an earlier shutdown,” wrote last weekend on a cybercrime forum the “server was compromised, and they were looking for me.” One person familiar “with the events said that a foreign partner of the U.S. government carried out the hacking operation that penetrated REvil’s computer architecture.” A former US official, “who spoke on condition of anonymity, said the operation is still active.”

UK Police Charge Man For Murder Of British Lawmaker

Bloomberg (10/21, Browning) reports British police charged a man "with the murder of British lawmaker David Amess." Ali Harbi Ali of London "was charged following the fatal stabbing of the U.K. Conservative politician on Oct. 15." The Crown Prosecution Service "said it would press for the murder to be linked to terrorism." The New York Times (10/21, Specia) reports the attack has "rattled the British political establishment and intensified concerns over the security precautions for members of Parliament." The AP (10/21, Lawless, Kirka) report Nick Price of the Crown Prosecution Service said the murder "has a terrorist connection, namely that it had both religious and ideological motivations."

Sheriff Says Actor Alex Baldwin's "Prop Firearm" Killed One, Wounded Another On Movie Set

The Santa Fe New Mexican (10/21, Traxler) reports, "Actor Alec Baldwin discharged a 'prop firearm' Thursday on a movie set south of Santa Fe, killing the director of photography for the film he was working on and wounding its director, the Santa Fe County Sheriff's Office said." Baldwin, 63, "could be seen outside the sheriff's office headquarters distraught and in tears while on the phone. No charges have been filed, according to a news release sent by the sheriff's office late Thursday evening. The director of photography for the feature film Rust, Halyna Hutchins, 42, died at University of New Mexico Hospital in Albuquerque, and director Joel Souza, 48, was taken to Christus St. Vincent Regional Medical Center, where he was receiving emergency care, the sheriff's office said."

Police In Australia Ramp Up Response To Sydney's Escalating Gangland Violence

The Australian Broadcasting Corporation (10/22, Cockburn) reports that police in New South Wales, Australia "will assign up to 70 officers to tackle the escalating gang violence in Sydney's south-west which saw a father and son shot dead earlier this week.” Authorities “have ramped up their response to gang violence after Salim Hamze, 18, and his 64-year-old father Toufik were found dead in a ute on Wednesday. Deputy Police Commissioner Mal Lanyon said Operation Clampdown 5 was added to ongoing operations. ‘What happened in Guildford this week will not be tolerated,’ he said. ‘No mums or dads, boys or girls should have any fear when they are home that people are going to use firearms in the public.’”

More Than 12 Pounds Of Fentanyl Seized In San Francisco Drug Bust

The AP (10/21) reports “federal agents and San Francisco police” conducted a drug bust operation that “netted 12.5 pounds (5.7 kilograms) of the deadly narcotic fentanyl and charges against 18 people suspected of supplying drug dealing operations in the city’s troubled Tenderloin neighborhood.” Illicit fentanyl “is a cheap and potent opioid that has fueled overdose deaths in San Francisco and around the US.” San Francisco Police Chief Bill Scott stated, “The staggering loss of life we’ve seen due to drug overdoses is a public health calamity San Franciscans haven’t witnessed since the height of the AIDS crisis.”

Fourteen Wisconsin Residents Charged With Selling Cocaine

The Racine (WI) Journal Times (10/21) reports 14 Wisconsin residents “have been charged with moving and selling cocaine and crack cocaine in high volume.” Two of those individuals “were already in custody” before the other 12 were arrested during an October 20 search warrant operation. Representatives of “the North Central HIDTA” and the DEA participated in that operation, which was conducted in Wisconsin and Tennessee. The AP (10/21) does not directly mention the DEA or the North Central HIDTA in its coverage of this story.

Multi-Country Effort Forced REvil Offline This Week

Reuters (10/21, Menn, Bing) reports the REvil ransomware group was itself “hacked and forced offline this week by a multi-country operation, according to three private sector cyber experts working with the United States and one former official.” VMware head of cybersecurity strategy Tom Kellerman said the “FBI, in conjunction with Cyber Command, the Secret Service and like-minded countries, have truly engaged in significant disruptive actions against these groups,” adding, “REvil was top of the list.” A REvil leadership figure “known as ‘0_neday,’ who had helped restart the group’s operations after an earlier shutdown,” wrote last weekend on a cybercrime forum the “server was compromised, and they were looking for me.” One person familiar “with the events said that a foreign partner of the U.S. government carried out the hacking operation that penetrated REvil’s computer architecture.” A former US official, “who spoke on condition of anonymity, said the operation is still active.”

Illinois' Voice of Professional Law Enforcement

Still hoping for Trailer Bill 2 next week

ILACP remains in discussion with legislators about additional changes we seek in the SAFE-T Act. The General Assembly was in Springfield this week and will be back next week for the second week of the veto session.

We are still hopeful for a Trailer Bill 2, which will make some needed changes to aspects of the new law that are supposed to be effective January 1, 2022. Please see our fact sheet for detailed information.

Another strong possibility is some of these issues will not be resolved by next week, and so the effective dates will be postponed, perhaps to July 1 or perhaps to January 1, 2023. Even those changes in effective dates would have to be made in legislation. Either way, we want a Trailer Bill 2 for these reasons.

Stay tuned and feel free to share our fact sheet with your legislators and explain our concerns to them.

Trailer Bill 2 Fact Sheet

Qualified Immunity: Today's meeting moved to 3 p.m.

The ILACP Board of Officers voted last week to address the qualified immunity issue (now under discussion at the state level in Illinois) by making a couple of recommendations to the Qualified Immunity Task Force, formally known as the Task Force on Constitutional Rights and Remedies.

The ILACP rep on this task force is Chris Conrad, an attorney who is the former Highland Police Chief and now the Highland City Manager. He is in regular communication with the ILACP executive director and Board of Officers.

The ILACP recommendation to the task force was submitted in a letter dated October 19, 2021 (available here) that Conrad crafted in collaboration with the Board of Officers. The ILACP recommendation can be summarized in this way:

- Before proceeding with any changes in qualified immunity at the state level, first report how many qualified immunity cases in Illinois have been a detriment to Illinois citizens. The “problem” of qualified immunity in Illinois may be less than its detractors are saying.
- Acknowledge that Illinois has been a leader in state-level law enforcement reform since 2015, and highlight all the changes that have taken place or will take place because of the substantial 2015 post-Ferguson reform law (Police and Community Relations Improvement Act) and the 2021 SAFE-T Act. Give these laws a chance to be implemented fully before assuming that any adjustments to qualified immunity are needed.
- If the task force or legislature cannot live with those two recommendations, then consider the beginning of a serious discussion about a very limited new state remedy for people whose constitutional rights may have been violated but have no redress due to a federal court ruling that qualified immunity could be invoked. The Board of Officers is open to some consideration of this as long as it has a limited application as described in our recommendation. But even before that, consider whether Congress could provide a satisfactory federal solution by codifying the best of what the U.S. Supreme Court has ruled about qualified immunity.

Illinois' Voice of Professional Law Enforcement

Still hoping for Trailer Bill 2 next week

ILACP remains in discussion with legislators about additional changes we seek in the SAFE-T Act. The General Assembly was in Springfield this week and will be back next week for the second week of the veto session.

We are still hopeful for a Trailer Bill 2, which will make some needed changes to aspects of the new law that are supposed to be effective January 1, 2022. Please see our fact sheet for detailed information.

Another strong possibility is some of these issues will not be resolved by next week, and so the effective dates will be postponed, perhaps to July 1 or perhaps to January 1, 2023. Even those changes in effective dates would have to be made in legislation. Either way, we want a Trailer Bill 2 for these reasons.

Stay tuned and feel free to share our fact sheet with your legislators and explain our concerns to them.

Trailer Bill 2 Fact Sheet

Qualified Immunity: Today's meeting moved to 3 p.m.

The ILACP Board of Officers voted last week to address the qualified immunity issue (now under discussion at the state level in Illinois) by making a couple of recommendations to the Qualified Immunity Task Force, formally known as the Task Force on Constitutional Rights and Remedies.

The ILACP rep on this task force is Chris Conrad, an attorney who is the former Highland Police Chief and now the Highland City Manager. He is in regular communication with the ILACP executive director and Board of Officers.

The ILACP recommendation to the task force was submitted in a letter dated October 19, 2021 (available here) that Conrad crafted in collaboration with the Board of Officers. The ILACP recommendation can be summarized in this way:

- Before proceeding with any changes in qualified immunity at the state level, first report how many qualified immunity cases in Illinois have been a detriment to Illinois citizens. The “problem” of qualified immunity in Illinois may be less than its detractors are saying.
- Acknowledge that Illinois has been a leader in state-level law enforcement reform since 2015, and highlight all the changes that have taken place or will take place because of the substantial 2015 post-Ferguson reform law (Police and Community Relations Improvement Act) and the 2021 SAFE-T Act. Give these laws a chance to be implemented fully before assuming that any adjustments to qualified immunity are needed.
- If the task force or legislature cannot live with those two recommendations, then consider the beginning of a serious discussion about a very limited new state remedy for people whose constitutional rights may have been violated but have no redress due to a federal court ruling that qualified immunity could be invoked. The Board of Officers is open to some consideration of this as long as it has a limited application as described in our recommendation. But even before that, consider whether Congress could provide a satisfactory federal solution by codifying the best of what the U.S. Supreme Court has ruled about qualified immunity.

New Mexico Mulls Easing Restrictions On Police Retiree "Double Dipping"

The AP (10/20) reports state legislators in New Mexico "are drafting a plan to ease restrictions against retired police officers coming back to work." The plan aims "to add law enforcement officers across New Mexico in the midst of a labor shortage." During a recent legislative committee hearing, "retired police officer and state Rep. Bill Rehm of Albuquerque outlined a proposal for changes to retirement provisions for police that would incentivize a return to work. He said officers might continue to draw pension benefits while working and contributing to the pension fund, or delay retirement benefits for a bigger payout later." New Mexico "amended rules at the Public Employees Retirement Association in 2010 to halt so-called double-dipping in response to concerns about fairness and the long-term solvency of the public pension fund for state and local government employees."

AP Analyzes Police Use Of Force Against Children

The AP (10/20, Wieffering, Long, Fassett) reports that children "are still an afterthought in reforms championed by lawmakers and pushed by police departments. But in case after case, an Associated Press investigation has found that children as young as 6 have been treated harshly – even brutally – by officers of the law." The AP "analyzed data on approximately 3,000 instances of police use of force against children under 16 over the past 11 years. The data, provided to the AP by Accountable Now, a project of The Leadership Conference Education Fund aiming to create a comprehensive use-of-force database, includes incidents from 25 police departments in 17 states."

North Carolina Prisons Move To Digital Mail For Offenders

The AP (10/20) reports from Raleigh, North Carolina, “Offenders at North Carolina’s 55 state prisons won’t get cards, photos or handwritten letters anymore. Instead, officials said they will receive a printed-out versions of digital scans.” The Department of Public Safety “piloted the program in four women’s prisons starting last year and said disciplinary infractions for drug possessions dropped 50 percent, WNCN-TV reported. The rule change went into effect at men’s prisons on Monday. They department said the program will make prisons safer, but advocates are concerned. Connections like cards from loved ones while in prison are essential for a successful life after prison, Prison Policy Initiative communications director Mike Wessler said. Without strong social connections, people behind bars can see their mental health suffer, he said.”

The IACP is now accepting workshop proposals for the 2022 Technology Conference taking place May 24–26, 2022, in Milwaukee, Wisconsin. Share your expertise on the latest technology and policy issues confronting the policing profession. Submit your proposal through the IACP’S online system [link]. The call for presentations is open through December 5, 2021. We hope to see you in Milwaukee!

German Police Raid Far-Right Group That Discussed Armed Revolt

The AP (10/20) reports authorities in Germany “say police have searched 14 premises across the country in connection with a suspected far-right extremist group whose members had discussed preparing for an armed revolt.” Berlin police “said officers searched premises in the capital and three other states Wednesday linked to 15 suspects belonging to a group” that called itself “Berserker Clan.” Police seized firearms, ammunition “and other weapons, as well as electronic storage device, drugs and doping substances.”

Nikolas Cruz Pleads Guilty To Murdering 17 In 2018 Parkland School Massacre

The AP (10/20, Spencer) reports from Fort Lauderdale, Florida, “Nikolas Cruz pleaded guilty Wednesday to murdering 17 people during a rampage at his former high school in Parkland, Florida, leaving a jury to decide whether he will be executed for one of the nation’s deadliest school shootings.” The guilty pleas “will set the stage for a penalty trial in which 12 jurors will determine whether Cruz, 23, should be sentenced to death or life in prison without parole. Given the case’s notoriety, Circuit Judge Elizabeth Scherer plans to screen thousands of prospective jurors. Jury selection is scheduled to begin on Jan. 4.” Cruz “entered his pleas after answering a long list of questions from Scherer aimed at confirming his mental competency. He was charged with 17 counts of murder and 17 counts of attempted first-degree murder for those wounded in the Feb. 14, 2018, attack at Marjory Stoneman Douglas High School in Parkland, located just outside Fort Lauderdale.”

Human Remains Found In Florida Park Linked To Gabby Petito’s Fiance

Reuters (10/20, Singh) reports, “Partial human remains were found on Wednesday in a Florida wilderness area where authorities were searching for Brian Laundrie, the fiance of Gabby Petito, a young woman who vanished on a road trip with Laundrie, the FBI said on Wednesday.” The Sarasota County Medical Examiner's Office "was called on Wednesday morning to the Myakkahatchee Creek Environmental Park where the search for Laundrie was under way, a spokesperson for the office said earlier." FBI investigators "were working at Carlton Reserve, which is near the park, the agency's Tampa division said. 'Investigators found what appeared to be human remains, along with personal items ... belonging to Brian Laundrie,' the FBI said. The investigation was continuing."

Police In Scotland Probing Reports Of Spiking By Injection

BBC News (10/20, Allan) reports, "Police Scotland is investigating claims that women on nights out were spiked using injections. Reports had been made to police in Edinburgh, Dundee, Glasgow and Aberdeen but the force said it did not think the cases were connected." BBC News adds, "An 18-year-old student living in Aberdeen said she believed she had been spiked with a needle last Friday. She was unwell for days, and noticed what she thought was a needle mark on her skin. Aberdeen University student Emma, who asked for her surname not to be used, told BBC Scotland that even though she did not drink any more than usual, she had no recollection of the night after 01:30 on Saturday morning." According to BBN News, "Police have investigated reports of drink spiking for years, although very few cases have been prosecuted. Police Scotland said it was aware of posts circulating on social media about spiking incidents involving injections in Scotland."

Los Angeles Police Officers Bust Gang Making Untraceable "Ghost Guns"

Newsweek (10/20, Villarreal) reports, "The Los Angeles Police Department (LAPD) has busted a local gang that manufactured" so-called "ghost guns", which are "untraceable firearms that can be made at home." LAPD officers "busted the gang's gun-manufacturing operation on Monday night following the October 14 arrest of a 14-year-old gang member who allegedly shot and injured an LAPD detective on the same day. Officers monitored a city area where the gang operates, The Los Angeles Times reported. After observing domestic violence inside of a local tattoo parlor, officers intervened and recovered several ghost guns. They also found machine presses and a 3D printer used to manufacture the guns, LAPD Chief Michel Moore said. 'We believe that it was a center, or one of the centers, of the sourcing of these firearms,' Moore said."

Mexican Officials: Drug Cartels Are Using Online Video Games To Recruit Youths

The AP (10/20) reports, "Drug cartels in Mexico are recruiting youths through contacts made on multiplayer online video games," according to Mexican government officials. There "have been documented cases of recruiting attempts over social media in the past," but when commenting on this matter on Wednesday, Mexican government officials "said violence-soaked online gaming platforms offer recruiters a much targeted pool of youths: mainly male, young, fascinated by weapons and somewhat desensitized to killing, at least on a virtual level."

US Seeks Corporate America's Help Tracking Cyber Criminals

Reuters (10/20, Lynch) reports that US Deputy Attorney General Lisa Monaco "has a message for corporate America: The US Justice Department needs its help in order to take down cyber criminals. 'We cannot do this alone,' Monaco said on Wednesday during a virtual roundtable on cybersecurity. 'The bottom line is this: I believe it is bad for companies. It's bad for America and it hurts our efforts to uphold the value that we try to demonstrate as a country if companies are attacked, and don't partner with law enforcement.” Monaco “made her pitch at a time when the Justice Department has been stepping up its efforts to combat cyber threats and ransomware attacks, such as the one earlier this year against the Colonial Pipeline Co., leading to massive shortages of gasoline across the East Coast. Earlier this month, Monaco unveiled two new Justice Department enforcement initiatives aimed at targeting cryptocurrencies and government contractors who fail to report cyber breaches.”

North Carolina Prisons Move To Digital Mail For Offenders

The AP (10/20) reports from Raleigh, North Carolina, “Offenders at North Carolina’s 55 state prisons won’t get cards, photos or handwritten letters anymore. Instead, officials said they will receive a printed-out versions of digital scans.” The Department of Public Safety “piloted the program in four women’s prisons starting last year and said disciplinary infractions for drug possessions dropped 50 percent, WNCN-TV reported. The rule change went into effect at men’s prisons on Monday. They department said the program will make prisons safer, but advocates are concerned. Connections like cards from loved ones while in prison are essential for a successful life after prison, Prison Policy Initiative communications director Mike Wessler said. Without strong social connections, people behind bars can see their mental health suffer, he said.”

The AP (10/20, Spencer) reports from Fort Lauderdale, Florida, “Nikolas Cruz pleaded guilty Wednesday to murdering 17 people during a rampage at his former high school in Parkland, Florida, leaving a jury to decide whether he will be executed for one of the nation’s deadliest school shootings.” The guilty pleas “will set the stage for a penalty trial in which 12 jurors will determine whether Cruz, 23, should be sentenced to death or life in prison without parole. Given the case’s notoriety, Circuit Judge Elizabeth Scherer plans to screen thousands of prospective jurors. Jury selection is scheduled to begin on Jan. 4.” Cruz “entered his pleas after answering a long list of questions from Scherer aimed at confirming his mental competency. He was charged with 17 counts of murder and 17 counts of attempted first-degree murder for those wounded in the Feb. 14, 2018, attack at Marjory Stoneman Douglas High School in Parkland, located just outside Fort Lauderdale.”

BBC News (10/20, Allan) reports, "Police Scotland is investigating claims that women on nights out were spiked using injections. Reports had been made to police in Edinburgh, Dundee, Glasgow and Aberdeen but the force said it did not think the cases were connected." BBC News adds, "An 18-year-old student living in Aberdeen said she believed she had been spiked with a needle last Friday. She was unwell for days, and noticed what she thought was a needle mark on her skin. Aberdeen University student Emma, who asked for her surname not to be used, told BBC Scotland that even though she did not drink any more than usual, she had no recollection of the night after 01:30 on Saturday morning." According to BBN News, "Police have investigated reports of drink spiking for years, although very few cases have been prosecuted. Police Scotland said it was aware of posts circulating on social media about spiking incidents involving injections in Scotland."

Los Angeles Police Officers Bust Gang Making Untraceable "Ghost Guns"

Newsweek (10/20, Villarreal) reports, "The Los Angeles Police Department (LAPD) has busted a local gang that manufactured" so-called "ghost guns", which are "untraceable firearms that can be made at home." LAPD officers "busted the gang's gun-manufacturing operation on Monday night following the October 14 arrest of a 14-year-old gang member who allegedly shot and injured an LAPD detective on the same day. Officers monitored a city area where the gang operates, The Los Angeles Times reported. After observing domestic violence inside of a local tattoo parlor, officers intervened and recovered several ghost guns. They also found machine presses and a 3D printer used to manufacture the guns, LAPD Chief Michel Moore said. 'We believe that it was a center, or one of the centers, of the sourcing of these firearms,' Moore said."

US Seeks Corporate America's Help Tracking Cyber Criminals

Reuters (10/20, Lynch) reports that US Deputy Attorney General Lisa Monaco "has a message for corporate America: The US Justice Department needs its help in order to take down cyber criminals. 'We cannot do this alone,' Monaco said on Wednesday during a virtual roundtable on cybersecurity. 'The bottom line is this: I believe it is bad for companies. It's bad for America and it hurts our efforts to uphold the value that we try to demonstrate as a country if companies are attacked, and don't partner with law enforcement.” Monaco “made her pitch at a time when the Justice Department has been stepping up its efforts to combat cyber threats and ransomware attacks, such as the one earlier this year against the Colonial Pipeline Co., leading to massive shortages of gasoline across the East Coast. Earlier this month, Monaco unveiled two new Justice Department enforcement initiatives aimed at targeting cryptocurrencies and government contractors who fail to report cyber breaches.”

New Mexico Mulls Easing Restrictions On Police Retiree "Double Dipping"

The AP (10/20) reports state legislators in New Mexico "are drafting a plan to ease restrictions against retired police officers coming back to work." The plan aims "to add law enforcement officers across New Mexico in the midst of a labor shortage." During a recent legislative committee hearing, "retired police officer and state Rep. Bill Rehm of Albuquerque outlined a proposal for changes to retirement provisions for police that would incentivize a return to work. He said officers might continue to draw pension benefits while working and contributing to the pension fund, or delay retirement benefits for a bigger payout later." New Mexico "amended rules at the Public Employees Retirement Association in 2010 to halt so-called double-dipping in response to concerns about fairness and the long-term solvency of the public pension fund for state and local government employees."

AP Analyzes Police Use Of Force Against Children

The AP (10/20, Wieffering, Long, Fassett) reports that children "are still an afterthought in reforms championed by lawmakers and pushed by police departments. But in case after case, an Associated Press investigation has found that children as young as 6 have been treated harshly – even brutally – by officers of the law." The AP "analyzed data on approximately 3,000 instances of police use of force against children under 16 over the past 11 years. The data, provided to the AP by Accountable Now, a project of The Leadership Conference Education Fund aiming to create a comprehensive use-of-force database, includes incidents from 25 police departments in 17 states."

Subject: RE: Favor

Hadley,

The Chief wanted me to help him answer some of the questions below. In addition, attached is the updated grant information for the department.

Goal: Increase Community Policing/Education/Organizational Support

Community policing:

- Block parties, walk and talks for every VON function (4th of July, Harvest Hustle, Halloween Parade, Trunk or Treat, First Responders mass, Grand openings, etc.)

- Crime Free Housing (working with property owners) via zoom and in-person
- School presentations from the SRO (School Resource Officer). The SRO assists with incidents at schools that references juveniles
- In-house police social worker (handles domestic cases, counseling through family services)
- Special events hosted by the Niles Police Department – Walk and Roll event (pedestrian/bike safety)
- 1st place winners for the Traffic Safety Challenge (Municipal 51-65 Sworn)
- 1st place winners for the Bike/Pedestrian Safety Award
- Gold status for Lexipol (policies and procedures)
- Partnering with the community, pink patches, Walk Like MADD event, coffee with champion – to date we have raised over $13,000.00 for Special Olympics
 - o 1st place winners in the plan pull (tug-of-war competition that helps raise money for the Special Olympics)

Education:

- Bringing in Tony Bertram as a full-time police social worker.
 - o In 2021, Tony's curriculum was certified through ILETSB (Illinois Law Enforcement Training and Standards Board). Officers need specific training that is ILETSB certified and by having Tony Bertram teach those mandates it reduces training costs and overtime for hireback.
- Since COVID, NPD has had to "improvise, adapt, and overcome" when it comes to training and mandates. As I mentioned above, we have utilized Tony Bertram for mandates, we have also found online training courses to satisfy mandate requirements. This has saved the VON in training costs and over for hireback.
- NPD has also implemented training tracker (IT budget) to track training certificates and hours. If an officers certification is about to expire the software will alert the administrator, so the officer can get recertified.

Organizational support:

- New opportunities for personnel to advance their career and find their "niche" so they do not feel stagnant in their career. Examples include: admin officer position, traffic officer, special operations, etc.

- ILEAP Tier II accreditation – assessment complete. Assessor are recommending NPD for Tier II accreditation.
- Upgrade to our Body-worn camera program (Safety Vision to AXON)

- Partnering with Oakton Community College and starting the pilot program: Mental Health and Crisis Response for Public Safety certificate program for sworn officers.

- o This probably could go under the educational section as well. We are supporting staff to continue their education efforts.

Goal: Actively Participate in Village's Diversity/Inclusion Efforts

- Hiring diverse staff

- Working together across multiple generations (from the silent generation to generation z) to make all voices feel heard

- The first female sergeant from NPD graduated from Staff and Command through Northwestern's Public Safety program

- Encouraging female and minority officers to apply for specialty and supervisor positions

I hope this helps. If you have any other questions please let me know.

Law Enforcement officers are continuously facing challenges, being tasked with solving more crimes with lower budgets and fewer officers. Robbery, burglary, thefts, and all types of organized crime continue to grow in scope and violence. What are police, retailers, businesses, and communities to do to stay safe?

To address these challenges, more agencies and businesses are turning to technology. Leading security solution providers like 3SI partner with these groups and, together, can work to arrest criminals and recover stolen property. The impact on quality of life in the affected communities is significant – and the positive public-police interactions serve to create stronger relationships and build trust.

Led by 3SI's Senior Vice President & Director of Global Law Enforcement, Richard Long, CPP, you will hear real-world success stories from 3SI Law Enforcement Division (LED) Bureau Chiefs to illustrate the impact that technology can have on crime. We'll also discuss how your agency can proactively use this technology to address serial crimes. From protecting bikes to cars to packages, truck tires, lawn maintenance equipment, and more, police departments have solved hundreds of crimes and put away many career criminals using 3SI technology.

US Health Official Outlines Federal Government's Overdose Deaths Response

USA Today (10/19, Alltucker) features an interview with Assistant Secretary of Health Rachel Levine, who was asked about the federal government's response to the high number of US overdose fatalities. Levine said that "four pillars" response prioritizes prevention, harm reduction, treatment and recovery. Levine added, "We have a coordinated response across HHS (the Department of Health and Human Services)" that involves an examination of "overdoses and the opioid crisis." Levine stressed that a significant factor driving the increase in US overdose deaths is illicit fentanyl, which has "been found in other drugs such as methamphetamine and cocaine. The DEA (Drug Enforcement Administration) put out a recent advisory about" fentanyl-laced counterfeit pills.

Suburban Illinois Police Asked To Help Chicago Amid Possible Officer Shortage

Fox News (10/19, Aaro) reports, "Illinois suburban police are being asked to volunteer and help Chicago in the event that possible city police officer shortages lead to critical situations, according to a report." According to Fox News, "A coordinator from the Illinois Law Enforcement Alarm System (ILEAS) sent an email to a dozen police officials across the state requesting they ask members of their specialized units whether they could respond to dangerous situations in Chicago, and how fast they could get there, Chicago's WGN-TV reported. 'To be clear, if members of the ILEAS Special Teams programs are requested, it would be for emergency situations, NOT for routine police assistance and the answering of calls for service within the city limits. Illinois State Police and Cook County Sheriff's Office would be tasked with the patrol needs,' the email read."

White House Reportedly Considering Using National Guard To Assist At Ports

The Washington Post (10/19, Stein) reports White House officials have "explored in recent weeks whether the National Guard could be deployed to help address the nation's mounting supply chain backlog." According to the Post, it "appears unlikely to proceed as of now...but reflects the extent to which internal administration deliberations about America's overwhelmed supply chain have sparked outside-the-box proposals to leverage government resources to address the issue." The Post says White House officials have "weighed whether members of the guard could drive trucks amid a shortage of operators, or if they could be used to help unload packages and other materials at ports or other clogged parts of the supply chain."

Lawmakers Question Efficacy Of UK Terror-Prevention Program After Colleague's Death

The AP (10/19) reports the fatal stabbing of British lawmaker David Amess on Friday "is once again fueling concern about a government program aimed at preventing at-risk young people from becoming radicalized, with critics saying change is urgently needed to ensure it works." The AP adds British media have reported that the suspect "had been referred to the Prevent program several years ago but was not currently on the security service's counter-terrorism watchlist."

Fentanyl-Related Deaths Increasing In US

An online NPR (10/19) report says "deaths related to black market fentanyl pills are rising" in the US. The DEA "says about a quarter of fentanyl pills they seized have enough of the drug to kill," and "they say the amount of fentanyl coming from Mexico has doubled every year for the last four years."

Buprenorphine Misuse In The US Trending Downward Over Four Years, Study Suggests

Becker's Hospital Review (10/19, Anderson) reports, "Buprenorphine misuse in the U.S. has trended downward over four years, according to a" study published in JAMA Network Open. The study "found that nearly three-quarters of the 2.4 million U.S. adults who reported using buprenorphine in 2019 didn't misuse the drug" and "found that buprenorphine misuse trended downward between 2015 and 2019 among people with an opioid use disorder." According to the article, "The study surveyed 214,505 people." National Institute on Drug Abuse Director Nora Volkow, MD, said, "This study provides further evidence to support the need for expanded access to proven treatment approaches, such as buprenorphine therapy, despite the remaining stigma and prejudice that remains for people with addiction and the medications used to treat it."

Judge Declines To Reduce Sentence For 2015 Texas Attack

The AP (10/19, Billeaud) reports a Phoenix judge has "refused to reduce the 30-year prison sentence for an Arizona man convicted of helping to plot a 2015 attack on a Prophet Muhammad cartoon contest in suburban Dallas, even though one of his convictions was dismissed after it was discovered the FBI had withheld surveillance video at his trial." Attorneys for Abdul Malik Abdul

Kareem, “who was resentenced Tuesday in response to the dismissal of the charge, had asked for a 7½-year prison term.” Kareem, an American-born Muslim convert, “was convicted of conspiring to provide the guns used in the attack carried out by two friends and conspiring with both friends to provide support to the Islamic State terror group.”

CBC (CAN) (10/19) reports, “The London Police Service (LPS) says most active-duty employees are fully vaccinated against COVID-19. Ninety per cent of employees are fully immunized, it said Tuesday.” According to CBC, “LPS launched a vaccination disclosure and safe workplace procedure at the end of September. The first phase of the procedure required all employees — sworn and civilian members, auxiliary officers, volunteers, co-op students, as well as students or other citizens participating in LPS programs — to show proof of vaccination or request an accommodation under the Ontario Human Rights Code by Oct.15, 2021. ‘I’m very pleased with the level of compliance we are seeing from our members,’ police Chief Steve Williams said in a statement.”

DHS Increasing Use Of Drones For Border Surveillance

USA Today (10/19, Morin) reports the Administration “is stepping up drone surveillance and communications with other countries to help prepare for migrant groups that could come to the United States’ southern border, just weeks after thousands of Haitian migrants unexpectedly arrived.” The Department of Homeland Security “said in a statement Monday that it is using a combination of law enforcement and intelligence resources to help ‘operationally prepare’ for large groups of migrants heading to the U.S.-Mexico border.” USA Today adds that the Administration “has had to reestablish its intelligence operations, experts say, and the new program is a part of that.”

US Health Official Outlines Federal Government's Overdose Deaths Response

USA Today (10/19, Alltucker) features an interview with Assistant Secretary of Health Rachel Levine, who was asked about the federal government's response to the high number of US overdose fatalities. Levine said that "four pillars" response prioritizes prevention, harm reduction, treatment and recovery. Levine added, "We have a coordinated response across HHS (the Department of Health and Human Services)" that involves an examination of "overdoses and the opioid crisis." Levine stressed that a significant factor driving the increase in US overdose deaths is illicit fentanyl, which has "been found in other drugs such as methamphetamine and cocaine. The DEA (Drug Enforcement Administration) put out a recent advisory about" fentanyl-laced counterfeit pills.

Suburban Illinois Police Asked To Help Chicago Amid Possible Officer Shortage

Fox News (10/19, Aaro) reports, "Illinois suburban police are being asked to volunteer and help Chicago in the event that possible city police officer shortages lead to critical situations, according to a report." According to Fox News, "A coordinator from the Illinois Law Enforcement Alarm System (ILEAS) sent an email to a dozen police officials across the state requesting they ask members of their specialized units whether they could respond to dangerous situations in Chicago, and how fast they could get there, Chicago's WGN-TV reported. 'To be clear, if members of the ILEAS Special Teams programs are requested, it would be for emergency situations, NOT for routine police assistance and the answering of calls for service within the city limits. Illinois State Police and Cook County Sheriff's Office would be tasked with the patrol needs,' the email read."

White House Reportedly Considering Using National Guard To Assist At Ports

The Washington Post (10/19, Stein) reports White House officials have "explored in recent weeks whether the National Guard could be deployed to help address the nation's mounting supply chain backlog." According to the Post, it "appears unlikely to proceed as of now...but reflects the extent to which internal administration deliberations about America's overwhelmed supply chain have sparked outside-the-box proposals to leverage government resources to address the issue." The Post says White House officials have "weighed whether members of the guard could drive trucks amid a shortage of operators, or if they could be used to help unload packages and other materials at ports or other clogged parts of the supply chain."

Lawmakers Question Efficacy Of UK Terror-Prevention Program After Colleague's Death

The AP (10/19) reports the fatal stabbing of British lawmaker David Amess on Friday "is once again fueling concern about a government program aimed at preventing at-risk young people from becoming radicalized, with critics saying change is urgently needed to ensure it works." The AP adds British media have reported that the suspect "had been referred to the Prevent program several years ago but was not currently on the security service's counter-terrorism watchlist."

Fentanyl-Related Deaths Increasing In US

An online NPR (10/19) report says "deaths related to black market fentanyl pills are rising" in the US. The DEA "says about a quarter of fentanyl pills they seized have enough of the drug to kill," and "they say the amount of fentanyl coming from Mexico has doubled every year for the last four years."

Illinois' Voice of Professional Law Enforcement

Special Alert | October 19, 2021 Next qualified immunity meeting this week; here is ILACP recommendation

The ILACP Board of Officers voted last week to address the qualified immunity issue (now under discussion at the state level in Illinois) by making a couple of recommendations to the Qualified Immunity Task Force, formally known as the Task Force on Constitutional Rights and Remedies.

The ILACP rep on this task force is Chris Conrad, an attorney who is the former Highland Police Chief and now the Highland City Manager. He is in regular communication with the ILACP executive director and Board of Officers.

The ILACP recommendation to the task force was submitted in a letter dated October 19, 2021. We are sharing it with all of our members in the attached document that Conrad crafted in collaboration with the Board of Officers. The ILACP recommendation can be summarized in this way:

1. Before proceeding with any changes in qualified immunity at the state level, first report how many qualified immunity cases in Illinois have been a detriment to Illinois citizens. The “problem” of qualified immunity in Illinois may be less than its detractors are saying.
2. Acknowledge that Illinois has been a leader in state-level law enforcement reform since 2015, and highlight all the changes that have taken place or will take place because of the substantial 2015 post-Ferguson reform law (Police and Community Relations Improvement Act) and the 2021 SAFE-T Act. Give these laws a chance to be implemented fully before assuming that any adjustments to qualified immunity are needed.
3. If the task force or legislature cannot live with those two recommendations, then consider the beginning of a serious discussion about a very limited new state remedy for people whose constitutional rights may have been violated but have no redress due to a federal court ruling that qualified immunity could be invoked. The Board of Officers is open to some consideration of this as long as it has a limited application as described in our recommendation. But even before that, consider whether Congress could provide a satisfactory federal solution by codifying the best of what the U.S. Supreme Court has ruled about qualified immunity.

HOW TO OBSERVE THE NEXT TASK FORCE MEETING

The next meeting of the Qualified Immunity Task Force will take place Thursday, October 21, 2021, from 12 noon to 2 p.m. via Zoom or Webex.

1. Before proceeding with any changes in qualified immunity at the state level, first report how many qualified immunity cases in Illinois have been a detriment to Illinois citizens. The “problem” of qualified immunity in Illinois may be less than its detractors are saying.
2. Acknowledge that Illinois has been a leader in state-level law enforcement reform since 2015, and highlight all the changes that have taken place or will take place because of the substantial 2015 post-Ferguson reform law (Police and Community Relations Improvement Act) and the 2021 SAFE-T Act. Give these laws a chance to be implemented fully before assuming that any adjustments to qualified immunity are needed.
3. If the task force or legislature cannot live with those two recommendations, then consider the beginning of a serious discussion about a very limited new state remedy for people whose constitutional rights may have been violated but have no redress due to a federal court ruling that qualified immunity could be invoked. The Board of Officers is open to some consideration of this as long as it has a limited application as described in our recommendation. But even before that, consider whether Congress could provide a satisfactory federal solution by codifying the best of what the U.S. Supreme Court has ruled about qualified immunity.

Special Alert | October 19, 2021 Next qualified immunity meeting this week; here is ILACP recommendation

The ILACP Board of Officers voted last week to address the qualified immunity issue (now under discussion at the state level in Illinois) by making a couple of recommendations to the Qualified Immunity Task Force, formally known as the Task Force on Constitutional Rights and Remedies.

The ILACP rep on this task force is Chris Conrad, an attorney who is the former Highland Police Chief and now the Highland City Manager. He is in regular communication with the ILACP executive director and Board of Officers.

The ILACP recommendation to the task force was submitted in a letter dated October 19, 2021. We are sharing it with all of our members in the attached document that Conrad crafted in collaboration with the Board of Officers. The ILACP recommendation can be summarized in this way:

1. Before proceeding with any changes in qualified immunity at the state level, first report how many qualified immunity cases in Illinois have been a detriment to Illinois citizens. The “problem” of qualified immunity in Illinois may be less than its detractors are saying.
2. Acknowledge that Illinois has been a leader in state-level law enforcement reform since 2015, and highlight all the changes that have taken place or will take place because of the substantial 2015 post-Ferguson reform law (Police and Community Relations Improvement Act) and the 2021 SAFE-T Act. US Supreme Court Again Bolsters "Qualified Immunity" For Police Officers

Reuters (10/18, Chung) reports that the Supreme Court on Monday "signaled that it is not retreating from its inclination to grant a legal protection called 'qualified immunity' to police accused in lawsuits of using excessive force, ruling in favor of officers on Monday in separate cases from California and Oklahoma." According to Reuters, the justices "overturned a lower court's decision allowing a trial in a lawsuit against officers Josh Girdner and Brandon Vick over the 2016 fatal shooting of a hammer-wielding man in Tahlequah, Oklahoma. They also overturned a lower court's decision to deny a request by police officer Daniel Rivas-Villegas for qualified immunity in a lawsuit accusing him of using excessive force in 2016 while handcuffing a suspect in Union City, California."

The Hill (10/18, Kruzel) reports, "In a pair of unsigned summary rulings issued without noted dissent, the justices reversed two federal appeals courts that had permitted excessive force lawsuits to proceed against officers in separate cases arising from California and Oklahoma. The justices ruled the officers should be granted qualified immunity, which shields government officials from liability unless it is proven they violated a 'clearly established' right, a difficult legal hurdle."

Maryland Governor Pledges To Support Police As He Pushes For Additional Funding

The Baltimore Sun (10/18, Wood) reports Maryland Gov. Larry Hogan (R) "continued to push for his 're-fund the police' proposal on Monday, telling a friendly crowd of police officers: 'I will continue to have your back.'" Hogan's pledge to increase police funding by $150 million would be accomplished through a "combination of more generous grants to local police departments, increased pay for state law enforcement officers, more resources for crime victims and doubling Metro Crime Stoppers rewards for tips about crimes." When Hogan "first announced his proposal on Friday, he rained down criticism on Baltimore officials and Democratic lawmakers for what he sees as a failure to control violent crime, and he was met with pushback. On Monday, speaking to a joint conference of police chiefs and sheriffs in Ocean City, Hogan framed his proposal as important support for officers who do dangerous jobs while being vilified by the public.”

NYTimes Review: Local Public Health In US “Less Equipped To Confront A Pandemic Now Than It Was At The Beginning Of 2020”

The New York Times (10/18, Ivory) reports that although the coronavirus has resulted in the deaths of almost 700,000 people in the US in almost two years, a less visible victim “has been the nation’s public health system.” Public health, which was insufficiently funded and neglected prior to the pandemic, has been additionally weakened “in ways that could resound for decades to come. A New York Times review of hundreds of health departments in all 50 states indicates that local public health across the country is less equipped to confront a pandemic now than it was at the beginning of 2020.”

Court Rulings Free Police In Hong Kong To Probe Older Offenses Under Security Law

Reuters (10/18) reports, “Recent court judgments have freed Hong Kong authorities to use national security powers to deploy tough colonial-era laws in a crackdown against opposition groups, alarming activists and lawyers in the city.” According to Reuters, “Police have launched investigations into acts that took place before the national security law was imposed a year ago, despite assurances by Beijing and Hong Kong that the financial hub’s legislation would not be retroactive. The recent probes have unnerved pro-democracy campaigners across the city, leaving some to fear they face prosecution for acts they believed to be legal at the time. ‘The past is the future,’ said Simon Young, a professor at the University of Hong Kong’s law school. ‘We are starting to see a fuller evolution of the national security law, and the way it allows the authorities to look at older laws and past events through a new lens.’”

West Virginia Law Enforcement Benefits From Auction Of Unclaimed Firearms

The AP (10/18) reports from Pineville, West Virginia, “Several police and sheriff’s departments in West Virginia are among those benefiting from the state treasurer’s recent unclaimed property firearms auction.” According to the AP, “Last week, state Treasurer Riley Moore presented a check for $19,098 to the Wyoming County Sheriff’s Department for proceeds from the auction, his office said in a news release. State and local law enforcement agencies are allowed to turn over unclaimed, seized or outdated firearms to the treasurer’s office for auction. The proceeds can be given back to the agency for its use. After law enforcement determines lawful owners of the firearms can’t be found, the weapons can be turned over to the treasurer’s office for auction. People who want to bid must be a valid, licensed federal firearms dealer.”

Richmond, Virginia Police, Advocates Discuss Ways To Combat Domestic Violence During Pandemic

WTVR-TV Richmond, VA (10/18, Coleburn) reports from Richmond, Virginia, “Richmond Police Chief Gerald Smith held a roundtable discussion on domestic violence at Byrd Park Monday morning to address how to help survivors of domestic abuse, and how to keep more people from becoming victims. Several groups took part in the discussion, including YWCA Richmond, Child

Savers and VCU Project Empower. Survivors shared their stories.” WTVR-TV adds, “According to the CDC, one in five women and one in seven men experience some form of physical violence by a partner. ‘I stand here today to tell you help is available regardless if your background,’ Smith noted. ‘The Richmond Police Department takes every report of domestic violence seriously, and we are committed to investigating incidents within our community and assisting those who may be experiencing this kind of conflict.’”

Police In Morocco Seize More Than A Ton Of Cocaine In Tangier Port

Reuters (10/18) reports, “Morocco police said they seized on Monday one tonne and 335 kilograms of cocaine concealed in a container ship in Tangier Med Port.” According to Reuters, “The ship departed from Brazil and was heading to the ports of Antwerp in Belgium and Portbury in the UK, the police said in a statement.”

FBI, State Department Aiding In Recovery Of Kidnapped Missionaries In Haiti

Reuters (10/18) reports the FBI is assisting in the recovery of the group of 17 most-American missionaries who were kidnapped in Haiti over the weekend, “a US law enforcement official told Reuters on Monday.” However, “specific details of the role the FBI will play in trying to free the missionaries were not immediately available.” Representatives “of key congressional committees overseeing foreign affairs and law enforcement said they had not been briefed on FBI involvement in efforts to locate and free the missionaries.”

The New York Times (10/18, Abi-Habib) reports White House Press Secretary Jen Psaki said, “The President has been briefed and is receiving regular updates on what the State Department and the FBI are doing to bring these individuals home safely. We can confirm their engagement, and the US Embassy in Port-au-Prince is coordinating with local authorities and providing assistance to the families to resolve the situation.”

Mexican Cartel Reportedly Expanding Into Central And South America

Insider (10/18, Chaparro) reports its own investigation shows that the Mexico-based Jalisco New Generation Cartel “is stretching its criminal empire south into Central and South America by making alliances, threatening authorities, and appropriating drug routes.” The investigation involved a documents review and interviews with sources, including “Sergio Guzmán, director of Colombia Risk Analysis, a Colombia-based security and risk-analysis firm.” During its first Jalisco New Generation Cartel investigation, the DEA accused the cartel’s reputed leader, Nemesio Oseguera Cervantes, “of shipping cocaine from Colombia through Guatemala to the US.”

Illegal Marijuana Production In Oregon Sparks Request For National Guard Intervention

The AP (10/18, Selsky) reports the Jackson County Board of Commissioners in Oregon has asked Gov. Kate Brown (D) to authorize an Oregon National Guard deployment that would target illegal marijuana production in the state. But on Monday, Josephine County Sheriff Dave Daniel said he would rather get assistance from the DEA and the Internal Revenue Service. Daniel stated, "If you want some National Guard troops to help you cut down plants, great, but you've got to realize there's a lot of investigation that goes into" operations which target illegal marijuana production. The AP highlights that Oregon's "Jackson and Josephine counties are considered the northern extension of the Emerald Triangle, a fabled marijuana-growing epicenter."

Court Rulings Free Police In Hong Kong To Probe Older Offenses Under Security Law

Reuters (10/18) reports, “Recent court judgments have freed Hong Kong authorities to use national security powers to deploy tough colonial-era laws in a crackdown against opposition groups, alarming activists and lawyers in the city.” According to Reuters, “Police have launched investigations into acts that took place before the national security law was imposed a year ago, despite assurances by Beijing and Hong Kong that the financial hub’s legislation would not be retroactive. The recent probes have unnerved pro-democracy campaigners across the city, leaving some to fear they face prosecution for acts they believed to be legal at the time. ‘The past is the future,’ said Simon Young, a professor at the University of Hong Kong’s law school. ‘We are starting to see a fuller evolution of the national security law, and the way it allows the authorities to look at older laws and past events through a new lens.’”

West Virginia Law Enforcement Benefits From Auction Of Unclaimed Firearms

The AP (10/18) reports from Pineville, West Virginia, “Several police and sheriff’s departments in West Virginia are among those benefiting from the state treasurer’s recent unclaimed property firearms auction.” According to the AP, “Last week, state Treasurer Riley Moore presented a check for $19,098 to the Wyoming County Sheriff’s Department for proceeds from the auction, his office said in a news release. State and local law enforcement agencies are allowed to turn over unclaimed, seized or outdated firearms to the treasurer’s office for auction. The proceeds can be given back to the agency for its use. After law enforcement determines lawful owners of the firearms can’t be found, the weapons can be turned over to the treasurer’s office for auction. People who want to bid must be a valid, licensed federal firearms dealer.”

Richmond, Virginia Police, Advocates Discuss Ways To Combat Domestic Violence During Pandemic

WTVR-TV Richmond, VA (10/18, Coleburn) reports from Richmond, Virginia, “Richmond Police Chief Gerald Smith held a roundtable discussion on domestic violence at Byrd Park Monday morning to address how to help survivors of domestic abuse, and how to keep more people from becoming victims. Several groups took part in the discussion, including YWCA Richmond, Child

Savers and VCU Project Empower. Survivors shared their stories.” WTVR-TV adds, “According to the CDC, one in five women and one in seven men experience some form of physical violence by a partner. ‘I stand here today to tell you help is available regardless if your background,’ Smith noted. ‘The Richmond Police Department takes every report of domestic violence seriously, and we are committed to investigating incidents within our community and assisting those who may be experiencing this kind of conflict.’”

Police In Morocco Seize More Than A Ton Of Cocaine In Tangier Port

Reuters (10/18) reports, “Morocco police said they seized on Monday one tonne and 335 kilograms of cocaine concealed in a container ship in Tangier Med Port.” According to Reuters, “The ship departed from Brazil and was heading to the ports of Antwerp in Belgium and Portbury in the UK, the police said in a statement.”

FBI, State Department Aiding In Recovery Of Kidnapped Missionaries In Haiti

Reuters (10/18) reports the FBI is assisting in the recovery of the group of 17 most-American missionaries who were kidnapped in Haiti over the weekend, “a US law enforcement official told Reuters on Monday.” However, “specific details of the role the FBI will play in trying to free the missionaries were not immediately available.” Representatives “of key congressional committees overseeing foreign affairs and law enforcement said they had not been briefed on FBI involvement in efforts to locate and free the missionaries.”

The New York Times (10/18, Abi-Habib) reports White House Press Secretary Jen Psaki said, “The President has been briefed and is receiving regular updates on what the State Department and the FBI are doing to bring these individuals home safely. We can confirm their engagement, and the US Embassy in Port-au-Prince is coordinating with local authorities and providing assistance to the families to resolve the situation.”

Mexican Cartel Reportedly Expanding Into Central And South America

Insider (10/18, Chaparro) reports its own investigation shows that the Mexico-based Jalisco New Generation Cartel “is stretching its criminal empire south into Central and South America by making alliances, threatening authorities, and appropriating drug routes.” The investigation involved a documents review and interviews with sources, including “Sergio Guzmán, director of Colombia Risk Analysis, a Colombia-based security and risk-analysis firm.” During its first Jalisco New Generation Cartel investigation, the DEA accused the cartel’s reputed leader, Nemesio Oseguera Cervantes, “of shipping cocaine from Colombia through Guatemala to the US.”

Illegal Marijuana Production In Oregon Sparks Request For National Guard Intervention

The AP (10/18, Selsky) reports the Jackson County Board of Commissioners in Oregon has asked Gov. Kate Brown (D) to authorize an Oregon National Guard deployment that would target illegal marijuana production in the state. But on Monday, Josephine County Sheriff Dave Daniel said he would rather get assistance from the DEA and the Internal Revenue Service. Daniel stated, "If you want some National Guard troops to help you cut down plants, great, but you've got to realize there's a lot of investigation that goes into" operations which target illegal marijuana production. The AP highlights that Oregon's "Jackson and Josephine counties are considered the northern extension of the Emerald Triangle, a fabled marijuana-growing epicenter."

Subject: RE: Favor

Hadley,

The Chief wanted me to help him answer some of the questions below. In addition, attached is the updated grant information for the department.

Goal: Increase Community Policing/Education/Organizational Support

Community policing:

- Block parties, walk and talks for every VON function (4th of July, Harvest Hustle, Halloween Parade, Trunk or Treat, First Responders mass, Grand openings, etc.)

- Crime Free Housing (working with property owners) via zoom and in-person
- School presentations from the SRO (School Resource Officer). The SRO assists with incidents at schools that references juveniles
- In-house police social worker (handles domestic cases, counseling through family services)
- Special events hosted by the Niles Police Department – Walk and Roll event (pedestrian/bike safety)
- 1st place winners for the Traffic Safety Challenge (Municipal 51-65 Sworn)
- 1st place winners for the Bike/Pedestrian Safety Award
- Gold status for Lexipol (policies and procedures)
- Partnering with the community, pink patches, Walk Like MADD event, coffee with champion – to date we have raised over $13,000.00 for Special Olympics
 - o 1st place winners in the plan pull (tug-of-war competition that helps raise money for the Special Olympics)

Education:

- Bringing in Tony Bertram as a full-time police social worker.
 - o In 2021, Tony's curriculum was certified through ILETSB (Illinois Law Enforcement Training and Standards Board). Officers need specific training that is ILETSB certified and by having Tony Bertram teach those mandates it reduces training costs and overtime for hireback.
- Since COVID, NPD has had to "improvise, adapt, and overcome" when it comes to training and mandates. As I mentioned above, we have utilized Tony Bertram for mandates, we have also found online training courses to satisfy mandate requirements. This has saved the VON in training costs and over for hireback.
- NPD has also implemented training tracker (IT budget) to track training certificates and hours. If an officers certification is about to expire the software will alert the administrator, so the officer can get recertified.

Organizational support:

- New opportunities for personnel to advance their career and find their "niche" so they do not feel stagnant in their career. Examples include: admin officer position, traffic officer, special operations, etc.

- ILEAP Tier II accreditation – assessment complete. Assessor are recommending NPD for Tier II accreditation.
- Upgrade to our Body-worn camera program (Safety Vision to AXON)

- Partnering with Oakton Community College and starting the pilot program: Mental Health and Crisis Response for Public Safety certificate program for sworn officers.

- o This probably could go under the educational section as well. We are supporting staff to continue their education efforts.

Goal: Actively Participate in Village's Diversity/Inclusion Efforts

- Hiring diverse staff

- Working together across multiple generations (from the silent generation to generation z) to make all voices feel heard

- The first female sergeant from NPD graduated from Staff and Command through Northwestern's Public Safety program

- Encouraging female and minority officers to apply for specialty and supervisor positions

I hope this helps. If you have any other questions please let me know.

Hadley,

The Chief wanted me to help him answer some of the questions below. In addition, attached is the updated grant information for the department.

Goal: Increase Community Policing/Education/Organizational Support

Community policing:

- Block parties, walk and talks for every VON function (4th of July, Harvest Hustle, Halloween Parade, Trunk or Treat, First Responders mass, Grand openings, etc.)
- Crime Free Housing (working with property owners) via zoom and in-person
- School presentations from the SRO (School Resource Officer). The SRO assists with incidents at schools that references juveniles
- In-house police social worker (handles domestic cases, counseling through family services)
- Special events hosted by the Niles Police Department – Walk and Roll event (pedestrian/bike safety)
- 1st place winners for the Traffic Safety Challenge (Municipal 51-65 Sworn)
- 1st place winners for the Bike/Pedestrian Safety Award
- Gold status for Lexipol (policies and procedures)
- Partnering with the community, pink patches, Walk Like MADD event, coffee with champion – to date we have raised over $13,000.00 for Special Olympics

- o 1st place winners in the plan pull (tug-of-war competition that helps raise money for the Special Olympics)

Education:

- Bringing in Tony Bertram as a full-time police social worker.
- o In 2021, Tony's curriculum was certified through ILETSB (Illinois Law Enforcement Training and Standards Board). Officers need specific training that is ILETSB certified and by having Tony Bertram teach those mandates it reduces training costs and overtime for hireback.
- Since COVID, NPD has had to "improvise, adapt, and overcome" when it comes to training and mandates. As I mentioned above, we have utilized Tony Bertram for mandates, we have also found online training courses to satisfy mandate requirements. This has saved the VON in training costs and over for hireback.
- NPD has also implemented training tracker (IT budget) to track training certificates and hours. If an officers certification is about to expire the software will alert the administrator, so the officer can get recertified.

Organizational support:

- New opportunities for personnel to advance their career and find their "niche" so they do not feel stagnant in their career. Examples include: admin officer position, traffic officer, special operations, etc.
- ILEAP Tier II accreditation – assessment complete. Assessor are recommending NPD for Tier II accreditation.
- Upgrade to our Body-worn camera program (Safety Vision to AXON)
- Partnering with Oakton Community College and starting the pilot program: Mental Health and Crisis Response for Public Safety certificate program for sworn officers.
- o This probably could go under the educational section as well. We are supporting staff to continue their education efforts.

Goal: Actively Participate in Village's Diversity/Inclusion Efforts

- Hiring diverse staff
- Working together across multiple generations (from the silent generation to generation z) to make all voices feel heard
- The first female sergeant from NPD graduated from Staff and Command through Northwestern's Public Safety program

- Encouraging female and minority officers to apply for specialty and supervisor positions

I hope this helps. If you have any other questions please let me know.

COVID Has Killed Five Times As Many Police Officers Than Guns Did Since Pandemic Began

On its website, CNN (10/16, Morris, Sanchez) reports at least 231 police officers “died of COVID-19 this year, according to the Officer Down Memorial Page (ODMP),” and “there were 245 law enforcement deaths from COVID-19 in 2020,” making COVID “the leading cause of death for officers despite law enforcement being among the first groups eligible to receive the vaccine at the end of 2020.” CNN adds there have been 476 COVID related deaths of officers “since the start of the pandemic, compared to 94 from gunfire in the same period.” However, Axios (10/16, Frazier) states that “many police officers across the country are refusing the COVID-19 vaccine and ignoring local mandates to get vaccinated.”

SAKI Site Success

Sexual Assault Kit Initiative (SAKI) sites continue to demonstrate real-world impact on enhancing response to sexual assault cases and for sexual assault survivors.

Check out these recent convictions:

- Dallas County DA's Office - More than 30 years after the incident, a man was found guilty of one count of aggravated sexual assault and three counts of aggravated rape in a series of attacks between 1980 and 1985 after forensic genetic genealogy testing identified him as the suspect.
- Wisconsin SAKI - A man entered a guilty plea to third degree sexual assault that occurred in 1994. This is the sixth conviction of an offender as a result from testing previously unsubmitted SAKs in Wisconsin.

Biden Laments Police Officer Deaths While Calling For Reform

President Biden and First Lady Jill Biden on Saturday attended the 40th Annual National Peace Officers' Memorial Service, where they honored officers who lost their lives in 2019 and 2020. Bloomberg (10/16, Wingrove) reports the President "paid tribute to hundreds of police officers who died in the line of duty, singling out those killed or wounded after defending the US Capitol during the insurrection on Jan. 6." Bloomberg adds his speech "mostly honored officers for their service and touted his hope to fund services that would ease the work of policing in the US"

Likewise, the Washington Post (10/16, Wootson) reports that in his speech the President "mourned nearly 500 law enforcement officers killed in the line of duty, while acknowledging that police must work harder to earn the trust of communities."

Maryland Governor Seeking To Boost Funding For Police Agencies

The Washington Post (10/15) reports that "local and state police departments in Maryland will receive a dramatic increase in funding under a plan Gov. Larry Hogan (R) dubbed his 're-fund the police initiative.'" However, following the announcement, Democratic elected officials "charged that the governor was politicizing their efforts to overhaul policing in the state." Hogan "said Friday that he plans to boost policing efforts by $150 million over the next year, including $120 million to local and state agencies to help pay for salary increases, bonuses, body cameras and training."

DC Police Chief Voices Concern Regarding Youth Rehabilitation Act

The Washington Post (10/16) reports DC Police Chief Robert Contee III "has called for the city to reevaluate whether gun offenders should be eligible for the Youth Rehabilitation Act, a law that gives young adults a chance to receive lighter sentences and have their records wiped clean from public view." During an interview, Contee said, "When we're talking about individuals specifically with guns, I think that's a different category." He added, "We can't treat them like everybody else, like you do every other offense." The Post also says Contee "argued that the Youth Act contributes to a system that does more to support the people who carry and shoot illegal guns than the people who get shot."

Sussex County, Delaware Police Take Part In De-Escalation Training

The Cape (DE) Gazette (10/15, Roth) reports, "Police officers and command staff from across Sussex County came together Oct. 5-6 for de-escalation training at the Lewes Public Library. The event was hosted by the US Department of Justice's Collaborative Reform Initiative Technical Assistance Center and the International Association of Chiefs of Police, and organized by Lewes Police Chief Tom Spell and the Lewes Police Foundation. It was fully funded by the federal government." According to the Gazette, Joe D'Amico, "director of training at the Force Science Institute, worked with line officers and trainers on a fundamental-level course. John Azar-Dickens,

a police psychologist and officer with the City of Rome near Atlanta, worked with command staff, including police chiefs, offering a more high-level course that discussed the psychology and science behind how the course was developed and how it can be effective. 'This is a de-escalation class, and it's teaching the science and the procedures to help police officers be able to go into a situation and resolve it peacefully, both safely for themselves as well as for the public,' D'Amico said."

Louisiana Parish Uses Mounted Patrols To Foster Community Relationships

The AP (10/17) reports from Deridder, Louisiana, "A mounted patrol division is being re-established in a southwest Louisiana parish to provide better service to residents, especially those living in the area's hardest-to-reach terrain." Beauregard Parish Sheriff Mark Herford "said the seven-member team was officially unveiled earlier this month during the Beauregard Parish Fair Parade, and is already getting good feedback from the public. 'Community members, especially the kids, have reacted very positively to the unit and what they bring to our department,' Herford said." Reserve Deputy Tray West "said he believes law enforcement on horseback helps to bridge a gap that exists between police and the youth in the community. 'I do believe that we are more approachable than perhaps traditional deputies might seem because of the horses. Just being at the parade and the fair, we must have been stopped 20 to 30 times just so kids could pet the horses and that makes a difference when before kids might have been nervous to approach a deputy,' West said."

Needle Possession Decriminalization Law Cited In NYPD Enforcement Order

The New York Post (10/16, Byrne, Balsamini) reported that City of New York Police Department (NYPD) officers have been ordered not to "take any enforcement action against any individual who possesses a hypodermic needle, even when it contains residue of a controlled substance." The order cites a recently enacted state law that "decriminalizes the possession or sale of hypodermic needles and syringes," which are sometimes used by people who have a substance use disorder. The order comes as drug overdose deaths in New York City "are skyrocketing."

Shooting At Alabama High School Football Game Leaves Four Wounded

The Washington Post (10/16, Bella) reports, "A shooting at an Alabama high school football game on Friday night wounded four people, including one person who is facing a life-threatening injury from the attack, police said." The shooting commenced not long "before 10 p.m. at Ladd-Peebles Stadium in Mobile in the fourth quarter of a rivalry game between Vigor and Williamson high schools." Mobile Police Chief Paul Prine indicated that there haven't been any arrests and that a motive continues to be uncertain.

Fatal Overdoses Up In New York City

The New York Post (10/16) reports "new federal Centers for Disease Control and Prevention data" shows that there were 2,243 fatal overdoses in New York City "for the 12-month period ending March 31.” That total is an increase from the 1,653 people who died of a drug overdose in New York City during “the same period the year before.”

DHS: Hackers Targeting US Water Supply, Wastewater Systems

USA Today (10/15, Meyer) reports the Department of Homeland Security’s Cybersecurity and Infrastructure Agency (CISA) “issued a warning Thursday about ongoing cyber threats to the U.S. drinking water supply, saying malicious hackers are targeting government water and wastewater treatment systems.” One DHS cybersecurity official “described it as the routine sharing of technical information between federal agencies and their industry partners ‘to help collectively reduce the risk to critical infrastructure in the United States.’” Added a second Homeland Security official: ‘It’s not any indication of a new threat. We don’t want anyone to think that their drinking water supply is under attack.’” However, USA Today reports the advisory “disclosed that in March 2019, a former employee at a Kansas-based water and waste water treatment facility unsuccessfully tried to threaten drinking water safety” and it “also includes bare-bones details of four other unauthorized intrusions between 2019 and August 2021 in California, Maine, Nevada and New Jersey.”

The Washington Post (10/15) reports that "local and state police departments in Maryland will receive a dramatic increase in funding under a plan Gov. Larry Hogan (R) dubbed his 're-fund the police initiative.'" However, following the announcement, Democratic elected officials "charged that the governor was politicizing their efforts to overhaul policing in the state." Hogan "said Friday that he plans to boost policing efforts by $150 million over the next year, including $120 million to local and state agencies to help pay for salary increases, bonuses, body cameras and training."

DC Police Chief Voices Concern Regarding Youth Rehabilitation Act

The Washington Post (10/16) reports DC Police Chief Robert Contee III "has called for the city to reevaluate whether gun offenders should be eligible for the Youth Rehabilitation Act, a law that gives young adults a chance to receive lighter sentences and have their records wiped clean from public view." During an interview, Contee said, "When we're talking about individuals specifically with guns, I think that's a different category." He added, "We can't treat them like everybody else, like you do every other offense." The Post also says Contee "argued that the Youth Act contributes to a system that does more to support the people who carry and shoot illegal guns than the people who get shot."

Sussex County, Delaware Police Take Part In De-Escalation Training

The Cape (DE) Gazette (10/15, Roth) reports, "Police officers and command staff from across Sussex County came together Oct. 5-6 for de-escalation training at the Lewes Public Library. The event was hosted by the US Department of Justice's Collaborative Reform Initiative Technical Assistance Center and the International Association of Chiefs of Police, and organized by Lewes Police Chief Tom Spell and the Lewes Police Foundation. It was fully funded by the federal government." According to the Gazette, Joe D'Amico, "director of training at the Force Science Institute, worked with line officers and trainers on a fundamental-level course. John Azar-Dickens,

a police psychologist and officer with the City of Rome near Atlanta, worked with command staff, including police chiefs, offering a more high-level course that discussed the psychology and science behind how the course was developed and how it can be effective. 'This is a de-escalation class, and it's teaching the science and the procedures to help police officers be able to go into a situation and resolve it peacefully, both safely for themselves as well as for the public,' D'Amico said."

Louisiana Parish Uses Mounted Patrols To Foster Community Relationships

The AP (10/17) reports from Deridder, Louisiana, "A mounted patrol division is being re-established in a southwest Louisiana parish to provide better service to residents, especially those living in the area's hardest-to-reach terrain." Beauregard Parish Sheriff Mark Herford "said the seven-member team was officially unveiled earlier this month during the Beauregard Parish Fair Parade, and is already getting good feedback from the public. 'Community members, especially the kids, have reacted very positively to the unit and what they bring to our department,' Herford said." Reserve Deputy Tray West "said he believes law enforcement on horseback helps to bridge a gap that exists between police and the youth in the community. 'I do believe that we are more approachable than perhaps traditional deputies might seem because of the horses. Just being at the parade and the fair, we must have been stopped 20 to 30 times just so kids could pet the horses and that makes a difference when before kids might have been nervous to approach a deputy,' West said."

Needle Possession Decriminalization Law Cited In NYPD Enforcement Order

The New York Post (10/16, Byrne, Balsamini) reported that City of New York Police Department (NYPD) officers have been ordered not to "take any enforcement action against any individual who possesses a hypodermic needle, even when it contains residue of a controlled substance." The order cites a recently enacted state law that "decriminalizes the possession or sale of hypodermic needles and syringes," which are sometimes used by people who have a substance use disorder. The order comes as drug overdose deaths in New York City "are skyrocketing."

Security, Crime, and Drugs

Shooting At Alabama High School Football Game Leaves Four Wounded

The Washington Post (10/16, Bella) reports, "A shooting at an Alabama high school football game on Friday night wounded four people, including one person who is facing a life-threatening injury from the attack, police said." The shooting commenced not long "before 10 p.m. at Ladd-Peebles Stadium in Mobile in the fourth quarter of a rivalry game between Vigor and Williamson high schools." Mobile Police Chief Paul Prine indicated that there haven't been any arrests and that a motive continues to be uncertain.

Fatal Overdoses Up In New York City

The New York Post (10/16) reports "new federal Centers for Disease Control and Prevention data" shows that there were 2,243 fatal overdoses in New York City "for the 12-month period ending March 31.” That total is an increase from the 1,653 people who died of a drug overdose in New York City during “the same period the year before.”

DHS: Hackers Targeting US Water Supply, Wastewater Systems

USA Today (10/15, Meyer) reports the Department of Homeland Security’s Cybersecurity and Infrastructure Agency (CISA) “issued a warning Thursday about ongoing cyber threats to the U.S. drinking water supply, saying malicious hackers are targeting government water and wastewater treatment systems.” One DHS cybersecurity official “described it as the routine sharing of technical information between federal agencies and their industry partners ‘to help collectively reduce the risk to critical infrastructure in the United States.’” Added a second Homeland Security official: ‘It’s not any indication of a new threat. We don’t want anyone to think that their drinking water supply is under attack.’” However, USA Today reports the advisory “disclosed that in March 2019, a former employee at a Kansas-based water and waste water treatment facility unsuccessfully tried to threaten drinking water safety” and it “also includes bare-bones details of four other unauthorized intrusions between 2019 and August 2021 in California, Maine, Nevada and New Jersey.”

PSTracker - Update October 2021 PSTracker - Update October 2021 View this email in your browser

Welcome Naperville

We welcome the Naperville Police Department to PSTracker.

Training Module Update

We have activated the training module for all agencies. The module is in Beta, so please do not use it live yet, but feel free to check it out.

- Track all training courses attended by employees.
- Track Mandates.
- Track which courses cover specific CALEA and ILEAP Standards.
- Full automation - employees acknowledged receipt of notice via clicking a link in an email.
- Supervisors receive notices of employees training events.
- Notices when mandates come up for renewal.

The range module will follow the completion of this module.

We anticipate the Training module will be ready by December 1st and the Range module by January 1st.

Update to Events - Automatic Work Order Creation from Event

I have updated the Events module to allow the automatic creation of work orders while creating events.

What was done:

- Eliminated the Notify PW checkbox
- Added a Create Work Order Select List
- Defaulted selection to NO

The concept here is to:

- Allow multiple users to receive event work order created emails.
- Allow the automatic creation of work orders with the same details of the event
- Eliminate the need to do a separate work order to report the issue.

If you select YES, then upon creation of your event

- A work order will be created using the same details as the event.
- Images added to the event will also be added to the work order.
- Notifications will go to subscribers of Vehicle Work Order Emails - New Event.

Note: This only applies to agencies that used the Notify PW checkbox.

Note: If your agency used this feature, I have already manually updated the user to receive these new work order emails so there is nothing you need to do other than enjoy the new feature.

If you would like to turn this new feature on for your agency, please contact me.

Thanks to Sergeant Eric Boettcher of Rockford for this idea.

Back End Admin pages - still working on them...

While the front end of PStTracker is finished, when working within the back end administrative area you may still see some buttons that are not properly formatted, some duplicate information, and possibly a few errors. Don't worry, everything works, i just need a little more time to clean the admin area up.

Thank you for your continued support

Greg

Illinois' Voice of Professional Law Enforcement

In case you missed it: Your fact sheet on the new trailer bill

Negotiations for a new trailer bill have begun with the SAFE-T Act sponsors and the bill is starting to take shape. The main focus will be aspects of the law that are effective January 1, 2022, including changes in the 3-phone-call provision, the body camera law, and more.

We are calling this Trailer Bill 2, because the first trailer bill was passed in May 2021. Please see the attached Fact Sheet and download it. It lists the priorities of ILACP.

Please feel free to share this document widely: with your department, with your local officials, and with your state reps and senators. Sound bite: We want the General Assembly to take action on a Trailer Bill during the fall veto session, which begins next week.

Dates of fall veto session: October 19-21 and October 26-28.

Bow-And-Arrow Slayings In Norway Seen As "Act Of Terror"

The AP (10/14, Nordseth, Olsen) reports from Kongsberg, Norway, "The bow-and-arrow rampage by a man who killed five people in a small town near Norway's capital appeared to be a terrorist act, authorities said Thursday, a bizarre and shocking attack in a Scandinavian country where violent crime is rare." According to the AP, police identified the attacker as Espen Andersen Braathen, "a 37-year-old Danish citizen, who was arrested on the street Wednesday night about a half-hour after authorities were alerted. They said he used the bow and arrow and possibly other weapons to randomly target people at a supermarket and other locations in Kongsberg, a town of about 26,000 where he lived. 'The whole act appears to be an act of terror,' said Hans Sverre Sjoevold, head of Norway's domestic intelligence service." Reuters adds, "Regional Police Chief Ole B. Saeverud described the man as a Muslim convert and said there 'earlier had been worries of the man having been radicalized.'"

Another Arizona School District To Phase Out Police Officers On Campuses

The AP (10/14) reports from Tempe, Arizona, "Another major Phoenix-area high school district has decided to stop having police officers assigned to its schools." The Tempe Union High School District's board "voted 3-2 Wednesday night to have the Phoenix and Tempe police departments phase out assigning full-time school resource officers to the 14,000-student district's campuses by next August. Tempe Union's decision follows Phoenix Union High School District's similar move last year during unrest following the death of George Floyd while being restrained by Minneapolis police officers. Some speakers addressing the Tempe Union board wanted to keep officers at schools while others wanted them replaced with counselors and psychologists." Tempe Police Chief Jeff Glover "said resource officers are of vital importance for the safety of students. 'The school SRO program has literally saved lives,' he said. 'Many lives within the schools. The students are there with our school resource officers because our SROs are there building relationships with them.'"

Austin, Texas Police Monitor Says Department Should Follow National Best Practices On Use Of Force

The Austin (TX) Monitor (10/14, Weber) reports, “The Austin Police Department’s policies governing when an officer can and can’t use force don’t align with Austinites’ expectations, according to a new report from the city’s independent police monitor.” According to the Monitor, “The Office of Police Oversight collected feedback from 1,400 Austinites on APD’s use-of-force policies and examined how these polices stack up against national standards. The report will help inform how the department rewrites its guidelines to reduce police violence, which was mandated by Austin City Council last year. OPO found the department’s policies don’t explicitly ban officers from using chokeholds or require them to use de-escalation tactics or intervene in cases of excessive force. That lack of specificity is out of step with national best practices for policing, the office said.”

Police In Scotland Target Men In New Anti-Sexual Violence Campaign

BBC News (10/14) reports, “A new police campaign is urging men to take responsibility for sexual violence against women as offences soar.” The campaign, dubbed “That Guy,” “targets 18 to 35-year-olds and encourages them to examine their own behaviour and to challenge their peers. Police Scotland said the campaign’s key messages were aimed at all sectors of society, including its own officers.” That Guy “asks viewers whether they recognise themselves in a 60-second clip which outline a number of scenarios, from getting a woman drunk to making an inappropriate approach on social media. Dep Ch Con Malcolm Graham told BBC Scotland: ‘The campaign that we are launching today is strongly linked to ensuring there is a challenge everywhere in society, and that certainly includes Police Scotland.’”

IACP Statement on Receiving COVID-19 Vaccines

The International Association of Chiefs of Police (IACP) top priority is, and always has been, officer safety and wellness. Tragically, since the start of the COVID-19 pandemic, there have been a total of 731 COVID-19 related line-of-duty deaths.[i] This is currently the highest cause of line-of-duty deaths for the law enforcement profession.

Over the last 18 months, the general public made significant changes in their daily activities, such as social and physical distancing and remote working, to reduce exposure and sickness. Law enforcement duties did not allow for such tactics because officers must answer every call for service, and every call requires some sort of interaction with the public, thereby increasing the risk of exposure and transmission.

For these reasons, the IACP urges all law enforcement officers to get vaccinated against COVID-19 to protect themselves, their fellow officers, their families, and their communities.

The IACP remains steadfast in our mission of officer safety and wellness, and we call on all policing leaders and officers to embrace the necessary safety protocols, including wearing personal protective equipment (PPE) and getting vaccinated, in order to reduce COVID-19

exposures and deaths.

To find a vaccination site near you, here. Additional information on law enforcement response to COVID-19 can be found on the IACP's website, here.

San Francisco Mayor Facing Calls To Declare Overdose Crisis A Health Emergency

The San Francisco Chronicle (10/14, Thadani) reports on growing pressure on San Francisco mayor London Breed to address the “dramatic increase in fatal drug overdoses” by declaring “the drug crisis a local health emergency – just as she did for the coronavirus.” Advocates and local officials “believe it would increase attention paid to the crisis and also create more incentive for the mayor to flout federal and state laws to open a site where people can use drugs in a supervised setting.” However, a spokesperson for the mayor said it is unclear how such a symbolic declaration would make any practical difference. “Breed, who has been working on opening a safe consumption site for several years, has also said in the past that she is hesitant to do so without federal and state approval.”

Montreal Police Arrest 12 Over Drug Trafficking Violence

CFCF-TV Montreal, CAN (10/14) reports, “Montreal police made 12 arrests Thursday related to series of violent acts committed by individuals linked to a drug trafficking group. In addition to the arrests, an investigation led to the dismantling of a major cocaine trafficking network in Montreal and Abitibi.” The violence was allegedly intended “to control the drug trade in Hochelaga-Maisonneuve.”

Officer Safety and Wellness

Analysis Finds 62% Of Police Deaths Last Year Were COVID-Related

The Hill (10/14, Rai) reports, “COVID-19 accounted for more than 66 percent of all law enforcement deaths in the line of duty in 2020 and 2021, according to newly compiled statistics.” The Hill adds, “The report from the Officer Down Memorial Page found that more law enforcement officers died from COVID-19 than from every other cause combined since the pandemic began in early 2020.” In 2020, “245 officers died from COVID-19, more than from gunfire, automobile crashes and other illnesses. So far in 2021, 228 law enforcement deaths have been recorded as a result of COVID-19 related illness, out of 356 deaths total.”

Austin, Texas Police Monitor Says Department Should Follow National Best Practices On Use Of Force

The Austin (TX) Monitor (10/14, Weber) reports, “The Austin Police Department’s policies governing when an officer can and can’t use force don’t align with Austinites’ expectations, according to a new report from the city’s independent police monitor.” According to the Monitor, “The Office of Police Oversight collected feedback from 1,400 Austinites on APD’s use-of-force policies and examined how these polices stack up against national standards. The report will help inform how the department rewrites its guidelines to reduce police violence, which was mandated by Austin City Council last year. OPO found the department’s policies don’t explicitly ban officers from using chokeholds or require them to use de-escalation tactics or intervene in cases of excessive force. That lack of specificity is out of step with national best practices for policing, the office said.”

Police In Scotland Target Men In New Anti-Sexual Violence Campaign

BBC News (10/14) reports, “A new police campaign is urging men to take responsibility for sexual violence against women as offences soar.” The campaign, dubbed “That Guy,” “targets 18 to 35-year-olds and encourages them to examine their own behaviour and to challenge their peers. Police Scotland said the campaign’s key messages were aimed at all sectors of society, including its own officers.” That Guy “asks viewers whether they recognise themselves in a 60-second clip which outline a number of scenarios, from getting a woman drunk to making an inappropriate approach on social media. Dep Ch Con Malcolm Graham told BBC Scotland: ‘The campaign that we are launching today is strongly linked to ensuring there is a challenge everywhere in society, and that certainly includes Police Scotland.’”

IACP Statement on Receiving COVID-19 Vaccines

The International Association of Chiefs of Police (IACP) top priority is, and always has been, officer safety and wellness. Tragically, since the start of the COVID-19 pandemic, there have been a total of 731 COVID-19 related line-of-duty deaths.[i] This is currently the highest cause of line-of-duty deaths for the law enforcement profession.

Over the last 18 months, the general public made significant changes in their daily activities, such as social and physical distancing and remote working, to reduce exposure and sickness. Law enforcement duties did not allow for such tactics because officers must answer every call for service, and every call requires some sort of interaction with the public, thereby increasing the risk of exposure and transmission.

For these reasons, the IACP urges all law enforcement officers to get vaccinated against COVID-19 to protect themselves, their fellow officers, their families, and their communities.

The IACP remains steadfast in our mission of officer safety and wellness, and we call on all policing leaders and officers to embrace the necessary safety protocols, including wearing personal protective equipment (PPE) and getting vaccinated, in order to reduce COVID-19

exposures and deaths.

To find a vaccination site near you, here. Additional information on law enforcement response to COVID-19 can be found on the IACP's website, here.

San Francisco Mayor Facing Calls To Declare Overdose Crisis A Health Emergency

The San Francisco Chronicle (10/14, Thadani) reports on growing pressure on San Francisco mayor London Breed to address the “dramatic increase in fatal drug overdoses” by declaring “the drug crisis a local health emergency – just as she did for the coronavirus.” Advocates and local officials “believe it would increase attention paid to the crisis and also create more incentive for the mayor to flout federal and state laws to open a site where people can use drugs in a supervised setting.” However, a spokesperson for the mayor said it is unclear how such a symbolic declaration would make any practical difference. “Breed, who has been working on opening a safe consumption site for several years, has also said in the past that she is hesitant to do so without federal and state approval.”

Montreal Police Arrest 12 Over Drug Trafficking Violence

CFCF-TV Montreal, CAN (10/14) reports, “Montreal police made 12 arrests Thursday related to series of violent acts committed by individuals linked to a drug trafficking group. In addition to the arrests, an investigation led to the dismantling of a major cocaine trafficking network in Montreal and Abitibi.” The violence was allegedly intended “to control the drug trade in Hochelaga-Maisonneuve.”

Analysis Finds 62% Of Police Deaths Last Year Were COVID-Related

The Hill (10/14, Rai) reports, “COVID-19 accounted for more than 66 percent of all law enforcement deaths in the line of duty in 2020 and 2021, according to newly compiled statistics.” The Hill adds, “The report from the Officer Down Memorial Page found that more law enforcement officers died from COVID-19 than from every other cause combined since the pandemic began in early 2020.” In 2020, “245 officers died from COVID-19, more than from gunfire, automobile crashes and other illnesses. So far in 2021, 228 law enforcement deaths have been recorded as a result of COVID-19 related illness, out of 356 deaths total.”

Bow-And-Arrow Slayings In Norway Seen As "Act Of Terror"

The AP (10/14, Nordseth, Olsen) reports from Kongsberg, Norway, "The bow-and-arrow rampage by a man who killed five people in a small town near Norway's capital appeared to be a terrorist act, authorities said Thursday, a bizarre and shocking attack in a Scandinavian country where violent crime is rare." According to the AP, police identified the attacker as Espen Andersen Braathen, "a 37-year-old Danish citizen, who was arrested on the street Wednesday night about a half-hour after authorities were alerted. They said he used the bow and arrow and possibly other weapons to randomly target people at a supermarket and other locations in Kongsberg, a town of about 26,000 where he lived. 'The whole act appears to be an act of terror,' said Hans Sverre Sjoevold, head of Norway's domestic intelligence service." Reuters adds, "Regional Police Chief Ole B. Saeverud described the man as a Muslim convert and said there 'earlier had been worries of the man having been radicalized.'"

Another Arizona School District To Phase Out Police Officers On Campuses

The AP (10/14) reports from Tempe, Arizona, "Another major Phoenix-area high school district has decided to stop having police officers assigned to its schools." The Tempe Union High School District's board "voted 3-2 Wednesday night to have the Phoenix and Tempe police departments phase out assigning full-time school resource officers to the 14,000-student district's campuses by next August. Tempe Union's decision follows Phoenix Union High School District's similar move last year during unrest following the death of George Floyd while being restrained by Minneapolis police officers. Some speakers addressing the Tempe Union board wanted to keep officers at schools while others wanted them replaced with counselors and psychologists." Tempe Police Chief Jeff Glover "said resource officers are of vital importance for the safety of students. 'The school SRO program has literally saved lives,' he said. 'Many lives within the schools. The students are there with our school resource officers because our SROs are there building relationships with them.'"

Weekly Bulletin | October 14, 2021

Illinois' Voice of Professional Law Enforcement

In case you missed it: Your fact sheet on the new trailer bill

Negotiations for a new trailer bill have begun with the SAFE-T Act sponsors and the bill is starting to take shape. The main focus will be aspects of the law that are effective January 1, 2022, including changes in the 3-phone-call provision, the body camera law, and more.

We are calling this Trailer Bill 2, because the first trailer bill was passed in May 2021. Please see the attached Fact Sheet and download it. It lists the priorities of ILACP.

Please feel free to share this document widely: with your department, with your local officials, and with your state reps and senators. Sound bite: We want the General Assembly to take action on a Trailer Bill during the fall veto session, which begins next week.

Dates of fall veto session: October 19-21 and October 26-28.

Northlake Police Chief Nissen to retire after 38 years; his family has served for 60

Northlake Police Chief Norm Nissen Jr. is retiring in November after 38 years with the Northlake Police Department, the last seven serving as chief. He followed in the footsteps of his late father, Norm Sr., who logged 33 years as a patrolman in Northlake, from 1960 until 1992. Known as "Big Norm," Norm Sr. died in 2012. Chief Nissen plans to form a nonprofit group to offer community service for youth who have been charged with crimes.

Mental health incident reporting is now available

The Illinois Uniform Crime Reporting Program is pleased to announce Mental Health Incident reporting is now available in the Illinois NIBRS Repository (INR) Production site (<https://illinois.nibrs.com/>). Illinois Law Enforcement Agencies, whether reporting NIBRS or Summary data, will be able to access this report and have the ability to report back to July 1st, 2021, per statutory requirement. As a reminder, the Use of Force reporting is also available in the INR Production site as agencies no longer have the ability to report this information directly through their LEEP account. Agencies have the ability to report as far back as January 1, 2019.

Summary Reporting System will sunset on December 31, 2022. All agencies are encouraged to move to NIBRS prior to the sunset date. Agencies who want more details about NIBRS, please send an email to ISP.NIBRS.Transition@illinois.gov. As always, everyone in the I-UCR program appreciates your agency's willingness to help.

*If you do not have credentials to sign into the INR, please send an email to ISP.UCR.Access@Illinois.gov

Share your Faith &Blue Weekend pictures and news

ILACP partnered in the effort to make National Faith &Blue Weekend 2021 a success. Thank you to all members who took part over the past weekend. Please share your photos with the association via email at amy@ilchiefs.org.

Featured below are images from Park Ridge's weekend events which featured a department BBQ lunch for officers and staff and a Farmers Market event where community members could sign a thank you banner for the police. Both events were organized by the department's chaplains. Additional photos show the weekend festivities hosted by Harper College Police Department and Harper College's Alpha Omega Club. Participants in the weekend were invited to write well wishes on postcards that were later delivered to seniors at Palatine Township Senior Center.

Illinois' Voice of Professional Law Enforcement

In case you missed it: Your fact sheet on the new trailer bill

Negotiations for a new trailer bill have begun with the SAFE-T Act sponsors and the bill is starting to take shape. The main focus will be aspects of the law that are effective January 1, 2022, including changes in the 3-phone-call provision, the body camera law, and more. We are calling this Trailer Bill 2, because the first trailer bill was passed in May 2021. Please see the attached Fact Sheet and download it. It lists the priorities of ILACP.

Please feel free to share this document widely: with your department, with your local officials, and with your state reps and senators. Sound bite: We want the General Assembly to take action on a Trailer Bill during the fall veto session, which begins next week.

Dates of fall veto session: October 19-21 and October 26-28.

ILACP partnered in the effort to make National Faith &Blue Weekend 2021 a success. Thank you to all members who took part over the past weekend. Please share your photos with the association via email at amy@ilchiefs.org.

Featured below are images from Park Ridge's weekend events which featured a department BBQ lunch for officers and staff and a Farmers Market event where community members could sign a thank you banner for the police. Both events were organized by the department's chaplains. Additional photos show the weekend festivities hosted by Harper College Police Department and Harper College's Alpha Omega Club. Participants in the weekend were invited to write well wishes on postcards that were later delivered to seniors at Palatine Township Senior Center.

Sounds good on all items....as for ILETSB, our rep, Jan Noble, was here a couple weeks ago. Great guy, but I pressed him on that issue and I got nothing. A lot of.....they're working on it.

1. I agree

2. Yes I can bring the mike/speaker (Hockey puck thing). I will first reach out to Larry to see his set up if needed. The easiest way to use it is to hook it up to the 'one' laptop being used to avoid feedback.
3. Makes sense to me but now it sounds like we are talking about multiple laptops unless you will take on that burden yourself.
4. I will reach out to Larry to work on this one.
5. We are a go for training. "preparing for an in-person mock. ILEAP or CALEA".
6. Let's see what he comes up with. I don't think ILETSB has a clue themselves.

All

Some things we need to consider about these meetings.

- 1) Will one of us always have a computer so the host agency is not burdened with providing a laptop? ... as long as I am there I will have a laptop.
- 2) Ben, are you going to bring that hockey puck thing? What is needed by the host agency for that to be successful?
- 3) I was not really a fan of having someone who is not on the board monitor who is being let in to the Zoom, I only say that because we may know more names and be a bit more meticulous. Do you guys agree? Or think I am being too precautious? Please be honest.
- 4) At this point I am just planning on telling Larry the only thing we ask is to have an IT person available to meet us at 9:15am to try to get the best set up as possible. If no one is available as long as we can access the internet and whatever is needed for the hockey puck thing we are good to go. Any other things we need or want from a host agency?
- 5) Confirming we are still a go for training?
- 6) I have been approached by Matt Smizinski (Lake Bluff Deputy Chief) who had been in talks with Hiroshi (Schaumburg). They think it would be beneficial to request someone from ILETSB come to a meeting or possibly do a November Zoom meeting to talk about what the heck is going on with where things stand and don't stand with the SAFE T Act. I told him I think that would be lovely however I believe we would either get no response from ILETSB. Or the response of "we don't know much". Matt was meeting with their agency ILETSB liaison this week and he was going to ask him what he thought of the idea. So while I wait to hear back from Matt, what is all of your thoughts on this?

I have also attached the draft agenda, please advise.

The agenda looks good.

For the rest:

1. I can also bring a laptop if needed.
2. Ben has to answer
3. Who was the "monitor" for Zoom? I think it will be difficult for a board member to handle it and pay attention to the meeting at the same time. As long as it's someone reliable who has been in the PAC a while we should be OK.
4. You've got it covered for the host agency so we should be good to go on that item too.
5. Ben again
6. I agree, don't think we're going to get much from ILETSB. The updates from ILACP to the Chief's is probably the best we have at this point.

If you all need to reach me on days I'm not working: Monday and Friday (Thursday after 1:00), call or text my cell: 847-924-5924.

Hi Michael,

Are you referring to the house bill? See attachment, on page one for mental health screenings. We have an in-house social worker, Tony Bertram (Niles PD is one of the lead departments when it comes to an in-house social worker). Tony has thoroughly reviewed the house bill and is prepared to do the mental health screenings if necessary. In our in-house budget meeting this week we talked about a software Tony would like to purchase in FY23 that would be able to store that data securely so he would be able to send it to the state.

The main issue right now is there is no direction from ILETSB (Illinois Law Enforcement Training and Standards Board) or the state on what the mental health screening actually entails.

Is this what you were referring too? Is there new information that you know about? Or are you talking about something completely different than me?

Allie

So apparently there is a new state law that requires public safety officer to have a psychological review annually. Our EAP provider can meet this requirement. Attached is their proposal.

I do not know about this law or what the PD has already done to prepare for this change. I am passing along information.

Thank you.

Michael and Evangeline,

It was nice to see you in person after so long! How fun for me to leave my home office and be onsite!

Attached are the proposal and descriptions of the annual behavioral health review offered by Perspectives. Based on our review of the new Illinois Safety, Accountability, Fairness and Equity – Today (SAFE-T) Act, this program meet the requirements of the Act.

Please let me know if you would like to meet to discuss further details or would like to implement these services for your police officers.

Here is your Fact Sheet on what we seek in new trailer bill

Last week, negotiations began with the SAFE-T Act sponsors on what we need in a new trailer bill, with a focus on aspects of the law that are effective January 1, 2022. For us, these include changes in the 3-phone-call provision, the body camera law, and more.

We are calling this Trailer Bill 2, because the first trailer bill was passed in May 2021. Please see the attached Fact Sheet and download it. It lists the priorities of ILACP.

Please feel free to share this document widely: with your department, with your local officials, and with your state reps and senators. Sound bite: We want the General Assembly to take action on a Trailer Bill during the fall veto session, which begins next week.

Dates of fall veto session: October 19-21 and October 26-28.

Albuquerque, New Mexico Takes Police Out Of Mental Health Calls

The Washington Post (10/8, Witte) reports from Albuquerque, New Mexico, "In one of the most tangible shifts in public safety since last year's killing of George Floyd spawned anti-police-brutality protests nationwide, New Mexico's largest city has established a new category of first responder. Starting in September, 911 dispatchers had an option beyond the police, with social workers and others in related fields patrolling the city and fielding calls pertaining to mental health, substance abuse or homelessness that otherwise would have been handled by an armed officer." The Post adds, "The contrast is vivid: The members of the freshly established Community Safety Department sport T-shirts, lean heavily on their de-escalation training and emphasize that they're not there to enforce the law or make arrests. Instead, they fill the trunks of their Honda Accord patrol cars with enticements designed to win the trust of the people they are seeking to help."

The Albuquerque (NM) Journal (10/13) reports, "Responders from a new city department – billed as another option to be dispatched instead of the police and fire departments – hit the streets a little over a month ago and are going to an average of nine calls a day involving mental health, homelessness," and substance use issues. "In its first month the Albuquerque Community Safety responders have successfully responded to 212 calls for service, spokesman Joshua Reeves wrote in a news release. He said about half have resulted in 'resources being offered, direct services being provided, or a transport.'"

Alexandria City Council Votes To Put Police Back In Schools Temporarily

The Washington Post (10/13) reports the Alexandria City Council "voted early Wednesday to return police to the city's public schools through June, reversing a narrow vote five months ago – over objections from the school board and superintendent – to pull the armed officers out of school hallways." The decision is the "latest twist in a contentious debate over the Northern Virginia city's School Resource Officer program, which sends five police officers to Alexandria's one public high school and three public middle schools.” After several incidents “involving students and guns this fall escalated safety concerns, parents and top school officials pleaded with the council to reinstate the decades-old initiative.” This week, “their calls were enough to sway just one key lawmaker.”

Fox News (10/13, Colton) reports “the school district thanked the city council on Wednesday for its vote to reinstate the SROs, according to a statement from ACPS Chief of School & Community Relations Julia Burgos to Fox News.”

Dallas Leaders Praise Police Chief’s Crime Plan As Violence, Murders Decrease

The Dallas Morning News (10/13, Smith) reports, “Top city officials praised Dallas police Chief Eddie García’s violent crime plan this week after the department provided updated data showing overall violent crime, murders and robberies continue to trend downward citywide – even as aggravated assaults experienced an uptick compared with last year.” The Morning News adds, “The tallies come as Dallas police launch the next phase of the chief’s violent crime reduction strategy this week. The strategy focuses on locating criminal networks and disrupting them. ‘Criminologists will be in town to start discussions on training,’ García told council members this week. ‘One of the products that will come from place network investigations is looking where the issues are — fixing the problem. And if that problem takes codifying certain things that we have to do as a city or other things, that is what will get borne out of that.’”

Bloomberg (10/13, Sitori-Cortina) reports, “Fewer Americans are taking to the skies because of the coronavirus pandemic, but they’re trying to bring along a lot more guns.” According to Bloomberg, “The number of firearms detected at airport checkpoints this year is already the highest in the 20-year history of the Transportation Security Administration. The agency says it has found 11 firearms in carry-on bags per 1 million travelers screened, up from just 5 per million in 2019.”

Man Armed With Bow And Arrow Kills Five People In Norway

The AP (10/13, Olsen) reports, "A man armed with a bow fired arrows at shoppers in a small Norwegian town Wednesday, killing five people before he was arrested, authorities said." According to the AP, "The police chief in the community of Kongsberg, near the capital of Oslo, said there was 'a confrontation' between officers and the assailant, but he did not elaborate. Two other people were wounded and hospitalized in intensive care, including an officer who was off duty and inside the shop where the attack took place, police said. 'The man who carried out the act has been arrested by the police, and there is no active search for more people. Based on the information we have, there is one person behind this,' Police Chief Oeyving Aas said."

Reuters (10/13, Solsvik, Klesty) reports, "The suspect was in custody, police added. 'The man used a bow and arrow ... for some of the attacks,' police chief Oeyvind Aas told reporters. The police were investigating whether other weapons had also been used, he said. One of the wounded people was an off-duty police officer." Reuters adds, "The death toll was the worst of any attack in Norway since 2011, when far-right extremist Anders Behring Breivik killed 77 people, most of them teenagers at a youth camp. The attacks on Wednesday took place over 'a large area' of Kongsberg, a municipality of about 28,000 people in southeastern Norway, 68 km (42 miles) from the capital, Oslo."

Walgreens Closing Stores In San Francisco Due To Shoplifting

Bloomberg (10/13) reports Walgreens has announced that it is closing five more of its locations in San Francisco as the company continues to experience "rampant shoplifting" at many of its stores in the city. Winnipeg Planning To Address Large Medical Marijuana Grows In Neighborhoods

CTV Winnipeg (CAN) (10/13) reports city officials in Winnipeg are looking to address "a growing problem in residential neighbourhoods, big medical cannabis productions. Neighbours to some of these locations have been complaining about the smell and brought their concerns to the committee Wednesday."

Armed Group Boards Cargo Ship Moored In Dunkirk Seeking Cache Of Seized Cocaine

The Times (UK) (10/14, Sage, Subscription Publication) reports, "Drug traffickers have broken new ground in France by detaining the crew of a cargo ship that had been seized by customs with €40 million worth of cocaine aboard. In an incident that has underlined the ruthlessness of the traffickers bringing cocaine to Britain and the EU, a seven-strong armed gang broke into the Liberian-registered vessel Trudy despite what was supposed to be tight security in Dunkirk, where the ship had been forced to dock after being boarded by French customs officers in the English Channel." The attackers were unaware that the drugs had already been removed by authorities.

Oregon County Declares Emergency Over Proliferating Illegal Marijuana Farms

The AP (10/13, Selsky) reports leaders in Jackson County, Oregon, say the county “is so overwhelmed by an increase in the number and size of illegal marijuana farms that it declared a state of emergency Wednesday, appealing to the governor and the Legislature’s leaders for help.” Local commissioners “said law enforcement officers and county and state regulators and code enforcers are overwhelmed and warned of an ‘imminent threat to the public health and safety of our citizens from the illegal production of cannabis in our county.’”

Albuquerque, New Mexico Takes Police Out Of Mental Health Calls

The Washington Post (10/8, Witte) reports from Albuquerque, New Mexico, "In one of the most tangible shifts in public safety since last year's killing of George Floyd spawned anti-police-brutality protests nationwide, New Mexico's largest city has established a new category of first responder. Starting in September, 911 dispatchers had an option beyond the police, with social workers and others in related fields patrolling the city and fielding calls pertaining to mental health, substance abuse or homelessness that otherwise would have been handled by an armed officer." The Post adds, "The contrast is vivid: The members of the freshly established Community Safety Department sport T-shirts, lean heavily on their de-escalation training and emphasize that they're not there to enforce the law or make arrests. Instead, they fill the trunks of their Honda Accord patrol cars with enticements designed to win the trust of the people they are seeking to help."

The Albuquerque (NM) Journal (10/13) reports, "Responders from a new city department – billed as another option to be dispatched instead of the police and fire departments – hit the streets a little over a month ago and are going to an average of nine calls a day involving mental health, homelessness," and substance use issues. "In its first month the Albuquerque Community Safety responders have successfully responded to 212 calls for service, spokesman Joshua Reeves wrote in a news release. He said about half have resulted in 'resources being offered, direct services being provided, or a transport.'"

Alexandria City Council Votes To Put Police Back In Schools Temporarily

The Washington Post (10/13) reports the Alexandria City Council "voted early Wednesday to return police to the city's public schools through June, reversing a narrow vote five months ago – over objections from the school board and superintendent – to pull the armed officers out of school hallways." The decision is the "latest twist in a contentious debate over the Northern Virginia city's School Resource Officer program, which sends five police officers to Alexandria's one public high school and three public middle schools.” After several incidents “involving students and guns this fall escalated safety concerns, parents and top school officials pleaded with the council to reinstate the decades-old initiative.” This week, “their calls were enough to sway just one key lawmaker.”

Fox News (10/13, Colton) reports “the school district thanked the city council on Wednesday for its vote to reinstate the SROs, according to a statement from ACPS Chief of School & Community Relations Julia Burgos to Fox News.”

Dallas Leaders Praise Police Chief’s Crime Plan As Violence, Murders Decrease

The Dallas Morning News (10/13, Smith) reports, “Top city officials praised Dallas police Chief Eddie García’s violent crime plan this week after the department provided updated data showing overall violent crime, murders and robberies continue to trend downward citywide – even as aggravated assaults experienced an uptick compared with last year.” The Morning News adds, “The tallies come as Dallas police launch the next phase of the chief’s violent crime reduction strategy this week. The strategy focuses on locating criminal networks and disrupting them. ‘Criminologists will be in town to start discussions on training,’ García told council members this week. ‘One of the products that will come from place network investigations is looking where the issues are — fixing the problem. And if that problem takes codifying certain things that we have to do as a city or other things, that is what will get borne out of that.’”

Americans Trying To Carry Guns On Planes In Record Numbers

Bloomberg (10/13, Sitori-Cortina) reports, “Fewer Americans are taking to the skies because of the coronavirus pandemic, but they’re trying to bring along a lot more guns.” According to Bloomberg, “The number of firearms detected at airport checkpoints this year is already the highest in the 20-year history of the Transportation Security Administration. The agency says it has found 11 firearms in carry-on bags per 1 million travelers screened, up from just 5 per million in 2019.”

Man Armed With Bow And Arrow Kills Five People In Norway

The AP (10/13, Olsen) reports, "A man armed with a bow fired arrows at shoppers in a small Norwegian town Wednesday, killing five people before he was arrested, authorities said." According to the AP, "The police chief in the community of Kongsberg, near the capital of Oslo, said there was 'a confrontation' between officers and the assailant, but he did not elaborate. Two other people were wounded and hospitalized in intensive care, including an officer who was off duty and inside the shop where the attack took place, police said. 'The man who carried out the act has been arrested by the police, and there is no active search for more people. Based on the information we have, there is one person behind this,' Police Chief Oeyving Aas said."

Reuters (10/13, Solsvik, Klesty) reports, "The suspect was in custody, police added. 'The man used a bow and arrow ... for some of the attacks,' police chief Oeyvind Aas told reporters. The police were investigating whether other weapons had also been used, he said. One of the wounded people was an off-duty police officer." Reuters adds, "The death toll was the worst of any attack in Norway since 2011, when far-right extremist Anders Behring Breivik killed 77 people, most of them teenagers at a youth camp. The attacks on Wednesday took place over 'a large area' of Kongsberg, a municipality of about 28,000 people in southeastern Norway, 68 km (42 miles) from the capital, Oslo."

Walgreens Closing Stores In San Francisco Due To Shoplifting

Bloomberg (10/13) reports Walgreens has announced that it is closing five more of its locations in San Francisco as the company continues to experience "rampant shoplifting" at many of its stores in the city. "Theft rates in recent months have risen to five times the company's national average despite increased investment in security measures, the company said in an emailed statement."

Winnipeg Planning To Address Large Medical Marijuana Grows In Neighborhoods

CTV Winnipeg (CAN) (10/13) reports city officials in Winnipeg are looking to address "a growing problem in residential neighbourhoods, big medical cannabis productions. The city's property and development committee voted on a plan to restrict the larger scale operations to manufacturing zones." Current regulations "can result in hundreds of plants per home. Neighbours to some of these locations have been complaining about the smell and brought their concerns to the committee Wednesday."

Armed Group Boards Cargo Ship Moored In Dunkirk Seeking Cache Of Seized Cocaine

The Times (UK) (10/14, Sage, Subscription Publication) reports, "Drug traffickers have broken new ground in France by detaining the crew of a cargo ship that had been seized by customs with €40 million worth of cocaine aboard. In an incident that has underlined the ruthlessness of the traffickers bringing cocaine to Britain and the EU, a seven-strong armed gang broke into the Liberian-registered vessel Trudy despite what was supposed to be tight security in Dunkirk, where the ship had been forced to dock after being boarded by French customs officers in the English Channel." The attackers were unaware that the drugs had already been removed by authorities.

Oregon County Declares Emergency Over Proliferating Illegal Marijuana Farms

The AP (10/13, Selsky) reports leaders in Jackson County, Oregon, say the county “is so overwhelmed by an increase in the number and size of illegal marijuana farms that it declared a state of emergency Wednesday, appealing to the governor and the Legislature’s leaders for help.” Local commissioners “said law enforcement officers and county and state regulators and code enforcers are overwhelmed and warned of an ‘imminent threat to the public health and safety of our citizens from the illegal production of cannabis in our county.’”

Legislative Alert | October 12, 2021

Here is your Fact Sheet on what we seek in new trailer bill

Last week, negotiations began with the SAFE-T Act sponsors on what we need in a new trailer bill, with a focus on aspects of the law that are effective January 1, 2022. For us, these include changes in the 3-phone-call provision, the body camera law, and more.

We are calling this Trailer Bill 2, because the first trailer bill was passed in May 2021. Please see the attached Fact Sheet and download it. It lists the priorities of ILACP.

Please feel free to share this document widely: with your department, with your local officials, and with your state reps and senators. Sound bite: We want the General Assembly to take action on a Trailer Bill during the fall veto session, which begins next week.

Dates of fall veto session: October 19-21 and October 26-28.

California Enacts New Laws To Ease Strict Criminal Sentencing System

The San Francisco Chronicle (10/12, Egelko) reports, "California's criminal sentencing laws have been among the most severe in the nation for decades," but "the state's lawmakers and voters have been moving in a different direction," and "that trend has continued with a series of new laws signed last week by Gov. Gavin Newsom." Beginning in January, "nonviolent drug offenders will no longer face mandatory prison or jail sentences and will instead be eligible for probation." Judges "who now can impose any of three sentences for most felony crimes...will be discouraged from imposing the maximum term except in extreme cases," and "perhaps most significant are new limits on sentencing 'enhancements' that can add anywhere from one to 25 years to the basic sentence for a crime if it involves gang membership, use of a gun, infliction of injury, a defendant with prior convictions, or any of about 150 other circumstances spelled out in state law."

US Supreme Court Rejects Puerto Rico's Challenge To Federal Cockfighting Ban

Bloomberg (10/12, Stohr) reports the US Supreme Court "refused to question the federal ban on cockfighting, rejecting an appeal from a group of Puerto Ricans who said the prohibition exceeded the federal government's authority." Without comment, the justices "left intact a federal appeals court decision that said the ban is a legitimate use of Congress's constitutional power to regulate interstate commerce."

Shooting At Memphis Postal Facility Leaves Three USPS Employees Dead, Including Shooter

The AP (10/12, Sainz) reports that on Tuesday, two employees of the US Postal Service “were fatally shot...at a postal facility in Memphis and a third employee identified as the shooter died from a self-inflicted gunshot.” US Postal Inspector Susan Link “said the three postal workers were found dead after the shooting at the East Lamar Carrier Annex in a prominent Memphis neighborhood. FBI spokeswoman Lisa-Anne Culp said the shooting was carried out by a third postal service worker, who shot him or herself.” The AP points out this latest “violence follows other shootings in the Memphis area in recent weeks. The franchise owner of a sushi counter inside a Kroger grocery store in...Collierville fatally shot one person and wounded 14 others before killing himself on Sept. 23, investigators said. A week later, a teenage boy was shot and critically wounded inside a Memphis school.”

At Evidence Hearing, Officer Says Accused Synagogue Shooter Spoke Of Killing Jews

The AP (10/12, Santanam) reports that at a federal hearing on Tuesday, Pittsburgh Police Officer Stephen Mescan – the tactical officer who in 2018 was among the first to responded to a mass shooting at the Tree of Life synagogue that left 11 dead – “told a judge...that defendant Robert Bowers made several references to killing Jews.” The hearing will determine “whether prosecutors will be allowed to use at trial certain statements made by Bowers the day of the October 2018 massacre.” The AP explains that Bowers “faces more than 60 federal charges, including hate crimes violations, obstruction of religious belief and the use of a firearm during a crime of violence.”

Chilean President Calls In Army To Counter Arson Attacks

Bloomberg (10/12, Thomson, Thomson) reports Chilean President Sebastian Pinera “will deploy its armed forces in the south of the country to counter an increase in arson attacks against forestry and transport infrastructure, and amid a string of shootouts between police and pro-indigenous rights groups.” Pinera “announced a state of emergency in four provinces: Biobio, Arauco, Malleco and Cautin, which have been at the center of the attacks.” The measure allows the deployment of armed forces for 15 days and can then be extended.

Police In Durham, England, Using Sticky Anti-Cocaine Spray In Night Spot Bathrooms

The Telegraph (UK) (10/12, Hymas) reports police in Durham, England, “are dousing pub and club lavatories with an anti-drugs spray that causes cocaine to stick to surfaces and adds a foul taste. ... The clear substance is sprayed on surfaces that could be used by customers to cut and take drugs such as cocaine.” The spray, known as BLOKit, “contains a powerful bittering agent which leaves a bad taste lasting for hours if a user tries to scrape drugs off a surface and take them.”

US Municipalities Working With DEA On Drug Take Back Day

The New Hampshire Union Leader (10/11) reports, “Derry and Salem police departments are among those across the state taking part in” the DEA’s “Prescription Drug Take Back Day. On Saturday, Oct. 23 from 10 a.m. to 2 p.m., the public will have the chance to safely dispose of all prescription medications, including unused or expired prescription drugs, over-the-counter medicines, and opioid medications.” The Union Leader adds, “Law enforcement officers and staff will be collecting all prescription medications – tablets, capsules, and patches of hydrocodone (Norco, Lortab, Vicodin), oxycodone (Oxycontin, Percocet), tramadol (Ultram), codeine, fentanyl (Duragesic), morphine, hydromorphone (Dilaudid) and oxymorphone (Opana). Vape pens or other e-cigarette devices will also be accepted if the batteries are removed.”

The Narragansett-South Kingstown (RI) Patch (10/11, Nunes) reports, “Narragansett and South Kingstown police will join cities and towns throughout Rhode Island participating in National Drug Take Back Day. Expired, unused and unwanted prescription drugs can be dropped off at the stations from 10 a.m. to 2 p.m., Saturday, Oct. 23.”

Special DEA Teams Used To Deconstruct Fentanyl Labs

KTSM-TV El Paso, TX (10/12, Aguayo) reports on the DEA’s Clandestine Lab Response teams, who deconstruct drug labs. The article quotes Carlos Briano, Public Information Officer for the DEA El Paso, saying, “This programs been around since the 1990’s but it has evolved from being used on meth labs to Fentanyl labs. It’s become more sophisticated and used on mega labs like we have found in Chihuahua.” Agents “use a special suit that is impermeable, along with an air tight mask, oxygen tank and rubber boots when they infiltrate a clandestine drug lab.”

California Enacts New Laws To Ease Strict Criminal Sentencing System

The San Francisco Chronicle (10/12, Egelko) reports, "California's criminal sentencing laws have been among the most severe in the nation for decades," but "the state's lawmakers and voters have been moving in a different direction," and "that trend has continued with a series of new laws signed last week by Gov. Gavin Newsom." Beginning in January, "nonviolent drug offenders will no longer face mandatory prison or jail sentences and will instead be eligible for probation." Judges "who now can impose any of three sentences for most felony crimes...will be discouraged from imposing the maximum term except in extreme cases," and "perhaps most significant are new limits on sentencing 'enhancements' that can add anywhere from one to 25 years to the basic sentence for a crime if it involves gang membership, use of a gun, infliction of injury, a defendant with prior convictions, or any of about 150 other circumstances spelled out in state law."

US Supreme Court Rejects Puerto Rico's Challenge To Federal Cockfighting Ban

Bloomberg (10/12, Stohr) reports the US Supreme Court "refused to question the federal ban on cockfighting, rejecting an appeal from a group of Puerto Ricans who said the prohibition exceeded the federal government's authority." Without comment, the justices "left intact a federal appeals court decision that said the ban is a legitimate use of Congress's constitutional power to regulate interstate commerce."

A message from an IACP partner:

A new global research study from Motorola Solutions, conducted by Goldsmiths, University of London, reveals the pandemic accelerated public acceptance of safety technology and its adoption by public safety agencies. Based on a survey of 12,000 citizens and interviews with 50+ public safety experts, it is an essential resource for understanding how to assess risk, integrate the right technologies, and secure community support. Shooting At Memphis Postal Facility Leaves Three USPS Employees Dead, Including Shooter

The AP (10/12, Sainz) reports that on Tuesday, two employees of the US Postal Service “were fatally shot...at a postal facility in Memphis and a third employee identified as the shooter died from a self-inflicted gunshot.” US Postal Inspector Susan Link “said the three postal workers were found dead after the shooting at the East Lamar Carrier Annex in a prominent Memphis neighborhood. FBI spokeswoman Lisa-Anne Culp said the shooting was carried out by a third postal service worker, who shot him or herself.” The AP points out this latest “violence follows other shootings in the Memphis area in recent weeks. The franchise owner of a sushi counter inside a Kroger grocery store in...Collierville fatally shot one person and wounded 14 others before killing himself on Sept. 23, investigators said. A week later, a teenage boy was shot and critically wounded inside a Memphis school.”

At Evidence Hearing, Officer Says Accused Synagogue Shooter Spoke Of Killing Jews

The AP (10/12, Santanam) reports that at a federal hearing on Tuesday, Pittsburgh Police Officer Stephen Mescan – the tactical officer who in 2018 was among the first to responded to a mass shooting at the Tree of Life synagogue that left 11 dead – “told a judge...that defendant Robert Bowers made several references to killing Jews.” The hearing will determine “whether prosecutors will be allowed to use at trial certain statements made by Bowers the day of the October 2018 massacre.” The AP explains that Bowers “faces more than 60 federal charges, including hate crimes violations, obstruction of religious belief and the use of a firearm during a crime of violence.”

Chilean President Calls In Army To Counter Arson Attacks

Bloomberg (10/12, Thomson, Thomson) reports Chilean President Sebastian Pinera “will deploy its armed forces in the south of the country to counter an increase in arson attacks against forestry and transport infrastructure, and amid a string of shootouts between police and pro-indigenous rights groups.” Pinera “announced a state of emergency in four provinces: Biobio, Arauco, Malleco and Cautin, which have been at the center of the attacks.” The measure allows the deployment of armed forces for 15 days and can then be extended.

Police In Durham, England, Using Sticky Anti-Cocaine Spray In Night Spot Bathrooms

The Telegraph (UK) (10/12, Hymas) reports police in Durham, England, “are dousing pub and club lavatories with an anti-drugs spray that causes cocaine to stick to surfaces and adds a foul taste. ... The clear substance is sprayed on surfaces that could be used by customers to cut and take drugs such as cocaine.” The spray, known as BLOKit, “contains a powerful bittering agent which leaves a bad taste lasting for hours if a user tries to scrape drugs off a surface and take them.”

US Municipalities Working With DEA On Drug Take Back Day

The New Hampshire Union Leader (10/11) reports, “Derry and Salem police departments are among those across the state taking part in” the DEA’s “Prescription Drug Take Back Day. On Saturday, Oct. 23 from 10 a.m. to 2 p.m., the public will have the chance to safely dispose of all prescription medications, including unused or expired prescription drugs, over-the-counter medicines, and opioid medications.” The Union Leader adds, “Law enforcement officers and staff will be collecting all prescription medications – tablets, capsules, and patches of hydrocodone (Norco, Lortab, Vicodin), oxycodone (Oxycontin, Percocet), tramadol (Ultram), codeine, fentanyl (Duragesic), morphine, hydromorphone (Dilaudid) and oxymorphone (Opana). Vape pens or other e-cigarette devices will also be accepted if the batteries are removed.”

The Narragansett-South Kingstown (RI) Patch (10/11, Nunes) reports, “Narragansett and South Kingstown police will join cities and towns throughout Rhode Island participating in National Drug Take Back Day. Expired, unused and unwanted prescription drugs can be dropped off at the stations from 10 a.m. to 2 p.m., Saturday, Oct. 23.”

The Coventry (RI) Patch (10/11, Nunes) reports, “The Warren Police Department will join cities and towns throughout Rhode Island participating in National Drug Take Back Day. The police department will accept expired, unused and unwanted prescription drugs from 10 a.m. to 2 p.m., Saturday, Oct. 23, at the police station at 60 Wood St.”

Legislative Alert | October 12, 2021 Here is your Fact Sheet on what we seek in new trailer bill

Last week, negotiations began with the SAFE-T Act sponsors on what we need in a new trailer bill, with a focus on aspects of the law that are effective January 1, 2022. For us, these include changes in the 3-phone-call provision, the body camera law, and more.

We are calling this Trailer Bill 2, because the first trailer bill was passed in May 2021. Please see the attached Fact Sheet and download it. It lists the priorities of ILACP.

Please feel free to share this document widely: with your department, with your local officials, and with your state reps and senators. Sound bite: We want the General Assembly to take action on a Trailer Bill during the fall veto session, which begins next week.

Dates of fall veto session: October 19-21 and October 26-28.

Greetings Joseph Romano

brought to you with support from

Policing and Policy

Police Departments Throughout Nation Seeing Funding Boosts

The New York Times (10/10, Goodman) reports that in municipalities throughout the US, “police departments are getting their money back. From New York to Los Angeles, departments that saw their funding targeted amid nationwide protests over the killing of George Floyd last year have watched as local leaders voted for increases in police spending, with an additional $200 million allocated to the New York Police Department and a 3 percent boost given to the Los Angeles force.” The about-faces have occurred “in response to rising levels of crime in major cities last year, the exodus of officers from departments large and small and political pressures.”

Study Finds People With Substance Use Disorder Are More Likely To Experience Breakthrough COVID-19

The Cincinnati Enquirer (10/10, DeMio) reported smokers and people addicted to alcohol or opioids, are “more likely to experience breakthrough COVID-19..., a new study shows.” The “study from researchers at Case Western Reserve University in Cleveland also shows that co-occurring health conditions and adverse socioeconomic health factors, which are more common in people with substance use disorders than those without, are largely responsible for the greater risk of breakthrough infections.” Researchers and Cincinnati area specialists were not “surprised by the findings of the study, which was funded by the National Institute of Drug Abuse.”

The New York Post (10/10) reported the study, which was “published (10/5, Subscription Publication) last Tuesday in World Psychology, found that those with a substance use disorder (SUD) – a dependence on marijuana, alcohol, cocaine, opioids and tobacco – were more likely to contract the coronavirus after receiving both of their vaccination shots.” People “without an SUD saw a 3.6 percent rate of breakthrough infections, compared to a 7 percent rate in those with an SUD.”

New York Governor Signs Measures Designed To Decrease Drug Overdoses

The AP (10/8, Villeneuve) reported, “New York has decriminalized the possession and sale of hypodermic needles and syringes as part of new laws signed this week by Gov. Kathy Hochul that supporters hope will reduce the number of people who die of drug overdoses.” According to a summary of the legislation, “the new law will end the arrests of ‘thousands of people each year for syringe possession.’” Another drug-related bill signed by Hochul says “courts can no longer consider possession of opioid-blocking drugs like naloxone as evidence of possession of controlled substances.” Meanwhile, “judges can now order treatment for people who use alcohol or drugs in excess – rather than requiring them to develop a full addiction first. And state prisons and local jails will launch a more extensive medication-assisted treatment program to help more than half of incarcerated people in New York who have a substance use disorder and face risk of overdose after release.”

More Americans Under 17 Being Killed By Guns

The AP (10/11, Lauer) reports, “Gun violence is killing an increasing number of American children, from toddlers caught in crossfires to teenagers gunned down in turf wars, drug squabbles or for posting the wrong thing on social media.” In 2019, there were “991 gun violence deaths among people 17 or younger,” while “that number spiked to 1,375 in 2020 and this year is on pace to be worse,” with 1,165 so far this year. According to the FBI, “homicides in the U.S. increased nearly 30% in 2020, and homicides among people ages 19 and younger rose more than 21%.”

Nevada Sees Spike In Accidental Overdose Deaths

The AP (10/9) reports the Nevada Overdose Data Program said Thursday that there has been “a dramatic increase in drug overdose deaths in the state between 2019 and 2020. Accidental overdoses among Nevadans totaled 788 in 2020, a 55% increase from 510 in 2019. ... The number of overdose deaths among people younger than 25 nearly tripled, increasing from 38 in 2019 and 106 in 2020.”

NYTimes Examines Dysfunction, Lawlessness At Rikers Island

The New York Times (10/11, Ransom, Bromwich, O'Brien) reports, “Much has been made of the crisis gripping Rikers, New York City’s main jail complex – the pandemic and a subsequent staffing emergency have taken a brutal toll on incarcerated people and jailers alike – but the sheer lawlessness inside the compound is difficult to fathom.” The Times adds, “Detainees in some buildings have seized near total control over entire units, deciding who can enter and leave them, records and interviews show,” and “in other buildings, they have wandered in and out of staff break rooms and similarly restricted areas, with some flouting rules against smoking tobacco and marijuana.”

Authorities Seize $4.5M Worth Of Meth In Atlanta

WGCL-TV Atlanta (10/7) reports, “More than 1,600 pounds of meth worth about $4.5 million is off the streets after the DEA busted a meth conversion lab in Ellenwood.” According to “the DEA, they also arrested three men from Mexico who are in the country illegally. The men also belong to a drug cartel, according to the DEA.” Special Agent in Charge Rob Murphy “told CBS46 that the entire basement of a house in Ellenwood was being used to process methamphetamine. The floor above was being used to dry the product.” Murphy “says the amount that was discovered is a ‘staggering’ amount of methamphetamine.” He said, “This was not a mom-and-pop operation.”

Growing Issue Of Catalytic Converter Thefts Examined

The Washington Post (10/8) reported that “a growing number of car owners regionally and nationwide...have lost their catalytic converters, an integral part of a vehicle’s exhaust system that police say thieves are targeting for its precious metals.” The catalytic converters – “sought after for the platinum, rhodium, palladium and other metals inside – can be sold for $150 to $200 per piece at junk yards, police say.” According to a study in March by the National Insurance Crime Bureau, there were an average of 1,200 catalytic converter thefts per month in 2020, up from 108 per month in 2018. Police are starting to combat the issue, with the article highlighting efforts made by the Takoma Park police force in Maryland.

Two-Thirds Of Saskatchewan Overdose Deaths Linked To Fentanyl

CKCK-TV Regina, CAN (10/9) reports of 132 drug overdose deaths in Saskatchewan so far this year, “fentanyl was involved in 89 of the confirmed deaths.” The article quotes Sgt. Burton Jones, a Detachment Commander with the Yorkton RCMP, saying, “Really when it comes to fentanyl overdoses, seconds count. It is 100 times more powerful than morphine.”

Seven Charged After Drug Raids In Scotland

The Daily Record (UK) (10/9, Bhardwaj) reports, “Seven people have been charged after police drug raids in Perth,” Scotland. The charges come “after a large, intelligence-led drugs enforcement operation was undertaken in Perth on Tuesday October 5, 2021. Police Scotland officers recovered crack cocaine, heroin, cannabis and diazepam with a total potential value of over £12,000.”

Police Departments Throughout Nation Seeing Funding Boosts

The New York Times (10/10, Goodman) reports that in municipalities throughout the US, “police departments are getting their money back. From New York to Los Angeles, departments that saw their funding targeted amid nationwide protests over the killing of George Floyd last year have watched as local leaders voted for increases in police spending, with an additional $200 million allocated to the New York Police Department and a 3 percent boost given to the Los Angeles force.” The about-faces have occurred “in response to rising levels of crime in major cities last year, the exodus of officers from departments large and small and political pressures.”

Study Finds People With Substance Use Disorder Are More Likely To Experience Breakthrough COVID-19

The Cincinnati Enquirer (10/10, DeMio) reported smokers and people addicted to alcohol or opioids, are “more likely to experience breakthrough COVID-19..., a new study shows.” The “study from researchers at Case Western Reserve University in Cleveland also shows that co-occurring health conditions and adverse socioeconomic health factors, which are more common in people with substance use disorders than those without, are largely responsible for the greater risk of breakthrough infections.” Researchers and Cincinnati area specialists were not “surprised by the findings of the study, which was funded by the National Institute of Drug Abuse.”

The New York Post (10/10) reported the study, which was “published (10/5, Subscription Publication) last Tuesday in World Psychology, found that those with a substance use disorder (SUD) – a dependence on marijuana, alcohol, cocaine, opioids and tobacco – were more likely to contract the coronavirus after receiving both of their vaccination shots.” People “without an SUD saw a 3.6 percent rate of breakthrough infections, compared to a 7 percent rate in those with an SUD.”

New York Governor Signs Measures Designed To Decrease Drug Overdoses

The AP (10/8, Villeneuve) reported, “New York has decriminalized the possession and sale of hypodermic needles and syringes as part of new laws signed this week by Gov. Kathy Hochul that supporters hope will reduce the number of people who die of drug overdoses.” According to a summary of the legislation, “the new law will end the arrests of ‘thousands of people each year for syringe possession.’” Another drug-related bill signed by Hochul says “courts can no longer consider possession of opioid-blocking drugs like naloxone as evidence of possession of controlled substances.” Meanwhile, “judges can now order treatment for people who use alcohol or drugs in excess – rather than requiring them to develop a full addiction first. And state prisons and local jails will launch a more extensive medication-assisted treatment program to help more than half of incarcerated people in New York who have a substance use disorder and face risk of overdose after release.”

More Americans Under 17 Being Killed By Guns

The AP (10/11, Lauer) reports, “Gun violence is killing an increasing number of American children, from toddlers caught in crossfires to teenagers gunned down in turf wars, drug squabbles or for posting the wrong thing on social media.” In 2019, there were “991 gun violence deaths among people 17 or younger,” while “that number spiked to 1,375 in 2020 and this year is on pace to be worse,” with 1,165 so far this year. According to the FBI, “homicides in the U.S. increased nearly 30% in 2020, and homicides among people ages 19 and younger rose more than 21%.”

Nevada Sees Spike In Accidental Overdose Deaths

The AP (10/9) reports the Nevada Overdose Data Program said Thursday that there has been “a dramatic increase in drug overdose deaths in the state between 2019 and 2020. Accidental overdoses among Nevadans totaled 788 in 2020, a 55% increase from 510 in 2019. ... The number of overdose deaths among people younger than 25 nearly tripled, increasing from 38 in 2019 and 106 in 2020.”

NYTimes Examines Dysfunction, Lawlessness At Rikers Island

The New York Times (10/11, Ransom, Bromwich, O'Brien) reports, “Much has been made of the crisis gripping Rikers, New York City’s main jail complex – the pandemic and a subsequent staffing emergency have taken a brutal toll on incarcerated people and jailers alike – but the sheer lawlessness inside the compound is difficult to fathom.” The Times adds, “Detainees in some buildings have seized near total control over entire units, deciding who can enter and leave them, records and interviews show,” and “in other buildings, they have wandered in and out of staff break rooms and similarly restricted areas, with some flouting rules against smoking tobacco and marijuana.”

Authorities Seize $4.5M Worth Of Meth In Atlanta

WGCL-TV Atlanta (10/7) reports, “More than 1,600 pounds of meth worth about $4.5 million is off the streets after the DEA busted a meth conversion lab in Ellenwood.” According to “the DEA, they also arrested three men from Mexico who are in the country illegally. The men also belong to a drug cartel, according to the DEA.” Special Agent in Charge Rob Murphy “told CBS46 that the entire basement of a house in Ellenwood was being used to process methamphetamine. The floor above was being used to dry the product.” Murphy “says the amount that was discovered is a ‘staggering’ amount of methamphetamine.” He said, “This was not a mom-and-pop operation.”

Growing Issue Of Catalytic Converter Thefts Examined

The Washington Post (10/8) reported that “a growing number of car owners regionally and nationwide...have lost their catalytic converters, an integral part of a vehicle’s exhaust system that police say thieves are targeting for its precious metals.” The catalytic converters – “sought after for the platinum, rhodium, palladium and other metals inside – can be sold for $150 to $200 per piece at junk yards, police say.” According to a study in March by the National Insurance Crime Bureau, there were an average of 1,200 catalytic converter thefts per month in 2020, up from 108 per month in 2018. Police are starting to combat the issue, with the article highlighting efforts made by the Takoma Park police force in Maryland.

Two-Thirds Of Saskatchewan Overdose Deaths Linked To Fentanyl

CKCK-TV Regina, CAN (10/9) reports of 132 drug overdose deaths in Saskatchewan so far this year, “fentanyl was involved in 89 of the confirmed deaths.” The article quotes Sgt. Burton Jones, a Detachment Commander with the Yorkton RCMP, saying, “Really when it comes to fentanyl overdoses, seconds count. It is 100 times more powerful than morphine.”

Seven Charged After Drug Raids In Scotland

The Daily Record (UK) (10/9, Bhardwaj) reports, “Seven people have been charged after police drug raids in Perth,” Scotland. The charges come “after a large, intelligence-led drugs enforcement operation was undertaken in Perth on Tuesday October 5, 2021. Police Scotland officers recovered crack cocaine, heroin, cannabis and diazepam with a total potential value of over £12,000.”

Do you want to at least make a list of what you want each director's goals to be for next fiscal year? Then I can plug that into the reviews once I get to them. I attached their reviews from last year if that helps you.

They only need about 4 goals each – there can be more if you want.

Subject: In Search of Recommendations: Individual Therapist in Gurnee Area - PPO Insurance -

Good Morning-

I am search of an individual therapist in the Gurnee area that works with teens. This would be for a 17 YO whose has been defiant, struggling at home with their parents. The parents have PPO insurance. I am unfamiliar with the Gurnee area, so I am hoping I can get some recommendations to provide. They would prefer a female therapist.

Thanks!!

I second that, only us have access to our files. I get mention in their reports if I assisted, but nothing in my end to add to theirs. The only time that I add in their records if I do a hotline call to DCFS, Dept. of Aging, etc. I also keep minimum details in our files.

 THIS IS AN EXTERNAL EMAIL *****

We at Winnetka and Highland Park have similar documentation. We have our own clinical files accessible to only social worker. It's all electronic and in a social work drive with restricted access. There's a template I use for entries including date, incident/report number, type of incident - following is my documentation. I keep it to the point, nothing subjective just matter of fact - At a prior employment- we would have a mental health law attorney do presentation every 2 years to help keep everyone fresh up to par with the law and keeping mindful to the record keeping process should records be subpoenaed. We had inmates/detainees/parolees & victims of crimes as clients.

In Winnetka, they have had a social worker for now 40 years and have not had to release any social work records. Highland Park has had a social worker for 8 years- also has not had to release any records.

I second that, I'd also love to hear what others are doing, especially since we're new here in Wheaton and still trying to navigate the documentation piece.

Hello friends and colleagues,

I really wish I had been able to listen to this presentation, but I was on maternity leave and missed it. I am being asked to find out a bit more information from all of you wonderful APSS members. Can you all please tell me if you keep any documentation related to victims/clients that you meet with, and why? I'd love to hear from most, even if it's a quick yes or no. Our boss is considering having us write some type of report/supplement and I'm really concerned for confidentiality. Please share your thoughts if you have a minute.

Thank you kindly,

Natalia

WARNING: External Email: Exercise Caution

Good afternoon, APSS!

As promised, attached you will find Matt Cohen's powerpoint for this morning's discussion. We sure covered a lot of ground in a short amount of time! For those of you who missed my introduction (or couldn't hear us clearly): Matt Cohen is the founder of Matt Cohen and Associates and is well known for his work in special education and mental health law. He is the primary or collaborating author of several amendments to the mental health and special education laws of Illinois and has worked on legislation at the federal level and state level. Matt has lectured all over the country on many special education and mental health law topics. In addition to these accomplishments, Matt served as President of the Board of Directors of the national Children and Adults with Attention Deficit/Hyperactivity Disorders (CHADD) organization. He was the chair of the nationally unique Illinois Attorney General's Special Education Advisory Committee for over 30 years. He was a founding board member of the Council of Parent Attorneys and Advocates (COPAA), the national special education advocacy organization, and continues to serve on the Board.

While engaged in private law practice continuously since 1981, Matt served as the Executive Director and Corporate Counsel of a large psychiatric services corporation from 1985 to 1990. Matt received his law degree from the University of Minnesota (1981) and his bachelor's degree from Grinnell College (1977). He currently provides consultation services and can be reached at mdcspedlaw@gmail.com.

I have also attached Chief Holmer's memo regarding the SAFE-T Act and the ILACP powerpoint on the Act for your review. As we discussed, Carol Stream has, for now, taken this approach to the July 1, 2021 mandate for reporting mental health contacts with our police officers:

Starting on July 1st, some of the mandates coming from the SAFE-T Act (HB 3653) come on-line. The mandate I'd like to bring to your attention is the Mental Health Crises Reporting requirement.

Per the house bill, agencies must make a monthly report to the Illinois State Police that includes “any incident where law enforcement officers are dispatched to deal with a person experiencing a mental health crisis or incident, the number of incidents, the level of law enforcement response to each incident (how many officers respond), and the outcome of each incident.”

The trailer bill states that a “mental health crisis” is when a person’s behavior puts them at risk of hurting themselves or others or prevents them from being able to care for themselves.

Any call for service that meets the above definition must have an FBR report completed, and the report must have the “Crisis Intervention CIT” box checked. By doing so, the stat can be accurately tracked through WebRMS and reported to ISP.

I hope you find this information useful. I’m sure we will all have more questions as time passes and more direction is given.

Best wishes for a peaceful weekend,

Eileen

Good Morning-

I am search of an individual therapist in the Gurnee area that works with teens. This would be for a 17 YO whose has been defiant, struggling at home with their parents. The parents have PPO insurance. I am unfamiliar with the Gurnee area, so I am hoping I can get some recommendations to provide. They would prefer a female therapist.

Thanks!!

I second that, only us have access to our files. I get mention in their reports if I assisted, but nothing in my end to add to theirs. The only time that I add in their records if I do a hotline call to DCFS, Dept. of Aging, etc. I also keep minimum details in our files.

 THIS IS AN EXTERNAL EMAIL *****

We at Winnetka and Highland Park have similar documentation. We have our own clinical files accessible to only social worker. It's all electronic and in a social work drive with restricted access. There's a template I use for entries including date, incident/report number, type of incident - following is my documentation. I keep it to the point, nothing subjective just matter of fact - At a prior employment- we would have a mental health law attorney do presentation every 2 years to help keep everyone fresh up to par with the law and keeping mindful to the record keeping process should records be subpoenaed. We had inmates/detainees/parolees & victims of crimes as clients.

In Winnetka, they have had a social worker for now 40 years and have not had to release any social work records. Highland Park has had a social worker for 8 years- also has not had to release any records.

I second that, I'd also love to hear what others are doing, especially since we're new here in Wheaton and still trying to navigate the documentation piece.

Hello friends and colleagues,

I really wish I had been able to listen to this presentation, but I was on maternity leave and missed it. I am being asked to find out a bit more information from all of you wonderful APSS members. Can you all please tell me if you keep any documentation related to victims/clients that you meet with, and why? I'd love to hear from most, even if it's a quick yes or no. Our boss is considering having us write some type of report/supplement and I'm really concerned for confidentiality. Please share your thoughts if you have a minute.

Thank you kindly,

Natalia

Subject: RE: APSS General Meeting Today 7/9/21

WARNING: External Email: Exercise Caution

Good afternoon, APSS!

As promised, attached you will find Matt Cohen's powerpoint for this morning's discussion. We sure covered a lot of ground in a short amount of time! For those of you who missed my introduction (or couldn't hear us clearly): Matt Cohen is the founder of Matt Cohen and Associates and is well known for his work in special education and mental health law. He is the primary or collaborating author of several amendments to the mental health and special education laws of Illinois and has worked on legislation at the federal level and state level. Matt has lectured all over the country on many special education and mental health law topics. In addition to these accomplishments, Matt served as President of the Board of Directors of the national Children and Adults with Attention Deficit/Hyperactivity Disorders (CHADD) organization. He was the chair of the nationally unique Illinois Attorney General's Special Education Advisory Committee for over 30 years. He was a founding board member of the Council of Parent Attorneys and Advocates (COPAA), the national special education advocacy organization, and continues to serve on the Board.

While engaged in private law practice continuously since 1981, Matt served as the Executive Director and Corporate Counsel of a large psychiatric services corporation from 1985 to 1990. Matt received his law degree from the University of Minnesota (1981) and his bachelor's degree from Grinnell College (1977). He currently provides consultation services and can be reached at mdcspedlaw@gmail.com.

I have also attached Chief Holmer's memo regarding the SAFE-T Act and the ILACP powerpoint on the Act for your review. As we discussed, Carol Stream has, for now, taken this approach to the July 1, 2021 mandate for reporting mental health contacts with our police officers:

Starting on July 1st, some of the mandates coming from the SAFE-T Act (HB 3653) come on-line. The mandate I'd like to bring to your attention is the Mental Health Crises Reporting requirement.

Per the house bill, agencies must make a monthly report to the Illinois State Police that includes "any incident where law enforcement officers are dispatched to deal with a person experiencing a mental health crisis or incident, the number of incidents, the level of law enforcement response to each incident (how many officers respond), and the outcome of each incident."

The trailer bill states that a "mental health crisis" is when a person's behavior puts them at risk of hurting themselves or others or prevents them from being able to care for themselves.

Any call for service that meets the above definition must have an FBR report completed, and the report must have the "Crisis Intervention CIT" box checked. By doing so, the stat can be accurately tracked through WebRMS and reported to ISP.

I hope you find this information useful. I'm sure we will all have more questions as time passes and more direction is given.

Best wishes for a peaceful weekend,

Eileen
