Canada Links Protest To Extremist Groups As Police Threaten Arrest

Reuters (2/16, Ljunggren, Gordon) reports Ottawa police on Wednesday “warned truck drivers blockading the downtown core to depart or face arrest in crackdown seeking to end a three-week-old protest over COVID restrictions.” Interim Police Chief Steve Bell “vowed ‘to take back the entirety of the downtown core and every occupied space’ in ‘coming days.’” Federal Public Safety Minister Marco Mendicino “accused extremist groups of helping organize protests in Ottawa and at US border crossings and repeated suggestions that some actors wanted to overthrow the Liberal government.” Police “handed leaflets to truckers that said, ‘You must leave the area now. Anyone blocking streets ... may be arrested.’ Police also ticketed some of the hundreds of vehicles blocking Ottawa’s downtown core.”

The AP (2/16, Gillies, Ring) reports, “A showdown appeared to be shaping up in Ottawa’s nearly three-week siege by truckers...as police in the capital warned drivers Wednesday to leave immediately or risk arrest.” One protester “shouted, ‘I will never go home!’ Some threw the warning into a toilet put out on the street. Protesters sat in their trucks and honked their horns.” Police “delivered a second round of more explicit warnings just before Wednesday evening, spelling out what charges and penalties could face those who stay.”

US Sues Missouri Over State Law That “Aims To Invalidate” Federal Gun Laws

Reuters (2/16, Beech) reports the DOJ “filed a lawsuit on Wednesday to prevent Missouri from enforcing a state law that aims to invalidate many federal firearms laws.” Missouri’s “Second Amendment Preservation Act, which was signed into law in June, prohibits local law enforcement agencies from enforcing federal gun laws.” Attorney General Garland said in a statement, “This act impedes criminal law enforcement operations in Missouri. ... The United States will work to ensure that our state and local law enforcement partners are not penalized for doing their jobs to keep our communities safe.” Reuters reports, “Federal law enforcement agencies within the state report that enforcement of federal firearms laws in Missouri has grown more difficult since the law became effective, the Justice Department said in a statement.”

Knox County Sheriff’s Office Joins IACP’s One Mind Campaign

The Penobscot (ME) Bay Pilot (2/16) reports “the Knox County Sheriff’s Office has completed a pledge to improve its response to those with a mental health condition in Knox County.” The pledge comes amid “an initiative called the One Mind Campaign which was started by the International Association of Chiefs of Police (IACP).” The sheriff’s office “made the decision to join the IACP’s One Mind Campaign because of the increasing number of calls for service that involve individuals with mental health conditions throughout Knox County.” By completing the pledge, “the Knox County Sheriff’s Office established a sustainable partnership with local mental health organizations Sweetser and Maine Behavioral Health,” and “developed and implemented a model policy to address deputies’ interactions with those affected by mental health conditions.”

More Than 104,000 US Overdose Deaths Estimated To Have Occurred In One-Year Period

In an online article, CNN (2/16, McPhillips) reports that according to newly published Centers for Disease Control and Prevention (CDC) data , an “estimated 104,288 people” died of a drug overdose in the US during the 12-month period that ended on September 30, 2021. The article adds, “Dr. Sarah Wakeman, medical director for the substance use disorder initiative at” Massachusetts General Hospital, “and others were encouraged to see federal support for harm reduction as one of the four key pillars outlined in the Biden Administration’s plan to combat drug overdoses, which was released by the US Department of Health and Human Services in October.”

The Hill (2/16, Beals) and the Daily Mail (UK) (2/16, Shaheen) also cover the CDC’s new overdose death data.

At Least Five People Die In Bombings, Attack On Police Station In Somali Capital

Anadolu Agency (2/16) reports “at least five people, including two civilians, were killed and more than 16 others wounded in a series of overnight bombings in the Somali capital, said police on Wednesday.” According to Anadolu Agency, “Al-Shabaab attacked a police station in the Kahda neighborhood of Mogadishu, detonating a car bomb before engaging in a fierce firefight with security forces, spokesman Abdifatah Adan Hassan told journalists.” Hassan said, “They attacked the police with a car bomb blast, resulting in casualties of civilians living in nearby areas.”

Police In Pharr, Texas Find 700 Gallons Of Liquid Meth

KWKT-TV Waco, TX (2/16) reports police in Pharr, Texas “found 700 gallons of liquid meth on Tuesday, worth over $10 million.” According to “Pharr PD, an officer was patrolling the area of South Lamar Drive in Pharr,” and “the officer saw three men pouring liquid from several 55-gallon barrels into 5-gallon buckets near liquid tanker trailers.” The police “officer called for backup, and Pharr Fire Department noticed crystallization forming around the barrels. After testing, it was discovered to be methamphetamine.”

Police Recover Stolen Trailer Carrying Over 2K Guns In Canada

Newsweek (2/16) reports “police have recovered a stolen trailer that was carrying more than 2,000 guns in Canada’s Peel region.” The trailer and one “truck had been stolen in the Ontario city of Peterborough, police said Wednesday.” A news release said, “The trailer and its contents are being returned to Peterborough and Peterborough Police, along with the manufacturer, will be going through the items to determine if anything is still missing.”

Attached is an updated list of the priority bills we are currently monitoring and and considering for our list of highest priorities.

This shortened list is a compilation of the shared work we achieved during our two Major Bill Review and Priority Setting sessions, the messages that member have sent to our team in recent weeks and the dedicated work of the Legislative Committee.

Our Board of Officers plans to meet this Friday to finalize our positions on these bills. They will decide on the top 5 priority bills along with a list of 15 other priorities we will closely monitor.

Once the Board has completed this important work, we will send an updated list of priorities to all members.

If you have any questions about any of these bills or other legislative matters, please email Deputy Director Kenny Winslow at kenny@ilchiefs.org.

Attached is an updated list of the priority bills we are currently monitoring and and considering for our list of highest priorities.

This shortened list is a compilation of the shared work we achieved during our two Major Bill Review and Priority Setting sessions, the messages that member have sent to our team in recent weeks and the dedicated work of the Legislative Committee.

Our Board of Officers plans to meet this Friday to finalize our positions on these bills. They will decide on the top 5 priority bills along with a list of 15 other priorities we will closely monitor.

Once the Board has completed this important work, we will send an updated list of priorities to all members.

If you have any questions about any of these bills or other legislative matters, please email Deputy Director Kenny Winslow at kenny@ilchiefs.org.

Special Alert | February 16, 2022 Draft of 2022 priorities from last week's Major Bill Review and Priority Setting attached

Thank you for everyone who participated and tuned in for our two bill setting sessions last week.

Tonight we are sharing a draft with the bills we are currently monitoring, along with our proposed positions on those bills and which are being considered for our list of top priorities.

This list is a compilation of the shared work we achieved during our two Major Bill Review and Priority Setting sessions, the messages that member have sent to our team in recent weeks and the dedicated work of the Legislative Committee.

Our Board of Officers will meet this Friday to finalize our positions on these bills. They will decide on our top 5 priority bills for 2022 along with a list of 15 other priorities we will closely monitor.

Once the Board has completed this important work, we will send an updated list to members.

If you have any questions about any of these bills or other legislative matters, please email Deputy Director Kenny Winslow at kenny@ilchiefs.org.

Come Join Us in Seattle

The 2022 Division Midyear will be taking place from March 23-25, 2022, at the Hyatt Regency Seattle in Seattle, Washington.

This joint meeting between the Division of State and Provincial Police (S&P), Division of State Associations of Chiefs of Police (SACOP), and Midsize Agencies (MSA) Division provides opportunities to network, learn how to address challenges at your home agency, and listen to speakers discuss practical and relevant content.

Keynote Sessions include:

- Drug Enforcement Agency Administrator Anne Milgram (invited)
- IACP Townhall - Hear from IACP leadership on how the IACP is working to address criminal justice reform and other critical issues affecting law enforcement

MSA Division Sessions include:

- Bail Reform
- Precision Prosecution
- Peer to Peer Intervention
- Recruitment and Retention
- Consent Decrees

2021 IACP/Motorola Solutions Trooper of the Year

Members are encouraged to attend the 2021 IACP/Motorola Solutions Trooper of the Year Reception and Banquet on the evening of Wednesday, March 24. The Trooper of the Year Banquet will recognize the four region finalists as well as announce the winner. Tickets for this special event are not included in the overall conference registration but can be purchased for $100 through the registration link.

If you have registered for the meeting and have not purchased a Trooper of the Year banquet ticket, you can still add a ticket to your registration.

This year's four region finalists include:

Mountain Pacific Finalist – Trooper Phillip Pendergrass, Wyoming Highway Patrol

North Atlantic Finalist – Trooper Rebecca Seager, New York State Police

North Pacific Finalist – Sergeant Sean Velte, Nebraska State Patrol

Southern Finalist – Trooper Spencer Morris, Arkansas State Police

Registration & Lodging

Registration is $375 and includes participation in all meetings as well as the General Chairs' reception on Wednesday evening, and breakfast and lunch on Thursday and Friday. Register here.

A room block is available for attendees and is open until Friday, February 25. To ensure you secure a room at the Hyatt Regency Seattle before the room block closes, please make your reservation today.

For more information about the 2022 Division Midyear, please visit the IACP website. Please feel free to contact IACP staff at participate@theIACP.org with any questions/concerns.

I would like to get everything tightened up by the end of this month.... Virtual is fine.....we have Power DMS. I have a 20 man department with 17 of those being part-time Officers so we're not a sizable operation. I've just been chipping away at this forever and I think it's time I started the actual accreditation process...

Chief,

I am going to refer you to Bob Zielinski from Niles as your new Vice President. This was an error on my part not realizing you were an ILEAP agency. I don't want the VPs of the IPAC to let you down when it comes to your mock and Bob is well versed in ILEAP.

Bob if you could go direct with Chief Schindlbeck that would be great.

Let me know when the mock is and I will help look at files.

Naperville Park District reached out to me wanting to talk about a mock assessment. I am assigned to Naperville PD so when the Park District came on didn't think anything of it and took them on also (also they didn't check ILEAP on the application). Apparently, they are ILEAP, would you mind taking them ?

If so, I will forward the email he sent me to you and let him know about the change

Thank you for the follow ups.

With respect to item 2, the Oakton and Austin intersection improvement project is in Phase II and currently programmed for a November 2022 letting. It is IDOT section number 12-0010600-PV. Morton Grove is the lead agency.

Dear Mr. Rietveld,

To add for item 2, Oakton St bridge over I-94:

D-1 Design coordinated with D-1 Bridge Unit and the initial thought was to omit due to upcoming IDOT bridge replacement with a current letting of 11 CY23 (62K70)... Likely to be under construction in 2024 or 2025.

Upon further consideration, it was decided to replace the surface course only, to extend the bridge service life from 2022 (62P32) to 2025 (62K70).

Sincerely,

Thank you for your comments.

For item 1, IDOT coordinated with Morton grove on the bike path projects and we believe both projects can occur simultaneously without issues as separate contracts. After letting the construction schedule details will be worked out.

For item 2, do you have any more details available as to the schedule, funding, row, and overall status of the 2 projects you indicated.

We could have Tony Bertram submit a proposal. What do you think of that?

Also, I know it's in Dallas but it looks like they have a virtual option for half the price at $199/person. Is that something you would be interested in?

Good Morning All -

Just a quick reminder of this week's webinars; the first is this month's National TSPR Program "Traffic Tuesday" Webinar and the second is the Florida TSPR "Webinar Wednesday" session for the week. First, the National TSPR "Traffic Tuesday" session will discuss recent updates and events regarding the DRE Program and the IACP, and the Florida “Webinar Wednesday” Session will discuss Narcotic Analgesics in Drug DUI Cases. Both of these sessions are of general applicability and are not state-specific, so all are welcome to attend. These sessions are designed for Prosecutors, Agency Legal Advisors and any LEO or Toxicologist that deals with DUI/Traffic Enforcement. Please share with whoever you feel appropriate.

Information on these sessions is included below:

Date: Tuesday, February 15, 2022

Time: 2:00p-3:30p Eastern

Presenter: Joe Abrusci, Project Manager – DECP Eastern Region, International Association of Chiefs of Police

Registration Link: <https://attendee.gotowebinar.com/register/8928033731370276878>

Description: This session is intended to provide an update on projects related to and affecting the DRE program that are underway, as well as new offerings to help further ARIDE and DRE training. Additionally, it will provide updates on recent and pending Frye/Daubert Hearings regarding the DRE program. Finally, it will provide information on judicial and prosecutor training related to the DRE program.

Title: An Introduction to Drug Categories in Drug DUI Cases: Narcotic Analgesics (Florida Bar Approval for 2.0-hr CLE SUBSTANCE ABUSE Credit)

Date: Wednesday, February 16, 2022

Time: 1p-230p Eastern

Presenter: Ofc. Ashley Eller - Apopka (FL) Police Department

Registration Link: <https://attendee.gotowebinar.com/register/6299270759151643919>

Description: This session is part of an eight session series that will introduce both prosecutors and law enforcement to the DRE Program and the many different drug categories that one may encounter in a Drug DUI Case. These sessions are designed to provide extensive background to prosecutors and law enforcement as to the common observable signs and effects of each drug category to allow for better investigation and prosecution of Drug DUI Cases. By the end of these eight sessions, both prosecutors and law enforcement will have a better and broader understanding of how to understand this evidence in reviewing their cases for charging and in preparation for trial. Sessions will go into details about effects, duration, ingestion, and other information about each individual category so that such categories can better be documented by law enforcement and explained to a jury by both prosecutors and law enforcement. This session will focus entirely on Narcotic Analgesics. By the end of this series of sessions, both prosecutors and law enforcement should be able to better handle the many difficult aspects of Drug DUI cases.

Note, this series of sessions is NOT a substitute for either the formal ARIDE or DRE Training and it will NOT allow LEOs to testify as Expert Witnesses regarding any of the Drug Categories discussed or to make any specific conclusions as to Drug Category during the investigation of a Drug DUI Case

There is NO CHARGE to attend these webinars, however you must register in advance using the links listed above. After registering you will receive a confirmation email containing instructions on how to join each webinar. Please make sure you retain the confirmation email sent to you and be careful to enter your email address correctly; you will not be able to join the webinar if you do not receive a confirmation email. If you will be unable to attend either of these webinars at the scheduled times but would still like to watch, please go ahead and register as everyone who is registered will receive a link to the recording of that webinar regardless of whether they attended.

If you have any questions or need any assistance registering for the webinar, please feel free to contact Vin Petty at VinPetty@FloridaTSRP.com.

These webinars are being conducted by the Florida TSRP Program and the National TSRP Program utilizing the National TSRP Program webinar account. The account is funded through the NAPC/NHTSA Cooperative Agreement, Project Number 693JJ92050011.

Sincerely,

Vin Petty

Morning Bob,

Naperville Park District reached out to me wanting to talk about a mock assessment. I am assigned to Naperville PD so when the Park District came on didn't think anything of it and took them on also (also they didn't check ILEAP on the application). Apparently, they are ILEAP, would you mind taking them ?

If so, I will forward the email he sent me to you and let him know about the change

All,

Please find attached the January 2022 meeting minutes for review, as well as the agenda for the meeting on Wednesday February 16th at 10AM. Following the meeting will be training for ILEAP PowerDMS set up and Q&A, conducted by Ben Kadolf.

Please remember to indicate your agency within your Zoom “Screenname” or you will not be let in the meeting (or advise prior to the meeting of other arrangements). Trust me it would be a lot easier to just let everyone in but we chose to do it this way for the integrity of our meeting and our group's privacy. Thank you.

Stephanie Erb-McHenry PD is inviting you to a scheduled Zoom meeting.

Policing and Policy

Sandy Hook Families Settle With Gun Maker Remington For $73 Million

The AP (2/15) reports that on Tuesday, the “families of nine victims of the Sandy Hook Elementary School shooting announced...they have agreed to a $73 million settlement of a lawsuit against the maker of the rifle used to kill 20 first graders and six educators in 2012.” The AP explains, “The families and a survivor of the shooting sued Remington in 2015, saying the company should have never sold such a dangerous weapon to the public. They said their focus was on preventing future mass shootings by forcing gun companies to be more responsible with their products and how they market them.”

Kentucky Lawmakers Advance Bill On Assigning Police Officers To Schools

The AP (2/15, Schreiner) reports, “The Kentucky House passed a bill Tuesday aimed at taking another step toward assigning police officers to every school campus – a policy objective since a 2018 school shooting.” The bill “would require Kentucky school districts to have an officer assigned to each campus by August,” but “House lawmakers included a provision recognizing that many districts are struggling to meet the standard because of insufficient funding or law enforcement understaffing. Under the bill, those districts would work with the state school security marshal to work out a plan to achieve the expectation of having a school resource officer at each campus.” The AP adds, “More than half of Kentucky’s schools do not have a resource officer, according to an August report from the state school security marshal.”

New Mexico Lawmakers Focus On Training, Deterrence To Fight Crime

The AP (2/15, Lee) reports from Santa Fe, New Mexico, “New Mexico legislators have bundled together initiatives aimed at reducing violent crime and improving policing with an emphasis on police hiring and training as well as tracking excessive force incidents. The move came amid calls from Gov. Michelle Lujan Grisham for a crackdown on urban crime and violence.” According to the

AP, "A Senate panel on criminal justice continued to refine the bulging crime package on Tuesday with time running out on a 30-day legislative session that ends Thursday at noon. The centerpiece bill would expand the ranks of state district judges, boost retention pay for municipal police and sheriff's deputies and bestow million-dollar death benefits for relatives of police killed in the line of duty — four times the current amount."

New Massachusetts Law Allows EMTs To Treat, Transport Injured Police Dogs

The AP (2/15) reports from Boston, "First responders in Massachusetts will be allowed to treat and transport injured police dogs to veterinary hospitals under legislation signed in to law Tuesday by Gov. Charlie Baker." According to the AP, "Nero's bill was named for the K9 partner of slain Yarmouth Police Sgt. Sean Gannon. Gannon was fatally shot in 2018 while serving an arrest warrant. Nero was also shot, but because of state law, EMTs weren't allowed to treat or transport him." Nero "had to be rushed to the animal hospital in the back of a police cruiser and survived the shooting. The new law will permit emergency personnel to treat injured police dogs and bring them to veterinary facilities, as long as there are no injured people still requiring a hospital transport."

The IACP/Axon Police Officer of the Year Award recognizes exceptional achievement by an individual officer exemplifying selflessness, empathy, and strength of character. Police officers continue to perform selfless acts in their commitment to public service and community safety. This award recognizes an officer who goes above and beyond their daily commitment, representing the best of the police profession. Nominate an officer today.

Authorities Investigating Anti-Semitic Flyers In Sarasota County, Florida

The Sarasota (FL) Patch (2/15, Razzano) reports "complaints of antisemitic flyers distributed throughout" neighborhoods in Sarasota County, Florida "are being investigated, authorities said." Police in Sarasota County "received at least six complaints from city residents on Friday, according to a case report from the agency." Even "though the Sarasota County Sheriff's Office hasn't received specific threats, the agency is working with its partners at the Joint Terrorism Task Force to investigate these reports, Kaitlyn Perez, community affairs director, told Patch."

Task Force To Investigate Human Remains On Long Island Beach

The AP (2/15) reports a new interagency task force "including investigators from the FBI, as well as state and local police departments, will try to solve the decade-old mystery of human remains found strewn along a New York beach highway, officials announced Tuesday." The formation of the "Gilgo Beach" task force represents a renewed commitment to investigating the unsolved killings of mostly young women whose skeletal remains were found along a highway on Long Island, Suffolk County Police Commissioner Rodney Harrison said."

Former Honduran President Arrested At US Request

The AP (2/15, González, Sherman) reports, "Police arrested former Honduran President Juan Orlando Hernández at his home on Tuesday, following a request by the United States government for his extradition on drug trafficking and weapons charges. The arrest came less than three weeks after Hernández left office and followed years of allegations by US prosecutors of his alleged links to drug traffickers." The Supreme Court of Justice "had designated a judge Tuesday morning to handle the case and hours later the judge signed an order for Hernández's arrest, said court spokesman Melvin Duarte. The security ministry, which had Hernández's home surrounded since Monday evening, moved quickly to take him into custody."

Reuters (2/15) reports a "US Embassy document, seen by Reuters on Tuesday, said Hernandez was wanted on charges that he participated in a drug-trafficking scheme between 2004 and 2022." Reuters adds that Hernandez, "who was replaced as president last month by leftist Xiomara Castro, has pledged to cooperate with national police." Hernandez said on twitter: "The national police, through my proxies, have already received the message that I am ready to collaborate and voluntarily arrive with their accompaniment, at the moment the judge appointed by the honorable Supreme Court of Justice decides, in order to face this situation and defend myself." According to Reuters, the US embassy "said Hernandez...received millions of dollars in bribes in exchange for protecting traffickers from investigation and prosecution."

Ohio Police Warn Of Rise In Phone, Email Scams

The Cleveland Plain Dealer (2/15, Kovach) reports from Independence, Ohio, "In recent months, local law enforcement agencies have reported seeing an influx of fraud reports, mainly from phone and/or email scams," and "to help protect residents, the Independence Police Department is developing an in-person class that will be scheduled at the Civic Center. In the meantime, police are urging residents not to answer suspicious emails or phone calls. They recommend letting a call go to voicemail if you're unsure who the caller is. Also, consider having a conversation with family members to help spread the word and to help avoid others from falling prey to scammers."

Operation That Targeted Cocaine Trafficking Network In Europe Leads To 45 Arrests

The AP (2/15) reports Europol and Eurojust announced 45 people have been arrested in connection with an international law enforcement operation that targeted "one of Europe's most active, Albanian-speaking cocaine trafficking networks." Europol and Eurojust stated, "Over 600 law enforcement officers, in close cooperation with prosecutors and investigative officers, carried out raids against the members of this network in Spain and Belgium. A number of parallel actions also took place in Croatia, Germany, Italy and the Netherlands."

Police In London Reopen Central City Roads After Security Alert

Reuters (2/15) reports from London, "British police said an unattended item found in central London had been determined not to be suspicious and a number of roads which were closed as a precaution would now be reopened. Police earlier closed bridges, covering a roughly one mile stretch of the River Thames while they assessed the item. 'The unattended item has been assessed and was found not to be suspicious. Road closures will be lifted imminently,' police said on Twitter. Trains to several stations were temporarily disrupted while the security alert was dealt with.” Reuters notes that last week, “Britain...lowered its national terrorism threat level from severe to substantial, meaning an attack was considered likely rather than highly likely.”

Policing and Policy

Sandy Hook Families Settle With Gun Maker Remington For $73 Million

The AP (2/15) reports that on Tuesday, the “families of nine victims of the Sandy Hook Elementary School shooting announced...they have agreed to a $73 million settlement of a lawsuit against the maker of the rifle used to kill 20 first graders and six educators in 2012.” The AP explains, “The families and a survivor of the shooting sued Remington in 2015, saying the company should have never sold such a dangerous weapon to the public. They said their focus was on preventing future mass shootings by forcing gun companies to be more responsible with their products and how they market them.”

Kentucky Lawmakers Advance Bill On Assigning Police Officers To Schools

The AP (2/15, Schreiner) reports, “The Kentucky House passed a bill Tuesday aimed at taking another step toward assigning police officers to every school campus – a policy objective since a 2018 school shooting.” The bill “would require Kentucky school districts to have an officer assigned to each campus by August,” but “House lawmakers included a provision recognizing that many districts are struggling to meet the standard because of insufficient funding or law enforcement understaffing. Under the bill, those districts would work with the state school security marshal to work out a plan to achieve the expectation of having a school resource officer at each campus.” The AP adds, “More than half of Kentucky’s schools do not have a resource officer, according to an August report from the state school security marshal.”

New Mexico Lawmakers Focus On Training, Deterrence To Fight Crime

The AP (2/15, Lee) reports from Santa Fe, New Mexico, “New Mexico legislators have bundled together initiatives aimed at reducing violent crime and improving policing with an emphasis on police hiring and training as well as tracking excessive force incidents. The move came amid calls from Gov. Michelle Lujan Grisham for a crackdown on urban crime and violence.” According to the

AP, "A Senate panel on criminal justice continued to refine the bulging crime package on Tuesday with time running out on a 30-day legislative session that ends Thursday at noon. The centerpiece bill would expand the ranks of state district judges, boost retention pay for municipal police and sheriff's deputies and bestow million-dollar death benefits for relatives of police killed in the line of duty — four times the current amount."

New Massachusetts Law Allows EMTs To Treat, Transport Injured Police Dogs

The AP (2/15) reports from Boston, "First responders in Massachusetts will be allowed to treat and transport injured police dogs to veterinary hospitals under legislation signed in to law Tuesday by Gov. Charlie Baker." According to the AP, "Nero's bill was named for the K9 partner of slain Yarmouth Police Sgt. Sean Gannon. Gannon was fatally shot in 2018 while serving an arrest warrant. Nero was also shot, but because of state law, EMTs weren't allowed to treat or transport him." Nero "had to be rushed to the animal hospital in the back of a police cruiser and survived the shooting. The new law will permit emergency personnel to treat injured police dogs and bring them to veterinary facilities, as long as there are no injured people still requiring a hospital transport."

The IACP/Axon Police Officer of the Year Award recognizes exceptional achievement by an individual officer exemplifying selflessness, empathy, and strength of character. Police officers continue to perform selfless acts in their commitment to public service and community safety. This award recognizes an officer who goes above and beyond their daily commitment, representing the best of the police profession. Nominate an officer today.

Authorities Investigating Anti-Semitic Flyers In Sarasota County, Florida

The Sarasota (FL) Patch (2/15, Razzano) reports "complaints of antisemitic flyers distributed throughout" neighborhoods in Sarasota County, Florida "are being investigated, authorities said." Police in Sarasota County "received at least six complaints from city residents on Friday, according to a case report from the agency." Even "though the Sarasota County Sheriff's Office hasn't received specific threats, the agency is working with its partners at the Joint Terrorism Task Force to investigate these reports, Kaitlyn Perez, community affairs director, told Patch."

Task Force To Investigate Human Remains On Long Island Beach

The AP (2/15) reports a new interagency task force "including investigators from the FBI, as well as state and local police departments, will try to solve the decade-old mystery of human remains found strewn along a New York beach highway, officials announced Tuesday." The formation of the "Gilgo Beach" task force represents a renewed commitment to investigating the unsolved killings of mostly young women whose skeletal remains were found along a highway on Long Island, Suffolk County Police Commissioner Rodney Harrison said."

Former Honduran President Arrested At US Request

The AP (2/15, González, Sherman) reports, "Police arrested former Honduran President Juan Orlando Hernández at his home on Tuesday, following a request by the United States government for his extradition on drug trafficking and weapons charges. The arrest came less than three weeks after Hernández left office and followed years of allegations by US prosecutors of his alleged links to drug traffickers." The Supreme Court of Justice "had designated a judge Tuesday morning to handle the case and hours later the judge signed an order for Hernández's arrest, said court spokesman Melvin Duarte. The security ministry, which had Hernández's home surrounded since Monday evening, moved quickly to take him into custody."

Reuters (2/15) reports a "US Embassy document, seen by Reuters on Tuesday, said Hernandez was wanted on charges that he participated in a drug-trafficking scheme between 2004 and 2022." Reuters adds that Hernandez, "who was replaced as president last month by leftist Xiomara Castro, has pledged to cooperate with national police." Hernandez said on twitter: "The national police, through my proxies, have already received the message that I am ready to collaborate and voluntarily arrive with their accompaniment, at the moment the judge appointed by the honorable Supreme Court of Justice decides, in order to face this situation and defend myself." According to Reuters, the US embassy "said Hernandez...received millions of dollars in bribes in exchange for protecting traffickers from investigation and prosecution."

Ohio Police Warn Of Rise In Phone, Email Scams

The Cleveland Plain Dealer (2/15, Kovach) reports from Independence, Ohio, "In recent months, local law enforcement agencies have reported seeing an influx of fraud reports, mainly from phone and/or email scams," and "to help protect residents, the Independence Police Department is developing an in-person class that will be scheduled at the Civic Center. In the meantime, police are urging residents not to answer suspicious emails or phone calls. They recommend letting a call go to voicemail if you're unsure who the caller is. Also, consider having a conversation with family members to help spread the word and to help avoid others from falling prey to scammers."

Operation That Targeted Cocaine Trafficking Network In Europe Leads To 45 Arrests

The AP (2/15) reports Europol and Eurojust announced 45 people have been arrested in connection with an international law enforcement operation that targeted "one of Europe's most active, Albanian-speaking cocaine trafficking networks." Europol and Eurojust stated, "Over 600 law enforcement officers, in close cooperation with prosecutors and investigative officers, carried out raids against the members of this network in Spain and Belgium. A number of parallel actions also took place in Croatia, Germany, Italy and the Netherlands."

Police In London Reopen Central City Roads After Security Alert

Reuters (2/15) reports from London, "British police said an unattended item found in central London had been determined not to be suspicious and a number of roads which were closed as a precaution would now be reopened. Police earlier closed bridges, covering a roughly one mile stretch of the River Thames while they assessed the item. 'The unattended item has been assessed and was found not to be suspicious. Road closures will be lifted imminently,' police said on Twitter. Trains to several stations were temporarily disrupted while the security alert was dealt with.” Reuters notes that last week, “Britain...lowered its national terrorism threat level from severe to substantial, meaning an attack was considered likely rather than highly likely.”

Steve, Is there anyway to limit this search to only include results pertaining to ILEAP and the Police Accreditation? The search pulled in a lot of results pertaining to Publix Works and IT projects that are not being requested. Because of this the file is over 15,000 pages and difficult to work with.

Cindy is all set up for the listserv. If you are transitioning to PowerDMS I would really try to make the zoom meeting tomorrow, I will forward you the info. When it comes to ILEAP specific things I will have to refer you to your VP Bob Zielinski (cc'ed on this email) since he is an ILEAP agency and I am CALEA he will be better suited to help you with ILEAP specific questions. I am happy to help with anything PowerDMS specific or with the IPAC.

Hello Stephanie,

Thank you for taking my call today. Cindy Guerra has been hired as our department's Assistant Administrative Director. Cindy retired as a Lieutenant from the Chicago Police Department and upon retiring served as the Incident Support Director for the Fairfax County Virginia PD. In her role as the NEIU Administrative Director, Cindy will also oversee our Accreditation Manager duties. If there is any information you can provide Cindy to help her get started it would be greatly appreciated.

Biden Urged To Do More On Gun Control On Fourth Anniversary Of Parkland Shooting

CBS News (2/14) reports that on Monday, President Biden “marked the four-year anniversary of the 2018 shooting at Marjory Stoneman Douglas High School in Parkland, Florida, that claimed the lives of 17 people with a call for the nation to ‘uphold the solemn obligation’ to bring an end to gun violence.” Biden “lauded the efforts of young Americans who have pushed elected officials to tighten gun laws.” The President also “reiterated the need for Congress to pass legislation to address gun violence.” Reuters (2/14) reports Biden “said in a statement on Monday that his administration has working to reduce gun crime by curbing the number of untraceable guns, cracking down on gun dealers who violate the law and promoting safe firearm storage.”

Indianapolis Police Train Detectives To Aim For Trigger-Pullers

WXIN-TV Indianapolis (2/14, McQuaid, Burbrink) reports that “along with more federal help,” the Indianapolis Metropolitan Police Department (IMPD) “is enhancing its focus on those who do the most damage in the city.” The IMPD is “utilizing several task forces and directed investigative techniques to collect evidence and intelligence to track down trigger pullers whether they hit anyone with their bullets or not. ‘We’re able with our detectives go out and collect any evidence that was collected at the scene,’ said IMPD Lt. Ron Brezik of the Indiana Crime Guns Task Force. ‘We’re able to compare that now, the evidence that is collected, with a national database, which includes our own department, so we know that if that gun was used in a shooting at a house the night before.’ So far, IMPD has trained 100 officers to collect gun evidence in the field and expects to add another 40 this year.”

Boulder, Colorado Moves Toward Drafting Legislation To Prevent Gun Violence

The Denver Post (2/14, Swearingen) reports local officials are considering “a number of gun violence prevention measures” in Boulder, Colorado. During a recent study session, the Boulder

City Council “offered direction on a legislation package that, if approved in a future public hearing, would do everything from prohibiting open carry and carrying in sensitive areas to requiring a 10-day waiting period after the initiation of a background check for a licensed firearms dealer to deliver a firearm to a purchaser. Prohibitions on open carry and carrying in sensitive areas, which include city buildings, public parks and playgrounds, hospitals and more, all would have exceptions such as for law enforcement, the armed forces on official duty and security guards.” The city “also is looking to reinstate its ban on assault weapons, large-capacity magazines – those holding more than 10 rounds – and trigger activators, also known as bump stocks, which allow a gun to fire faster.”

Court Strikes Down Philadelphia’s Lost Gun Law

The AP (2/14, Scolforo) reports, “A Philadelphia ordinance that requires gun owners to tell police when a firearm has been lost or stolen was ruled illegal Monday by a state court.” The Commonwealth Court’s three-judge panel “ruled unanimously against the city law and issued a permanent injunction, saying the state Uniform Firearms Act preempts it. Philadelphia Police had sought a $2,000 fine against a man charged with violating the lost-and-stolen reporting mandate. The defendant had pleaded guilty in January 2019 to other firearms offenses, telling a city judge he had been the straw purchaser of six guns. At that hearing, the judge had denied his request for an injunction against the Philadelphia lost-and-stolen firearms ordinance. The judges cited a 1996 state Supreme Court decision that said assault weapons restrictions in Philadelphia and Pittsburgh were not allowed because the Uniform Firearms Act put authority to regulate firearms in the hands of the state Legislature.”

Volunteers Helping Police In UK To Crack Down On Rural Crime

The Daily Mail (UK) (2/14, Phillips) reports, “Volunteer riders are now helping rural police report crimes,” as part of an effort to crack down “on gangs stealing farm vehicles, hare coursing and fly-tipping.” According to the Daily Mail, “Wiltshire Police is creating the UK’s first volunteer force of riders to act as countryside protectors in rural areas where gangs and poachers often act with disregard for their surroundings. The issue of hare coursing, popular among travellers, has been sweeping the countryside in recent months.” The Daily Mail adds, “Hardened criminal gangs have been using the mafia-like tactic to intimidate farmers into letting them pursue illegal hare-coursing on their land. Wiltshire Police figures show 462 reports of hare coursing were made to the force, while intimidation is understood to be of significant concern for rural residents.”

Judges Faced Over 4,500 Threats In 2021 Amid Rising Domestic Extremism, Says US Marshals Head

Reuters (2/14, Lynch) reports US federal judges “were the target of more than 4,500 threats and other inappropriate communications last year, the head of the U.S. Marshals Service said on Monday, adding that his office is concerned about the rise of domestic extremism in America.” Federal law enforcement officials “have sounded alarm bells about a growing tide of threats posed by white supremacists and anti-government activists, many of whom have touted former Republican President Donald Trump’s false claims that the 2020 election was stolen.” The threats “to judges were varied and in some cases came from disgruntled defendants, Davis said.”

Trial Of Reputed Jamaican Gang Members Tests New Anti-Crime Laws

Reuters (2/14, Chappell, Ellsworth) reports from Kingston, Jamaica, “A trial of dozens of alleged gang members in Jamaica is testing recent judicial reforms designed to fight the island’s powerful criminal groups, widely blamed for the Caribbean nation having one of the world’s highest murder rates.” According to Reuters, “Jamaica’s Supreme Court is trying the 33 defendants on charges including arson, murder and being part of a criminal organization. The offenses were allegedly committed between 2015 and 2019 on the western outskirts of the capital Kingston. The trial has shocked the nation with graphic testimony from ex-associates describing how the accused bragged to each other about murdering rivals, or became angry to learn they were lagging other gangs in killings. Prime Minister Andrew Holness’ government is hoping for convictions that could help slow gang violence in Jamaica.”

Vehicles With Fraudulent Texas License Plates Used In Serious Crimes

In an online article, KXAS-TV Dallas (2/14) reports its own investigation “uncovered more cases where fraudulent Texas temporary paper license plates, which are often sold illegally by small car dealers, ended up on vehicles used in serious crimes.” Police departments in Texas have trouble tracking those vehicles, which have also caused problems for Texas-based DEA agents. The KXAS article quotes DEA Dallas Special Agent in Charge Eduardo Chávez, who stated, “At least 80% of the investigations that we’re conducting at some point have involved surveillance of vehicles or stops of drug-laden vehicles that have temp tags.” Chávez said, “Every single vehicle” that a Fort Worth smuggling ring used to transport illicit fentanyl had “temp tags.”

Number Of Kids Exposed To Marijuana Edibles Increased From 2016 To 2020

HealthDay (2/14, Meyer) reports, “Nationally, there were 187 exposures to marijuana edibles among kids aged 12 and under in the United States in 2016, according to” American Association of Poison Control Centers data. By 2020, that total “had risen to more than 3,100 – with a majority of the children” being five years old or younger. The Daily Mail (UK) (2/14, Parry) also covers this story.

French Police Kill Knife Attacker At Paris Train Station

Reuters (2/14, Hummel) reports French police on Monday morning “killed a man who attacked them with a knife at Paris’ Gare du Nord station, French transport minister Jean-Baptiste Djebbari told RMC radio.” Two police officers received minor injuries, and French Interior Minister Gerald Darmanin “told RMC Radio that the incident was not thought to be terrorist-related, and that the man who had been shot dead was already known to the police for hanging around in the Gare du Nord.” BBC World News (UK) (2/14) reports that an “anti-police inscription was found on the man’s knife, reports say.”

The trial has shocked the nation with graphic testimony from ex-associates describing how the accused bragged to each other about murdering rivals, or became angry to learn they were lagging other gangs in killings. Prime Minister Andrew Holness’ government is hoping for convictions that could help slow gang violence in Jamaica.”

Vehicles With Fraudulent Texas License Plates Used In Serious Crimes

In an online article, KXAS-TV Dallas (2/14) reports its own investigation “uncovered more cases where fraudulent Texas temporary paper license plates, which are often sold illegally by small car dealers, ended up on vehicles used in serious crimes.” Police departments in Texas have trouble tracking those vehicles, which have also caused problems for Texas-based DEA agents. The KXAS article quotes DEA Dallas Special Agent in Charge Eduardo Chávez, who stated, “At least 80% of the investigations that we’re conducting at some point have involved surveillance of vehicles or stops of drug-laden vehicles that have temp tags.” Chávez said, “Every single vehicle” that a Fort Worth smuggling ring used to transport illicit fentanyl had “temp tags.”

Number Of Kids Exposed To Marijuana Edibles Increased From 2016 To 2020

HealthDay (2/14, Meyer) reports, “Nationally, there were 187 exposures to marijuana edibles among kids aged 12 and under in the United States in 2016, according to” American Association of Poison Control Centers data. By 2020, that total “had risen to more than 3,100 – with a majority of the children” being five years old or younger. The Daily Mail (UK) (2/14, Parry) also covers this story.

French Police Kill Knife Attacker At Paris Train Station

Reuters (2/14, Hummel) reports French police on Monday morning “killed a man who attacked them with a knife at Paris’ Gare du Nord station, French transport minister Jean-Baptiste Djebbari told RMC radio.” Two police officers received minor injuries, and French Interior Minister Gerald Darmanin “told RMC Radio that the incident was not thought to be terrorist-related, and that the man who had been shot dead was already known to the police for hanging around in the Gare du Nord.” BBC World News (UK) (2/14) reports that an “anti-police inscription was found on the man’s knife, reports say.”

Good Morning All -

Just a quick reminder of this week's webinars; the first is this month's National TSPR Program "Traffic Tuesday" Webinar and the second is the Florida TSPR "Webinar Wednesday" session for the week. First, the National TSPR "Traffic Tuesday" session will discuss recent updates and events regarding the DRE Program and the IACP, and the Florida "Webinar Wednesday" Session will discuss Narcotic Analgesics in Drug DUI Cases. Both of these sessions are of general applicability and are not state-specific, so all are welcome to attend. These sessions are designed for Prosecutors, Agency Legal Advisors and any LEO or Toxicologist that deals with DUI/Traffic Enforcement. Please share with whoever you feel appropriate.

Information on these sessions is included below:

Date: Tuesday, February 15, 2022

Time: 2:00p-3:30p Eastern

Presenter: Joe Abrusci, Project Manager – DECP Eastern Region, International Association of Chiefs of Police

Registration Link: <https://attendee.gotowebinar.com/register/8928033731370276878>

Description: This session is intended to provide an update on projects related to and affecting the DRE program that are underway, as well as new offerings to help further ARIDE and DRE training. Additionally, it will provide updates on recent and pending Frye/Daubert Hearings regarding the DRE program. Finally, it will provide information on judicial and prosecutor training related to the DRE program.

Title: An Introduction to Drug Categories in Drug DUI Cases: Narcotic Analgesics (Florida Bar Approval for 2.0-hr CLE SUBSTANCE ABUSE Credit)

Date: Wednesday, February 16, 2022

Time: 1p-230p Eastern

Presenter: Ofc. Ashley Eller - Apopka (FL) Police Department

Registration Link: <https://attendee.gotowebinar.com/register/6299270759151643919>

Description: This session is part of an eight session series that will introduce both prosecutors and law enforcement to the DRE Program and the many different drug categories that one may encounter in a Drug DUI Case. These sessions are designed to provide extensive background to prosecutors and law enforcement as to the common observable signs and effects of each drug category to allow for better investigation and prosecution of Drug DUI Cases. By the end of these eight sessions, both prosecutors and law enforcement will have a better and broader understanding of how to understand this evidence in reviewing their cases for charging and in preparation for trial. Sessions will go into details about effects, duration, ingestion, and other information about each individual category so that such categories can better be documented by law enforcement and explained to a jury by both prosecutors and law enforcement. This session will focus entirely on Narcotic Analgesics. By the end of this series of sessions, both prosecutors and law enforcement should be able to better handle the many difficult aspects of Drug DUI cases.

Note, this series of sessions is NOT a substitute for either the formal ARIDE or DRE Training and it will NOT allow LEOs to testify as Expert Witnesses regarding any of the Drug Categories discussed or to make any specific conclusions as to Drug Category during the investigation of a Drug DUI Case

There is NO CHARGE to attend these webinars, however you must register in advance using the links listed above. After registering you will receive a confirmation email containing instructions on how to join each webinar. Please make sure you retain the confirmation email sent to you and be careful to enter your email address correctly; you will not be able to join the webinar if you do not receive a confirmation email. If you will be unable to attend either of these webinars at the scheduled times but would still like to watch, please go ahead and register as everyone who is registered will receive a link to the recording of that webinar regardless of whether they attended.

If you have any questions or need any assistance registering for the webinar, please feel free to contact Vin Petty at VinPetty@FloridaTSRP.com.

These webinars are being conducted by the Florida TSRP Program and the National TSRP Program utilizing the National TSRP Program webinar account. The account is funded through the NAPC/NHTSA Cooperative Agreement, Project Number 693JJ92050011.

Study Finds Fewer Crashes After Utah Sets Strictest DUI Law In US

The AP (2/11, Metz) reports from Salt Lake City, Utah, "Traffic deaths decreased in Utah after the state enacted the strictest drunken driving laws in the nation five years ago, new research published Friday by a US government agency shows." According to the AP, "The findings, which pertain to fatalities involving and not involving alcohol, provide initial validation for conservative lawmakers who passed the law over concerns from restaurant and tourism industry lobbyists." In the study published by the National Highway Traffic Safety Administration (NHTSA), "researchers wrote that, in the years after Utah changed the drunken driving threshold from .08% to .05% blood-alcohol content, the number of crashes and fatalities fell even though drivers logged more miles. 'Changing the law to .05% in Utah saved lives and motivated more drivers to take steps to avoid driving impaired,' said Dr. Steven Cliff, the agency's deputy administrator."

CNN (2/12, Wallace) reports the NHTSA "concluded the change produced 'demonstrably positive impacts on highway safety in Utah.' It also claimed the concerns of the tourism and entertainment industries were not borne out: Sales continued increasing after the Utah law took effect, and 'none of the potential negative effects of concern came to fruition.'" Utah "is the only state in the nation to set the red line below .08 grams per deciliter, which is standard nationwide. In some states, drivers exhibiting other indications of impairment can still face penalties."

Hate Crimes Legislation Stalls In South Carolina

The AP (2/12, Collins) reports the South Carolina Legislature "has yet to take action" on the Clementa C. Pinckney Hate Crimes Act – named for one of the victims of "the racist murders of nine African Americans at the Emanuel AME Church in Charleston" in – which would end South Carolina's status as one of only two states without a hate crimes law. The AP says, according to the State Senate Majority Leader Shane Massey, "the hate crimes bill isn't a priority for Republicans who make up all but 16 of the current 45 senators. Massey said the federal hate crimes law was adequate in prosecuting the shooter at the Charleston church, who is currently on federal death row.”

Pelosi Says Democratic Party Not Moving To Defund The Police

Politico (2/13, Cohen) reports House Speaker Pelosi (D-CA) “said Sunday that the idea of defunding the police, a frequently used slogan during the 2020 elections, is not the direction that the Democratic Party is headed.” During an ABC’s “This Week” interview segment, Pelosi added, “Make no mistake, community safety is our responsibility.”

WPost Analysis: Mayors Insist They Can Fight Crime And Reform The Police

The Washington Post (2/11, A1, White, Berman, Jacobs, Bailey) reports, “Across the country, mayors who aligned themselves with racial justice protests following the murder of George Floyd by a police officer have shifted their emphasis to neighborhoods that reverberate with the sound of gunfire day and night. In major cities, leaders – most of them Democrats – are advancing plans to add police officers, target high-crime areas and roll back reforms that they say have aided criminals without enhancing equity.” At the same time however, “they are pointedly not advocating for a return to the heavy-handed tactics of the 1980s and 1990s when, with crime peaking, city leaders and other officials competed over who could do the most to burnish no-tolerance, lock-them-up-at-all-costs credentials. Rather, they are attempting a delicate balance that weighs the demands of social justice along with the fears of citizens rattled by violent crime.”

Distribution, Accessibility Of Naloxone Needs To Be Increased, Expanded In Almost Every State, Analysis Finds

The Hill (2/11, Romaine) reported, “The distribution and accessibility of naloxone, a drug used to counteract the effects of an opioid overdose, needs to be increased and expanded in almost every US state in order to more effectively combat opioid overdoses and prevent more overdose deaths, according to a” National Institute on Drug Abuse-funded study. According to the Hill, “The study examined data obtained from state health departments, nationwide surveys, and addiction sources from 12 ‘modeled states’ from 2017, while including differences in drug toxicity and ‘naloxone access points” and “found that to avoid 80 percent of opioid overdose deaths (in which another person is a witness) some states need to fund an additional 1,270 naloxone kits per 100,000 people each year.” The findings were published in The Lancet Public Health journal.

Phoenix Police Identify Gunman In Fatal Domestic Shooting That Left Five Officers Injured

The Arizona Republic (2/11, Frank) reports police have identified the man found dead after he killed his former girlfriend and shot five police officers in Phoenix on Friday as Morris Jones. A spokesperson for the Phoenix Police Department “explained the investigation is ‘incredibly complex’ and information is subject to change.” The spokesperson added “that of the five officers shot, four remained hospitalized and that all were expected to survive.”

Data Shows Worrisome Trend In School Gun Violence

USA Today (2/11, Hauck) reports that according to data from two groups that track school shootings, “the number of shootings on school grounds is reaching troubling new peaks.” USA Today continues, “There were at least 136 instances of gunfire on school grounds between Aug. 1 and Dec. 31. ... The figure is nearly four times the average for that period since” the data collection effort began in 2013.

US Sees Increase In Illegal Entries By Sea

The Wall Street Journal (2/12, Campo-Flores, Subscription Publication) reports on the growing number of Central- and South American migrants trying to enter the US via boat, following the capsizing of a Bahamian boat near Florida that left nearly 40 dead. The Journal details the story of the accident’s only survivor, but adds that current increase in maritime migration remain far lower than those of the 1990s.

Italy’s Foggia Mafia Seeks To Reassert Power With Violent Attacks

The Wall Street Journal (2/12, Subscription Publication) reports 14 businesses in Italy’s Foggia province have been attacked this year, in what is seen as an effort by Foggia’s mafia to reassert its power. The surge in violence comes after a crackdown against the mafia in recent years that has increased the number of pending criminal trials by nearly 25%.

Border Patrol Using Scanning Technology To Slow Drug Smuggling

The Washington Post (2/13, Miroff) reports from Laredo, Texas, “At the busiest commercial border crossing in North America, trucks stream into the United States at a rate of 500 per hour during peak times,” and “fewer than 5 percent of the vehicles are typically screened by U.S. Customs and Border Protection with the powerful high-energy scanners that can peer deep inside cargo loads to detect ‘anomalies’ – odd patterns or suspicious densities that could be illegal drugs.” The Post adds, “With fatal drug overdose deaths in the United States soaring to record levels, Congress has directed CBP to come up with a plan to scan 100 percent of arriving vehicles,” and “the agency is preparing to roll out new ‘nonintrusive’ inspection systems to screen significantly more trucks. These ‘multi-energy portals’ will zap the cargo areas with high-energy waves, but use safer low-energy screening for the cab, allowing the drivers to remain in their vehicles and clear inspection faster, the agency says.”

Since it is remote maybe an overview of ILEAP PowerDMS will work. Those that are CALEA can disregard training for the month. I was literally just planning a show and tell of Oak Brook's ILEAP file and demo uploading documents and how Oak Brook stores their documents in PowerDMS. For newcomers to ILEAP and DMS, this seems to be where they are most deficient and I don't see Jeff Hamer doing anything to get them up to speed.

If you guys think it is beneficial, I can bring it up to Stephanie but I worry we are slipping into a little too much of training for a particular accreditation. I've brought this kind of training up in the past and that was the feedback at the time. Of course, this was when we had drastically less ILEAP agencies in the PAC.

Larry has agreed to do Basic Policy Development in April. We have nothing else for February but that's ok. It's more important to have training for an in-person meeting to make it worthwhile for folks that have a long drive. I've been pretty swamped with work also.

I've been swamped at work so sorry for the delay in responding. If Larry can do something great.

But I think ILEAP agencies can definitely use an overview and navigation of PowerDMS specific to ILEAP that they won't get from PowerDMS. My fear is that this is very specific to ILEAP and not all pac members. Still very unfortunate that this training isn't provided by ILACP folks like Jeff Hamer. As I continue to help ILEAP agencies they have been way behind on how to incorporate their paper file system into PowerDMS. So I'd be willing to do some demo/training but I think we should clear this with Stephanie.

Not sure how much training PowerDMS is giving the ILEAP agencies.
With CALEA agencies they can opt for onboarding training sessions
when they sign on.

I have been using it way before CALEA went to
it so had none of that training. When at Schaumburg,
I believe we started using it in 2003 or 2004.

So, would need to know what PowerDMS is offering ILEAP agencies for training. Or I guess we could just take questions and give demo answers, if we think that would work.

Haven't heard back from Larry via email but I will call him shortly as I think he may already have something put together along these lines.

Only thought I had is in regards to PowerDMS training. I'm so new to it and figuring out the ins and outs. ILEAP is now requiring PowerDMS as the platform for their accreditation so many towns are in the same boat of that learning curve.

Good morning,

I haven't a clue what we could do for February training. Does anyone have anything.

I'm also wondering how many attendees actually stay for the training and if there is some way we can track who signs off before the training.

Of course, this would depend on the attendees interest in the particular training offered any given month.

When the training is an hour or more I'm afraid we may lose some members...
difficult sometimes to take a two hour (or more) chunk out of the day.

Any thoughts?

Special Alert | February 11, 2022 ILACP Major Bill Review and Priority Setting resumes today at 9:30 a.m. on Zoom

Tune in today as our ILACP Major Bill Review and Priority Setting resumes at 9:30-11:30 a.m.

Thank you to all ILACP members who were on our meeting Wednesday to review bills and to set priorities for 2022. Your participation and insights are helpful as we establish our positions on bills. Members also find this session informative. Feel free to forward this to others in your department who will be interested.

- 9:30 a.m. to 11:30 a.m.
- Friday, February 11, 2022
- Link: <https://us02web.zoom.us/j/85102044926>

We will review new bills filed, go over recent lists, and discuss priorities for the 2022 spring session.

During this second session of discussion, we will cover House bills beginning with HB 4211. We will move down the list and limit discussion to 3 minutes per bill.

If you are unable to attend but wish to weigh in on those bills you would like to see in our top 15-20 priorities for the spring, please email Deputy Director Kenny Winslow at kenny@ilchiefs.org.

The handout, with each bill linked to a detailed description, is attached and can be found on our website here:

<https://ilacp.memberclicks.net/assets/docs/Handout%20Bills%20for%20Review%202-9.pdf>

An overview of our Spring 2022 legislative priorities will be sent to all members once our meetings and any follow up reviews are complete.

Special Alert | February 11, 2022 ILACP Major Bill Review and Priority Setting resumes today at 9:30 a.m. on Zoom

Tune in today as our ILACP Major Bill Review and Priority Setting resumes at 9:30-11:30 a.m.

Thank you to all ILACP members who were on our meeting Wednesday to review bills and to set priorities for 2022. Your participation and insights are helpful as we establish our positions on bills. Members also find this session informative. Feel free to forward this to others in your department who will be interested.

- 9:30 a.m. to 11:30 a.m.
- Friday, February 11, 2022
- Link: <https://us02web.zoom.us/j/85102044926>

We will review new bills filed, go over recent lists, and discuss priorities for the 2022 spring session.

During this second session of discussion, we will cover House bills beginning with HB 4211. We will move down the list and limit discussion to 3 minutes per bill.

If you are unable to attend but wish to weigh in on those bills you would like to see in our top 15-20 priorities for the spring, please email Deputy Director Kenny Winslow at kenny@ilchiefs.org.

Since it is remote maybe an overview of ILEAP PowerDMS will work. Those that are CALEA can disregard training for the month. I was literally just planning a show and tell of Oak Brook's ILEAP file and demo uploading documents and how Oak Brook stores their documents in PowerDMS. For newcomers to ILEAP and DMS, this seems to be where they are most deficient and I don't see Jeff Hamer doing anything to get them up to speed.

If you guys think it is beneficial, I can bring it up to Stephanie but I worry we are slipping into a little too much of training for a particular accreditation. I've brought this kind of training up in the past and that was the feedback at the time. Of course, this was when we had drastically less ILEAP agencies in the PAC.

Larry has agreed to do Basic Policy Development in April. We have nothing else for February but that's ok. It's more important to have training for an in-person meeting to make it worthwhile for folks that have a long drive. I've been pretty swamped with work also.

I've been swamped at work so sorry for the delay in responding. If Larry can do something great.

But I think ILEAP agencies can definitely use an overview and navigation of PowerDMS specific to ILEAP that they won't get from PowerDMS. My fear is that this is very specific to ILEAP and not all pac members. Still very unfortunate that this training isn't provided by ILACP folks like Jeff Hamer. As I continue to help ILEAP agencies they have been way behind on how to incorporate their paper file system into PowerDMS. So I'd be willing to do some demo/training but I think we should clear this with Stephanie.

Not sure how much training PowerDMS is giving the ILEAP agencies.
With CALEA agencies they can opt for onboarding training sessions

when they sign on.

I have been using it way before CALEA went to it so had none of that training. When at Schaumburg, I believe we started using it in 2003 or 2004.

So, would need to know what PowerDMS is offering ILEAP agencies for training. Or I guess we could just take questions and give demo answers, if we think that would work.

Haven't heard back from Larry via email but I will call him shortly as I think he may already have something put together along these lines.

Only thought I had is in regards to PowerDMS training. I'm so new to it and figuring out the ins are in the same boat of that learning curve.

Good morning,

I haven't a clue what we could do for February training. Does anyone have anything.

I'm also wondering how many attendees actually stay for the training and if there is some way we can track who signs off before the training.

Of course, this would depend on the attendees interest in the particular training offered any given month.

When the training is an hour or more I'm afraid we may lose some members... difficult sometimes to take a two hour (or more) chunk out of the day.

Any thoughts?

Minnesota Lawmakers Consider Mobile Tracking Devices Bill

The AP (2/10, Ibrahim) reports, "A Minnesota House committee considered legislation Thursday that would expand the use of mobile tracking devices by a law enforcement officers trying to track down stolen vehicles and avoid high-speed chases." The bill "would let police officers use GPS tracking devices without a court order for a 24-hour period to recover stolen vehicles and prevent high-speed chases. Current state law requires law enforcement officers to have a warrant from a judge or consent from the owner of the vehicle before they can use a mobile tracking device." Ramsey County Undersheriff Mike Martin "told lawmakers that officers' current process involves reaching out to registered owners of vehicles, which he called a 'cumbersome' process that many times results in not being able to reach them. Should the new bill pass, he said officers would be able to use tracking technology that they could stick to a vehicle while in pursuit, allowing them to track the car and recover it later."

Colorado Authorities Plan To Increase Super Bowl Weekend DUI Traffic Enforcement

The Denver Post (2/10, Nicholson) reports, "The Heat Is On Super Bowl Weekend DUI enforcement period runs from Friday through Monday, and drivers can expect to see sobriety checkpoints, saturation patrols and increased law enforcement patrols dedicated to enforcing impaired driving laws, according to a Colorado Department of Transportation news release." CDOT "partners with the Colorado State Patrol and local law enforcement agencies in multiple Heat is On periods in ongoing efforts to reduce impaired and intoxicated driving. 'Everyone loses when impaired driving is involved,' said Col. Matthew Packard, CSP chief, in the release. 'It doesn't matter if you are celebrating a win or suffering a loss, it's no excuse to drive impaired. Make a plan for the party so you don't get behind the wheel if you're not sober – and don't let your guests drive home drunk if you're hosting a party.'"

North Carolina Records Record Traffic Deaths In 2021

The AP (2/10) reports that North Carolina “reported a record 1,755 traffic deaths in 2021, topping the previous mark set in 2007 and 5% higher than the number of deaths recorded in 2020.” North Carolina “saw a decrease in traffic fatalities related to pedestrians, cyclists and work zones, but there was also an increase in fatalities attributed to speeding, occupants not wearing seat belts and distracted driving.”

Colorado Governor Announces Public Safety Plan

The AP (2/10, Nieberg) reports Colorado Gov. Jared Polis “announced a public safety plan he says will help make Colorado one of the top 10 safest states in the nation, emphasizing legislative and other measures that are focused on community-based crime prevention.” Polis “said he’ll measure that goal based on where Colorado ranks in terms of violent and property crimes. ‘We’re currently in the middle of the pack. That’s not good enough for Colorado,’ he said at a Thursday press conference with Democratic lawmakers and state law enforcement officials.” According to the AP, “Some of the policies lawmakers described would attempt to reduce hate crimes with more education and collaboration among law enforcement and community partners. Another measure aims to improve school security with threat-assessment training and an increase in mental health resources for students.”

Rallies Push For Safer Illicit Drug Supply In British Columbia

CTV News (CAN) (2/10, Raymond) reports an organization called Moms Stop the Harm held two Thursday rallies in the Canadian province of British Columbia. The rallies aimed to put pressure on lawmakers and the province’s health minister to make the illicit drug supply in British Columbia supply safer. Illicit drug poisoning caused 2,224 deaths in that province last year. A related CTV News (CAN) (2/10, Mangione) article says that total set “a record in the province.” The record is also noted in another related CTV News (CAN) (2/10, Nagy) story.

Police Chief: US-Based Calls Flooded Ottawa’s 911 System During Trucker Protests

The Globe and Mail (CAN) (2/10, Curry, Kirkup) reports, “Ottawa Police Chief Peter Sloly said a briefing he received from Canada’s intelligence agencies underscored the continuing trucker protest’s sophisticated tactics, which he said included a flood of US-based phone calls to the local 911 service that nearly crashed the city’s emergency response system.” The comments come as a “two-week-old Ottawa protest against pandemic restrictions shows no sign of ending.” Sloly “said during a Thursday news conference that his force still needs more police resources from the Ontario and federal governments, both of which have already sent officers to the city. He also noted that area tow-truck operators are refusing to help police, causing ‘a considerable logistical impasse.’ Federal Public Safety Minister Marco Mendicino told reporters the RCMP would be sending additional reinforcements to Ottawa, and to related protests in Windsor, Ont., and Coutts, Alta.”

FBI Estimates Americans Lost $1B To Romance Scammers In 2021

Forbes (2/10, Smith) reports approximately 24,000 Americans “lost a reported $1 billion to romance scammers during 2021, the FBI estimated Thursday, marking what the Federal Trade Commission said was the most lucrative year for romance scammers on record – with many scam artists luring their victims into sending cryptocurrency.” The FTC “said Thursday losses from romance scams rose to $547 million in 2021, up from $307 million in 2020 and $202 million in 2019.” However, the FTC only counts scams reported to the Consumer Sentinel Network.

Teenagers Arrested For Bomb Threats To DC High Schools

The Hill (2/10, Dress) reports the DC Metropolitan Police Department “arrested two 16-year-old males in connection with bomb threats made this week against multiple schools in Washington, D.C., as more threats were made in the area on Thursday.” The Hill explains, “Five high schools were evacuated on Thursday amid another round of bomb threats made over the phone, The Associated Press reported, but no hazardous materials were found. Dunbar High School, IDEA Public Charter School and McKinley Tech High School were among the schools that evacuated students. This marks the third straight day bomb threats were reported against schools in the nation’s capital.” The Hill adds, “Both teenagers were charged with making terroristic threats.”

Reuters (2/10, Singh) reports the targeted schools were “predominantly Black.” However, police “have not indicated a connection to race in the spate of bomb threats.” Police also “said Tuesday’s incident did not appear to be targeted” at Vice President Harris’ husband, Second Gentleman Douglas Emhoff, “who was visiting Dunbar for a Black History Month event.”

France Opens Terrorism Investigation Over Benin Park Attack

Reuters (2/10) reports France “opened a terrorism investigation on Thursday into an attack on park rangers in northern Benin in which a French national was among eight people killed, while the African country reported the death of another person in a fresh attack.” France’s government “condemned the ambush in which five rangers along with their French instructor, a civilian park employee and a soldier were killed and 12 others wounded while on an anti-poaching mission in W National Park on Tuesday.” Prosecutors said in a statement, “The national anti-terrorist prosecutor’s office has opened a probe with a charge of murder in connection with a terrorist undertaking after having been informed of the passing of a 50-year-old French national following a terrorist attack in the W park, north Benin.”

Akron, Ohio Bust Nets 35 Pounds Of Fentanyl

The Akron (OH) Beacon Journal (2/10, Marotta) reports, “Police executing a search warrant at a Merriman Valley apartment last September knew they had a suspect when they found the Akron man wearing latex gloves and a respirator.” The Beacon Journal adds, “The protection was needed because, according to the US Drug Enforcement Administration, as little as 2 milligrams of fentanyl can kill a person and the man was busy trying to flush evidence down a toilet, police said.

Police said the search of his apartment and several other homes in the city yielded 16.6 kilograms – more than 35 pounds – of fentanyl, along with almost 10 kilograms of methamphetamine and other drugs. A federal grand jury recently indicted 13 individuals as part of the alleged citywide drug distribution operation and nine individuals were arrested Thursday morning after the indictment was unsealed in federal court.”

Minnesota Lawmakers Consider Mobile Tracking Devices Bill

The AP (2/10, Ibrahim) reports, "A Minnesota House committee considered legislation Thursday that would expand the use of mobile tracking devices by a law enforcement officers trying to track down stolen vehicles and avoid high-speed chases." The bill "would let police officers use GPS tracking devices without a court order for a 24-hour period to recover stolen vehicles and prevent high-speed chases. Current state law requires law enforcement officers to have a warrant from a judge or consent from the owner of the vehicle before they can use a mobile tracking device." Ramsey County Undersheriff Mike Martin "told lawmakers that officers' current process involves reaching out to registered owners of vehicles, which he called a 'cumbersome' process that many times results in not being able to reach them. Should the new bill pass, he said officers would be able to use tracking technology that they could stick to a vehicle while in pursuit, allowing them to track the car and recover it later."

Colorado Authorities Plan To Increase Super Bowl Weekend DUI Traffic Enforcement

The Denver Post (2/10, Nicholson) reports, "The Heat Is On Super Bowl Weekend DUI enforcement period runs from Friday through Monday, and drivers can expect to see sobriety checkpoints, saturation patrols and increased law enforcement patrols dedicated to enforcing impaired driving laws, according to a Colorado Department of Transportation news release." CDOT "partners with the Colorado State Patrol and local law enforcement agencies in multiple Heat is On periods in ongoing efforts to reduce impaired and intoxicated driving. 'Everyone loses when impaired driving is involved,' said Col. Matthew Packard, CSP chief, in the release. 'It doesn't matter if you are celebrating a win or suffering a loss, it's no excuse to drive impaired. Make a plan for the party so you don't get behind the wheel if you're not sober – and don't let your guests drive home drunk if you're hosting a party.'"

North Carolina Records Record Traffic Deaths In 2021

The AP (2/10) reports that North Carolina “reported a record 1,755 traffic deaths in 2021, topping the previous mark set in 2007 and 5% higher than the number of deaths recorded in 2020.” North Carolina “saw a decrease in traffic fatalities related to pedestrians, cyclists and work zones, but there was also an increase in fatalities attributed to speeding, occupants not wearing seat belts and distracted driving.”

Colorado Governor Announces Public Safety Plan

The AP (2/10, Nieberg) reports Colorado Gov. Jared Polis “announced a public safety plan he says will help make Colorado one of the top 10 safest states in the nation, emphasizing legislative and other measures that are focused on community-based crime prevention.” Polis “said he’ll measure that goal based on where Colorado ranks in terms of violent and property crimes. ‘We’re currently in the middle of the pack. That’s not good enough for Colorado,’ he said at a Thursday press conference with Democratic lawmakers and state law enforcement officials.” According to the AP, “Some of the policies lawmakers described would attempt to reduce hate crimes with more education and collaboration among law enforcement and community partners. Another measure aims to improve school security with threat-assessment training and an increase in mental health resources for students.”

Rallies Push For Safer Illicit Drug Supply In British Columbia

CTV News (CAN) (2/10, Raymond) reports an organization called Moms Stop the Harm held two Thursday rallies in the Canadian province of British Columbia. The rallies aimed to put pressure on lawmakers and the province’s health minister to make the illicit drug supply in British Columbia supply safer. Illicit drug poisoning caused 2,224 deaths in that province last year. A related CTV News (CAN) (2/10, Mangione) article says that total set “a record in the province.” The record is also noted in another related CTV News (CAN) (2/10, Nagy) story.

Police Chief: US-Based Calls Flooded Ottawa’s 911 System During Trucker Protests

The Globe and Mail (CAN) (2/10, Curry, Kirkup) reports, “Ottawa Police Chief Peter Sloly said a briefing he received from Canada’s intelligence agencies underscored the continuing trucker protest’s sophisticated tactics, which he said included a flood of US-based phone calls to the local 911 service that nearly crashed the city’s emergency response system.” The comments come as a “two-week-old Ottawa protest against pandemic restrictions shows no sign of ending.” Sloly “said during a Thursday news conference that his force still needs more police resources from the Ontario and federal governments, both of which have already sent officers to the city. He also noted that area tow-truck operators are refusing to help police, causing ‘a considerable logistical impasse.’ Federal Public Safety Minister Marco Mendicino told reporters the RCMP would be sending additional reinforcements to Ottawa, and to related protests in Windsor, Ont., and Coutts, Alta.”

The IACP is hosting the 2022 Technology Conference from May 24-26 at the Wisconsin Center in Milwaukee, Wisconsin. Covering a broad array of new technology in law enforcement, don’t miss

FBI Estimates Americans Lost $1B To Romance Scammers In 2021

Forbes (2/10, Smith) reports approximately 24,000 Americans “lost a reported $1 billion to romance scammers during 2021, the FBI estimated Thursday, marking what the Federal Trade Commission said was the most lucrative year for romance scammers on record – with many scam artists luring their victims into sending cryptocurrency.” The FTC “said Thursday losses from romance scams rose to $547 million in 2021, up from $307 million in 2020 and $202 million in 2019.” However, the FTC only counts scams reported to the Consumer Sentinel Network.

Teenagers Arrested For Bomb Threats To DC High Schools

The Hill (2/10, Dress) reports the DC Metropolitan Police Department “arrested two 16-year-old males in connection with bomb threats made this week against multiple schools in Washington, D.C., as more threats were made in the area on Thursday.” The Hill explains, “Five high schools were evacuated on Thursday amid another round of bomb threats made over the phone, The Associated Press reported, but no hazardous materials were found. Dunbar High School, IDEA Public Charter School and McKinley Tech High School were among the schools that evacuated students. This marks the third straight day bomb threats were reported against schools in the nation’s capital.” The Hill adds, “Both teenagers were charged with making terroristic threats.”

Reuters (2/10, Singh) reports the targeted schools were “predominantly Black.” However, police “have not indicated a connection to race in the spate of bomb threats.” Police also “said Tuesday’s incident did not appear to be targeted” at Vice President Harris’ husband, Second Gentleman Douglas Emhoff, “who was visiting Dunbar for a Black History Month event.”

France Opens Terrorism Investigation Over Benin Park Attack

Reuters (2/10) reports France “opened a terrorism investigation on Thursday into an attack on park rangers in northern Benin in which a French national was among eight people killed, while the African country reported the death of another person in a fresh attack.” France’s government “condemned the ambush in which five rangers along with their French instructor, a civilian park employee and a soldier were killed and 12 others wounded while on an anti-poaching mission in W National Park on Tuesday.” Prosecutors said in a statement, “The national anti-terrorist prosecutor’s office has opened a probe with a charge of murder in connection with a terrorist undertaking after having been informed of the passing of a 50-year-old French national following a terrorist attack in the W park, north Benin.”

Akron, Ohio Bust Nets 35 Pounds Of Fentanyl

The Akron (OH) Beacon Journal (2/10, Marotta) reports, “Police executing a search warrant at a Merriman Valley apartment last September knew they had a suspect when they found the Akron man wearing latex gloves and a respirator.” The Beacon Journal adds, “The protection was needed because, according to the US Drug Enforcement Administration, as little as 2 milligrams of fentanyl can kill a person and the man was busy trying to flush evidence down a toilet, police said.

Police said the search of his apartment and several other homes in the city yielded 16.6 kilograms – more than 35 pounds – of fentanyl, along with almost 10 kilograms of methamphetamine and other drugs. A federal grand jury recently indicted 13 individuals as part of the alleged citywide drug distribution operation and nine individuals were arrested Thursday morning after the indictment was unsealed in federal court.”

ILACP Major Bill Review and Priority Setting continues tomorrow

Yesterday, we did not make it through our list of bills, so we will pick up our conversation on Zoom :

- 9:30 a.m. to 11:30 a.m.
- Friday, February 10, 2022
- Link: <https://us02web.zoom.us/j/85102044926>

We will review new bills filed, go over recent lists, and discuss priorities for the 2022 spring session. During this second session of discussion, we will cover House bills beginning with HB 4211. We will move down the list and limit discussion to 3 minutes per bill.

If you are unable to attend but wish to weigh in on those bills you would like to see in our top 15-20 priorities for the spring, please email Deputy Director Kenny Winslow at kenny@ilchiefs.org.

The handout can be found on our website here:

<https://ilacp.memberclicks.net/assets/docs/Handout%20Bills%20for%20Review%202-9.pdf>

Each bill is linked to a detailed description.

An overview of our Spring 2022 legislative priorities will be sent to all members once our meetings and any follow up reviews are complete.

Join us on Zoom

April Election: Know our candidates for 3rd VP

When there is more than one candidate, we conduct an online election. The Executive Board at its December meeting determines the specific criteria for the election process. Most likely, the election will take place electronically from April 25-28, 2022, and the winner will be installed on Friday evening, April 29, 2022, during a banquet at the conclusion of the Annual Conference in Northbrook.

The deadline for nominations for the 2022 election is February 27, 2022.

NIBRS data deadlines

ALL 2021 Index Crime, Hate Crime, and Supplemental Homicide Reporting records must be submitted by close of business March 1, 2022, to be included in I-UCR's Crime in Illinois publication. No data submitted to the Summary Reporting System (iClear) will be sent to the FBI and will not be included in their Crime in the United States publication.

2021 Verification Process

Law Enforcement Torch Run Kickoff

Last Friday the Law Enforcement Torch Run Kickoff was held in Bloomington. The final fundraising total for 2021 was announced at $3.3 million! Awards were given to all the top fundraising departments of 2021. First place was the Maple Park Police Department, followed closely by Tinley Park Police, Illinois State Police, and the Illinois Department of Corrections.

Congratulations to everyone who participated to make a difference for Special Olympics athletes! We will have more information about what to expect this year and 2021's top fundraisers coming soon.

April Election: Know our candidates for 3rd VP

When there is more than one candidate, we conduct an online election. The Executive Board at its December meeting determines the specific criteria for the election process. Most likely, the election will take place electronically from April 25-28, 2022, and the winner will be installed on Friday evening, April 29, 2022, during a banquet at the conclusion of the Annual Conference in Northbrook.

The deadline for nominations for the 2022 election is February 27, 2022.

Law Enforcement Torch Run Kickoff

Last Friday the Law Enforcement Torch Run Kickoff was held in Bloomington. The final fundraising total for 2021 was announced at $3.3 million! Awards were given to all the top fundraising departments of 2021. First place was the Maple Park Police Department, followed closely by Tinley Park Police, Illinois State Police, and the Illinois Department of Corrections.

Congratulations to everyone who participated to make a difference for Special Olympics athletes! We will have more information about what to expect this year and 2021's top fundraisers coming soon.

ILACP Major Bill Review and Priority Setting continues tomorrow

Yesterday, we did not make it through our list of bills, so we will pick up our conversation on Zoom :

- 9:30 a.m. to 11:30 a.m.
- Friday, February 10, 2022
- Link: <https://us02web.zoom.us/j/85102044926>

We will review new bills filed, go over recent lists, and discuss priorities for the 2022 spring session. During this second session of discussion, we will cover House bills beginning with HB 4211. We will move down the list and limit discussion to 3 minutes per bill.

If you are unable to attend but wish to weigh in on those bills you would like to see in our top 15-20 priorities for the spring, please email Deputy Director Kenny Winslow at kenny@ilchiefs.org.

The handout can be found on our website here:

Dear APSS Membership,

On behalf of the Board, we wanted to clarify and open a dialogue of the concerns listed below.

First, let me be clear that we value all our members and your voices matter significantly to us. We continue to encourage all members to be openly engaged with the Board and the rest of the group regarding their experiences and concerns. The request that concerns were to be addressed to the Board directly was to hopefully streamline some conversations without bombarding the entire membership. Following direct conversations, we then have the opportunity to address the entire membership or bring it up in an open forum during meetings for all to discuss. We have fielded questions as they have presented but note that we are unable to respond to concerns if they are not supplied to us. Also, please remember we are not going always say or do the most perfect thing but that is why we are all a team. We support one another and help clarify things for the good of the membership. That is where we rely on you all for support. We cannot adequately do our positions without it.

With saying that, as nominated and elected members of the Board, we were given the discretion to make certain decisions for the common good of the APSS. We attempt to be transparent about said decisions. If we have failed to be transparent, again, we welcome questions/comments. In the last few meetings we did discuss the dues and upcoming membership changes, but maybe we have not expressed our reasoning as clear as we could have. We hoped the letter sent out with reasons for membership changes clarified our decisions. This included the immense increase in interest in the APSS and the amount of time the Board is providing to departments in support of enhancing their services. Due to the amount of work it has accumulated and most of the responsibility coming back to the Board and a few other leaders in our group, we decided a change needed to be made. We encourage you all to remember that this is a voluntary, unpaid additional responsibility we are undertaking. We are trying to navigate our daily job tasks with also supporting the membership. As stated before, we want to be a team and work together—this includes you all supporting us, as we attempt to support you. If you are interested in having a bigger voice for the membership and making more decisions, we encourage you to express that leadership during meetings, involvement in committees and during nomination time.

Next to address the increase in dues. Dues have not been increased in a significant amount of years. We honestly do not know the last time fees increased but we do know that inflation of costs has created concern of our ability to have the APSS fully funded for all that we would like to accomplish. Recently with the Chief's Luncheon, there was a request for a hand out that we couldn't financially support. In the future, we would like to be able to explore those higher priced amenities for our membership. We also would like to start using some of our funds to support our own. We have started to respond with small gifts (flowers/gift cards) to those who might be going through a significant personal situation, whether positive or concerning (retirement, new baby, sick loved one, etc.). Additionally, having the capabilities to have the funds for speakers is a huge advantage. This leads to speakers with a heightened skillset and knowledge base and possibly options for CEUs. Those can be very costly so being able to have money to support those things without having to charge members for the specific meeting is a goal of the Board. Finally, an increase in dues can increase our capabilities. It can open up conversations regarding doing our own conference or event, or even maybe sponsoring one of our own to attend a conference. The dues have been (and in our opinion, still are) an extremely reasonable amount. If this presents a personal issue in your ability to remain the membership, please reach out to the Board. We would never want to limit someone's involvement.

Regarding changes in committees, this was done due to some committees not being applicable anymore and our desire for more people to be involved and engaged. Some committees were self-sufficient and successful, while others needed support. Without putting additional work on the Board member's liaison position or the one or two leaders steering the committee, we wanted to reassess our committees and reengage our members. This was our desire to give power back to you all to make additional decisions for the good of the membership. This decision was not solely driven by the Board but by feedback given by several leaders of the committees. We listened to their feedback and supported their need for a change.

Next, in response to the panel selection, the panel was decided by the Board because the idea of presenting for the IACP was suggested by the Board. Each selection was decided based upon the response by the individual(s) interested, along with what we felt the panel needed. These decisions were not made lightly, and certainly not made before inquiring interest. If we received a response from someone with interest but without explanation of their program and what they'd like to contribute, it made it difficult to justify that person. The email sent out hopefully explained some of the factors we hoped to provide in a panel forum. A panel can only be 4-5 individuals. We would love to have everyone who expressed interest to be on the panel; but as you can imagine, that isn't possible. We also have a significant time constraint during the panel, which leads to a limited amount of participants.

Finally, we politely request that if you have personal concerns regarding a member of the APSS and their skillset/experience, that you address that person directly or through the Board. We are a group of professionals and we shall act as such. To question someone's knowledge base is extremely inappropriate in an open forum type setting. As we mentioned ad nauseum, we are a team. Our focus is to build each other up, support one another and praise the successes of our cohorts. Once that is jeopardized or questioned, we are not functioning as our organization is meant to.

We appreciate the ability to clarify a few things and open the conversation to the membership. We welcome any and all feedback. To welcome that, we are asking you all to comment your preference in continuing this conversation. We are looking to talk about this further in our next meeting, it is up to you all on whether you'd like to dedicate the whole meeting to the discussion or keep the proposal meeting and include an open forum for a portion of the meeting.

Please express your desire through this poll:

https://docs.google.com/forms/d/e/1FAIpQLSebq_kViqMD73XT0vngQxXeurGINM1wErDk3nCgLDJ-Vz9YIQ/viewform?usp=sf_link

The decision will be made by majority vote.

Again, we appreciate all that you do and all the hard work you provide your communities and to one another. Take care of yourselves.

Respectfully, on behalf of the APSS Executive Board,

The Will County Sheriff's Office would be happy to host a meeting for a face to face discussion on the issues of concern. We would be open to any dates/times that work for all.

I responded via email as these issues were brought up via email.

I would like to note that I have received several emails/phone calls/texts off this thread sharing some of the same sentiments and issues of concerns so a meeting in person would be helpful for the members to share their thoughts and get feedback from the board.

I am not sure that email is the best format for these conversations. It seems like this may have a higher probability of positive, solution focused results if it was discussed face to face.

This group is, and always has been a collaboration. As a group, I hope we agree to not encourage this meaningful conversation over technology. I would encourage a professional response face to face where we can reframe our needs and work together to create a solution that bettens everyone in the membership.

Subject: {EXT}RE: Chief's Conference

[EXTERNAL]

Thanks for all the recent updates on the APSS and the Chief's of Police Conference. These updates and emails have raised a few questions/concerns for me.

When I began 20 years ago and become a member of the then APSW I did so with the understanding that this organization was a collaboration between police social workers. Often times it has felt less of a collaboration among us and more board directed. Case and point the recent correspondence on membership changes, committee changes and requirements, and changes in the bylaws. This document came out without any explanation as to the changes. And, came out with the dues request. If there are changes to the organization and to the bylaws and committees, shouldn't we have an understanding of all that prior to renewing our dues? Then the document states by turning in our dues we "agree" to everything yet we haven't been provided with anything to review and there is no explanation on the changes. Could the Board please clarify on the above.

It also says any concerns should only go to the board. That seems like an odd request. Why is there a ban on group discussion, when we are a collaborative group?

I recently sat on the Salary Committee and myself and Brittany spent several hours collecting data and presented an extensive review of all the police social workers. There was a discussion about making some changes with the survey and documentation and we were continually told it all had to be reviewed by the board and the board would decide. This statement felt like we were being thwarted, when our goal was for the advancement and benefit of the membership at large.

Moving on to the Chief's of Police presentations. An email was sent out requesting volunteers for speakers for the event. This email was vague and non specific about the goal. The email references speaking on licensure and licensure types and this is not even reflected in the final email listing the speakers and topics. Brittany reached out with questions of clarification which were never answered and then we received an email that everything was decided and the speakers would be current board and past board members. It sounds like this was already decided prior the first email and I am unsure as to why the membership was asked when the board was to fill these speakers spots. I know there has been contention over the years about membership involvement. I think this is an example of why members doesn't get involved.

Is our goal a collaboration among members? If so, then why are we not collaborating on these many issues? Our membership and members have a breadth of experience and knowledge base and the Chief's of Police Conference is a huge forum. Yet, two of our presenters have less than five years' experience, but they are on the board. I personally would to have liked to have seen some collaboration on such a big forum. For example, there are three County Sheriff's Offices represented. Shouldn't all three collaborate on how a County approaches social work within their agencies? There is a K9 presentation, shouldn't all the agencies who have K9's collaborate on this presentation?

I would appreciate some feedback from the members and board on the issues above.

Thank you so much to all of those who expressed interest in representing APSS on a panel for the Illinois Chief's Association annual conference. We are so lucky as an organization to have so many people who want to give presentations and expand our field.

Due to the overwhelming response, we decided to keep this opportunity limited to general members.

The panelist will be:

Moderator: Sue Blechschmidt

Jamie Horner: Mobile Crisis Intervention Team (co-responder model).

Eileen Molloy/ Kathleen: Social Service Unit with long-term counseling

Alana Bak: County approach/ New social service expansion to smaller agencies

Julie Fleckenstein: peer support/ administers two general funds

Meg Kruse: Therapy K9/ community engagement

The post meeting training next Wednesday will be an exclusive one and only ILEAP centered PowerDMS Set Up and Q&A with Ben Kadolph.

After a number of questions from our ILEAP member agencies surrounding this topic we decided to take advantage of the last minute change to a full Zoom meeting and do an impromptu ILEAP PowerDMS set up demonstration to try to assist the ILEAP agencies. Come prepared with your questions about PowerDMS set up. A huge thank you to Ben for his help and willingness to share his plethora of knowledge.

Since it is remote maybe an overview of ILEAP PowerDMS will work. Those that are CALEA can disregard training for the month. I was literally just planning a show and tell of Oak Brook's ILEAP file and demo uploading documents and how Oak Brook stores their documents in PowerDMS. For newcomers to ILEAP and DMS, this seems to be where they are most deficient and I don't see Jeff Hamer doing anything to get them up to speed.

If you guys think it is beneficial, I can bring it up to Stephanie but I worry we are slipping into a little too much of training for a particular accreditation. I've brought this kind of training up in the past and that was the feedback at the time. Of course, this was when we had drastically less ILEAP agencies in the PAC.

Larry has agreed to do Basic Policy Development in April. We have nothing else for February but that's ok. It's more important to have training for an in-person meeting to make it worthwhile for folks that have a long drive. I've been pretty swamped with work also.

But I think ILEAP agencies can definitely use an overview and navigation of PowerDMS specific to ILEAP that they won't get from PowerDMS. My fear is that this is very specific to ILEAP and not all pac members. Still very unfortunate that this training isn't provided by ILACP folks like Jeff Hamer. As I continue to help ILEAP agencies they have been way behind on how to incorporate their paper file system into PowerDMS. So I'd be willing to do some demo/training but I think we should

Not sure how much training PowerDMS is giving the ILEAP agencies.
With CALEA agencies they can opt for onboarding training sessions

when they sign on.

I have been using it way before CALEA went to it so had none of that training. When at Schaumburg, I believe we started using it in 2003 or 2004.

So, would need to know what PowerDMS is offering ILEAP agencies

for training. Or I guess we could just take questions and give demo answers, if we think that would work.

Haven't heard back from Larry via email but I will call him shortly as I think he may already have something put together along these lines.

Good morning,

I haven't a clue what we could do for February training. Does anyone have anything.

I'm also wondering how many attendees actually stay for the training and if there is some way we can track who signs off before the training.

Of course, this would depend on the attendees interest in the particular training offered any given month.

When the training is an hour or more I'm afraid we may lose some members... difficult sometimes to take a two hour (or more) chunk out of the day.

Any thoughts?

Good morning,

I haven't a clue what we could do for February training. Does anyone have anything.

I'm also wondering how many attendees actually stay for the training and if there is some way we can track who signs off before the training. Of course, this would depend on the attendees interest in the particular training offered any given month.

When the training is an hour or more I'm afraid we may lose some members... difficult sometimes to take a two hour (or more) chunk out of the day.

Any thoughts?

If you have training great. Many of the ILEAP agencies including myself have been paper files so I'm in the same boat of learning PowerDMS.

I think that's a great idea, especially since you already have expertise in that subject. I was not a big fan of ILEAP being part of our PAC, but since they are, sounds like this would be a big help for them. I say go for it!

Since it is remote maybe an overview of ILEAP PowerDMS will work. Those that are CALEA can disregard training for the month. I was literally just planning a show and tell of Oak Brook's ILEAP file and demo uploading documents and how Oak Brook stores their documents in PowerDMS. For newcomers to ILEAP and DMS, this seems to be where they are most deficient and I don't see Jeff Hamer doing anything to get them up to speed.

If you guys think it is beneficial, I can bring it up to Stephanie but I worry we are slipping into a little too much of training for a particular accreditation. I've brought this kind of training up in the past and that was the feedback at the time. Of course, this was when we had drastically less ILEAP agencies in the PAC.

Larry has agreed to do Basic Policy Development in April. We have nothing else for February but that's ok. It's more important to have training for an in-person meeting to make it worthwhile for folks that have a long drive. I've been pretty swamped with work also.

I've been swamped at work so sorry for the delay in responding. If Larry can do something great.

But I think ILEAP agencies can definitely use an overview and navigation of PowerDMS specific to ILEAP that they won't get from PowerDMS. My fear is that this is very specific to ILEAP and not all pac members. Still very unfortunate that this training isn't provided by ILACP folks like Jeff Hamer. As I continue to help ILEAP agencies they have been way behind on how to incorporate their paper file system into PowerDMS. So I'd be willing to do some demo/training but I think we should clear this with Stephanie.

Not sure how much training PowerDMS is giving the ILEAP agencies.

With CALEA agencies they can opt for onboarding training sessions when they sign on.

I have been using it way before CALEA went to it so had none of that training. When at Schaumburg, I believe we started using it in 2003 or 2004.

So, would need to know what PowerDMS is offering ILEAP agencies for training. Or I guess we could just take questions and give demo answers, if we think that would work.

Haven't heard back from Larry via email but I will call him shortly as I think he may already have something put together along these lines.

I've been swamped at work so sorry for the delay in responding. If Larry can do something great.

But I think ILEAP agencies can definitely use an overview and navigation of PowerDMS specific to ILEAP that they won't get from PowerDMS. My fear is that this is very specific to ILEAP and not all pac members. Still very unfortunate that this training isn't provided by ILACP folks like Jeff Hamer. As I continue to help ILEAP agencies they have been way behind on how to incorporate their paper file system into PowerDMS. So I'd be willing to do some demo/training but I think we should clear this with Stephanie.

Not sure how much training PowerDMS is giving the ILEAP agencies.

With CALEA agencies they can opt for onboarding training sessions

when they sign on.

I have been using it way before CALEA went to it so had none of that training. When at Schaumburg, I believe we started using it in 2003 or 2004.

So, would need to know what PowerDMS is offering ILEAP agencies for training. Or I guess we could just take questions and give demo answers, if we think that would work.

Haven't heard back from Larry via email but I will call him shortly as I think he may already have something put together along these lines.

Good morning,

I haven't a clue what we could do for February training. Does anyone have anything.

I'm also wondering how many attendees actually stay for the training and if there is some way we can track who signs off before the training.

Of course, this would depend on the attendees interest in the particular training offered any given month.

When the training is an hour or more I'm afraid we may lose some members... difficult sometimes to take a two hour (or more) chunk out of the day.

Any thoughts?

Larry has agreed to do Basic Policy Development in April. We have nothing else for February but that's ok. It's more important to have training for an in-person meeting to make it worthwhile for folks that have a long drive. I've been pretty swamped with work also.

Senators Reach Bipartisan Deal To Reauthorize Domestic Violence Bill

The AP (2/9, Amiri) reports that on Wednesday, a “bipartisan group of US senators introduced a proposal...to reauthorize the 1990s-era law that extends protections for victims of domestic and sexual violence after it lapsed in 2019 because of Republican opposition.” The Wall Street Journal (2/9, Wise, Subscription Publication) explains the measure lapsed after Republicans objected to Democrats’ efforts to introduce language that would have closed the “boyfriend loophole” by prohibiting people convicted of crimes related to dating violence from possessing firearms. Under the deal reached Wednesday, Democrats agreed to drop that provision.

The Hill (2/9, Folley) reports, “If passed, it would mark the first time in nearly a decade that the bill has been reauthorized – a move advocates have said is necessary to update the legislation to adequately meet the needs of those it is designed to protect.”

WPost Analysis: Police Shootings Hit Recent High Last Year, But Remain Within “Expected Bounds”

The Washington Post (2/9, Iati, Rich, Jenkins) reports police “shot and killed at least 1,055 people nationwide last year, the highest total since The Washington Post began tracking fatal shootings by officers in 2015 – underscoring the difficulty of reducing such incidents despite sustained public attention to the issue.” That’s up from 1,021 in 2020 and 999 in 2019. Still, “experts said the 2021 total was within expected bounds. Police have fatally shot roughly 1,000 people in each of the past seven years, ranging from 958 in 2016 to last year’s high.”

Madison, Wisconsin Police To Hold Public Forums On Body Cameras

The Wisconsin State Journal (2/9, Rickert) reports, “The Madison Police Department will host a series of public discussions on body-worn cameras after the City Council last month approved another delay in the city’s years-long debate over whether to adopt a technology that has become increasingly common in American police departments. ‘I believe that progressive, 21st century police departments should have body-worn cameras,’ Chief Shon Barnes tells our podcasters just a few weeks into his new job as Madison’s top cop. Madison is one of the few cities of its size without cameras on patrol officers and one of only a third of police agencies in Wisconsin that haven’t embraced the technology.” Uniform cameras “provide transparency and accountability following controversial police encounters, which helps build public trust,” but “Barnes stresses that whether to equip his officers with the devices is the community’s decision, not his.”

Survey Finds Pandemic Has Left US Mayors Frustrated

Politico (2/9, Crampton, Kashinsky) reports survey responses reveal how the COVID-19 pandemic “forced mayors into crisis mode, first to deal with the pandemic, and now with its lingering effects,” including an increased demand for mental health resources. Democrat Joseph Petty, who is the mayor of Worcester, Massachusetts, and 24 other mayors in different parts of the country participated in the recently conducted survey. Petty said he has been particularly frustrated by the “lack of help from the federal government and state to address the intractable nature of” substance use disorder, “homelessness and the mental health crisis.”

Biden Administration Says $30M Program Will Not Pay For Drug-Smoking Pipes

The AP (2/9, Alonso-Zaldivar, Dupuy) reports the Biden Administration “said Wednesday that a grant program to counter harm from illicit drugs will not pay for safer pipes to smoke crack or meth.” The statement was issued after the “White House was put on the defensive as outrage from the political right, some of it with racial overtones, was cresting online.” Earlier this week, some media outlets reported that the Administration was using money from the harm reduction program to purchase and distribute crack pipes.

The Hill (2/9, Samuels) reports the Administration “pushed back on what it called ‘misinformation,’ saying a federal grant program meant to reduce harm to drug users does not include taxpayer funding for pipes that can be used to smoke crack or meth.” White House Press Secretary Jen Psaki “told reporters at a briefing that reports that crack pipes would be included in the safe smoking kits being distributed as part of the program were inaccurate.” Psaki “said the safe smoking kits being distributed as part of a $30 million harm reduction program might include materials such as alcohol swabs, lip balm, clean syringes and other materials intended to promote hygiene and reduce the risk of spreading diseases such as HIV and hepatitis.”

Join IACP President Dwight Henninger as he discusses the U.S. Department of Justice’s Office of Community Oriented Policing Services (COPS) Collaborative Reform Initiative Technical Assistance Center (CRI-TAC) housed at the IACP. The successful project, funded since 2018, has provided over 650 state, local, campus, county, and tribal agencies with critical training and technical assistance at no cost through a collaboration with 10 leading law enforcement associations. With a motto of “for the field, by the field,” this program has played a significant role in helping to address violent crime in communities around the country, and has been the premier technical assistance program of the COPS Office since 2018. Listen Now.

Seven Predominately Black DC High Schools Receive Bomb Threats

Reuters (2/9, Ayyub) reports that according to the District of Columbia Police Department, seven “predominately Black schools in Washington were evacuated over bomb threats on Wednesday and later cleared, including a high school that was threatened a day earlier during a visit by U.S. Vice President Kamala Harris’ husband,” Doug Emhoff. While authorities “have not indicated a connection to race in the spate of bomb threats, and police said Tuesday’s incident did not appear targeted at Emhoff, who was visiting” Dunbar High School “for a Black History Month event ... the incidents have further raised fears among Black communities already rattled by a series of bomb threats made last week to at least a dozen historically Black colleges and universities, or HBCUs, nationwide.”

Militants Kill Six In African Country Of Benin

Reuters (2/9) reports, “Five rangers and a soldier were killed and 10 others wounded in an ambush by unnamed militants” in a park in the African country of Benin. Tuesday’s attack, which “was the deadliest in a series of recent incidents blamed on militants in the north of the country,” stoked “fears about widening Islamist violence.”

Texas Law Enforcement Authorities Coordinate For Fugitive Round-Up Operation

KWKT-TV Waco, TX (2/9, Wetherbee, Rivera) reports, “Law enforcement agencies from across Texas came together in Waco Wednesday to give the details on Operation Washout 2.0 which resulted in hundreds of arrests.” Operation Washout 2.0 “is a joint agency operation to locate wanted fugitives, as well as combat violent crime in Bell, Coryell and McLennan counties. From Jan 24th – Feb 3rd, local officers and deputies seized more than 40 guns and 200 pounds of marijuana. The leaders of Texas DPS, the US Marshals, Waco Police, Waco TAG, Killeen Police, McLennan Co. Sheriff’s Office, and more discussed how they took aim at gang violence. ‘It’s a safer place because of this operation and the figures that you have seen on the board, they are phenomenal,’ says Sheriff Parnell McNamara, with the McLennan County Sheriff’s Office. Authorities also took in smaller quantities of heroin, meth, cocaine, and almost $54,000.”

Mexican Government Officials Seek To Free Township Of Crime Presence

The AP (2/9) reports, “Mexico’s Defense Department announced Wednesday that soldiers have rolled into” the township of Aguililla, which is located in the Mexican state of Michoacán. The Jalisco New Generation Cartel, which is involved with drug trafficking activities, “is fighting a bloody turf war with the local Viagras gang” in that part of Mexico. On Wednesday, Mexico’s Defense Department said government officials are starting “a dialogue for the pacification of Aguililla” and freeing certain areas of an “organized crime presence.”

Technology

Austin, Texas Police Turn To Artificial Intelligence For Calls Centers Help

Fox News (2/9) reports, “Staffing shortages within the Austin Police Department continues to cause long wait times for customers calling for emergency help.” The situation prompted “the department to turn to artificial intelligence for help at call centers.” Fox News adds, “Staffing shortages since the Austin City Council stripped the police of 30% of its funding in 2020 forced police to no longer respond to non-emergency calls and has caused significant wait times for those calling both 911 and the non-emergency 311 line. In the next 90 to 120 days, the Austin Police Department is hoping to install an artificial intelligence system that has the capability to ask the same questions human operators would in 16 different languages, according to KXAN.”

US, UK, Australia Release Joint Ransomware Trends Report

The AP (2/9, Suderman) reports cyber criminal gangs are proving “increasingly adept at hacking and becoming more professional, even setting up an arbitration system to resolve payment disputes among themselves, according to a new report by the United States, Australia and the United Kingdom that paints a bleak picture of ransomware trends.” The new report “highlights the growing maturity and specialization of the ransomware market,” with specialists ranging “from the hackers who can break into networks or develop ransomware to the nontechnical operators who negotiate payments with victims.” US authorities “said they’d seen ransomware attacks involving 14 out of 16 designated critical infrastructure sectors, including the defense industrial base, agriculture and information technology sectors.”

Please join us for “The Evolution of SFSTs,” a webinar, that will be held on Tuesday, March 15, 2022 at 2:00 pm (eastern). This is the latest installment of Traffic Tuesdays, the National TSRP Webinar Series.

Much has changed since the introduction of the "Improved Sobriety Test Battery" in 1984. During this presentation, DECP National Project Manager Kyle Clark will review the history of the changes and improvements made to the SFST program over the past 35 years. Background information will also be shared to enlighten prosecutors and law enforcement officers on the reasoning behind some of the changes that have served to enhance the accuracies of the three standardized field sobriety tests over the years so that they can better explain these important tests in court on a DUI case.

Presenter: Kyle Clark, DECP National Project Manager – IACP

There is no charge to attend this webinar, but you must register in advance. Click below to register:

<https://attendee.gotowebinar.com/register/8650255315875829264>

After registering you will receive a confirmation email containing instructions on how to join the webinar. Please make sure that you retain the confirmation email sent to you, and please be careful to enter your email address correctly. You will not be able to join the webinar if you do not receive a confirmation email. If you will be unable to attend this webinar at the scheduled time but would still like to watch it, please go ahead and register as indicated. Everyone who is registered will receive a link to the recording of the webinar regardless of whether they attended.

If you have any questions or need any assistance registering for the webinar, please feel free to contact Vin Petty at VinPetty@FloridaTSRP.com.

Additionally – there is still time to register for the February 2022 “Traffic Tuesday” Session which will occur next Tuesday, entitled, “DRE and the IACP 2022: Updates & Enhancements.” Registration and information for next week’s National TSRP “Traffic Tuesday” Session is located below:

- Title: DRE and the IACP 2022: Updates & Enhancements
- Date: Tuesday, February 15, 2022
- Time: 2:00p-3:30p Eastern
- Presenter: Joe Abrusci, Project Manager – DECP Eastern Region, International Association of Chiefs of Police
- Registration Link: <https://attendee.gotowebinar.com/register/8928033731370276878>
- Description: This session is intended to provide an update on projects related to and affecting the DRE program that are underway, as well as new offerings to help further ARIDE and DRE training. Additionally, it will provide updates on recent and pending Frye/Daubert Hearings regarding the DRE program. Finally, it will provide information on judicial and prosecutor training related to the DRE program.

These webinars are being conducted by the National TSRP Program using the National TSRP Program webinar account. The account is funded through the NAPC/NHTSA Cooperative Agreement, Project Number 693JJ92050011.

Please join us for “The Evolution of SFSTs,” a webinar, that will be held on Tuesday, March 15, 2022 at 2:00 pm (eastern). This is the latest installment of Traffic Tuesdays, the National TSRP Webinar Series.

Much has changed since the introduction of the "Improved Sobriety Test Battery" in 1984. During this presentation, DECP National Project Manager Kyle Clark will review the history of the changes and improvements made to the SFST program over the past 35 years. Background information will also be shared to enlighten prosecutors and law enforcement officers on the reasoning behind some of the changes that have served to enhance the accuracies of the three standardized field sobriety tests over the years so that they can better explain these important tests in court on a DUI case.

Presenter: Kyle Clark, DECP National Project Manager – IACP

There is no charge to attend this webinar, but you must register in advance. Click below to register:

<https://attendee.gotowebinar.com/register/8650255315875829264>

After registering you will receive a confirmation email containing instructions on how to join the webinar. Please make sure that you retain the confirmation email sent to you, and please be careful to enter your email address correctly. You will not be able to join the webinar if you do not receive a confirmation email. If you will be unable to attend this webinar at the scheduled time but would still like to watch it, please go ahead and register as indicated. Everyone who is registered will receive a link to the recording of the webinar regardless of whether they attended.

If you have any questions or need any assistance registering for the webinar, please feel free to contact Vin Petty at VinPetty@FloridaTSRP.com.

Additionally – there is still time to register for the February 2022 “Traffic Tuesday” Session which will occur next Tuesday, entitled, “DRE and the IACP 2022: Updates &Enhancements.” Registration and information for next week’s National TSRP “Traffic Tuesday” Session is located below:

- Title: DRE and the IACP 2022: Updates &Enhancements
- Date: Tuesday, February 15, 2022
- Time: 2:00p-3:30p Eastern
- Presenter: Joe Abrusci, Project Manager – DECP Eastern Region, International Association of Chiefs of Police
- Registration Link: <https://attendee.gotowebinar.com/register/8928033731370276878>
- Description: This session is intended to provide an update on projects related to and affecting the DRE program that are underway, as well as new offerings to help further ARIDE and DRE training. Additionally, it will provide updates on recent and pending Frye/Daubert Hearings regarding the DRE program. Finally, it will provide information on judicial and prosecutor training related to the DRE program.

These webinars are being conducted by the National TSRP Program using the National TSRP Program webinar account. The account is funded through the NAPC/NHTSA Cooperative Agreement, Project Number 693JJ92050011.

I've been swamped at work so sorry for the delay in responding. If Larry can do something great.

But I think ILEAP agencies can definitely use an overview and navigation of PowerDMS specific to ILEAP that they won't get from PowerDMS. My fear is that this is very specific to ILEAP and not all pac members. Still very unfortunate that this training isn't provided by ILACP folks like Jeff Hamer. As I continue to help ILEAP agencies they have been way behind on how to incorporate their paper file system into PowerDMS. So I'd be willing to do some demo/training but I think we should clear this with Stephanie.

Not sure how much training PowerDMS is giving the ILEAP agencies.
With CALEA agencies they can opt for onboarding training sessions

when they sign on.

I have been using it way before CALEA went to
it so had none of that training. When at Schaumburg,
I believe we started using it in 2003 or 2004.

So, would need to know what PowerDMS is offering ILEAP agencies

for training. Or I guess we could just take questions and give demo answers, if we think that would work.

Haven't heard back from Larry via email but I will call him shortly as I think he may already have something put together along these lines.

Only thought I had is in regards to PowerDMS training. I'm so new to it and figuring out the ins and outs. ILEAP is now requiring PowerDMS as the platform for their accreditation so many towns are in the same boat of that learning curve.

Good morning,

I haven't a clue what we could do for February training. Does anyone have anything.

I'm also wondering how many attendees actually stay for the training and if there is some way we can track who signs off before the training. Of course, this would depend on the attendees interest in the particular training offered any given month.

When the training is an hour or more I'm afraid we may lose some members... difficult sometimes to take a two hour (or more) chunk out of the day.

Any thoughts?

All,

Please take a look at the agenda draft, anything to add or remove?

I also put the results of the mock assessment survey on a short PowerPoint. My intention with the short blurbs in black then the ones in red are the ones in black is what some people said then the ones in red are what I would call my “rebuttal” so any input on that would be appreciated.

As far as the scholarship goes we only have one application and that is from Elk Grove Village PD for the CALEA AM program which they are currently taking.

Special Alert | February 9, 2022 ILACP Major Bill Review and Priority Setting to continue Friday

Thank you to all ILACP members who were on our meeting today to review bills and to set priorities for 2022. We did not make it through our list, so we will pick up our conversation Friday, Feb. 11 at 9:30-11:30 a.m.

In the past couple of years, your participation and insights have been helpful as we establish our positions on bills. Members also find this session informative. Feel free to forward this to others in your department who will be interested.

9:30 a.m. to 11:30 a.m.

Friday, February 10, 2022

We will review new bills filed, go over recent lists, and discuss priorities for the 2022 spring session. During this second session of discussion, we will cover House bills beginning with HB 4211. We will move down the list and limit discussion to 3 minutes per bill.

If you are unable to attend but wish to weigh in on those bills you would like to see in our top 15-20 priorities for the spring, please email Deputy Director Kenny Winslow at kenny@ilchiefs.org.

The handout is attached and can be found on our website here:

Each bill is linked to a detailed description.

An overview of our Spring 2022 legislative priorities will be sent to all members once our meetings and any follow up reviews are complete.

All,

Please take a look at the agenda draft, anything to add or remove?

I also put the results of the mock assessment survey on a short PowerPoint. My intention with the short blurbs in black then the ones in red are the ones in black is what some people said then the ones in red are what I would call my "rebuttal" so any input on that would be appreciated.

As far as the scholarship goes we only have one application and that is from Elk Grove Village PD for the CALEA AM program which they are currently taking.

Thank you

Dr. Benjamin Stone

Sigma Tactical Wellness

Upon graduation from the University of Arkansas, Dr. Benjamin Stone attended Exeter College of Oxford University through the United States Air Force Institute of Technology. At Oxford, Dr. Stone developed a keen interest in cardiovascular physiology. He completed his PhD and related coursework for his medical doctorate and also coordinated research at the British Olympic Medical Institute, Oxford Nutraceuticals Group, and Cambridge University. Dr. Stone served as Assistant Professor of Exercise Physiology at the University of Central Arkansas, Sr. Tutor at Oxford University, and designed curriculums for the University of Arkansas for Medical Sciences.

In 2017, Dr. Stone co-developed Sigma Tactical Wellness, an organization intent on determining the causes-of and reducing the prevalence of coronary disease in law enforcement officers throughout the United States. To date, his program has screened more than 5000 police officers and the derived data and methods are being used across the nation to save countless lives.

As a well-regarded lecturer, Dr. Stone has presented data at the International Association of Chiefs of Police conference, Texas Chiefs Association, The FBI National Academy, and many other state, local, and federal law-enforcement agencies.

Chief Noel March

Sigma Tactical Wellness

Noel C. March serves as Chief Strategy Officer for Sigma Tactical Wellness, LLC as well as faculty of Justice Studies and Director of the Maine Community Policing Institute at University of Maine at Augusta (UMA).

From 2010 to 2018 he served as an appointee of President Barack Obama as the United States Marshal in Maine where he represented the U.S. Department of Justice in the protection of our federal courts and judges, the investigation and apprehension of federal fugitives, the investigation of registered sex offenders, confiscation of criminal assets and support of the witness protection program.

Chief March is a nationally recognized subject-matter-expert in Community Oriented Policing who presently sits on the International Association of Chiefs of Police (IACP) Board of Directors. He is also the author of an award-winning online police training program, and he instructs and speaks on community engagement topics at colleges and conferences internationally.

His work has been featured in The Police Chief, the ASLET Trainer, the FBI National Academy Associate and University Business magazines. He is a decorated veteran of law enforcement in Connecticut and Maine, where he has also held the ranks of Police Officer, Drug Unit Supervisor, and Chief Deputy Sheriff.

Noel is a graduate of the 170th session of the prestigious FBI National Academy as well as the University of New England and the University of Maine Graduate School, where he earned degrees in Organizational Leadership and Peace & Reconciliation Studies, respectively.

The Leadership APB Podcast Series engages law enforcement and public safety executives in discussions on timely and current topics affecting first responders around the world. These leaders share their leadership and managerial philosophies and successes and obstacles they have encountered in their careers.

New podcasts are scheduled to be released on the first Wednesday of every month. Subscribe to be the first to know about any new broadcasts coming your way.

Policing and Policy

DOJ Evaluating Supervised Drug Consumption Sites

The Washington Times (2/8) reports the US Department of Justice (DOJ) recently said it is evaluating supervised drug consumption sites. According to the DOJ, that evaluation process includes “discussions with state and local regulators about appropriate guardrails for such sites, as part of an overall approach to harm reduction and public safety.” The Times highlights that people who support opening supervised drug consumption sites claim they can help prevent overdoses. The New York Post (2/8) and HealthDay (2/8) also cover this story.

DHS Secretary: No Known Threats To Super Bowl

The AP (2/8, Weber) reports there are no known “security threats to the Super Bowl, authorities said Tuesday as they outlined the coordinated law enforcement effort to keep the game at SoFi Stadium and the Los Angeles region safe.” DHS Secretary Mayorkas “said at least 500 members of his department are devoted to safety for the big game, including agents focused on ferreting out cyber threats and preventing human trafficking.” Mayorkas said while there is “no information of a specific, credible threat against the Super Bowl,” DHS is focused on “planning and preparation to prevent any incident from occurring.” The city police department “in Inglewood, where the stadium is located, is the lead local law enforcement agency. It will coordinate with the Los Angeles Police Department and the LA County Sheriff’s Department.”

WPost Examines Level Of, Response To Human Trafficking Linked To Super Bowl. The Washington Post (2/8) reports that law enforcement and victims’ advocates differ on the correct approach to sex trafficking ahead of large events like the Super Bowl, and that “several academic studies have found no causal relationship between large sporting events and an increase in sex trafficking.” The Los Angeles County Sheriff’s Department “told The Washington Post that its Human Trafficking Task Force (HTTF) will be working with the Federal Bureau of Investigation, the Department of Homeland Security and several local police departments to respond to human trafficking during the Super Bowl.”

Experts Discuss Promise Of Crime Intervention Programs

ABC News (2/8, Stewart, Kiesch) reports, "In North Lawndale," a West Chicago neighborhood that is "laden with crime and poverty, Derek Brown, founder of Boxing Out Negativity, has taken the fight against gun violence off the street and into the ring. His program provides mentorship and a safe space for at-risk youth who are more likely to be swept up into street life." Brown stated, "In order to be 'bad' here, you have to run at least five miles a day, exercise all day," and "repeat the same techniques over and over and over until you" have mastered those techniques. Some experts "say examining the environment that perpetuates gun violence is key to understanding the latest uptick in communities of color. Dr. David Ansell, the senior vice president for community health equity at Rush University Medical Center in Chicago and author of 'The Death Gap: How Inequality Kills,' told ABC News that public health and poverty are directly correlated to high rates of gun violence."

Portland, Oregon Police Contract Includes Retention Bonuses, Premium Pay For Crisis Intervention Training

The Oregonian (2/8, Bernstein) reports, "Portland police officers could get between a 13% to 20% pay increase under a tentative four-year contract, including retention bonuses, wage bumps for completing required crisis intervention training and earning higher education degrees and cost-of-living adjustments." According to the Oregonian, "The contract doesn't include a policy on body-worn cameras but contains a new guide governing police discipline and allows for the expansion of the Portland Street Response program, which dispatches a mental health worker and fire paramedic to crisis calls. The city and the Portland Police Association still remain far apart on whether officers should be allowed to view body-camera footage before they're interviewed or write police reports." The contract, "to run from July 1, 2021, through June 30, 2025, must be approved by the City Council and a majority of the members of the Portland Police Association, which represents 881 officers, detectives, forensic criminalists and sergeants."

Kentucky Lawmakers Advance Bill On Assigning Officers To Schools

The AP (2/8, Schreiner) reports, "Kentucky lawmakers on Tuesday continued wrestling with a long-running challenge – how to get police officers assigned to every school campus, an issue intensified by a 2018 school shooting." The House Education Committee "advanced a bill to require Kentucky school districts to have an officer assigned to each campus by August," but "the panel revised the measure, acknowledging that some districts are struggling to meet the standard because of insufficient funding or law enforcement staffing. Under a change to the bill, those districts would work with the state school security marshal to work out a plan to achieve the expectation of having a school resource officer at each campus." The AP notes, "More than half of Kentucky's schools do not have a resource officer, according to an August report from the state school security marshal."

San Francisco Hires 100 Workers To Boost Mental Health, Drug Treatment After Mayor Declares State Of Emergency

The San Francisco Chronicle (2/8, Moench) reports, “Under Mayor London Breed’s Tenderloin state of emergency, San Francisco quickly hired 100 public health workers to fill vacant positions that have hindered reform of the city’s mental health and substance use disorder care system.” Breed said Tuesday, “The expedited hiring of these behavioral health workers is proof that when we cut through bureaucracy and aggressively address our City’s most pressing needs, we can make real, tangible change and deliver services faster.”

Join us at IACP 2022 from October 15-18 in Dallas, Texas. We invite you to help design the program by submitting a workshop proposal today. Deadline for submissions is February 23, 2022. We look forward to seeing you in Dallas.

Police In Belgium Arrest 13 After Anti-Terror Raids

The AP (2/8) reports from Brussels, “Police in Belgium detained 13 people on Tuesday following raids in and around the port city of Antwerp as part of an investigation into alleged terror activities.” The AP adds, “According to the federal prosecutor’s office, the suspects were all part of the same group, which it described as close to ‘Salafist’ circles. About 100 police officers were involved in the operation. The prosecutor’s office did not reveal details of the group’s plans, but said the police operation was not aimed at stopping an imminent threat of attack.” Belgium “has been hit by several terror attacks in the past decade, including suicide bombings in 2016 that killed 32 people and injured hundreds more in the Brussels subway and airport.”

DEA Administrator: China, Social Media Firms Key To Fentanyl Fight

In an interview that was aired during the CNN (2/8) show “At This Hour,” DEA Administrator Anne Milgram said, “China needs to do more” to help keep illicit fentanyl and other synthetic drugs out of the US. Milgram said many of the US citizens who face a fatal overdose threat due to the presence of illicit fentanyl in the illegal drug market are unaware that they face that threat. When asked to speak about online sales of drugs that contain illicit fentanyl, Milgram said “social media companies...know exactly what the drug traffickers are doing.” According to Milgram, those companies track everything “that happens on their sites” and they could stop illicit drug sales, but “we have not seen them” do that up to this point.

Study Finds Spike In Overdose Deaths Among Black US Citizens

Medscape (2/8, Subscription Publication) reports, “Tarlise Townsend, PhD, a postdoctoral researcher at the Center for Opioid Epidemiology and Policy at NYU Langone Health,” led a study that found the “rate of Black Americans dying from a combination of opioids and cocaine increased by 575%” between 2007 and 2019. TIME (2/8, Law) publishes a similar article.

DEA Investigating Recent Overdose Deaths In Nebraska

On its website, WOWT-TV Omaha, NE (2/8, Mastre) reports DEA Public Information Officer Emily Murray said the DEA is involved with the investigation of recent drug overdose deaths in Nebraska. The investigation comes as “the powerful synthetic opioid fentanyl has been flooding Omaha and every other part of the country.” In a related website article, KETV-TV Omaha, NE (2/9, Fili) reports, “The Omaha branch of the Drug Enforcement Administration said” illicit fentanyl is fueling an increase in overdoses in Nebraska and other US states. Murray stated, “We’re seeing it laced in with other drugs, whether it’s cocaine, methamphetamine,” or “heroin, but we’re also seeing it pressed into” counterfeit pills. Murray warned that taking any pill that has not been appropriately prescribed to you is “like playing Russian roulette. If a drug dealer or a seller can provide a drug to 10 different people, and let’s say two of those people die, they’re still going to have eight people who are...going to come back to them time and time again.”

Technology

CISA Plans To Enlist Mayors To Shore Up Local Cyberdefense Efforts

USA Today (2/8, Meyer) reports CISA head Jen Easterly “says ransomware and other digital threats have made local governments around the nation vulnerable as never before.” In response, Easterly has “mapped out a battle plan for fighting back,” and along with Austin Mayor Steve Adler in an interview “said their first order of business is to convince leaders at the municipal level that they need to take ownership of the problem given the tens of thousands of bullseye targets in their communities. And their second is to let America’s mayors know that Washington, and especially CISA, has lots of new money and organizational bandwidth to help them.”

Special Alert | February 9, 2022 Don't miss ILACP Major Bill Review and Priority Setting today, handout with detailed information about attached

All ILACP members are invited to observe and participate in our annual major meeting to review bills filed in Springfield and to set priorities for 2022.

In the past couple of years, your participation and insights have been helpful as we establish our positions on bills. Members also find this session informative. Feel free to forward this to others in your department who will be interested. A handout will be available soon, certainly before the meeting, so we all have the same sheet that we're working from.

9:30 a.m. to 1:30 p.m.

Wednesday, February 9, 2022

<https://us02web.zoom.us/j/89244384996>

We will review new bills filed, go over recent lists, and discuss priorities for the 2022 spring session.

The handout is attached and can be found on our website here.

Course Description

his 1 day, 8-hour program has been designed by Illinois Educational Training and Standards Board to provide students with the required 8-hour mental health awareness and response training. This course is meant to provide law enforcement officers with an awareness of mental health issues including a history of mental health systems, types of mental illness, signs and symptoms, common treatments, and potential interactions law enforcement may have on a regular basis with these individuals, their families, and service providers. Officer wellness and suicide prevention will also be discussed. COURSE GOALS: - Recognize the history of the mental health system and its impact on law enforcement and the criminal justice system - Discuss mental illness - Detail risk assessment and crisis response skills - Increase awareness of appropriate law enforcement interaction with individuals who have mental illness - Examine the Illinois mental health code and legal issues - Identify community resources - Understand the importance of officer wellness This course is taught by Lt. Troy Siewert of the Orland Park Police Department. Lt. Siewert has been with the Orland Park Police Department for 28 years and holds a Master's Degree in Criminal Social Justice from Lewis University. He is a certified CIT Coordinator, CIT Officer, Crisis Negotiator and Mental Health First Aid Instructor as well as a CIT role play evaluator for the Illinois Law Enforcement Training and Standards Board. Lt. Siewert started the OPPD Crisis Intervention Team (CIT) in 2015 and has developed the program into what is now recognized as a standard for best practice. In 2018, Lt. Siewert worked on a committee for the International Association of Chiefs of Police to update their model policy for Responding to Persons Affected by Mental Illness or in Crisis.

Course Description

his 1 day, 8-hour program has been designed by Illinois Educational Training and Standards Board to provide students with the required 8-hour mental health awareness and response training. This course is meant to provide law enforcement officers with an awareness of mental health issues including a history of mental health systems, types of mental illness, signs and symptoms, common treatments, and potential interactions law enforcement may have on a regular basis with these individuals, their families, and service providers. Officer wellness and suicide prevention will also be discussed. COURSE GOALS: - Recognize the history of the mental health system and its impact on law enforcement and the criminal justice system - Discuss mental illness - Detail risk assessment and crisis response skills - Increase awareness of appropriate law enforcement interaction with individuals who have mental illness - Examine the Illinois mental health code and legal issues - Identify community resources - Understand the importance of officer wellness This course is taught by Lt. Troy Siewert of the Orland Park Police Department. Lt. Siewert has been with the Orland Park Police Department for 28 years and holds a Master's Degree in Criminal Social Justice from Lewis University. He is a certified CIT Coordinator, CIT Officer, Crisis Negotiator and Mental Health First Aid Instructor as well as a CIT role play evaluator for the Illinois Law Enforcement Training and Standards Board. Lt. Siewert started the OPPD Crisis Intervention Team (CIT) in 2015 and has developed the program into what is now recognized as a standard for best practice. In 2018, Lt. Siewert worked on a committee for the International Association of Chiefs of Police to update their model policy for Responding to Persons Affected by Mental Illness or in Crisis.

Village of Niles Public Records

You have been added as support staff to request #22-72.

To Whom It May Concern:

Pursuant to the Illinois Freedom of Information Act., I hereby request the following records: Any and all written records (including but not limited to hard-copy documents, memos, emails, word processor documents, PDF documents, PowerPoint files, etc.) between September 1, 2021 and the date this request is processed (inclusive of those dates) pertaining to the Illinois Law Enforcement Accreditation Program (ILEAP) of the Illinois Association of Chiefs of Police (IACP). This includes records containing (but not limited to) one or more of the following words, terms, or phrases (case-insensitive):

- "Illinois Law Enforcement Accreditation Program"
- "ILEAP"
- "tier 2"
- "tier two"
- "phase II"
- "Association of Chiefs of Police"
- "IACP"
- "ILACP"

On September 22nd and 23rd, 2021, a team from the Illinois Law Enforcement Accreditation Program (ILEAP) of the Illinois Association of Chiefs of Police assessed the Niles Police Department for tier 2 of this program. In public comments, an organizer with the Northwest Side Coalition Against Racism & Hate made the following appeal:

"I am a resident of Niles and an organizer with the Northwest Side Coalition Against Racism & Hate. I am commenting here today to address the ability of the Niles Police Department to meet the standards for the Illinois Law Enforcement Accreditation Program, known as ILEAP for tier 2. This is a program of the Illinois Association of Chiefs of Police, also known as IACP. Please bear with me as there is a lot to unpack regarding the Niles Police so I will offer a bit of history. In the spring of 2020, Niles police were menacing the community with face masks depicting the decisive and racist thin blue line. It wasn't until the Northwest Side Coalition Against Racism & Hate raised the issue that the face masks were banned. This story was written about in local news outlets and on WGNTV. We asked for three reforms of restitution of the Village of Niles. They were:

- Create and fund a permanent Office of Equity and Racial Justice to craft and implement a Racial Equity Impact Assessment and plan for the Village of Niles.
- Elect a Civilian Police Accountability Council to ensure democratic control over the police.
- Mandate effective annual anti-racism training for all elected officials and village employees, including cops.

These were necessary because it became apparent that Niles police did not recognize the harmful nature of this symbol to the community they are sworn to serve. They showed no remorse or recognition of their betrayal of the public trust. The IACP themselves, in fact, went against the advice of their partners the NAACP and their own Diversity Committee when the executive director wrote:

"We don't consider the display of the thin blue line as a "direct violation" of our Ten Shared Principles" and added that the NAACP disagrees with him about that.

There was one Niles police officer that we know of though, who said:

"I believe we should have abandoned these masks after the Minneapolis tragedy, seeing as though we have all "affirmed" the 10-shared principles of policing with the NAACP. I believe we should practice what we have affirmed."

The name of that police officer was Nick Beyer. Nick Beyer, the very same cop who blew the whistle on Niles PD in a recent scandal involving a wellness check that was covered up. Harassed and forced to resign, Nick Beyer is now suing the Village of Niles for retaliation.

Ironically, Nick Beyer managed the accreditation process of ILEAP tier 1. In a May 1st 2021 email to the the executive director of the IACP, Nick Beyer said:

"I feel at this moment that the agency's accreditation status should be suspended until the ILEAP Board of Directors consider my complaint and allegations of misconduct,"

I hope that the concerns of Beyer, a then, police officer of Niles, the original manager of the tier 1 accreditation, a whistleblower, is being taken seriously. How is it that tier 2 accreditation is being considered when the facts of the whistleblower case hasn't even been publicly disclosed? Facts that Beyer considers important enough to suspend ILEAP accreditation for tier 1.

We have seen how this ILEAP accreditation program is wielded. Several times when faced with taking accountability for their actions, Nile Police instinctively mention this ILEAP accreditation as a red herring. When questioned regarding the thin blue line face mask issue at a December 10th Community Relations Commission meeting, Deputy Chief of Police Joseph Penze asserted that. "Niles is one of the first police departments to be accredited by the federal government for meeting certain standards. They are working on Phase II of the accreditation."

Now quite recently, Police chief Luis Tigera is at it again. He officially rescinded the thin blue line face mask ban for one day, once again mocking the community's concerns over their racist thin blue line.

Where is the accountability? If Niles Police can don divisive symbols and coverup misbehavior while retaining their standing in ILEAP tier 1 and the 10 Shared Principles, what assurance is there that they will abide by the accreditation for tier 2. Or is this is just a rubber stamping exercise. That would reveal to us a systemic effort of obfuscation that further entrenches the thin blue line that is dividing our communities. Is that the role of the Illinois Association of Chiefs of Police?

Thank you for listening to me today. I can be reached at this email address: "

The requested documents will be made available to the general public, and this request is not being made for commercial purposes.

In the event that there are fees, I would be grateful if you would inform me of the total charges in advance of fulfilling my request. I would prefer the request filled electronically, by e-mail attachment if available or CD-ROM if not.

Thank you in advance for your anticipated cooperation in this matter. I look forward to receiving your response to this request within 5 business days, as the statute requires.

Sincerely,

Northwestside Coalition

Not sure how much training PowerDMS is giving the ILEAP agencies.
With CALEA agencies they can opt for onboarding training sessions

when they sign on.

I have been using it way before CALEA went to
it so had none of that training. When at Schaumburg,
I believe we started using it in 2003 or 2004.

So, would need to know what PowerDMS is offering ILEAP agencies

for training. Or I guess we could just take questions and give demo answers, if we think that would work.

Haven't heard back from Larry via email but I will call him shortly as I think he may already have something put together along these lines.

Only thought I had is in regards to PowerDMS training. I'm so new to it and figuring out the ins and outs. ILEAP is now requiring PowerDMS as the platform for their accreditation so many towns are in the same boat of that learning curve.

Good morning,

I haven't a clue what we could do for February training. Does anyone have anything.

I'm also wondering how many attendees actually stay for the training and if there is some way we can track who signs off before the training.

Of course, this would depend on the attendees interest in the particular training offered any given month.

When the training is an hour or more I'm afraid we may lose some members... difficult sometimes to take a two hour (or more) chunk out of the day.

Any thoughts?

DHS Issues New Terrorism Threat Bulletin

Reuters (2/7, Singh) reports the US faces heightened threats “from extremist groups domestic and foreign, underscored by last month’s hostage standoff crisis in a Texas synagogue and bomb threats at many historically Black colleges and universities, a US government agency said on Monday.” According to a US Department of Homeland Security (DHS) bulletin, threats “directed at Historically Black Colleges and Universities (HBCUs) and other colleges and universities, Jewish facilities, and churches cause concern and may inspire extremist threat actors to mobilize to violence.” The department warned that foreign terrorists also “remain intent on targeting the United States and US persons, and may seek to capitalize on the evolving security environment overseas to plot attacks.”

CBS News (2/7, Sganga) reports the warning said that the “primary terrorism-related threat to the United States continues to stem from lone offenders or small cells of individuals” whose grievances are increasingly “cultivated through the consumption of certain online content.”

CNN (2/7, Sands) reports the bulletin “outlines the key factors that have increased the volatility, unpredictability, and complexity of the current threat environment, and highlights resources for individuals and communities to stay safe,” DHS Secretary Mayorkas said in a statement. What stands out in “Monday’s bulletin, according to Thomas Warrick, director of the Atlantic Council’s Future of DHS Project, is the emphasis on false and misleading narratives and conspiracy theories, originating with or amplified by foreign and domestic threat actors.”

DHS Warns Midterms May Be Flashpoint For Extremist Violence. The AP (2/7, Fox) reports this year’s midterm elections are “emerging as a rallying point for domestic extremists and foreign adversaries seeking to disrupt the US and incite violence, the Department of Homeland Security warned Monday.” Unsubstantiated fraud claims, “which have haunted the country since the 2020 presidential election, may be used to fuel unrest and doubts about the elections to decide control of Congress, DHS officials said as the agency issued a new national terrorism advisory.” A senior DHS official, “speaking on condition of anonymity to discuss the terrorism advisory before its release, told reporters that part of their objective may be to sow discord and undermine credibility

Administration Weighs Expanding Limits On “No-Knock” Warrants

The AP (2/7, Long, Balsamo) reports the Administration “is considering expanding a policy that limits the use of ‘no-knock’ warrants by certain federal agents. A ‘no-knock warrant,’ as its name implies, is an order from a judge that allows law enforcement officials with a search warrant to enter a home without announcing their presence first. It’s an exemption to usual practice; in most cases, the law requires that officers must knock and announce themselves before entering a private home to execute a warrant.” White House Press Secretary Jen Psaki “said Monday that President Joe Biden was looking at whether to further limit federal agents’ use of the tactic after a local SWAT team in Minneapolis fatally shot Amir Locke, a 22-year-old Black man. The Justice Department announced in September that it was curtailing the use of ‘no-knock’ warrants by its federal agents. Psaki said Biden is now weighing an expansion to other federal agencies.”

Justice Department Says It Is Evaluating Safe Injection Sites

The AP (2/7, Peltz, Balsamo) reports, “In response to questions from The Associated Press, the Justice Department said it is ‘evaluating’” safe injection sites and is “talking to regulators about ‘appropriate guardrails.’” The AP says that this “position is a drastic change from its stance in the Trump administration, when prosecutors fought vigorously against a plan to open a safe consumption site in Philadelphia.” The National Institutes of Health in December “issued a call for harm reduction research that mentioned safe consumption sites, among other approaches.”

Maine Lawmakers Advance Plan To Extend Mental Health Support To First Responders

The AP (2/7) reports from Augusta, Maine, “A Maine legislative committee signed off Monday on a proposal to try to help emergency responders better access mental health support.” The proposal “establishes a presumption that firefighters, emergency medical technicians, police officers, emergency dispatchers and others who are diagnosed as having post- traumatic stress disorder have the condition because of ‘extraordinary and unusual work stress,’ a bill before the Maine Legislature states. The Legislature’s Labor and Housing Committee unanimously approved” that bill on Monday. The AP adds, “The full Maine Legislature must still vote on” the bill.

Connecticut Governor Unveils Gun Control Proposals

The Hartford (CT) Courant (2/7, Keating) reports that Connecticut Gov. Ned Lamont “unveiled a $64 million gun control and law enforcement package Monday that calls for strengthening gun enforcement, hiring more police, reducing court backlogs, helping crime victims, and tracking guns more efficiently.” According to the Courant, “The package calls for spending millions of dollars for hiring and training police, along with creating a new gun-tracing task force to stem the steady flow of illegal guns that cross the Connecticut border on a constant basis. Money will also be set aside for a statewide program to buy guns back from owners in order to get them out of circulation. Lamont also wants to slow down the spread of ‘ghost guns,’ which are banned in Connecticut. The homemade guns – which do not have serial numbers – currently do not require registration if crafted before 2019. The new registration would allow the guns to be traced.”

New DEA Initiative Seeks To Prevent Overdose Deaths

An Audacy report that is posted to the WINS-AM New York (2/7) website covers Operation Overdrive, a newly announced DEA initiative that “aims to combat drug-related violent crime and overdose deaths.” The report quotes DEA Administrator Anne Milgram, who said “The gravity of these threats requires a data-driven approach to pinpoint” and target “the most dangerous networks threatening our communities.” The New York Post (2/7) reports the DEA is “targeting the Bronx and upstate Buffalo as part of a new multi-city attack on drug-related violence and overdoses.” The Buffalo (NY) News (2/7, Besecker) reports, “Buffalo is among 34 cities across the country included in a new” DEA initiative that aims to stem “the rise of drug overdose deaths and gun violence.”

FBI Investigating Bomb Threats Against 17 Historically Black Colleges, Universities

The AP (2/7, Mumphrey) reports that “the FBI is now investigating last week’s bomb threats against at least 17 historically Black colleges and universities across the U.S.” DeJuana Thompson, president and CEO of the Birmingham Civil Rights Institute, “said the threats underscore the need to teach new generations the history of violence targeting people of color so the lessons of the past can be applied to the present.” The FBI “said the hate crimes probe involves more than 20 field offices and ‘is of the highest priority.’” A law enforcement official said investigators have identified at least five “persons of interest.” Meanwhile, “universities in Arkansas, Delaware, Florida, Georgia, Kentucky, Louisiana, Maryland, Mississippi, and other states targeted last week have resumed operations since the lockdowns. But many still worry about future threats and efforts to prosecute those responsible.”

One Person Is Killed In Grocery Store Shooting In Richland, Washington

The New York Times (2/7, Diaz, Lukpat, Jimenez) reports that “one person was killed and another person was injured in a shooting at a grocery store in Richland, Wash., on Monday morning, the authorities said.” Cmdr. Chris Lee of the Richland Police Department said “police officers responded just after 11 a.m. to reports of a shooting inside a Fred Meyer grocery store.” Lee “said that the authorities were searching for the gunman, who had fled and had not been found.” Police “said they had identified the gunman but did not release his name at a news conference on Monday.”

Study: 40% Of Survey Respondents Reported Driving Under Influence

An online CNN (2/8, Rogers) article says Priscila Dib Gonçalves, who “is a postdoctoral research fellow in the epidemiology department at Columbia University’s Mailman School of Public Health,” co-authored a study that focused on people who drive under the influence of alcohol or marijuana. The study found that more than “40% of drivers reporting alcohol and cannabis use in a national survey also reported driving under the influence of one or both of the substances.”

St. Louis Official Issues Warning About Dangerous Batch Of Suspected Fentanyl After Seventh Death In Same City Section

The AP (2/7) reports that interim St. Louis Public Safety Director Dan Isom “on Monday issued a warning about a dangerous batch of what is suspected to be fentanyl after a seventh person in the same area of the city died of an apparent overdose.” According to the AP, “Isom said federal agents and police were trying to determine the origin of the drug. Authorities believe fentanyl is responsible but won’t know for sure until testing is performed.”

The Justice Department announced in September that it was curtailing the use of ‘no-knock’ warrants by its federal agents. Psaki said Biden is now weighing an expansion to other federal agencies.”

Justice Department Says It Is Evaluating Safe Injection Sites

The AP (2/7, Peltz, Balsamo) reports, “In response to questions from The Associated Press, the Justice Department said it is ‘evaluating’ safe injection sites and is “talking to regulators about ‘appropriate guardrails.’” The AP says that this “position is a drastic change from its stance in the Trump administration, when prosecutors fought vigorously against a plan to open a safe consumption site in Philadelphia.” The National Institutes of Health in December “issued a call for harm reduction research that mentioned safe consumption sites, among other approaches.”

Maine Lawmakers Advance Plan To Extend Mental Health Support To First Responders

The AP (2/7) reports from Augusta, Maine, “A Maine legislative committee signed off Monday on a proposal to try to help emergency responders better access mental health support.” The proposal “establishes a presumption that firefighters, emergency medical technicians, police officers, emergency dispatchers and others who are diagnosed as having post- traumatic stress disorder have the condition because of ‘extraordinary and unusual work stress,’ a bill before the Maine Legislature states. The Legislature’s Labor and Housing Committee unanimously approved” that bill on Monday. The AP adds, “The full Maine Legislature must still vote on” the bill.

Connecticut Governor Unveils Gun Control Proposals

The Hartford (CT) Courant (2/7, Keating) reports that Connecticut Gov. Ned Lamont “unveiled a $64 million gun control and law enforcement package Monday that calls for strengthening gun enforcement, hiring more police, reducing court backlogs, helping crime victims, and tracking guns more efficiently.” According to the Courant, “The package calls for spending millions of dollars for hiring and training police, along with creating a new gun-tracing task force to stem the steady flow of illegal guns that cross the Connecticut border on a constant basis. Money will also be set aside for a statewide program to buy guns back from owners in order to get them out of circulation. Lamont also wants to slow down the spread of ‘ghost guns,’ which are banned in Connecticut. The homemade guns – which do not have serial numbers – currently do not require registration if crafted before 2019. The new registration would allow the guns to be traced.”

New DEA Initiative Seeks To Prevent Overdose Deaths

An Audacy report that is posted to the WINS-AM New York (2/7) website covers Operation Overdrive, a newly announced DEA initiative that “aims to combat drug-related violent crime and overdose deaths.” The report quotes DEA Administrator Anne Milgram, who said “The gravity of these threats requires a data-driven approach to pinpoint” and target “the most dangerous networks threatening our communities.” The New York Post (2/7) reports the DEA is “targeting the Bronx and upstate Buffalo as part of a new multi-city attack on drug-related violence and overdoses.” The Buffalo (NY) News (2/7, Besecker) reports, “Buffalo is among 34 cities across the country included in a new” DEA initiative that aims to stem “the rise of drug overdose deaths and gun violence.”

FBI Investigating Bomb Threats Against 17 Historically Black Colleges, Universities

The AP (2/7, Mumphrey) reports that “the FBI is now investigating last week’s bomb threats against at least 17 historically Black colleges and universities across the U.S.” DeJuana Thompson, president and CEO of the Birmingham Civil Rights Institute, “said the threats underscore the need to teach new generations the history of violence targeting people of color so the lessons of the past can be applied to the present.” The FBI “said the hate crimes probe involves more than 20 field offices and ‘is of the highest priority.’” A law enforcement official said investigators have identified at least five “persons of interest.” Meanwhile, “universities in Arkansas, Delaware, Florida, Georgia, Kentucky, Louisiana, Maryland, Mississippi, and other states targeted last week have resumed operations since the lockdowns. But many still worry about future threats and efforts to prosecute those responsible.”

One Person Is Killed In Grocery Store Shooting In Richland, Washington

The New York Times (2/7, Diaz, Lukpat, Jimenez) reports that “one person was killed and another person was injured in a shooting at a grocery store in Richland, Wash., on Monday morning, the authorities said.” Cmdr. Chris Lee of the Richland Police Department said “police officers responded just after 11 a.m. to reports of a shooting inside a Fred Meyer grocery store.” Lee “said that the authorities were searching for the gunman, who had fled and had not been found.” Police “said they had identified the gunman but did not release his name at a news conference on Monday.”

Study: 40% Of Survey Respondents Reported Driving Under Influence

An online CNN (2/8, Rogers) article says Priscila Dib Gonçalves, who “is a postdoctoral research fellow in the epidemiology department at Columbia University’s Mailman School of Public Health,” co-authored a study that focused on people who drive under the influence of alcohol or marijuana. The study found that more than “40% of drivers reporting alcohol and cannabis use in a national survey also reported driving under the influence of one or both of the substances.”

St. Louis Official Issues Warning About Dangerous Batch Of Suspected Fentanyl After Seventh Death In Same City Section

The AP (2/7) reports that interim St. Louis Public Safety Director Dan Isom “on Monday issued a warning about a dangerous batch of what is suspected to be fentanyl after a seventh person in the same area of the city died of an apparent overdose.” According to the AP, “Isom said federal agents and police were trying to determine the origin of the drug. Authorities believe fentanyl is responsible but won’t know for sure until testing is performed.”

DHS Issues New Terrorism Threat Bulletin

Reuters (2/7, Singh) reports the US faces heightened threats “from extremist groups domestic and foreign, underscored by last month’s hostage standoff crisis in a Texas synagogue and bomb threats at many historically Black colleges and universities, a US government agency said on Monday.” According to a US Department of Homeland Security (DHS) bulletin, threats “directed at Historically Black Colleges and Universities (HBCUs) and other colleges and universities, Jewish facilities, and churches cause concern and may inspire extremist threat actors to mobilize to violence.” The department warned that foreign terrorists also “remain intent on targeting the United States and US persons, and may seek to capitalize on the evolving security environment overseas to plot attacks.”

CBS News (2/7, Sganga) reports the warning said that the “primary terrorism-related threat to the United States continues to stem from lone offenders or small cells of individuals” whose grievances are increasingly “cultivated through the consumption of certain online content.”

CNN (2/7, Sands) reports the bulletin “outlines the key factors that have increased the volatility, unpredictability, and complexity of the current threat environment, and highlights resources for individuals and communities to stay safe,” DHS Secretary Mayorkas said in a statement. What stands out in “Monday’s bulletin, according to Thomas Warrick, director of the Atlantic Council’s Future of DHS Project, is the emphasis on false and misleading narratives and conspiracy theories, originating with or amplified by foreign and domestic threat actors.”

DHS Warns Midterms May Be Flashpoint For Extremist Violence. The AP (2/7, Fox) reports this year’s midterm elections are “emerging as a rallying point for domestic extremists and foreign adversaries seeking to disrupt the US and incite violence, the Department of Homeland Security warned Monday.” Unsubstantiated fraud claims, “which have haunted the country since the 2020 presidential election, may be used to fuel unrest and doubts about the elections to decide control of Congress, DHS officials said as the agency issued a new national terrorism advisory.” A senior DHS official, “speaking on condition of anonymity to discuss the terrorism advisory before its release, told reporters that part of their objective may be to sow discord and undermine credibility

Administration Weighs Expanding Limits On “No-Knock” Warrants

The AP (2/7, Long, Balsamo) reports the Administration “is considering expanding a policy that limits the use of ‘no-knock’ warrants by certain federal agents. A ‘no-knock warrant,’ as its name implies, is an order from a judge that allows law enforcement officials with a search warrant to enter a home without announcing their presence first. It’s an exemption to usual practice; in most cases, the law requires that officers must knock and announce themselves before entering a private home to execute a warrant.” White House Press Secretary Jen Psaki “said Monday that President Joe Biden was looking at whether to further limit federal agents’ use of the tactic after a local SWAT team in Minneapolis fatally shot Amir Locke, a 22-year-old Black man. The Justice Department announced in September that it was curtailing the use of ‘no-knock’ warrants by its federal agents. Psaki said Biden is now weighing an expansion to other federal agencies.”

Justice Department Says It Is Evaluating Safe Injection Sites

The AP (2/7, Peltz, Balsamo) reports, “In response to questions from The Associated Press, the Justice Department said it is ‘evaluating’ safe injection sites and is “talking to regulators about ‘appropriate guardrails.’” The AP says that this “position is a drastic change from its stance in the Trump administration, when prosecutors fought vigorously against a plan to open a safe consumption site in Philadelphia.” The National Institutes of Health in December “issued a call for harm reduction research that mentioned safe consumption sites, among other approaches.”

Coming this week: ILACP Major Bill Review and Priority Setting

All ILACP members are invited to observe and participate in our annual major meeting to review bills filed in Springfield and to set priorities for 2022.

In the past couple of years, your participation and insights have been helpful as we establish our positions on bills. Members also find this session informative. Feel free to forward this to others in your department who will be interested. A handout will be available soon, certainly before the meeting, so we all have the same sheet that we're working from.

9:30 a.m. to 1:30 p.m.

Wednesday, February 9, 2022

<https://us02web.zoom.us/j/89244384996>

We will review new bills filed, go over recent lists, and discuss priorities for the 2022 spring session.

Watch for a handout soon.

Coming this week: ILACP Major Bill Review and Priority Setting

All ILACP members are invited to observe and participate in our annual major meeting to review bills filed in Springfield and to set priorities for 2022.

In the past couple of years, your participation and insights have been helpful as we establish our positions on bills. Members also find this session informative. Feel free to forward this to others in your department who will be interested. A handout will be available soon, certainly before the meeting, so we all have the same sheet that we're working from.

9:30 a.m. to 1:30 p.m.

Wednesday, February 9, 2022

<https://us02web.zoom.us/j/89244384996>

We will review new bills filed, go over recent lists, and discuss priorities for the 2022 spring session.

Watch for a handout soon.

Critical Incident Management

Responding to a critical incident requires a complex and multi-faceted approach - the way in which the event is handled can quickly determine whether it evolves into a crisis situation. While proper preparation for such events is crucial, planning for the unknown can often feel like a daunting task.

To help agencies address critical incidents in their communities, IACP Immediate Past President Cynthia Renaud convened a group of police leaders to examine the topic of critical incident response. Divided into three subcommittees, participants focused on steps agencies can take to prepare for, manage, and recover from, a critical incident.

The following provides a brief overview from each of the subcommittee chairs and highlights key takeaways and leading practices from the discussions. A supplemental list of IACP resources is also included to provide additional policy guidance and examples from the field.

In addition, find the Speakers Series Session from IACP 2021: Critical Incidents: Preparation, Response, and Management, which featured an expert panel discussion on lessons learned, leading practices, and cutting-edge approaches that can assist agencies in dealing with unplanned critical incidents.

No two incidents are the same, but we can continue to learn from each other and adapt to ensure that when the next critical incident occurs, our communities are well prepared and able to start on the road to recovery sooner.

Preparation

No two critical incidents are the same, and planning for the unknown can be difficult. Any event can turn into a critical incident, but, in any situation, what remains important is knowing what to do before an incident becomes critical. Agency leaders can prepare for this by developing a framework for how to engage with the public when a situation escalates, engaging in tactical training, participating in critical incident drills, and developing and refining agency policy.

Transparent communication with the public helps establish realistic expectations. Use existing community relationships, and build new ones, to help give members of your community a better understanding of what to expect from the police when they respond to incidents such as protests, mass casualty incidents, or natural disasters. Keep members of the public regularly informed with clear communication, and establish shared expectations, roles, and responsibilities with community groups prior to the event. These actions will help build trust in police response and the policing organization.

Collaboration is also essential when preparing for a critical incident. When responding to a critical incident, other law enforcement and public safety agencies may assist. To better prepare all responders, work with neighboring agencies to develop a coordinated response strategy. Practicing response and training first-line leaders and command staff on how to communicate during a critical incident can set all public safety entities up for success when an event reaches a critical point.

It isn't always possible to predict how a situation can evolve during a critical incident, but taking these steps can help officers feel more prepared for their response.

— Chief Dwight Henninger, Vail Police Department, Colorado

Management

Effective management of any event can help ensure that a critical incident does not become a crisis. Having a plan to manage a critical incident before it starts can help mitigate any potential for escalation. Managing a critical incident includes communication, tactical response, officer and community safety, mutual aid, rules of engagement, and training.

Communication throughout a critical incident is a key element of incident management. Managing a critical incident requires coordination and informed decision-making for all law enforcement leaders involved. Agencies should use their public information officer or a designated agency representative to provide transparent, well thought out communications to the public and media representatives. Agencies should also ensure consistent, clear, continuous communications to their officers on the ground. When working collaboratively with other law enforcement agencies to manage an incident, use previously established guidelines and practices to ensure the same messages are getting to the right audiences. Law enforcement leaders should also leverage existing relationships with community groups and community leaders to help with messaging, gathering information on the ground, or calming community members.

When munitions or other crowd dispersal techniques are being considered for use during a critical incident, evaluate whether they will either help resolve, or further escalate the situation. Clear leadership on the authorization of less-lethal weapons is especially critical during civil disturbances involving large crowds. Many crowd control techniques that worked in previous incidents may not be as effective for incidents we are faced with now. Be strategic with how and when to use less-lethal force, and have other tools available instead. Proper authorization from leadership and documentation on the use of these tools can help ensure their use in accordance with policy, training, laws, and statutes.

When deploying a critical incident response, the mental aspects are just as important as the physical aspects. When less-lethal force seems necessary, ensure officers on the ground stick to their tactical training and understand the role emotions play in actions and reactions of both themselves and others involved in a critical incident. Critical incidents are always evolving and have a lot of moving parts, but public safety, including the safety of our officers, should remain the number one priority.

— Colonel Matthew Langer, Minnesota State Patrol

Recovery

Recovering from a critical incident is just as important as preparing for and managing a critical incident. Law enforcement agencies should take a collaborative approach to recovery that includes other agencies, sworn staff, professional staff, and community members. Consistent communication remains an integral part of recovery both externally and internally. Agency staff need to feel supported by their leadership, and community members need to feel supported by their police department. A collaborative approach ensures streamlined, transparent communication and opportunities to start the healing process.

Recovery often starts the moment a scene is secured, but the process does not have a definitive timeline, nor is it a linear process. Law enforcement leaders must understand that recovery will look different for everyone. Recovery can include getting people back to work, processing trauma, rebuilding parts of a community, reunifying families, conducting investigations, and repairing relationships between community members and the police. Agencies can prepare for the recovery phase of any critical incident by establishing protocols and plans in advance to address the many aspects of recovery.

Each critical incident will bring its own unique challenges, but it is important that law enforcement leaders learn the dos and don'ts of what comes after the response to a critical incident and how to move on. Ask yourself what a successful recovery will look like, and establish a plan for an after-action investigation to determine if recovery was successful. Lessons learned provide another tool to help law enforcement leaders heal their communities and better respond to any future incidents.

Only thought I had is in regards to PowerDMS training. I'm so new to it and figuring out the ins and outs. ILEAP is now requiring PowerDMS as the platform for their accreditation so many towns are in the same boat of that learning curve.

Good morning,

I haven't a clue what we could do for February training. Does anyone have anything.

I'm also wondering how many attendees actually stay for the training and if there is some way we can track who signs off before the training. Of course, this would depend on the attendees interest in the particular training offered any given month.

When the training is an hour or more I'm afraid we may lose some members... difficult sometimes to take a two hour (or more) chunk out of the day.

Any thoughts?

All,

Please see the below link and information on our newly voted on IPAC Scholarship Program. This link will require you utilize your members only password. If you do not know this password please reach out to your assigned VP. Thank you so much. We are so excited to be able to give back to our membership and truly live by our motto of “dedication to professionalism”

<https://www.i-pac.org/members-only-2/scholarship-application/>

This scholarship is offered only to IPAC agencies and members in good standing as defined by our bylaws. To be considered for this scholarship you must have attended (virtually or in-person) at least half of the IPAC meetings within the last 12 months. All applicants who apply by the due date of February 17, 2022, fully complete this application, and meet the requirements will be put into a random drawing which will be conducted during the IPAC meeting on February 19, 2022, using <https://wheelofnames.com/> .

There are two scholarships available for CALEA agencies and two available for ILEAP agencies. The CALEA Scholarships are for the attendance in the online accreditation manager training for a specific program (Law Enforcement, Training Academy, Public Safety Communications, and Campus Security). The dollar amount reimbursed will be up to $700 and will be done so after a certificate of completion has been presented to the Board.

The ILEAP scholarships are for attendance at the annual Illinois Association of Chiefs of Police Conference. The dollar amount reimbursed will be up to $350 and will be done so after proof of registration has been presented to the Board.

Course Description his 1 day, 8-hour program has been designed by Illinois Educational Training and Standards Board to provide students with the required 8-hour mental health awareness and response training. This course is meant to provide law enforcement officers with an awareness of mental health issues including a history of mental health systems, types of mental illness, signs and symptoms, common treatments, and potential interactions law enforcement may have on a regular basis with these individuals, their families, and service providers. Officer wellness and suicide prevention will also be discussed. COURSE GOALS: - Recognize the history of the mental health system and its impact on law enforcement and the criminal justice system - Discuss mental illness - Detail risk assessment and crisis response skills - Increase awareness of appropriate law enforcement interaction with individuals who have mental illness - Examine the Illinois mental health code and legal issues - Identify community resources - Understand the importance of officer wellness This course is taught by Lt. Troy Siewert of the Orland Park Police Department. Lt. Siewert has been with the Orland Park Police Department for 28 years and holds a Master's Degree in Criminal Social Justice from Lewis University. He is a certified CIT Coordinator, CIT Officer, Crisis Negotiator and Mental Health First Aid Instructor as well as a CIT role play evaluator for the Illinois Law Enforcement Training and Standards Board. Lt. Siewart started the OPPD Crisis Intervention Team (CIT) in 2015 and has developed the program into what is now recognized as a standard for best practice. In 2018, Lt. Siewert worked on a committee for the International Association of Chiefs of Police to update their model policy for Responding to Persons Affected by Mental Illness or in Crisis. COURSE GOALS: - Recognize the history of the mental health system and its impact on law enforcement and the criminal justice system - Discuss mental illness - Detail risk assessment and crisis response skills - Increase awareness of appropriate law enforcement interaction with individuals who have mental illness - Examine the Illinois mental health code and legal issues - Identify community resources - Understand the importance of officer wellness This course is taught by Lt. Troy Siewert of the Orland Park Police Department. Lt. Siewert has been with the Orland Park Police Department for 28 years and holds a Master's Degree in Criminal Social Justice from Lewis University. He is a certified CIT Coordinator, CIT Officer, Crisis Negotiator and Mental Health First Aid Instructor as well as a CIT role play evaluator for the Illinois Law Enforcement Training and Standards Board. Lt. Siewart started the OPPD Crisis Intervention Team (CIT) in 2015 and has developed the program into what is now recognized as a standard for best practice. In 2018, Lt. Siewert worked on a committee for the International Association of Chiefs of Police to update their model policy for Responding to Persons Affected by Mental Illness or in Crisis. Special Alert | February 7, 2022 Coming this week: ILACP Major Bill Review and Priority Setting

All ILACP members are invited to observe and participate in our annual major meeting to review bills filed in Springfield and to set priorities for 2022.

In the past couple of years, your participation and insights have been helpful as we establish our positions on bills. Members also find this session informative. Feel free to forward this to others in your department who will be interested. A handout will be available soon, certainly before the meeting, so we all have the same sheet that we're working from.

9:30 a.m. to 1:30 p.m.

Wednesday, February 9, 2022

<https://us02web.zoom.us/j/89244384996>

We will review new bills filed, go over recent lists, and discuss priorities for the 2022 spring session.

Watch for a handout soon.

Violence Project Finds Growing Number Of Americans Are Dying In Mass Shootings

Reuters (2/4, Lynch) reports the Violence Project, which is funded by the Justice Department's National Institute of Justice, "released on Friday sheds new light on the upward trend of mass shootings in the United States, finding that the number of Americans dying from mass shooters is on the rise, and most people who commit such acts of violence have a history of trauma or were in a state of crisis." Reuters says the analysis of 172 mass shootings "found that of all the mass shootings that took place between 1966 and 2019, more than half took place since 2000, with 20% of them occurring between 2010 and 2019. In the last five years of the study period, an average of 51 people died from mass shootings per year, compared with only eight people in the 1970s."

NYPD Police Captain Uses Community-Based Anti-Violence Program As Part Of "Precinct's Crime-Fighting Strategy"

The New York Times (2/4, Southall) reports Capt. Derby St. Fort, the commanding officer of the NYPD's 61st Precinct, last year "partnered with an anti-violence coalition and a neighborhood activist, whom he asked to gather 15 of the boys close to the dispute for weekly discussions led by a therapist at a local community center, paying them a $150 stipend to participate. Week after week, the boys kept coming back. In the four months since, none of them have been arrested with a gun or involved in a shooting, he said." The Times adds that "at a time when New York City is grappling with an unsettling rise in gun violence, the program represents a novel way to reduce crime by making community-based anti-violence work part of a precinct's crime-fighting strategy."

Minneapolis Mayor Imposes Moratorium On No-Knock Warrants After Police Release Footage From Fatal Shooting Of Amir Locke

apartment and killed Amir Locke, a 22-year-old Black man who his parents said was ‘executed’ after he was startled from a deep sleep and reached for a legal firearm to protect himself.” The AP adds Frey “said while the moratorium is in place, he and police leadership will review and revise department policy with the help of two experts who helped shape Breonna’s Law, the ban on no-knock warrants that was imposed in Louisville, Kentucky, following the death of Breonna Taylor in a botched raid at her home in 2020.” Meanwhile, the Washington Post (2/4, Bailey) reports Minneapolis police “released body-camera footage late Thursday that captured the fatal shooting.” According to the Post, Locke’s death “is likely to...increase tensions in a city still reeling from the police killing of George Floyd.” The Wall Street Journal (2/4, Avila, Subscription Publication) provides similar coverage

WPost Analysis: Case Involving Boy’s Death Calls Attention To Power Of Forensic Pathologists

In a front-page article, the Washington Post (2/5, A1, Sullivan, Jordan) highlighted the case of Joshua Mounts, who was convicted of killing his young son based on the assessment of a single forensic pathologist. The case underscores that forensic pathologists “who investigate violent and suspicious deaths for local governments have tremendous and often overlooked power in the US justice system. Police frequently interrogate certain suspects and ignore others solely based on when the forensic pathologist concluded the victim was killed. Along with shaping investigations, these doctors can shut them down when they rule a suspicious death was suicide.”

Join IACP Executive Director/Chief Executive Officer Vincent Talucci on this two-part podcast as he discusses the 11-hour hostage incident at the Congregation Beth Israel with Chief Michael Miller, Colleyville, Texas, and FBI Dallas Special Agent in Charge Matthew DeSarno. They will provide insight into pre-incident management, the successful resolution of the incident, and post-incident actions.

FAA Observed Record Number Of Laser Incidents In 2021

The Hill (2/4) reports the Federal Aviation Administration “announced a record number of laser strikes against aircrafts in the U.S. in 2021” and “said it received 9,723 reports from pilots of lasers being aimed at aircraft in 2021, a 41 percent increase from 2020.” According to the FAA, “such incidents are ‘a serious safety threat’ and...pilots can become incapacitated when aircrafts are hit by high-powered lasers. Pilots have reported 244 injuries as a result of laser strikes since data on the issue began to be collected in 2010.”

FBI Captures “Most Wanted” Fugitive After 16 Years At Large

USA Today (2/4, Hughes, Hayes) reports that on Friday, the FBI announced Octaviano Juarez-Corro – a Milwaukee man who was on the ‘Ten Most Wanted Fugitives’ list – “was captured after 16 years on the run.” According to the FBI, Juarez-Corro “was located and arrested Thursday evening in Zapopan, Guadalajara, Mexico. ... He was wanted in a 2006 mass shooting where authorities say he shot people execution style at a park. The shooting left two dead and injured three others, including his wife. ... Juarez-Corro has been charged in Milwaukee County Circuit Court with two counts of first-degree intentional homicide and three counts of attempted first-degree intentional homicide.”

Study Shows Surge In Hate Crimes In Major Cities

Axios (2/5, Contreras, Chen) reports that according to an unpublished study by the Center for the Study of Hate and Extremism at California State University, San Bernardino, reports “of hate crimes skyrocketed in 2021 in more than a dozen of America’s largest cities, with a record number of Asian Americans saying they were targeted.” Axios says, “Though Black Americans remained the most targeted group in most cities, anti-Asian American hate crimes increased 339% in 2021, the preliminary report found. Los Angeles, San Francisco, and New York City broke records with the number of hate crimes against Asian Americans, while Georgia saw the largest number of fatal events with six Asian women murdered in two attacks.”

Man Who Killed Four At Nashville Waffle House Convicted Of Murder

The AP (2/4, Loller) reports that on Friday, Travis Reinking – the “man who shot and killed four people at a Nashville Waffle House in 2018” – was found guilty “on four counts of first-degree murder...by a jury that rejected his insanity defense.” According to the AP, “Reinking opened fire inside the restaurant just after 3:20 a.m. on April 22, 2018, killing Taurean Sanderlin, 29; Joey Perez, 20; Akilah Dasilva, 23; and DeEbony Groves, 21. He fled after restaurant patron James Shaw Jr. wrestled his assault-style rifle away from him, triggering a manhunt.” The AP says, “Evidence presented during the trial showed Reinking had schizophrenia and had suffered delusions for years.”

Shootings In Wisconsin, Virginia, And Colorado Leave Multiple People Dead

The New York Times (2/5, Holpuch) reports that according to police, a “gunman shot three people, killing two, before taking his own life on Saturday at an apartment building in Brown Deer, Wis., a village near Milwaukee. A witness, who was also wounded in the attack, said one of the two people killed was a man who came to the aid of a woman who was targeted by the gunman.” The witness indicated he believed the targeted woman was the gunman’s girlfriend.

The Washington Post (2/5, Well, Bella) reports, “A late-night shooting Friday at a hookah lounge near the Virginia Tech campus in Blacksburg left one person dead and four injured. ... Police identified the slain man as Isiah O. Robinson,” a Roanoke high school student. And Virginia Tech confirmed one of its students was among the injured. “Police said Saturday night that they had obtained warrants charging a man with murder in the death of Robinson. The warrants also charged the suspect with four counts of attempted murder.” The Post adds, “The Blacksburg shooting is the latest incident to rock Virginia this week. Two campus police officers at Bridgewater College were fatally shot Tuesday after they were checking out a report of a ‘suspicious man’ near a classroom building.”

The AP (2/5) reports, “A woman was killed and two men have been injured in a shooting inside a church in” Aurora, Colorado on Saturday. At the time of the shooting, “there was an event at the church at the time and between 15 to 20 people were there.” However, investigators indicated the shooting was not random and there was a relationship between the victims and the suspected shooter, who fled the scene.

NYTimes Analysis: Case Involving Subway Death Exposes Broken Health System

In a front-page the New York Times (2/5, A1, Newman, Schweber, Marcius) covered the case against Martial Simon – the homeless man who is accused of pushing a New York City commuter in front of a subway train, killing her. The fact that Simon spent “decades adrift in New York, where his lawyer estimates he was hospitalized at least 20 times,” illustrates “a broken system of care for some of society’s most severely ill members, a failing writ large every few years when another person with a history of psychiatric hospitalization commits an awful act of violence.”

Researchers Concerned US School Shootings Are Becoming More Prevalent

Reuters (2/6, Brooks) reports that US schools “have been the site of 141 shootings so far during the 2021-22 school year – more than at any point in the previous decade, according to Everytown for Gun Safety,” and “signs are emerging that the stresses and challenges of the pandemic are worsening gun violence in American schools.” Reuters says researchers “studying the phenomenon worry it will only get worse,” since “problems that predated the pandemic – such as inequality and inadequate resources – have grown worse even as COVID-19 has introduced new challenges, like creating such stress that half of teachers say they want to quit or retire early, according to recent surveys by the National Education Association.”

Violence Project Finds Growing Number Of Americans Are Dying In Mass Shootings

Reuters (2/4, Lynch) reports the Violence Project, which is funded by the Justice Department's National Institute of Justice, "released on Friday sheds new light on the upward trend of mass shootings in the United States, finding that the number of Americans dying from mass shooters is on the rise, and most people who commit such acts of violence have a history of trauma or were in a state of crisis." Reuters says the analysis of 172 mass shootings "found that of all the mass shootings that took place between 1966 and 2019, more than half took place since 2000, with 20% of them occurring between 2010 and 2019. In the last five years of the study period, an average of 51 people died from mass shootings per year, compared with only eight people in the 1970s."

NYPD Police Captain Uses Community-Based Anti-Violence Program As Part Of "Precinct's Crime-Fighting Strategy"

The New York Times (2/4, Southall) reports Capt. Derby St. Fort, the commanding officer of the NYPD's 61st Precinct, last year "partnered with an anti-violence coalition and a neighborhood activist, whom he asked to gather 15 of the boys close to the dispute for weekly discussions led by a therapist at a local community center, paying them a $150 stipend to participate. Week after week, the boys kept coming back. In the four months since, none of them have been arrested with a gun or involved in a shooting, he said." The Times adds that "at a time when New York City is grappling with an unsettling rise in gun violence, the program represents a novel way to reduce crime by making community-based anti-violence work part of a precinct's crime-fighting strategy."

Minneapolis Mayor Imposes Moratorium On No-Knock Warrants After Police Release Footage From Fatal Shooting Of Amir Locke

apartment and killed Amir Locke, a 22-year-old Black man who his parents said was ‘executed’ after he was startled from a deep sleep and reached for a legal firearm to protect himself.” The AP adds Frey “said while the moratorium is in place, he and police leadership will review and revise department policy with the help of two experts who helped shape Breonna’s Law, the ban on no-knock warrants that was imposed in Louisville, Kentucky, following the death of Breonna Taylor in a botched raid at her home in 2020.” Meanwhile, the Washington Post (2/4, Bailey) reports Minneapolis police “released body-camera footage late Thursday that captured the fatal shooting.” According to the Post, Locke’s death “is likely to...increase tensions in a city still reeling from the police killing of George Floyd.” The Wall Street Journal (2/4, Avila, Subscription Publication) provides similar coverage

WPost Analysis: Case Involving Boy’s Death Calls Attention To Power Of Forensic Pathologists

In a front-page article, the Washington Post (2/5, A1, Sullivan, Jordan) highlighted the case of Joshua Mounts, who was convicted of killing his young son based on the assessment of a single forensic pathologist. The case underscores that forensic pathologists “who investigate violent and suspicious deaths for local governments have tremendous and often overlooked power in the US justice system. Police frequently interrogate certain suspects and ignore others solely based on when the forensic pathologist concluded the victim was killed. Along with shaping investigations, these doctors can shut them down when they rule a suspicious death was suicide.”

FAA Observed Record Number Of Laser Incidents In 2021

The Hill (2/4) reports the Federal Aviation Administration “announced a record number of laser strikes against aircrafts in the U.S. in 2021” and “said it received 9,723 reports from pilots of lasers being aimed at aircraft in 2021, a 41 percent increase from 2020.” According to the FAA, “such incidents are ‘a serious safety threat’ and...pilots can become incapacitated when aircrafts are hit by high-powered lasers. Pilots have reported 244 injuries as a result of laser strikes since data on the issue began to be collected in 2010.”

FBI Captures “Most Wanted” Fugitive After 16 Years At Large

USA Today (2/4, Hughes, Hayes) reports that on Friday, the FBI announced Octaviano Juarez-Corro – a Milwaukee man who was on the ‘Ten Most Wanted Fugitives’ list – “was captured after 16 years on the run.” According to the FBI, Juarez-Corro “was located and arrested Thursday evening in Zapopan, Guadalajara, Mexico. ... He was wanted in a 2006 mass shooting where authorities say he shot people execution style at a park. The shooting left two dead and injured three others, including his wife. ... Juarez-Corro has been charged in Milwaukee County Circuit Court with two counts of first-degree intentional homicide and three counts of attempted first-degree intentional homicide.”

Study Shows Surge In Hate Crimes In Major Cities

Axios (2/5, Contreras, Chen) reports that according to an unpublished study by the Center for the Study of Hate and Extremism at California State University, San Bernardino, reports “of hate crimes skyrocketed in 2021 in more than a dozen of America’s largest cities, with a record number of Asian Americans saying they were targeted.” Axios says, “Though Black Americans remained the most targeted group in most cities, anti-Asian American hate crimes increased 339% in 2021, the preliminary report found. Los Angeles, San Francisco, and New York City broke records with the number of hate crimes against Asian Americans, while Georgia saw the largest number of fatal events with six Asian women murdered in two attacks.”

Man Who Killed Four At Nashville Waffle House Convicted Of Murder

The AP (2/4, Loller) reports that on Friday, Travis Reinking – the “man who shot and killed four people at a Nashville Waffle House in 2018” – was found guilty “on four counts of first-degree murder...by a jury that rejected his insanity defense.” According to the AP, “Reinking opened fire inside the restaurant just after 3:20 a.m. on April 22, 2018, killing Taurean Sanderlin, 29; Joey Perez, 20; Akilah Dasilva, 23; and DeEbony Groves, 21. He fled after restaurant patron James Shaw Jr. wrestled his assault-style rifle away from him, triggering a manhunt.” The AP says, “Evidence presented during the trial showed Reinking had schizophrenia and had suffered delusions for years.”

Shootings In Wisconsin, Virginia, And Colorado Leave Multiple People Dead

The New York Times (2/5, Holpuch) reports that according to police, a “gunman shot three people, killing two, before taking his own life on Saturday at an apartment building in Brown Deer, Wis., a village near Milwaukee. A witness, who was also wounded in the attack, said one of the two people killed was a man who came to the aid of a woman who was targeted by the gunman.” The witness indicated he believed the targeted woman was the gunman’s girlfriend.

The Washington Post (2/5, Well, Bella) reports, “A late-night shooting Friday at a hookah lounge near the Virginia Tech campus in Blacksburg left one person dead and four injured. ... Police identified the slain man as Isiah O. Robinson,” a Roanoke high school student. And Virginia Tech confirmed one of its students was among the injured. “Police said Saturday night that they had obtained warrants charging a man with murder in the death of Robinson. The warrants also charged the suspect with four counts of attempted murder.” The Post adds, “The Blacksburg shooting is the latest incident to rock Virginia this week. Two campus police officers at Bridgewater College were fatally shot Tuesday after they were checking out a report of a ‘suspicious man’ near a classroom building.”

Use of taser during traffic stop was objectively reasonable.

Betts v. Brennan,

US Court of Appeals for the Fifth Circuit

Opinion Date: January 11, 2022

The Fifth Circuit reversed the district court's denial of defendant's motion for summary judgment based on qualified immunity in an excessive force action brought by plaintiff. During a routine traffic stop, the plaintiff repeatedly challenged the defendant's reasons for stopping him, refused to comply with his orders, batted his hand away, called him a liar, warned him to call in backup, and dared him to use his taser. The court concluded that the defendant did not violate the Fourth Amendment by Tasing the plaintiff one time in order to arrest him. The court held that even assuming there was a Fourth Amendment violation, it was not clearly established at the time that defendant's single use of the Taser was constitutionally excessive. The court remanded for further proceedings.

Cortosluna v. Leon

US Court of Appeals for the Ninth Circuit

Opinion Date: January 12, 2022

Tags: Excessive Force, Monell Liability, Duty to Intervene

Summary: This case was on remand to the Ninth Circuit from the US Supreme Court

A 12-year-old girl called 911 to report that her mother's boyfriend, Cortosluna, was threatening her and her family with a chainsaw and that they were hiding from him in a bedroom that he was trying to enter. Cortosluna subsequently brought 42 U.S.C. 1983 excessive force claims concerning his arrest. In 2020, the Ninth Circuit affirmed summary judgment in favor of officer Leon. Even taking Cortosluna's version of the facts as true, a reasonable jury would find that Leon's acts were objectively reasonable in the circumstances. Leon faced an immediate threat; Cortosluna had a knife in his pocket and had lowered his hands towards the knife when the first shot came from the beanbag shotgun; his hands remained near the knife in his pocket at the time of the second beanbag shot. The court found that there was a genuine issue of fact as to whether the force that officer Rivas-Villegas used when he kneeled on Cortosluna's back was excessive. Officer Kensic lacked any realistic opportunity to intercede or to stop the excessive force. On remand from the U.S. Supreme Court, the Ninth Circuit affirmed the dismissal of the federal claims against Rivas-Villegas and remanded for consideration of the other elements of a Monell claim. With respect to state-law claims relating to Rivas-Villegas's conduct, and other remaining claims, including against other defendants, the 2020 opinion remains intact

STATE CASES OF INTEREST

State v. Correa

Connecticut Supreme Court

Opinion Date: January 11, 2022

Tags: Destruction Exigency, K9 Sniff,

Summary: Connecticut Supreme Court holds that K9 sniff at a hotel door is a search under the Connecticut Constitution and exigent circumstances justified warrantless visual sweep.

The Connecticut Supreme Court reversed the judgment of the appellate court affirming Defendant's conviction, holding that the warrantless canine sniff conducted by law enforcement officers of the exterior door to a motel room for the purpose of detecting the presence of illegal drugs inside the room violated the warrant requirement of Conn. Const. Art. I, 7. After Defendant was charged with several drug-related offenses he filed a motion to suppress the evidence that had been seized from his motel room pursuant to a search warrant. The trial court denied the motion. Thereafter, Defendant entered a conditional plea of solo contenders. The appellate court affirmed. The Connecticut Supreme Court reversed, holding that the appellate court erred in concluding (1) the canine sniff was not a search that violated Defendant's rights under article 1, section 7; and (2) the visual sweep of Defendant's motel room was justified by the exigencies of the situation. The Court remanded the case to determine the applicability of the Independent Source Doctrine.

State v. Peoples

Montana Supreme Court

Opinion Date: January 11, 2022

Tags: Probation Search

Summary: Probation search based on reasonable suspicion was proper under Montana Constitution.

The Montana Supreme Court affirmed the judgment of the district court denying Defendant's motion to suppress evidence obtained as a result of warrantless search of his apartment, holding that the district court did not err in denying Defendant's motion to suppress. In this case, three probation officers and a deputy federal marshal made a warrantless entry into Defendant's apartment without his consent to investigate his reported methamphetamine use and possible drug overdose in violation of the law and Defendant's probation. The district court concluded that the warrantless entry into Defendant's apartment was a constitutional search. The Montana Supreme Court affirmed, holding that the district court (1) correctly concluded that the warrantless entry and probation search of Defendant's apartment was lawful on reasonable suspicion under the probation search exception to the warrant requirement of Mont. Const. art. II, 10-11; and (2) did not err in denying Defendant's motion to suppress based on the manner in which the officers entered the apartment or treated Defendant thereafter.

Subject: Gangs and Guns Training Materials

Good morning,

Thank you again for attending last week's training, Gangs and Guns: Making Your Firearms Case More Prosecutable. As promised, attached are a number of materials that were referenced during the training and that the trainers have graciously made available. Please note that several of these documents are marked "Law Enforcement Sensitive" and are not for distribution outside of your law enforcement agency.

For any additional requests for training materials or information, please reach out to the trainers directly:

Regarding training credit:

The names and emails of those who attended the course will be sent to the appropriate MTU's today. For those outside of the Northern District of IL your info will be sent to NEMRT as they have agreed to certify any officer in the State whose designated MTU did not have time to certify the course. They may reach out regarding your PTBID # or for other information if they cannot find you in their system. If they reach out, it will be via the email address you used to register for the course. If they don't reach out, they were able to find you and will go through the normal certification process as if you attended one of their other courses. You should not need to do anything proactively unless they ask. For ISP Officers, all of your names will be sent to your In-Service Training Coordinator. For questions on this contact Kali Thomas kali.thomas@usdoj.gov

Training Impact:

Lastly, if you have already incorporated something that you learned during the training into your work, please share a short description with me (carletonb@cna.org). We love to hear about how you are using the techniques and practices that you learn during the training. Also, feel free to share any future examples with me as well.

Course Description his 1 day, 8-hour program has been designed by Illinois Educational Training and Standards Board to provide students with the required 8-hour mental health awareness and response training. This course is meant to provide law enforcement officers with an awareness of mental health issues including a history of mental health systems, types of mental illness, signs and symptoms, common treatments, and potential interactions law enforcement may have on a regular basis with these individuals, their families, and service providers. Officer wellness and suicide prevention will also be discussed. COURSE GOALS: - Recognize the history of the mental health system and its impact on law enforcement and the criminal justice system - Discuss mental illness - Detail risk assessment and crisis response skills - Increase awareness of appropriate law enforcement interaction with individuals who have mental illness - Examine the Illinois mental health code and legal issues - Identify community resources - Understand the importance of officer wellness This course is taught by Lt. Troy Siewert of the Orland Park Police Department. Lt. Siewert has been with the Orland Park Police Department for 28 years and holds a Master's Degree in Criminal Social Justice from Lewis University. He is a certified CIT Coordinator, CIT Officer, Crisis Negotiator and Mental Health First Aid Instructor as well as a CIT role play evaluator for the Illinois Law Enforcement Training and Standards Board. Lt. Siewart started the OPPD Crisis Intervention Team (CIT) in 2015 and has developed the program into what is now recognized as a standard for best practice. In 2018, Lt. Siewert worked on a committee for the International Association of Chiefs of Police to update their model policy for Responding to Persons Affected by Mental Illness or in Crisis.

Hi Lynn,

I just wanted to let you know that apparently, Beyer has reached out again to the ILACP (our accrediting agency) telling them that crimes were committed in the way we handled the incident at McDonalds. Apparently now one of the ILACP board members has suspended the accreditation process until he has some documentation that we did not violate any laws in the way we handled the McDonalds call.

I don't mean to keep hounding you with this but the accreditation is a big deal for the department and it is being held up for no legitimate reason.

Thanks,

Mike

Biden Addresses Rising Gun Violence During Visit To New York City

The Washington Post (2/3, Linskey) reports, "President Biden, facing pressure to show he's taking a tough approach to the nation's rising murder rate, visited New York City's police headquarters Thursday, stressing his support for law enforcement at a time during which many liberals are calling for far-reaching police reforms." The President "was accompanied by New York Mayor Eric Adams (D), one of group of newly elected mayors across the country who are seeking to beef up policing in ways that depart from social justice rhetoric that dominated the country's big cities just two years ago." Biden said, "Enough is enough. ... The answer is not to abandon our streets, the answer is to come together. The answer is not to defund the police, it's to give you the tools and training and funding."

The New York Times (2/3, Glueck, Kanno-Youngs, Wilson) reports Biden's "visit comes against the backdrop of a pandemic-era rise in gun violence that has shattered American cities and reordered the politics of public safety, even as the rates of violent crime in places like New York remain well below those of the early 1990s." The President's "appearance unfolded in a city on edge, a day after a funeral for one of the two young police officers who were recently shot to death in Harlem while responding to a 911 call." Adams said, "Yesterday we gathered at St. Patrick's Cathedral in mourning. ... Today, here at 1 Police Plaza where I walked across that stage as a captain, we're here in solidarity to deal with the issue of violence that has become pervasive, and not only in New York City, but in the cities across America."

CNN (2/3, Vazquez, Nickeas, Perez, Krishnakumar) reports Biden was "hoping to turn the politically fraught issue of crime into a new focus on combating gun violence. As Democrats grapple with how to tackle a problem that has been used against them by Republicans with some success in past elections – and is shaping up to be a key issue in the midterms this fall – Biden elevated his party's work and proposals to combat illegal guns onto the national stage."

The AP (2/3, Boak, Long, Price) reports during the visit, “Biden pledged to New Yorkers and the nation...that the federal government would step up its fight against gun violence by working more closely with police and communities to stop the surging bloodshed.” However, his “crime fighting strategy relies heavily on buy-in from state and local officials as he suggests ways to spend federal dollars and expands on initiatives already under way. The modest initiatives demonstrate the limits to what he can do when there is no appetite in Congress to pass gun legislation.”

Politico (2/3, Durkin) reports the President “called for more funding for law enforcement and anti-violence programs during” the visit. He “has asked Congress for $300 million for local police departments and $200 million for community-based violence intervention programs.”

The Los Angeles Times (2/3, Logan) reports the past “two years have seen a rise in homicides, shootings, brazen ‘smash mob’ robberies of luxury stores and shoplifting, as economic shutdowns devastated poorer communities and the public health crisis left many police departments understaffed.” The US’ “homicide rate, the crime metric most closely tracked by criminologists and police officials, rose 30% from 2019 to 2020, the highest one-year increase in modern history, according to federal statistics.” This violence has taken place mainly in urban areas.

DOJ Partnering With Local Law Enforcement To Curb Overdose Deaths. The Hill (2/3, Samuels) reports a newly announced US Department of Justice (DOJ) initiative aims “to curb drug-related violence and overdose deaths by partnering with local law enforcement.”

New Orleans Officials To Revive Anti-Gang Unit In Effort To Curb Violent Crime

The New Orleans Times-Picayune (2/3, Vargas, Sledge) reports, “After weeks of verbal sparring over who or what is to blame for New Orleans’ surging violence, District Attorney Jason Williams and Police Superintendent Shaun Ferguson sat shoulder-to-shoulder Thursday and pledged to revive a multi-agency unit that was praised for disrupting gang-related bloodshed and criticized for its controversial tactics.” The plan “calls for the Violent Crime Abatement and Investigation Team...to adopt the core tenets of what had once been known as the Multi-Agency Gang Unit. Hours later, four City Council members rolled out their own plan for tackling crime, underscoring that while Ferguson and Williams might be ready to make amends, council members remained skeptical that enough is being done to contain the rise in carjackings and shootings. The council members’ eight-point ‘preliminary’ strategy included proposals to shift or increase funding, audit current spending or make other changes at a host of agencies, including” the New Orleans Police Department.

Mississippi Governor Signs Medical Marijuana Legalization Bill Into Law

In online coverage, CNN (2/3, Mizelle) reports, “Medical marijuana for certain patients with” Parkinson’s disease and a number of other “debilitating conditions is now legal in Mississippi.” In explaining why he signed a medical marijuana legalization bill into law on Wednesday, Mississippi Gov. Tate Reeves (R) stated, “There is no doubt that there are individuals in our state who could do significantly better if they had access to medically prescribed doses of cannabis.” This story is also covered by other media outlets, including Magnolia State Live (MS) (2/3), The Hill (2/3, Lonas), the Washington Times (2/3, Santo), the New York Post (2/3, Garger), the WLBT-TV Jackson, MS (2/3, Fortenberry) website, the International Business Times (2/3, Enerio), UPI (2/3, Coote), the WLOX-TV Biloxi, MS (2/3, Knowles) website, Audacy (2/3, Martin), Complex (2/3, Cowen), WebMD (2/3, Ellis), the Center Square (2/3, Addleman), and the WAPT-TV Jackson, MS (2/3, Gordon) website. Another online WAPT-TV Jackson, MS (2/3, Hunter) report also covers Mississippi's new medical marijuana law. Law360 (2/3, Subscription Publication) coverage is behind a paywall. Jackson (MS) Clarion Ledger (2/3, Guzman, Sanderlin) coverage, meanwhile, is also posted to the USA Today (2/3, Guzman, Sanderlin) website.

Dallas, Texas Officials Eye Mental Health Leave For First Responders

The Hill (2/3, Jenkins) reports, "Dallas officials are considering enacting a policy that would grant paramedics and firefighters the opportunity to take paid leave for their mental health after they experience a traumatic incident while on duty." Dallas Mayor Eric Johnson "proposed the plan, citing city rules that allow police officers up to five days of mental health paid leave. Members of the Dallas city council are set to review the potential new policy on Feb. 14 during a public safety committee meeting, according to The Dallas Morning News. 'We must treat the mental health of our first responders as a top priority,' Johnson reportedly wrote in a memo to council member Adam McGough, who chairs the public safety committee. 'While this proposal and its impacts should be thoroughly vetted by the public safety committee, I believe it is important to begin this discussion as soon as possible.'"

Federal Prosecutors, Victim's Family Diverge In Views On Plea Deal For Arbery Killers

The Washington Post (2/3, Nakamura) reports, "Federal prosecutors saw" a plea agreement "for two of the men" involved in the murder of Ahmaud Arbery "to plead guilty to civil rights and hate-crime violations as a victory: further justice" for Arbery "and a historic step in the goal of advancing civil rights." However, one day after the deal was reached, the agreement "collapsed in spectacular fashion, when Wanda Cooper-Jones, Arbery's mother, spoke out forcefully against the agreement and U.S. District Judge Lisa Godbey Wood rejected it." The Post says, for DOJ, "securing a plea settlement on a federal hate-crime charge would have marked a rare coup" since, according to experts, such cases "are complicated and difficult to win." However, "the Arbery family was outraged by the prosecutors' offer to the two men" – which would have allowed them to serve 30 years in federal prison – since they believed "that would mean more lenient conditions for the” offenders.

Police Officers In Argentina Trying To Retrieve Deadly Batch Of Cocaine

The AP (2/3, Rey, Caivano) reports, “A batch of cocaine that has killed at least 23 people in Argentina appears to have been laced with a synthetic opioid, and” police officers in that country “are scrambling to get as much of it off the streets as they can.” This story is also covered by other media outlets, including the Wall Street Journal (2/3, Subscription Publication), AFP (2/4), Reuters (2/3, Raszewski), The Guardian (UK) (2/3, Goñi) and Newsweek (2/3).

Colombia Turns To Cyberspace For Anti-Drug Strategy

Reuters (2/3, Acosta) reports Colombia’s new anti-drug trafficking strategy aims “to control cyberspace” in order “to tackle criminal groups involved in the cocaine trade, as well as block their financial transactions.”

DHS Announces New Cybersecurity Review Board

The AP (2/3) reports DHS on Thursday announced “the creation of a new Cyber Safety Review Board that will have public and private sector experts examine significant hacking incidents and recommend improvements.” The new board is modeled “after the National Transportation Safety Board, which reviews plane crashes and other major accidents, and was mandated by an executive order President Joe Biden signed last May.” DHS Secretary Mayorkas “said the board will have 15 members and will be a mix of public and private officials.” New board members include “officials from the FBI, NSA and Defense Department, as well as Verizon and Microsoft.”

CNN (2/3, Sands, Lyngaas) reports the panel’s first review “will focus on the critical flaw in the widely used Log4j software that was uncovered and made public late last year, DHS said Thursday in a news release about the new board.” According to DHS, the Log4j software is still “being exploited by a growing set of threat actors” and presents “an urgent challenge.” In a statement, Mayorkas said, “At the President’s direction, DHS is establishing the Cyber Safety Review Board to thoroughly assess past events, ask the hard questions, and drive improvements across the private and public sectors.” The board will be chaired “by DHS Under Secretary for Policy Robert Silvers. Heather Adkins, Google’s senior director for security engineering, will serve as deputy chair,” while CISA “will manage and fund the board.” Other members include “National Cyber Director Chris Inglis; Rob Joyce, director of cybersecurity for the National Security Agency; and Katie Moussouris, founder and CEO of Luta Security.”

The Wall Street Journal (2/3, Volz, Subscription Publication) also reports.

Second Israeli Company Exploited iPhone Security Flaw

Reuters (2/3, Bing, Satter) reports an Apple software flaw “exploited by Israeli surveillance firm NSO Group to break into iPhones in 2021 was simultaneously abused by a competing company, according to five people familiar with the matter.” QuaDream, the sources said, “is a smaller and lower profile Israeli firm that also develops smartphone hacking tools intended for government clients.” Experts analyzing intrusions engineered “by NSO Group and QuaDream since last year believe the two companies used very similar software exploits, known as ForcedEntry, to hijack iPhones.” The analysts believed NSO “and QuaDream’s exploits were similar because they leveraged many of the same vulnerabilities hidden deep inside Apple’s instant messaging platform and used a comparable approach to plant malicious software on targeted devices, according to three of the sources.”

US Police Continue To Crack Down On 3D Printed Guns, Underground Markets

ZDNet (2/3, Osborne) reports, “Law enforcement continues to tackle information online considered to be dangerous, with bomb manuals the subject of a new operation.” ZDNet adds, “As internet access shifted from a luxury made possible through dial-up to something akin to a human right in many countries, the web became a catalyst for new, innovative business models, e-commerce, new means of communication, and a critical channel for education – especially useful during COVID-19 stay-at-home orders. However, when it comes to education and e-commerce, law enforcement worldwide has taken different stances on what is considered allowable, and some topics, guides, and trading posts become the subjects of investigations and, in some cases, seizures or takedowns. Underground marketplaces, including AlphaBay, Silk Road, DarkMarket, and more recently, CanadianHQ have been shut down by the police. These platforms were used to sell everything from narcotics to weapons and malware.”

Biden Addresses Rising Gun Violence During Visit To New York City

The Washington Post (2/3, Linskey) reports, "President Biden, facing pressure to show he's taking a tough approach to the nation's rising murder rate, visited New York City's police headquarters Thursday, stressing his support for law enforcement at a time during which many liberals are calling for far-reaching police reforms." The President "was accompanied by New York Mayor Eric Adams (D), one of group of newly elected mayors across the country who are seeking to beef up policing in ways that depart from social justice rhetoric that dominated the country's big cities just two years ago." Biden said, "Enough is enough. ... The answer is not to abandon our streets, the answer is to come together. The answer is not to defund the police, it's to give you the tools and training and funding."

The New York Times (2/3, Glueck, Kanno-Youngs, Wilson) reports Biden's "visit comes against the backdrop of a pandemic-era rise in gun violence that has shattered American cities and reordered the politics of public safety, even as the rates of violent crime in places like New York remain well below those of the early 1990s." The President's "appearance unfolded in a city on edge, a day after a funeral for one of the two young police officers who were recently shot to death in Harlem while responding to a 911 call." Adams said, "Yesterday we gathered at St. Patrick's Cathedral in mourning. ... Today, here at 1 Police Plaza where I walked across that stage as a captain, we're here in solidarity to deal with the issue of violence that has become pervasive, and not only in New York City, but in the cities across America."

CNN (2/3, Vazquez, Nickeas, Perez, Krishnakumar) reports Biden was "hoping to turn the politically fraught issue of crime into a new focus on combating gun violence. As Democrats grapple with how to tackle a problem that has been used against them by Republicans with some success in past elections – and is shaping up to be a key issue in the midterms this fall – Biden elevated his party's work and proposals to combat illegal guns onto the national stage."

The AP (2/3, Boak, Long, Price) reports during the visit, “Biden pledged to New Yorkers and the nation...that the federal government would step up its fight against gun violence by working more closely with police and communities to stop the surging bloodshed.” However, his “crime fighting strategy relies heavily on buy-in from state and local officials as he suggests ways to spend federal dollars and expands on initiatives already under way. The modest initiatives demonstrate the limits to what he can do when there is no appetite in Congress to pass gun legislation.”

Politico (2/3, Durkin) reports the President “called for more funding for law enforcement and anti-violence programs during” the visit. He “has asked Congress for $300 million for local police departments and $200 million for community-based violence intervention programs.”

The Los Angeles Times (2/3, Logan) reports the past “two years have seen a rise in homicides, shootings, brazen ‘smash mob’ robberies of luxury stores and shoplifting, as economic shutdowns devastated poorer communities and the public health crisis left many police departments understaffed.” The US’ “homicide rate, the crime metric most closely tracked by criminologists and police officials, rose 30% from 2019 to 2020, the highest one-year increase in modern history, according to federal statistics.” This violence has taken place mainly in urban areas.

DOJ Partnering With Local Law Enforcement To Curb Overdose Deaths. The Hill (2/3, Samuels) reports a newly announced US Department of Justice (DOJ) initiative aims “to curb drug-related violence and overdose deaths by partnering with local law enforcement.”

New Orleans Officials To Revive Anti-Gang Unit In Effort To Curb Violent Crime

The New Orleans Times-Picayune (2/3, Vargas, Sledge) reports, “After weeks of verbal sparring over who or what is to blame for New Orleans’ surging violence, District Attorney Jason Williams and Police Superintendent Shaun Ferguson sat shoulder-to-shoulder Thursday and pledged to revive a multi-agency unit that was praised for disrupting gang-related bloodshed and criticized for its controversial tactics.” The plan “calls for the Violent Crime Abatement and Investigation Team...to adopt the core tenets of what had once been known as the Multi-Agency Gang Unit. Hours later, four City Council members rolled out their own plan for tackling crime, underscoring that while Ferguson and Williams might be ready to make amends, council members remained skeptical that enough is being done to contain the rise in carjackings and shootings. The council members’ eight-point ‘preliminary’ strategy included proposals to shift or increase funding, audit current spending or make other changes at a host of agencies, including” the New Orleans Police Department.

Mississippi Governor Signs Medical Marijuana Legalization Bill Into Law

In online coverage, CNN (2/3, Mizelle) reports, “Medical marijuana for certain patients with” Parkinson’s disease and a number of other “debilitating conditions is now legal in Mississippi.” In explaining why he signed a medical marijuana legalization bill into law on Wednesday, Mississippi Gov. Tate Reeves (R) stated, “There is no doubt that there are individuals in our state who could do significantly better if they had access to medically prescribed doses of cannabis.” This story is also covered by other media outlets, including Magnolia State Live (MS) (2/3), The Hill (2/3, Lonas), the Washington Times (2/3, Santo), the New York Post (2/3, Garger), the WLBT-TV Jackson, MS (2/3, Fortenberry) website, the International Business Times (2/3, Enerio), UPI (2/3, Coote), the WLOX-TV Biloxi, MS (2/3, Knowles) website, Audacy (2/3, Martin), Complex (2/3, Cowen), WebMD (2/3, Ellis), the Center Square (2/3, Addleman), and the WAPT-TV Jackson, MS (2/3, Gordon) website. Another online WAPT-TV Jackson, MS (2/3, Hunter) report also covers Mississippi's new medical marijuana law. Law360 (2/3, Subscription Publication) coverage is behind a paywall. Jackson (MS) Clarion Ledger (2/3, Guzman, Sanderlin) coverage, meanwhile, is also posted to the USA Today (2/3, Guzman, Sanderlin) website.

Dallas, Texas Officials Eye Mental Health Leave For First Responders

The Hill (2/3, Jenkins) reports, "Dallas officials are considering enacting a policy that would grant paramedics and firefighters the opportunity to take paid leave for their mental health after they experience a traumatic incident while on duty." Dallas Mayor Eric Johnson "proposed the plan, citing city rules that allow police officers up to five days of mental health paid leave. Members of the Dallas city council are set to review the potential new policy on Feb. 14 during a public safety committee meeting, according to The Dallas Morning News. 'We must treat the mental health of our first responders as a top priority,' Johnson reportedly wrote in a memo to council member Adam McGough, who chairs the public safety committee. 'While this proposal and its impacts should be thoroughly vetted by the public safety committee, I believe it is important to begin this discussion as soon as possible.'"

The 2022 Officer Safety and Wellness Symposium is around the corner. Join us in Atlanta, Georgia, March 15-17, to learn strategies and best practices for enhancing your well-being. Topics will include building resilience, family wellness, proper nutrition, suicide prevention, physical fitness, and much more. Law enforcement officers have a vital responsibility to serve their communities, but they owe it to themselves and their families to prioritize their overall mental and physical well-being. Now more than ever, it is critical to take control of your health. Register today at <https://www.theiacp.org/OSWSymposium>.

Federal Prosecutors, Victim's Family Diverge In Views On Plea Deal For Arbery Killers

The Washington Post (2/3, Nakamura) reports, "Federal prosecutors saw" a plea agreement "for two of the men" involved in the murder of Ahmaud Arbery "to plead guilty to civil rights and hate-crime violations as a victory: further justice" for Arbery "and a historic step in the goal of advancing civil rights." However, one day after the deal was reached, the agreement "collapsed in spectacular fashion, when Wanda Cooper-Jones, Arbery's mother, spoke out forcefully against the agreement and U.S. District Judge Lisa Godbey Wood rejected it." The Post says, for DOJ, "securing a plea settlement on a federal hate-crime charge would have marked a rare coup" since, according to experts, such cases "are complicated and difficult to win." However, "the Arbery family was outraged by the prosecutors' offer to the two men" – which would have allowed them to serve 30 years in federal prison – since they believed "that would mean more lenient conditions for the” offenders.

Police Officers In Argentina Trying To Retrieve Deadly Batch Of Cocaine

The AP (2/3, Rey, Caivano) reports, “A batch of cocaine that has killed at least 23 people in Argentina appears to have been laced with a synthetic opioid, and” police officers in that country “are scrambling to get as much of it off the streets as they can.” This story is also covered by other media outlets, including the Wall Street Journal (2/3, Subscription Publication), AFP (2/4), Reuters (2/3, Raszewski), The Guardian (UK) (2/3, Goñi) and Newsweek (2/3).

Colombia Turns To Cyberspace For Anti-Drug Strategy

Reuters (2/3, Acosta) reports Colombia’s new anti-drug trafficking strategy aims “to control cyberspace” in order “to tackle criminal groups involved in the cocaine trade, as well as block their financial transactions.”

DHS Announces New Cybersecurity Review Board

The AP (2/3) reports DHS on Thursday announced “the creation of a new Cyber Safety Review Board that will have public and private sector experts examine significant hacking incidents and recommend improvements.” The new board is modeled “after the National Transportation Safety Board, which reviews plane crashes and other major accidents, and was mandated by an executive order President Joe Biden signed last May.” DHS Secretary Mayorkas “said the board will have 15 members and will be a mix of public and private officials.” New board members include “officials from the FBI, NSA and Defense Department, as well as Verizon and Microsoft.”

CNN (2/3, Sands, Lyngaas) reports the panel’s first review “will focus on the critical flaw in the widely used Log4j software that was uncovered and made public late last year, DHS said Thursday in a news release about the new board.” According to DHS, the Log4j software is still “being exploited by a growing set of threat actors” and presents “an urgent challenge.” In a statement, Mayorkas said, “At the President’s direction, DHS is establishing the Cyber Safety Review Board to thoroughly assess past events, ask the hard questions, and drive improvements across the private and public sectors.” The board will be chaired “by DHS Under Secretary for Policy Robert Silvers. Heather Adkins, Google’s senior director for security engineering, will serve as deputy chair,” while CISA “will manage and fund the board.” Other members include “National Cyber Director Chris Inglis; Rob Joyce, director of cybersecurity for the National Security Agency; and Katie Moussouris, founder and CEO of Luta Security.”

The Wall Street Journal (2/3, Volz, Subscription Publication) also reports.

Second Israeli Company Exploited iPhone Security Flaw

Reuters (2/3, Bing, Satter) reports an Apple software flaw “exploited by Israeli surveillance firm NSO Group to break into iPhones in 2021 was simultaneously abused by a competing company, according to five people familiar with the matter.” QuaDream, the sources said, “is a smaller and lower profile Israeli firm that also develops smartphone hacking tools intended for government clients.” Experts analyzing intrusions engineered “by NSO Group and QuaDream since last year believe the two companies used very similar software exploits, known as ForcedEntry, to hijack iPhones.” The analysts believed NSO “and QuaDream’s exploits were similar because they leveraged many of the same vulnerabilities hidden deep inside Apple’s instant messaging platform and used a comparable approach to plant malicious software on targeted devices, according to three of the sources.”

US Police Continue To Crack Down On 3D Printed Guns, Underground Markets

ZDNet (2/3, Osborne) reports, “Law enforcement continues to tackle information online considered to be dangerous, with bomb manuals the subject of a new operation.” ZDNet adds, “As internet access shifted from a luxury made possible through dial-up to something akin to a human right in many countries, the web became a catalyst for new, innovative business models, e-commerce, new means of communication, and a critical channel for education – especially useful during COVID-19 stay-at-home orders. However, when it comes to education and e-commerce, law enforcement worldwide has taken different stances on what is considered allowable, and some topics, guides, and trading posts become the subjects of investigations and, in some cases, seizures or takedowns. Underground marketplaces, including AlphaBay, Silk Road, DarkMarket, and more recently, CanadianHQ have been shut down by the police. These platforms were used to sell everything from narcotics to weapons and malware.”

Illinois' Voice of Professional Law Enforcement

Save the date: ILACP Major Bill Review and Priority Setting Feb. 9

All ILACP members are invited to observe and participate in our annual major meeting to review bills filed in Springfield and to set priorities for 2022. In the past couple of years, your participation and insights have been helpful as we establish our positions on bills.

- 9:30 a.m. to 1:30 p.m.
- Wednesday, February 9, 2022
- <https://us02web.zoom.us/j/89244384996>

Members also find this session informative. Feel free to forward this to others in your department who will be interested. A handout will be available soon, certainly before the meeting, so we all have the same sheet that we're working from.

We will review new bills filed, go over recent lists, and discuss priorities for the 2022 spring session. Watch for a handout soon.

ILACP's Davis, Maton, Winslow testify at anti-violence hearing. Here is what they said.

Three ILACP leaders testified and answered questions for 90 minutes on January 21, 2022, before the House Public Safety and Violence Prevention Task Force. They are President Mitchell R. Davis III, Vice President Marc Maton, and Deputy Director Kenny Winslow.

They presented many, many ideas in response to questions about why violence is increasing and what law enforcement needs in order to combat violence.

You can download a PDF here or read their testimony and see their ideas here on the website.

The task force is chaired by Rep. LaShawn Ford and Rep. Fran Hurley. Unfortunately, we have been told that this task force might not proceed with advancing these ideas of law enforcement and friends of law enforcement. Nonetheless, this testimony should be useful to ILACP members who want to explain our current concerns to their own legislators. Feel free to share this document with your state and local officials.

Drive away with rates as low as 1.49% APR with an ISPFCU Auto Loan!

Whether you're looking to buy a brand-new vehicle, or just one new to you, let us help you drive away in the vehicle you want with our new, lower auto loan rates! For a limited time, you can now enjoy New Auto Loan rates as low as 1.49%* and Used Auto Loan rates as low as 1.74%!* In addition, you also have the option to defer your first loan payment for 90 days free of charge!

Even if you are not in the market for a new vehicle you can still take advantage of this special offer by refinancing an existing auto loan from another financial institution with ISPFCU. Not only could we lower your monthly loan payments and save you money in interest over the life of your loan, but you will also enjoy 90 days of no auto loan payments! Apply online at www.ispfcu.org or call us at 800-255-0886 with any questions you may have today!

*All rates are stated as an Annual Percentage Rate (APR). Rates are subject to change at any time. Special applies to new non-ISPFCU loans. Rates quoted are for individuals with excellent credit. Individuals with less than excellent credit may be offered higher rates. Fixed loan rate of 1.49% equals payments of $17.31 for 60 months for each $1,000 borrowed.

Illinois' Voice of Professional Law Enforcement

Save the date: ILACP Major Bill Review and Priority Setting Feb. 9

All ILACP members are invited to observe and participate in our annual major meeting to review bills filed in Springfield and to set priorities for 2022. In the past couple of years, your participation and insights have been helpful as we establish our positions on bills.

- 9:30 a.m. to 1:30 p.m.
- Wednesday, February 9, 2022
- <https://us02web.zoom.us/j/89244384996>

Members also find this session informative. Feel free to forward this to others in your department who will be interested. A handout will be available soon, certainly before the meeting, so we all have the same sheet that we're working from.

We will review new bills filed, go over recent lists, and discuss priorities for the 2022 spring session. Watch for a handout soon.

ILACP's Davis, Maton, Winslow testify at anti-violence hearing. Here is what they said.

Three ILACP leaders testified and answered questions for 90 minutes on January 21, 2022, before the House Public Safety and Violence Prevention Task Force. They are President Mitchell R. Davis III, Vice President Marc Maton, and Deputy Director Kenny Winslow.

They presented many, many ideas in response to questions about why violence is increasing and what law enforcement needs in order to combat violence.

You can download a PDF here or read their testimony and see their ideas here on the website.

The task force is chaired by Rep. LaShawn Ford and Rep. Fran Hurley. Unfortunately, we have been told that this task force might not proceed with advancing these ideas of law enforcement and friends of law enforcement. Nonetheless, this testimony should be useful to ILACP members who want to explain our current concerns to their own legislators. Feel free to share this document with your state and local officials.

Drive away with rates as low as 1.49% APR with an ISPFCU Auto Loan!

Whether you're looking to buy a brand-new vehicle, or just one new to you, let us help you drive away in the vehicle you want with our new, lower auto loan rates! For a limited time, you can now enjoy New Auto Loan rates as low as 1.49%* and Used Auto Loan rates as low as 1.74%!* In addition, you also have the option to defer your first loan payment for 90 days free of charge!

Even if you are not in the market for a new vehicle you can still take advantage of this special offer by refinancing an existing auto loan from another financial institution with ISPFCU. Not only could we lower your monthly loan payments and save you money in interest over the life of your loan, but you will also enjoy 90 days of no auto loan payments! Apply online at www.ispfcu.org or call us at 800-255-0886 with any questions you may have today!

*All rates are stated as an Annual Percentage Rate (APR). Rates are subject to change at any time. Special applies to new non-ISPFCU loans. Rates quoted are for individuals with excellent credit. Individuals with less than excellent credit may be offered higher rates. Fixed loan rate of 1.49% equals payments of $17.31 for 60 months for each $1,000 borrowed.

2022 OSW Symposium – Special Sessions Announced
Join us March 15-17

Problem viewing this email? Click here for our online version.

The IACP is pleased to announce the 2022 Officer Safety and Wellness Symposium special sessions. Each of these sessions will focus on effective wellness programs and strategies:

Pivoting Wellness Strategies in Times of Crisis

Reflecting on the challenges and innovations in officer health and wellness over the past year, the Opening Session will address concurrent challenges of the COVID-19 pandemic, civil unrest, and calls for police reform. This panel will provide perspectives from national and local law enforcement leaders on how they pivoted their agency wellness strategies to adapt to officers' needs during times of crisis.

Suicide Prevention, Intervention, and Postvention: Moving from Awareness to Action

Learn how to empower the shift from raising awareness to enacting change in support of effective solutions to prevent law enforcement suicide. This panel will provide guidance that can give agencies the catalyst they need to better serve their own officers.

One Routine Call, One Life Transformed: From Skid Row to CEO

This keynote session is an inspiring story that demonstrates how powerful the next call for service can be. Join speaker Joe Roberts as he shares his experience from the depths of homelessness and addiction, to the heights of his success as an entrepreneur and philanthropist. Joe will explain how one interaction with a police officer helped him overcome adversity and transform his life.

Don't miss the opportunity to join the discussion in Atlanta, Georgia, March 15-17. Each day will be filled with educational sessions, networking opportunities, and engaging activities. If you have questions, please contact OSWConference@theIACP.org.

Register Today Book Your Room

Updated Health and Safety Protocols

All attendees and guests will be required to show proof of vaccination or negative test to attend the in-person symposium and all official IACP events. Face mask requirements will follow local guidance at the time of the event. Currently, the city of Atlanta requires that all individuals, regardless of vaccination status, wear a mask indoors in a public space, including private businesses and establishments. The IACP will send updated information prior to departing for the event. Find full details about IACP's health and safety guidelines.

White House Moves To Reset Relationship With Law Enforcement Leaders

The New York Times (2/2, Benner, Kanno-Youngs, Savage) reports, “Susan Rice, the White House domestic policy adviser, called the leaders of the nation’s largest policing groups last month to promise a significant reset in their relationship as the Biden administration finished an executive order on police reform, a move that averted a potential breach that had been brewing for months, according to several people briefed on the calls.” According to the Times, “The groups welcomed Ms. Rice’s outreach, which amounted to a vow to incorporate more of their thinking in the order and possibly an implicit mea culpa. The White House had solicited input from the groups, but had not engaged with them on substance and details; their frustrations only soared in the days before her phone calls, when they were blindsided by the leak of an 18-page draft executive order that contained language they found objectionable.” The Times adds, “Rice’s course correction dovetails with a broader shift in the White House toward a more centrist stance on policing as violent crime rises.”

Federal Coordinator: No “Credible, Specific” Security Threats To Super Bowl

CNN (2/2, Sands) reports Jesse Baker, the federal “coordinator for security at Super Bowl LVI said Wednesday he’s ‘cautiously optimistic and comfortable’ about security plans leading up to the game at SoFi Stadium in Inglewood, California, in less than two weeks, noting that ‘extensive manpower’ is being deployed to protect the stadium and public.” There are currently “no known ‘credible, specific threats’ to the Super Bowl, Jesse Baker said, but added that ‘you don’t want to say that we’ve had a failure of imagination.’” In addition to the Secret Service, “numerous agencies are involved in protecting the Super Bowl, including US Customs and Border Protection, Homeland Security Investigations, the Cybersecurity and Infrastructure Security Agency, the Bureau of Alcohol, Tobacco, Firearms and Explosives, FBI, Department of Defense, as well as other local agencies, such as the Los Angeles Police Department and Los Angeles County Sheriff's Department and California Highway Patrol.”

US Police Departments Struggle To Recruit, Retain Officers

CNN (2/2, Sayers) reports, “Police departments across the nation are raising concerns about current and future staffing levels. CNN reached out to nearly 20 departments nationwide, along with other key stakeholders including elected officials, union officials and outside recruiters for departments for this story. They all point to similar concerns including Covid-19, the great resignation, the climate for law enforcement and local reform efforts that are making recruitment and retention difficult.” CNN adds, “The challenges have led the chief of police in Durham, North Carolina, to join her officers in patrolling her own city. The department is down 90 officers out of a budgeted force of 627. The department has started to offer a $5,000 bonus for new hires to fill its ranks. ‘It’s been tough,’ Chief Patrice Andrews said of the current staffing issues facing her city. ‘We’ve had to be very creative with staffing.’”

Guidance: States Can Use Federal Money For Speed Cameras

The AP (2/2, Yen) reports, “Under new federal guidance issued Wednesday, states can now tap billions of federal highway dollars for roadway safety programs such as automated traffic enforcement. They are being told that cameras that photograph speeding vehicles are an established way to help bring down rising traffic deaths. It’s all part of the Transportation Department’s new national strategy to stem record increases in road fatalities with a broad-based ‘safe system’ approach that promotes better road design, lower speed limits and more car safety regulations. The guidance by the Federal Highway Administration cites speed cameras in particular as a proven enforcement tool against hazardous driving.” According to the AP, “The Federal Highway Administration’s goal ‘is to help state and local transportation agencies across the country deliver projects that make streets, highways and bridges safe and accessible for all users,’ agency Deputy Administrator Stephanie Pollack said. ‘States now have more flexibility and funding to make highway safety improvements.’”

Houston Launches $44M Plan To Tackle Violent Crime

The AP (2/2, Lozano) reports from Houston, Texas, “More than $44 million is being allocated by officials to tackle rising violent crime in Houston, particularly an ongoing surge of homicides that the mayor said Wednesday has made residents feel like they’re living in a ‘city under siege.’ ‘Violent crime is a public health crisis, made worse by many factors, including the pandemic and too many guns on our streets,’ Houston Mayor Sylvester Turner said during a news conference.” The AP adds, “The new initiative includes $5.7 million to pay for overtime for 125 officers, $1 million for a gun buyback program, $1 million for a program that helps formerly incarcerated individuals get job training, housing and other needs, $2.5 million for a program to deploy outreach workers and violence interrupters to mitigate conflicts in neighborhoods and $3 million to help reduce domestic violence.”

At Least Six Killed In Failed Guinea-Bissau Coup Tied To Drug Traffickers

Reuters (2/2, Dabo) reports that “at least six people were killed in a failed attempt to overthrow Guinea-Bissau’s President Umaro Sissoco Embaló, state radio said on Wednesday, as residents of the capital cautiously returned to daily life. The dead in Tuesday’s assault included four assailants and two members of the presidential guard, it said.” Reuters says Embaló “had announced on Tuesday night that the situation was under control after gunfire rang out for more than five hours near a government compound where he was holding a cabinet meeting.” According to Reuters, “It remains unclear who was behind the attack but Embaló suggested it was linked to the government’s fight against drug trafficking rather than an army plan to seize power.”

FBI Probing HBCU Bomb Threats As Hate Crime

The Washington Post (2/2, Lumpkin, Zapotosky, Svrluga) reports, “The FBI is investigating a recent wave of” threats to bomb historically Black colleges and universities (HBCUs) “as a hate crime, and has identified as many as six” juvenile suspects, according to officials who are familiar with this matter. The Post adds, “Because of what the callers making the threats said – and because of the institutions targeted – the FBI is exploring the threats as being motivated by racial or ethnic hatred, one official said. FBI officials said in a statement Wednesday that the investigation, which was being led by its Joint Terrorism Task Forces and involved more than 20 field offices across the country, was ‘of the highest priority for the bureau.’ ‘Although at this time no explosive devices have been found at any of the locations, the FBI takes all threats with the utmost seriousness and we are committed to thoroughly and aggressively investigating these threats,’ the bureau said.”

Advocates Say Pandemic Increased Substance Use Disorder Risk For Older US Adults

USA Today (2/2, Ramirez) reports, “Geriatric workers say rates of depression and anxiety have risen among” older US adults during the COVID-19 pandemic. Advocates “say that in addition to exacerbating potentially serious emotional and mental health issues for older adults, pandemic isolation has had other harmful effects, including raising” substance use disorder risk.

Twenty Dead In Argentina As Authorities Search For Dangerous Batch Of Cocaine

The AP (2/3) reports, “Apparently adulterated cocaine killed 20 people and seriously sickened 74 others in” Buenos Aires, Argentina. Authorities in that country have been searching “frantically for the remainder of the deadly batch to get it off the streets before it is consumed.” San Martin Attorney General Marcelo Lapargó stated, “The urgency is to remove the poison from the market.” Reuters (2/2), AFP (2/2), and BBC World News (UK) (2/2) also cover this story.

White House Moves To Reset Relationship With Law Enforcement Leaders

The New York Times (2/2, Benner, Kanno-Youngs, Savage) reports, “Susan Rice, the White House domestic policy adviser, called the leaders of the nation’s largest policing groups last month to promise a significant reset in their relationship as the Biden administration finished an executive order on police reform, a move that averted a potential breach that had been brewing for months, according to several people briefed on the calls.” According to the Times, “The groups welcomed Ms. Rice’s outreach, which amounted to a vow to incorporate more of their thinking in the order and possibly an implicit mea culpa. The White House had solicited input from the groups, but had not engaged with them on substance and details; their frustrations only soared in the days before her phone calls, when they were blindsided by the leak of an 18-page draft executive order that contained language they found objectionable.” The Times adds, “Rice’s course correction dovetails with a broader shift in the White House toward a more centrist stance on policing as violent crime rises.”

Village of Niles Public Records

Record request #22-72 has been submitted and assigned to you. It currently has a due date of February 10, 2022.

To Whom It May Concern:

Pursuant to the Illinois Freedom of Information Act., I hereby request the following records:

Any and all written records (including but not limited to hard-copy documents, memos, emails, word processor documents, PDF documents, PowerPoint files, etc.) between September 1, 2021 and the date this request is processed (inclusive of those dates) pertaining to the Illinois Law Enforcement Accreditation Program (ILEAP) of the Illinois Association of Chiefs of Police (IACCP). This includes records containing (but not limited to) one or more of the following words, terms, or phrases (case-insensitive):

- "Illinois Law Enforcement Accreditation Program"

- "ILEAP"

- "tier 2"

- "tier two"

- "phase II"

- "Association of Chiefs of Police"

- "IACP"

- "ILACP"

On September 22nd and 23rd, 2021, a team from the Illinois Law Enforcement Accreditation Program (ILEAP) of the Illinois Association of Chiefs of Police assessed the Niles Police Department for tier 2 of this program. In public comments, an organizer with the Northwest Side Coalition Against Racism & Hate made the following appeal:

"I am a resident of Niles and an organizer with the Northwest Side Coalition Against Racism & Hate. I am commenting here today to address the ability of the Niles Police Department to meet the standards for the Illinois Law Enforcement Accreditation Program, known as ILEAP for tier 2. This is a program of the Illinois Association of Chiefs of Police, also known as IACP.

Please bear with me as there is a lot to unpack regarding the Niles Police so I will offer a bit of history. In the spring of 2020, Niles police were menacing the community with face masks depicting the decisive and racist thin blue line. It wasn't until the Northwest Side Coalition Against

Racism & Hate raised the issue that the face masks were banned. This story was written about in local news outlets and on WGNTV. We asked for three reforms of restitution of the Village of Niles. They were:

- Create and fund a permanent Office of Equity and Racial Justice to craft and implement a Racial Equity Impact Assessment and plan for the Village of Niles.
- Elect a Civilian Police Accountability Council to ensure democratic control over the police.
- Mandate effective annual anti-racism training for all elected officials and village employees, including cops.

These were necessary because it became apparent that Niles police did not recognize the harmful nature of this symbol to the community they are sworn to serve. They showed no remorse or recognition of their betrayal of the public trust. The IACP themselves, in fact, went against the advice of their partners the NAACP and their own Diversity Committee when the executive director wrote:

“We don't consider the display of the thin blue line as a "direct violation" of our Ten Shared Principles” and added that the NAACP disagrees with him about that.

There was one Niles police officer that we know of though, who said:

“I believe we should have abandoned these masks after the Minneapolis tragedy, seeing as though we have all “affirmed” the 10-shared principles of policing with the NAACP. I believe we should practice what we have affirmed.”

The name of that police officer was Nick Beyer. Nick Beyer, the very same cop who blew the whistle on Niles PD in a recent scandal involving a wellness check that was covered up. Harassed and forced to resign, Nick Beyer is now suing the Village of Niles for retaliation.

Ironically, Nick Beyer managed the accreditation process of ILEAP tier 1. In a May 1st 2021 email to the the executive director of the IACP, Nick Beyer said:

“I feel at this moment that the agency's accreditation status should be suspended until the ILEAP Board of Directors consider my complaint and allegations of misconduct,”

I hope that the concerns of Beyer, a then, police officer of Niles, the original manager of the tier 1 accreditation, a whistleblower, is being taken seriously. How is it that tier 2 accreditation is being considered when the facts of the whistleblower case hasn't even been publicly disclosed? Facts that Beyer considers important enough to suspend ILEAP accreditation for tier 1.

We have seen how this ILEAP accreditation program is wielded. Several times when faced with taking accountability for their actions, Nile Police instinctively mention this ILEAP accreditation as a red herring. When questioned regarding the thin blue line face mask issue at a December 10th Community Relations Commission meeting, Deputy Chief of Police Joseph Penze asserted that. “Niles is one of the first police departments to be accredited by the federal government for meeting certain standards. They are working on Phase II of the accreditation.”

This is misleading at best.

Now quite recently, Police chief Luis Tigera is at it again. He officially rescinded the thin blue line face mask ban for one day, once again mocking the community's concerns over their racist thin blue line.

Where is the accountability? If Niles Police can don divisive symbols and coverup misbehavior while retaining their standing in ILEAP tier 1 and the 10 Shared Principles, what assurance is there that they will abide by the accreditation for tier 2. Or is this is just a rubber stamping exercise. That would reveal to us a systemic effort of obfuscation that further entrenches the thin blue line that is dividing our communities. Is that the role of the Illinois Association of Chiefs of Police?

Village of Niles Public Records

Record request #22-72 has been submitted and assigned to you. It currently has a due date of February 10, 2022.

To Whom It May Concern:

Pursuant to the Illinois Freedom of Information Act., I hereby request the following records:

Any and all written records (including but not limited to hard-copy documents, memos, emails, word processor documents, PDF documents, PowerPoint files, etc.) between September 1, 2021 and the date this request is processed (inclusive of those dates) pertaining to the Illinois Law Enforcement Accreditation Program (ILEAP) of the Illinois Association of Chiefs of Police (IACCP). This includes records containing (but not limited to) one or more of the following words, terms, or phrases (case-insensitive):

- "Illinois Law Enforcement Accreditation Program"

- "ILEAP"

- "tier 2"

- "tier two"

- "phase II"

- "Association of Chiefs of Police"

- "IACP"

- "ILACP"

On September 22nd and 23rd, 2021, a team from the Illinois Law Enforcement Accreditation Program (ILEAP) of the Illinois Association of Chiefs of Police assessed the Niles Police Department for tier 2 of this program. In public comments, an organizer with the Northwest Side Coalition Against Racism & Hate made the following appeal:

"I am a resident of Niles and an organizer with the Northwest Side Coalition Against Racism & Hate. I am commenting here today to address the ability of the Niles Police Department to meet the standards for the Illinois Law Enforcement Accreditation Program, known as ILEAP for tier 2. This is a program of the Illinois Association of Chiefs of Police, also known as IACP.

Please bear with me as there is a lot to unpack regarding the Niles Police so I will offer a bit of history. In the spring of 2020, Niles police were menacing the community with face masks depicting the decisive and racist thin blue line. It wasn't until the Northwest Side Coalition Against

Racism & Hate raised the issue that the face masks were banned. This story was written about in local news outlets and on WGNTV. We asked for three reforms of restitution of the Village of Niles. They were:

- Create and fund a permanent Office of Equity and Racial Justice to craft and implement a Racial Equity Impact Assessment and plan for the Village of Niles.
- Elect a Civilian Police Accountability Council to ensure democratic control over the police.
- Mandate effective annual anti-racism training for all elected officials and village employees, including cops.

These were necessary because it became apparent that Niles police did not recognize the harmful nature of this symbol to the community they are sworn to serve. They showed no remorse or recognition of their betrayal of the public trust. The IACP themselves, in fact, went against the advice of their partners the NAACP and their own Diversity Committee when the executive director wrote:

"We don't consider the display of the thin blue line as a "direct violation" of our Ten Shared Principles" and added that the NAACP disagrees with him about that.

There was one Niles police officer that we know of though, who said:

"I believe we should have abandoned these masks after the Minneapolis tragedy, seeing as though we have all "affirmed" the 10-shared principles of policing with the NAACP. I believe we should practice what we have affirmed."

The name of that police officer was Nick Beyer. Nick Beyer, the very same cop who blew the whistle on Niles PD in a recent scandal involving a wellness check that was covered up. Harassed and forced to resign, Nick Beyer is now suing the Village of Niles for retaliation.

Ironically, Nick Beyer managed the accreditation process of ILEAP tier 1. In a May 1st 2021 email to the the executive director of the IACP, Nick Beyer said:

"I feel at this moment that the agency's accreditation status should be suspended until the ILEAP Board of Directors consider my complaint and allegations of misconduct,"

I hope that the concerns of Beyer, a then, police officer of Niles, the original manager of the tier 1 accreditation, a whistleblower, is being taken seriously. How is it that tier 2 accreditation is being considered when the facts of the whistleblower case hasn't even been publicly disclosed? Facts that Beyer considers important enough to suspend ILEAP accreditation for tier 1.

We have seen how this ILEAP accreditation program is wielded. Several times when faced with taking accountability for their actions, Nile Police instinctively mention this ILEAP accreditation as a red herring. When questioned regarding the thin blue line face mask issue at a December 10th Community Relations Commission meeting, Deputy Chief of Police Joseph Penze asserted that. "Niles is one of the first police departments to be accredited by the federal government for meeting certain standards. They are working on Phase II of the accreditation."

All,

I just wanted to make sure this email from ILACP came up on your radar. ILACP is low on nominations in all of the various awards categories for this year's banquet, which takes place in April here in Northbrook. Our own Chief Lou Jogmen from Highland Park is the host and will be sworn in as ILACP president. If you click the links at the bottom, you can see the qualifications for each award type. The board expects more press coverage of this event in 2022 due to its location and increased coverage of criminal justice matters lately. Please take a minute to look at the different award types. Hopefully, someone you know is worthy of recognition for their hard work!

Special Alert | February 1, 2022

Nominate Chief/Officer of the Year now, awards nominations deadlines extended to March 1

Now is the time to nominate those officers and chiefs who deserve recognition at our annual awards banquet in April.

The Police and Citizen Annual Awards Program is a statewide recognition program, under the leadership and policy of the Illinois Association of Chiefs of Police, intended to recognize citizens and police personnel for their significant contributions to the cause of Law Enforcement in the State of Illinois.

These awards recognize extraordinary valor and heroism, outstanding actions, exceptional achievements, or innovative approaches to public service while maintaining high standards of integrity and professionalism.

We are extending our nomination period to make sure all members have the opportunity to nominate deserving recipients.

The following categories are offered for nominations:

- Chief of the Year
- Most Outstanding Law Enforcement Officer
- Police Cross
- Outstanding Citizen Police Medal
- Life-Saving Award
- Citizen Award Certificate
- The ILACP Rising Shields of Law Enforcement
- Carl Dobbs Memorial Scholarship
- Jacob J. Novak Scholarship

Forms to nominate can be found by clicking the buttons below. Contact Carmen Elliott, ILACP business manager, at carmen@ilchiefs.org.

US Officials Report Surge In Traffic Deaths As Reckless Driving Persists

The AP (2/1, Yen) reports US traffic deaths “surged in the first nine months of 2021 to 31,720, the government reported Tuesday, keeping up a record pace of increased dangerous driving during the coronavirus pandemic. ... The estimated figure of people dying in motor vehicle crashes from January to September 2021 was 12% higher than the same period in 2020. That represents the highest percentage increase over a nine-month period since the Transportation Department began recording fatal crash data in 1975.” The “tally of 31,720 deaths was the highest nine-month figure since 2006.” Traffic deaths “began to spike in 2019. NHTSA has blamed reckless driving behavior for increases during the pandemic.” Before 2019, “the number of fatalities had fallen for three straight years.”

Reuters (2/1, Shepardson) says the numbers “suggest the United States surpassed 40,000 traffic deaths in 2021 for the first time since 2007.” Meanwhile, USDOT last Thursday “released a strategy designed to cut the soaring number of traffic deaths on American roads that it calls a ‘crisis.’” Transportation Secretary Pete Buttigieg “said he wants to see a ‘mentality shift’ away from traffic deaths as acceptable.” Buttigieg “wants to encourage designing safer roads and safer vehicles and is embracing ‘Vision Zero’ – the idea that the United States could eventually eliminate all traffic deaths.”

LAPD Mulls New Limits On “Pretextual Stops”

The Los Angeles Times (2/1, Rector) reports, “The Los Angeles Police Department is considering limiting ‘pretextual stops’ of motorists and pedestrians by officers investigating serious crime, arguing they aren’t effective and have undermined public trust in the police – particularly among Black and Latino residents who have been disproportionately targeted in the past.” The Times adds, “Such stops involve officers citing minor traffic or code violations as a “pretext” for stopping motorists, bicyclists or pedestrians who they suspect may be involved in more serious crime. They have been used by the LAPD for decades, especially in South L.A. and other areas where gun violence is high. The proposed policy, which went before the civilian Police Commission on Tuesday over the objections of the union that represents rank-and-file officers, would bar such stops from being conducted ‘unless officers are acting upon articulable information’ about a serious crime.”

Grants To Fund De-escalation, Diversion Tools For Police In One New Jersey County

NJ.com (2/1, Gray) reports, “The Cumberland County Prosecutor’s Office will use more than $1 million” worth of federal grant money “to provide local police with tools to de-escalate encounters with those suffering from mental illness, and to steer offenders” who have a substance use disorder “out of the criminal justice system and into treatment.” The money will come in the form of “two new grants, which total more than $1.4 million.” The Press of Atlantic City (NJ) (1/27, Conklin) publishes a similar article.

The nomination period for the 2022 IACP 40 Under 40 Award is currently open. Sworn and non-sworn individuals of any rank who are 39 or younger and employed by a transnational, federal, state, local, or tribal agency are eligible for nomination. Awardees are selected for their leadership capacity, dedication, and spirit of service. Nominations close March 16 – don’t miss your chance to recognize the rising leaders at your agency.

Submit a nomination today.

Study Finds Hate Crimes In Many US Cities Jumped In 2021

The Los Angeles Times (2/1, Winton) reports Los Angeles recorded the “most hate crimes among large U.S. cities last year, posting a 71% jump in the incidents, a study found.” Data gathered by the “Center for Hate and Extremism at Cal State San Bernardino show there were 615 hate crimes reported to police in Los Angeles city in 2021 — the third-highest annual total in any US city since the 1970s.” Other major cities “across the US also saw sharp increases in reported hate crimes, the center found.” Those increases marked a “continuation of a national spike in hate crimes in 2020,” when the FBI collected data “from police departments across the country and tallied 8,263 reported hate crimes in 2020 – a 13% jump over 2019.”

Multiple HBCUs Hit With Bomb Threats Tuesday For Second Day In A Row

The Hill (2/1, Rai) reports the FBI is investigating “after multiple historically black colleges and universities (HBCUs) across the country have received bomb threats for a second day in a row on Tuesday.” Reuters (2/1, Harte, O'Brien) reports that at least 12 historically Black colleges and universities (HBCUs) “received bomb threats and put their campuses on lockdown on Tuesday, a day after a rash of similar threats forced several of them to cancel classes.” The threats occurred “in cities from Baltimore to New Orleans” and “coincided with the first day of US Black History Month.” The FBI “said it was aware of the bomb threats and working with its law enforcement partners to address potential threats. It encouraged members of the public to report anything suspicious to the bureau.” White House Press Secretary Jen Psaki “told a press briefing that ‘we take these threats incredibly seriously,’ but said the White House still did know what had motivated the threats.”

USA Today (2/1, Miller, Thornton) reports Psaki also “called the bomb threats ‘disturbing’ and said homeland security officials are providing regular updates to Biden and senior staff members. The administration is working closely with law enforcement to assess the origin of the threats and the motivation behind them.” Psaki said: “We don’t have an assessment of that quite yet.” USA Today adds, “Psaki said the administration wants students and the leaders of the colleges know ‘that we are standing with them as they face these threats. It is scary, it is horrifying, it is terrible that these students, these faculty, these institutions are feeling under threat.’”

The Wall Street Journal (2/1, Pisani, Subscription Publication) reports 16 HBCUs received the threats, prompting local and campus police to search buildings and ask students to display school IDs around campus.

Man Who Allegedly Threatened Violence Against UCLA Arrested

The AP (2/1, Dazio, Antczak, Slevin) reports Matthew Harris, a former University of California, Los Angeles (UCLA) lecturer, was “arrested Tuesday after police say he emailed an 800-page document and posted videos threatening violence against” that school. The AP adds, “University of California regents sought a workplace violence restraining order” against Harris last May. That action was taken “the day after UCLA officials learned Harris had been released from a mental health facility and was back in Los Angeles.” An online CNN (2/1, Mossburg, Chan, Flower) article says Harris was “taken into custody” in Colorado, after authorities in that state “were notified about the man’s presence by police at UCLA, which moved classes online Tuesday.” Los Angeles Police Chief Michel Moore “said police there had contact with the person last spring and it involved the mental evaluation unit.”

Two Campus Officers Fatally Shot At Bridgewater College In Virginia

CNN (2/1, Alvarado) reports, “Two campus officers were shot and killed Tuesday during an active shooter situation at Bridgewater College in Virginia, according to college spokesperson Logan Bogert.” Virginia police “identified the suspect as 27-year-old Alexander Wyatt Campbell of Ashland, Virginia.” The incident occurred “when campus police officers responded to a call of a suspicious man” who shot the officers when they arrived on the scene. College President David Bushman said, “Campus Police Officer John Painter and Campus Safety Officer JJ Jefferson were shot and killed on campus while protecting us. These officers were close friends, known to many of us as the ‘dynamic duo.’ John was JJ’s best man in his wedding this year. They were beloved by students, faculty, and staff. I hurt for their families and loved ones, as I know we all do.”

Shooting Leaves One Student Dead, One Injured Outside Minneapolis Suburb School

According to the New York Times (2/1, Vigdor, Paz), “A shooting outside a school” in Minneapolis suburb Richfield “left one student dead and another in critical condition on Tuesday afternoon, according to the authorities, who said several hours later that two suspects had been arrested.” Police found the victims on the sidewalk Tuesday evening and subsequently “executed search warrants at two locations in Minneapolis in connection with the shooting, police said. Officers arrested two suspects and recovered a handgun, and were not looking for additional suspects, the police said. The authorities did not release the names of the suspects” or the victims.

Police In Texas Arrest Three In $3M Fraud Scheme

The Dallas Morning News (2/1) reports, “Three people have been arrested in connection with an Asian money laundering ring that scammed more than $3 million from its victims.” The Colleyville Police Department “arrested Robert J. Lang, 67, and Ke Xu, 56, on Monday on charges of engaging in organized crime, exploitation of the elderly, money laundering and theft from the elderly.” A third individual, “28-year-old Lin Qiu, was arrested in connection with the scam in September.” The investigation of the scam began “when someone reported being tricked into buying thousands of dollars in gift cards after being told they owed money for an antivirus scan. Authorities eventually uncovered several gift card scams that victimized people across the United States and eventually transferred the money to China. The scammers would redeem the gift cards as quickly as four minutes after they were purchased and in many cases would redeem them in different states than they were purchased in.”

Suspects In Killing Of German Police Officers Had Been Poaching

The AP (2/1, Moulson) reports, “Two men arrested over the nighttime killing of two police officers on a rural road in Germany apparently opened fire with hunting weapons after being caught with poached wild animals in their van, investigators said Tuesday.” Deadly “attacks on police are rare in Germany and Monday’s shooting near Kusel in the west of the country shocked officials from Chancellor Olaf Scholz down. A 29-year-old male officer and a 24-year-old female colleague who had nearly completed her training were killed. Both were shot in the head. Investigators said the elder officer fired 14 shots, but apparently neither of the suspects was hit.” The AP adds, “Two men were arrested on Monday afternoon in Sulzbach, about 37 kilometers (over 20 miles) from the scene of the shooting. A judge on Tuesday ordered them to be kept in custody on suspicion of murder pending a possible indictment.”

Panel: Substance Use Disorder, Other Problems Pose Risk To Kentucky Children

The Louisville (KY) Courier-Journal (2/1, Yetter) reports Kentucky’s Child Fatality and Near Fatality External Review Panel found that problems relating to substance use disorder, “mental illness, violence, poverty and an overwhelmed, understaffed state social services” organization “continue to put Kentucky children at risk of death or serious injury from abuse or neglect.”

Three Arrested In Connection With Overdose Deaths

The New York Post (2/1) reports Billy Ortega, Kaylen Rainey and William Drayton were “arrested Tuesday for peddling fentanyl-laced drugs that caused three fatal overdoses in a single day last year.” Each of the three suspects were “charged with conspiracy to distribute and possess with intent to distribute fentanyl and cocaine.”

US Officials Report Surge In Traffic Deaths As Reckless Driving Persists

The AP (2/1, Yen) reports US traffic deaths “surged in the first nine months of 2021 to 31,720, the government reported Tuesday, keeping up a record pace of increased dangerous driving during the coronavirus pandemic. ... The estimated figure of people dying in motor vehicle crashes from January to September 2021 was 12% higher than the same period in 2020. That represents the highest percentage increase over a nine-month period since the Transportation Department began recording fatal crash data in 1975.” The “tally of 31,720 deaths was the highest nine-month figure since 2006.” Traffic deaths “began to spike in 2019. NHTSA has blamed reckless driving behavior for increases during the pandemic.” Before 2019, “the number of fatalities had fallen for three straight years.”

Reuters (2/1, Shepardson) says the numbers “suggest the United States surpassed 40,000 traffic deaths in 2021 for the first time since 2007.” Meanwhile, USDOT last Thursday “released a strategy designed to cut the soaring number of traffic deaths on American roads that it calls a ‘crisis.’” Transportation Secretary Pete Buttigieg “said he wants to see a ‘mentality shift’ away from traffic deaths as acceptable.” Buttigieg “wants to encourage designing safer roads and safer vehicles and is embracing ‘Vision Zero’ – the idea that the United States could eventually eliminate all traffic deaths.”

LAPD Mulls New Limits On “Pretextual Stops”

The Los Angeles Times (2/1, Rector) reports, “The Los Angeles Police Department is considering limiting ‘pretextual stops’ of motorists and pedestrians by officers investigating serious crime, arguing they aren’t effective and have undermined public trust in the police – particularly among Black and Latino residents who have been disproportionately targeted in the past.” The Times adds, “Such stops involve officers citing minor traffic or code violations as a “pretext” for stopping motorists, bicyclists or pedestrians who they suspect may be involved in more serious crime. They have been used by the LAPD for decades, especially in South L.A. and other areas where gun violence is high. The proposed policy, which went before the civilian Police Commission on Tuesday over the objections of the union that represents rank-and-file officers, would bar such stops from being conducted ‘unless officers are acting upon articulable information’ about a serious crime.”

Grants To Fund De-escalation, Diversion Tools For Police In One New Jersey County

NJ.com (2/1, Gray) reports, “The Cumberland County Prosecutor’s Office will use more than $1 million” worth of federal grant money “to provide local police with tools to de-escalate encounters with those suffering from mental illness, and to steer offenders” who have a substance use disorder “out of the criminal justice system and into treatment.” The money will come in the form of “two new grants, which total more than $1.4 million.” The Press of Atlantic City (NJ) (1/27, Conklin) publishes a similar article.

The nomination period for the 2022 IACP 40 Under 40 Award is currently open. Sworn and non-sworn individuals of any rank who are 39 or younger and employed by a transnational, federal, state, local, or tribal agency are eligible for nomination. Study Finds Hate Crimes In Many US Cities Jumped In 2021

The Los Angeles Times (2/1, Winton) reports Los Angeles recorded the “most hate crimes among large U.S. cities last year, posting a 71% jump in the incidents, a study found.” Data gathered by the “Center for Hate and Extremism at Cal State San Bernardino show there were 615 hate crimes reported to police in Los Angeles city in 2021 — the third-highest annual total in any US city since the 1970s.” Other major cities “across the US also saw sharp increases in reported hate crimes, the center found.” Those increases marked a “continuation of a national spike in hate crimes in 2020,” when the FBI collected data “from police departments across the country and tallied 8,263 reported hate crimes in 2020 – a 13% jump over 2019.”

Multiple HBCUs Hit With Bomb Threats Tuesday For Second Day In A Row

The Hill (2/1, Rai) reports the FBI is investigating “after multiple historically black colleges and universities (HBCUs) across the country have received bomb threats for a second day in a row on Tuesday.” Reuters (2/1, Harte, O'Brien) reports that at least 12 historically Black colleges and universities (HBCUs) “received bomb threats and put their campuses on lockdown on Tuesday, a day after a rash of similar threats forced several of them to cancel classes.” The threats occurred “in cities from Baltimore to New Orleans” and “coincided with the first day of US Black History Month.” The FBI “said it was aware of the bomb threats and working with its law enforcement partners to address potential threats. It encouraged members of the public to report anything suspicious to the bureau.” White House Press Secretary Jen Psaki “told a press briefing that ‘we take these threats incredibly seriously,’ but said the White House still did know what had motivated the threats.”

USA Today (2/1, Miller, Thornton) reports Psaki also “called the bomb threats ‘disturbing’ and said homeland security officials are providing regular updates to Biden and senior staff members. The administration is working closely with law enforcement to assess the origin of the threats and the motivation behind them.” Psaki said: “We don’t have an assessment of that quite yet.” USA Today adds, “Psaki said the administration wants students and the leaders of the colleges know ‘that we are standing with them as they face these threats. It is scary, it is horrifying, it is terrible that these students, these faculty, these institutions are feeling under threat.’”

The Wall Street Journal (2/1, Pisani, Subscription Publication) reports 16 HBCUs received the threats, prompting local and campus police to search buildings and ask students to display school IDs around campus.

Special Alert | February 1, 2022

Nominate Chief/Officer of the Year now, awards nominations deadlines extended to March 1

Now is the time to nominate those officers and chiefs who deserve recognition at our annual awards banquet in April.

The Police and Citizen Annual Awards Program is a statewide recognition program, under the leadership and policy of the Illinois Association of Chiefs of Police, intended to recognize citizens and police personnel for their significant contributions to the cause of Law Enforcement in the State of Illinois.

These awards recognize extraordinary valor and heroism, outstanding actions, exceptional achievements, or innovative approaches to public service while maintaining high standards of integrity and professionalism.

We are extending our nomination period to make sure all members have the opportunity to nominate deserving recipients.

The following categories are offered for nominations:

- Chief of the Year
- Most Outstanding Law Enforcement Officer
- Police Cross
- Outstanding Citizen Police Medal
- Life-Saving Award
- Citizen Award Certificate
- The ILACP Rising Shields of Law Enforcement
- Carl Dobbs Memorial Scholarship
- Jacob J. Novak Scholarship

Forms to nominate can be found by clicking the buttons below. Contact Carmen Elliott, ILACP business manager, at carmen@ilchiefs.org.

Illinois' Voice of Professional Law Enforcement

Special Alert | February 1, 2022 Introducing Policy Patrol, the first podcast of the IL Chiefs

Policy Patrol covers the latest legislative issues and current events affecting police in Illinois.

This week Executive Director Ed Wojcicki talks about what has been happening in Springfield so far this session, how we will set legislative priorities this year and what to watch for this week. You will also get an overview of testimony our team provided to legislators in last month's Public Safety and Violence Prevention Task Force.

Policy Patrol is free to members and nonmembers. We encourage you to share with anyone in law enforcement and beyond who would benefit from the information.

Policing and Policy

Law Enforcement Grappling With Rise In Violence Against Officers

An online ABC News (1/28, Barr) article says 24 police officers were shot in the US this month, “according to statistics compiled by the Gun Violence Archive, a nonprofit website that tracks shootings.” Some of those officers died, including “two New York City police officers.” The article adds, “By comparison, in all of the month of January in 2020 and 2021, 17 police officers were shot, according to the Gun Violence Archive.” Norwood, Massachusetts Police Chief Bill Brooks “told ABC News that in some ways, the uptick in shooting has to do with ‘anti-police sentiment which may embolden some criminals.’ ‘They see that one way to avoid going into police custody is to shoot it out with police,’ Brooks, who also serves on the International Chiefs of Police Board of Directors said.”

On its website, CNN (1/27, Morales, Nickeas) reports New York City Mayor Eric Adams (D) “is resurrecting a controversial unit within the NYPD to help stem an increase in shootings.” When it comes to violence, “New York City is not unique: Cities across the country have units of plainclothes officers assigned to high-risk policing efforts, and though their assignments vary by city, they’re similar in many ways. They’re usually identifiable, unlike undercovers. They’re typically in unmarked cars and not responsible for answering 911 calls, are assigned hours and locations depending on crime concerns, and their mandate is guns or other felony enforcement. And in other cities, they’re also associated with aggressive policing. ‘I can’t imagine not having a group of officers, deputies, detectives that I can pull and use to prevent and combat a problem they may be having in a certain area,’ said Florida’s Orange County Sheriff John W. Mina, who also served as Chief of the Orlando Police Department.”

UK Authorities To Deploy Armed Counter-Terrorism Officers On Cross-Channel Ferries

The Guardian (UK) (1/31, Davies) reports, “Armed counter-terrorism officers will be deployed on British cross-Channel ferries for the first time this summer, though government sources said there was no specific threat to passenger vessels.” The Guardian adds, “Firearms police from the Civil Nuclear Constabulary (CNC) are to be posted on ferries out of Dover, as well as on passenger ships between Newcastle and the Netherlands. The move will tighten security on British ferries, which are unguarded and seen as vulnerable, with passengers not individually searched or given body scans when boarding, unlike those on planes or Eurostar trains. It is understood about 40 CNC officers will be posted on a rotation basis on ferries with a trial starting in July. The CNC has officers available as a result of nuclear power stations being decommissioned.”

Court In Canada Rejects Supervised Injection Sites Policy Challenge

The Canadian Press (1/31, Germano) reports the top court in the Canadian province of Alberta “dismissed an appeal” that sought to prevent Alberta’s government from implementing a new supervised drug injection sites policy. The policy was challenged by “Moms Stop the Harm and the Lethbridge Overdose Prevention Society,” which “argued that the requirement to provide a health-care number could increase barriers to the sites along with the risk of overdoses.” In rejecting that challenge, the Alberta Court of Appeal said the policy “is part of an overall strategy to respond to the opioid overdose epidemic within the broader framework of the health-care system.” The Calgary (CAN) Herald (1/31) also covers the Alberta Court of Appeal ruling.

California Moves To Dismantle Nation’s Largest Death Row

The AP (1/31, Thompson) reports Gov. Gavin Newsom (D-CA), “who three years ago placed a moratorium on executions, now is moving to dismantle the United States’ largest death row by moving all condemned inmates to other prisons within two years.” Newsom’s “goal is to turn the section at San Quentin State Prison into a ‘positive, healing environment.’ Newsom said Monday it’s an outgrowth of his opposition to what he believes is a deeply flawed system, one that ‘gets my blood boiling.’” Newsom said, “The prospect of your ending up on death row has more to do with your wealth and race than it does your guilt or innocence.” California “is merging its condemned inmates into the general prison population with no expectation that any will face execution anytime in the near future.”

At Least Six HBCUs Receive Bomb Threats

The Washington Post (1/31, Firozi) reports, "At least six historically Black colleges and universities received bomb threats early Monday, prompting campus closures and investigations. ... Howard University in D.C.; Bowie State University in Bowie, Md.; Delaware State University in Dover; Bethune-Cookman University in Daytona Beach, Fla.; Albany State University in Albany, Ga.; and Southern University and A&M College in Baton Rouge received reports of bomb threats throughout Monday morning, according to statements from the schools and local law enforcement." The schools "had all received all-clear notices by late Monday afternoon." The Post says, "It's the second time this month that numerous HBCUs reported such threats in a single day."

The Hill (1/31, Gangitano) reports White House Press Secretary Jen Psaki "said Monday that President Biden is aware of the latest bomb threats at historically Black colleges and universities (HBCUs), calling them disturbing." Psaki said, "I will say that these are certainly disturbing. ... And the White House is in touch with interagency partners, including federal law enforcement leadership on this." She also said, "The president is aware. I don't believe he's received a formal briefing, but he is aware of these reports." The FBI "said earlier on Monday it is aware of the bomb threats and working with local law enforcement. It also asked the public to report anything suspicious regarding the threats."

Research: Driving Skills More Compromised When Drinking Alcohol And Using Marijuana

HealthDay (1/31, Norton) reports an "analysis of 57 past studies found that the combination of alcohol and marijuana compromised people's driving skills to a greater degree than either substance alone." HealthDay added, "It's important to understand those combined effects, in part because so many people drink and use marijuana together, according to" Sarah Simmons, who led this research project while she worked "at the University of Calgary in Alberta, Canada."

Federal Prisons On Lockdown After Two Texas Inmates Killed

The AP (2/1, Balsamo, Sisak) reports, "The federal prison system has been placed on a nationwide lockdown after two inmates were killed and two others were injured Monday during a gang altercation at a federal penitentiary in Texas." According to the AP, the incident "happened around 11:30 a.m. Monday at USP Beaumont, a federal prison in Beaumont, Texas. The altercation involved members of the violent MS-13 street gang, two people familiar with the matter told The Associated Press." The AP adds, "The attack is just the latest example of serious violence within the beleaguered federal Bureau of Prisons," which "has struggled through a multitude of crises in recent years." The lockdown, "being instituted at the agency's more than 120 federal prisons across the U.S., was prompted by fears of potential retaliation and concern violence could spread to other facilities. During a nationwide lockdown, inmates are kept in their cells most of the day and visiting is canceled."

Newsweek (1/31, Villarreal) reports, "The two inmates who died were 54-year-old Guillermo Riojas and 34-year-old Andrew Pineda, KFDM reported. The men were first transported to a local hospital with life-threatening injuries. Two additional inmates were also transported for assessment and treatment, the news station added. No other staff or inmates were injured, nor was there any additional threat to the public, the news station added.” Newsweek adds, “Monday’s lockdown is the first since the federal bureau locked down prisons in response to the January 6 Capitol riot in 2021.” According to Newsweek, “A November 2021 investigative report by the Associated Press found the Bureau of Prisons to be beset with instances of ‘abuse, graft and corruption’ committed by prison workers and contractors.”

Study Focuses On Unintentional Overdoses Involving Teens, Preteens In US

In online coverage, CNN (1/31, Christensen) reports, “Dr. Orman T. Hall, a psychiatry specialist at the Ohio State University Wexner Medical Center,” co-authored a study that found “teens and preteens in the US may have lost about 200,000 years of life to unintentional drug overdoses” that occurred during a recent five-year period. The study analyzed US Centers for Disease Control and Prevention data that was collected between 2015 and 2019. Hall “believes the research...shows that public health interventions that are aimed at adults probably don’t work as well for all ages.” Coverage of Hall’s study is also featured in a MedPage Today (1/31, Wu) article and an iHeartMedia story that is posted to the WPTI-FM Greensboro, NC (1/31) website.

Officials: 10 People Overdosed On Fentanyl In DC This Past Friday

The DEA is mentioned by some of the media outlets covering 10 recent fentanyl overdoses in Washington, DC. In an online article, WTOP-FM Washington (1/31) reports DC officials said 10 people overdosed on fentanyl in one day in the city’s southwest region. Three of those individuals, who all overdosed on Friday, died. During a Monday news conference that was organized in response to this matter, DEA Washington, DC Division Special Agent in Charge Jarod Forget “said that earlier this month, a suspected dealer in a different overdose case was charged with the federal crime of distribution of fentanyl resulting in serious bodily injury or death.” In an online story that features similar coverage, WRC-TV Washington (1/31, Ward) links to a video clip that shows Forget saying, “Any death stemming from fentanyl is violent crime. It’s a violent act resulting in death, and that’s something that we need to give all our attention to.”

DCist (1/31) reports Forget and DC Police Chief Robert Contee “pledged to...search out the source of the fentanyl” that caused 10 overdoses in DC this past Friday. They also “pledged to investigate” the three deaths that occurred as a result of that situation. The Washington Post (1/31) and the WJLA-TV Washington (1/31, Gayle) website publish similar reports.

On its website, WTTG-TV Washington (1/31, Fox) covers its interview with Forget, who said illicit fentanyl is “killing a lot of people.” A video clip that accompanies the online coverage shows Forget saying more about the illicit fentanyl threat in DC and other parts of the country.

Additional coverage of the 10 recent fentanyl overdoses in DC is featured in a separate, online WTTG-TV Washington (1/31) story, another Washington Post (1/31) article, and a second WJLA-TV Washington (1/31, Dailey) website report.

Projection: Higher Alcohol Consumption During Pandemic Will Result In 8,000 Additional Deaths

The Hill (1/31, O'Connell) reports “researchers at Massachusetts General Hospital” helped conduct a study that projected “a one-year increase in alcohol consumption during the pandemic will result in 8,000 additional deaths from alcohol-related liver disease, 18,700 cases of liver failure and 1,000 cases of liver cancer by 2040.” Jovan Julien, an MGH Institute for Technology Assessment data analyst, is the study’s lead author. Julien wrote, “While we have projected the expected impact of societal drinking changes associated with the COVID-19 pandemic without any interventions, we hope that our research can help jumpstart needed conversations at every level of society about how we can respond to the many behavioral changes, coping mechanisms, and choices that have short- and long-term implications for the health of” US citizens.

Man Apparently Killed By Explosive Device Near Antioch, California Schools

The San Francisco Chronicle (1/31, Picon) reports that police in Antioch, California “ordered several schools and their surrounding neighborhood to shelter in place Monday morning after a man was found dead in the area from an apparent explosion, officials said.” Police officers “responded to the area of West 17th Street and F Street near Live Oak High School shortly after 7:30 a.m. following a report that a man was lying on the ground. They found a man in his 50s who had ‘suffered severe trauma and was unresponsive.’ He was pronounced dead at the scene, said Officer Darryl Saffold, strategic communications officer with Antioch police. There were wires found near the man’s body and his injuries appeared to have been caused by an ‘improvised explosive device,’ Saffold said.” The Walnut Creek police bomb squad “was called to help investigate and the schools and surrounding streets were swept by officers and police K-9s.”

Newsweek (1/31, Thomas) reports, “The body was found in a residential area in the East Bay city of about 115,000. The discovery put multiple schools into lockdown and police ordered nearby residents to shelter in place while police investigated, according to department Facebook post. There are no signs of other explosive devices in schools or neighborhoods, Saffold said, according to CBS affiliate KPIX-TV.” Newsweek adds, “In December, schools across the country closed in response to threats of violence driven by social media, including TikTok. While law enforcement in some areas determined the threats weren’t credible they still sent officers to schools as a deterrent.”

Law Enforcement Grappling With Rise In Violence Against Officers

An online ABC News (1/28, Barr) article says 24 police officers were shot in the US this month, “according to statistics compiled by the Gun Violence Archive, a nonprofit website that tracks shootings.” Some of those officers died, including “two New York City police officers.” The article adds, “By comparison, in all of the month of January in 2020 and 2021, 17 police officers were shot, according to the Gun Violence Archive.” Norwood, Massachusetts Police Chief Bill Brooks “told ABC News that in some ways, the uptick in shooting has to do with ‘anti-police sentiment which may embolden some criminals.’ ‘They see that one way to avoid going into police custody is to shoot it out with police,’ Brooks, who also serves on the International Chiefs of Police Board of Directors said.”

On its website, CNN (1/27, Morales, Nickeas) reports New York City Mayor Eric Adams (D) “is resurrecting a controversial unit within the NYPD to help stem an increase in shootings.” When it comes to violence, “New York City is not unique: Cities across the country have units of plainclothes officers assigned to high-risk policing efforts, and though their assignments vary by city, they’re similar in many ways. They’re usually identifiable, unlike undercovers. They’re typically in unmarked cars and not responsible for answering 911 calls, are assigned hours and locations depending on crime concerns, and their mandate is guns or other felony enforcement. And in other cities, they’re also associated with aggressive policing. ‘I can’t imagine not having a group of officers, deputies, detectives that I can pull and use to prevent and combat a problem they may be having in a certain area,’ said Florida’s Orange County Sheriff John W. Mina, who also served as Chief of the Orlando Police Department.”

UK Authorities To Deploy Armed Counter-Terrorism Officers On Cross-Channel Ferries

The Guardian (UK) (1/31, Davies) reports, “Armed counter-terrorism officers will be deployed on British cross-Channel ferries for the first time this summer, though government sources said there was no specific threat to passenger vessels.” The Guardian adds, “Firearms police from the Civil Nuclear Constabulary (CNC) are to be posted on ferries out of Dover, as well as on passenger ships between Newcastle and the Netherlands. The move will tighten security on British ferries, which are unguarded and seen as vulnerable, with passengers not individually searched or given body scans when boarding, unlike those on planes or Eurostar trains. It is understood about 40 CNC officers will be posted on a rotation basis on ferries with a trial starting in July. The CNC has officers available as a result of nuclear power stations being decommissioned.”

Court In Canada Rejects Supervised Injection Sites Policy Challenge

The Canadian Press (1/31, Germano) reports the top court in the Canadian province of Alberta “dismissed an appeal” that sought to prevent Alberta’s government from implementing a new supervised drug injection sites policy. The policy was challenged by “Moms Stop the Harm and the Lethbridge Overdose Prevention Society,” which “argued that the requirement to provide a health-care number could increase barriers to the sites along with the risk of overdoses.” In rejecting that challenge, the Alberta Court of Appeal said the policy “is part of an overall strategy to respond to the opioid overdose epidemic within the broader framework of the health-care system.” The Calgary (CAN) Herald (1/31) also covers the Alberta Court of Appeal ruling.

California Moves To Dismantle Nation’s Largest Death Row

The AP (1/31, Thompson) reports Gov. Gavin Newsom (D-CA), “who three years ago placed a moratorium on executions, now is moving to dismantle the United States’ largest death row by moving all condemned inmates to other prisons within two years.” Newsom’s “goal is to turn the section at San Quentin State Prison into a ‘positive, healing environment.’ Newsom said Monday it’s an outgrowth of his opposition to what he believes is a deeply flawed system, one that ‘gets my blood boiling.’” Newsom said, “The prospect of your ending up on death row has more to do with your wealth and race than it does your guilt or innocence.” California “is merging its condemned inmates into the general prison population with no expectation that any will face execution anytime in the near future.”

At Least Six HBCUs Receive Bomb Threats

The Washington Post (1/31, Firozi) reports, “At least six historically Black colleges and universities received bomb threats early Monday, prompting campus closures and investigations. ... Howard University in D.C.; Bowie State University in Bowie, Md.; Delaware State University in Dover; Bethune-Cookman University in Daytona Beach, Fla.; Albany State University in Albany, Ga.; and Southern University and A&M College in Baton Rouge received reports of bomb threats throughout Monday morning, according to statements from the schools and local law enforcement.” The schools “had all received all-clear notices by late Monday afternoon.” The Post says, “It’s the second time this month that numerous HBCUs reported such threats in a single day.”

The Hill (1/31, Gangitano) reports White House Press Secretary Jen Psaki “said Monday that President Biden is aware of the latest bomb threats at historically Black colleges and universities (HBCUs), calling them disturbing.” Psaki said, “I will say that these are certainly disturbing. ... And the White House is in touch with interagency partners, including federal law enforcement leadership on this.” She also said, “The president is aware. I don’t believe he’s received a formal briefing, but he is aware of these reports.” The FBI “said earlier on Monday it is aware of the bomb threats and working with local law enforcement. It also asked the public to report anything suspicious regarding the threats.”

Research: Driving Skills More Compromised When Drinking Alcohol And Using Marijuana

HealthDay (1/31, Norton) reports an “analysis of 57 past studies found that the combination of alcohol and marijuana compromised people’s driving skills to a greater degree than either substance alone.” HealthDay added, “It’s important to understand those combined effects, in part because so many people drink and use marijuana together, according to” Sarah Simmons, who led this research project while she worked “at the University of Calgary in Alberta, Canada.”

Federal Prisons On Lockdown After Two Texas Inmates Killed

The AP (2/1, Balsamo, Sisak) reports, “The federal prison system has been placed on a nationwide lockdown after two inmates were killed and two others were injured Monday during a gang altercation at a federal penitentiary in Texas.” According to the AP, the incident “happened around 11:30 a.m. Monday at USP Beaumont, a federal prison in Beaumont, Texas. The altercation involved members of the violent MS-13 street gang, two people familiar with the matter told The Associated Press.” The AP adds, “The attack is just the latest example of serious violence within the beleaguered federal Bureau of Prisons,” which “has struggled through a multitude of crises in recent years.” The lockdown, “being instituted at the agency’s more than 120 federal prisons across the U.S., was prompted by fears of potential retaliation and concern violence could spread to other facilities. During a nationwide lockdown, inmates are kept in their cells most of the day and visiting is canceled.”

Newsweek (1/31, Villarreal) reports, “The two inmates who died were 54-year-old Guillermo Riojas and 34-year-old Andrew Pineda, KFDM reported. The men were first transported to a local hospital with life-threatening injuries. Two additional inmates were also transported for assessment and treatment, the news station added. No other staff or inmates were injured, nor was there any additional threat to the public, the news station added.” Newsweek adds, “Monday’s lockdown is the first since the federal bureau locked down prisons in response to the January 6 Capitol riot in 2021.” According to Newsweek, “A November 2021 investigative report by the Associated Press found the Bureau of Prisons to be beset with instances of ‘abuse, graft and corruption’ committed by prison workers and contractors.”

Study Focuses On Unintentional Overdoses Involving Teens, Preteens In US

In online coverage, CNN (1/31, Christensen) reports, “Dr. Orman T. Hall, a psychiatry specialist at the Ohio State University Wexner Medical Center,” co-authored a study that found “teens and preteens in the US may have lost about 200,000 years of life to unintentional drug overdoses” that occurred during a recent five-year period. The study analyzed US Centers for Disease Control and Prevention data that was collected between 2015 and 2019. Hall “believes the research...shows that public health interventions that are aimed at adults probably don’t work as well for all ages.” Coverage of Hall’s study is also featured in a MedPage Today (1/31, Wu) article and an iHeartMedia story that is posted to the WPTI-FM Greensboro, NC (1/31) website.

Officials: 10 People Overdosed On Fentanyl In DC This Past Friday

The DEA is mentioned by some of the media outlets covering 10 recent fentanyl overdoses in Washington, DC. In an online article, WTOP-FM Washington (1/31) reports DC officials said 10 people overdosed on fentanyl in one day in the city’s southwest region. Three of those individuals, who all overdosed on Friday, died. During a Monday news conference that was organized in response to this matter, DEA Washington, DC Division Special Agent in Charge Jarod Forget “said that earlier this month, a suspected dealer in a different overdose case was charged with the federal crime of distribution of fentanyl resulting in serious bodily injury or death.” In an online story that features similar coverage, WRC-TV Washington (1/31, Ward) links to a video clip that shows Forget saying, “Any death stemming from fentanyl is violent crime. It’s a violent act resulting in death, and that’s something that we need to give all our attention to.”

DCist (1/31) reports Forget and DC Police Chief Robert Contee “pledged to...search out the source of the fentanyl” that caused 10 overdoses in DC this past Friday. Man Apparently Killed By Explosive Device Near Antioch, California Schools

The San Francisco Chronicle (1/31, Picon) reports that police in Antioch, California “ordered several schools and their surrounding neighborhood to shelter in place Monday morning after a man was found dead in the area from an apparent explosion, officials said.” Police officers “responded to the area of West 17th Street and F Street near Live Oak High School shortly after 7:30 a.m. following a report that a man was lying on the ground. They found a man in his 50s who had ‘suffered severe trauma and was unresponsive.’ He was pronounced dead at the scene, said Officer Darryl Saffold, strategic communications officer with Antioch police. There were wires found near the man’s body and his injuries appeared to have been caused by an ‘improvised explosive device,’ Saffold said.” The Walnut Creek police bomb squad “was called to help investigate and the schools and surrounding streets were swept by officers and police K-9s.”

Newsweek (1/31, Thomas) reports, “The body was found in a residential area in the East Bay city of about 115,000. The discovery put multiple schools into lockdown and police ordered nearby residents to shelter in place while police investigated, according to department Facebook post. There are no signs of other explosive devices in schools or neighborhoods, Saffold said, according to CBS affiliate KPIX-TV.” Newsweek adds, “In December, schools across the country closed in response to threats of violence driven by social media, including TikTok. While law enforcement in some areas determined the threats weren’t credible they still sent officers to schools as a deterrent.”

Good afternoon Sgt. Boba,

My name is Joe Licari, and I am the Law Enforcement Coordinator for Mid-States Organized Crime Information Center (MOCIC). I retired as Deputy Chief with the Wheeling, Illinois Police Department in April of 2021.

Sorry we missed one another today...I just stopped by to thank you for being a long-time member of Mid-States Organized Crime Information Center (MOCIC) and discuss some new services and equipment we have to offer. As you may know, we are funded through the Department of Justice and have many tools and services at our disposal. I used MOCIC when I ran investigations at Wheeling and so do many of our municipal counterparts including Skokie, Morton Grove, Lincolnwood, ISP & Chicago PD, but also federal agencies including the FBI & DEA. I've attached some information which offers a snapshot of what we can do for you in the form of equipment loans (Night vision, trackers, covert pole cams, night vision, etc.) and services like analysts (decipher data, find people, name checks, etc.) and forensics (cellphone extractions, cell tower dumps, audio/video enhancement, etc.). At $100-$300 per year, depending upon agency size, we are really the best bang for your buck in law enforcement. The price is low because the FEDS pay most of our budget. We are at the top of our game when it comes to getting mugshots and photos and prosecutorial assistance like creating large format charts and graphics to place on an easel in the felony room at the courthouse.

Finally, I've attached the current roster I have on file for your agency. Can you go through it and cross out anyone who is no longer there and make any rank changes? You can write directly on the sheet and scan it back or fax it back to 847-531-9160. Any other officers that the Chief/Sheriff or highest-ranking member of your agency wishes to add can click the hyperlink below and gain membership; forward as necessary.

Thanks in advance...Stay Safe.

Policing and Policy

New NYC Mayor Makes Crime His Focus Ahead Of Biden Visit

Politico (1/28, Durkin) says that during his first month as mayor of New York City, Eric Adams “-- often clad in an NYPD jacket – has routinely rushed to crime scenes like the beat cop he once was.” According to Politico, “The events of recent weeks have already turned crime – and the question of what to do about it – into the single biggest issue facing his administration and has drawn in President Joe Biden, who will visit New York next week to discuss gun violence with Adams.” Politico says “detractors fear his tough-on-crime persona and pro-police policies are a sign that years of hard-won reforms starting in 2013 when Michael Bloomberg was the mayor are at risk of being reversed.”

WPost Analysis: Harsh Maryland Sentencing Policies Prompt Changes To Parole Process

In an approximately 3,662-word article, The Washington Post (1/28, Tan) discusses the parole process for Maryland convicts serving life sentences. The Post says, “For decades, politics has shaped the parole process...in Maryland. In the heat of a tough-on-crime campaign in the 1990s, a governor declared that he would reject all ‘lifers’ for parole even after parole commissioners had recommended their release. The policy, maintained by governors from both parties, left hundreds of prisoners with parole-eligible sentences – the vast majority of them Black men – to grow old and die in prison.” Now, “state lawmakers, buoyed by the Floyd protests,” are taking steps to remove the governor from the parole process. In December, “they voted...to revoke his authority over parole, taking one of the most concrete steps nationwide to change the prospects of early release for lifers.”

Police Trainer Testifies Officers Charged In Floyd Death Received Training To Intervene

The Washington Post (1/28, Bailey) reports former Minneapolis Police Department inspector Katie Blackwell, who commanded the agency's training division at the time of Floyd's May 2020 death, testified that "three former Minneapolis police officers on trial for violating George Floyd's civil rights had been trained to verbally and physically intervene to stop a colleague from using unreasonable force and broke department policy when they didn't stop Derek Chauvin from kneeling on Floyd's neck." Blackwell is quoted as saying, "You are accountable for what you do – and if you don't do anything at all."

Security, Crime, and Drugs

Federal Authorities Release Memo Highlighting 42 "Indicators" Of Violent Extremist Behavior

CBS News (1/28, Sganga) reported as the threat of "domestic violent extremism intensifies, federal law enforcement agencies are asking communities to report family members, friends or peers who show signs of extremist behavior." The FBI, DHS, and the "National Counterterrorism Center have published a resource designed to help" the public spot "ideologically motivated US based violent extremists." The 34-page report released Friday "lists 42 'indicators' that range from 'unusual goodbyes or post-death instructions' to 'surveilling potential attack targets' to 'isolating oneself from family and peers, particularly if citing violent extremist doctrine or ideology.'" The report notes previous editions "have focused solely on the indicators of homegrown violent extremist mobilization to violence," and that this edition "has been expanded to include indicators that apply to multiple ideologically motivated US-based violent extremists, given the evolving complexity and variety of factors influencing the domestic threat landscape."

Axios (1/28, Chen) reported similarly.

FBI, Kentucky Police Investigating Alleged Attack On Afghan Refugee

The Owensboro (KY) Times (1/28) reported the FBI is investigating an "alleged attack on an Afghan refugee that occurred Thursday night in the vicinity of Owensboro's Comfort Inn and Suites." A witness told Owensboro Times "two refugees were followed from a gym to their hotel before one was pepper sprayed. Local leaders who are helping the refugees resettle claim it was a hate crime." According to a spokesperson "with the FBI Louisville office, both the FBI and the Owensboro Police Department received complaints of an assault on an Afghan refugee Thursday evening."

Task Force Aims To Prevent Carjackings In DC, Two Maryland Counties

The Washington Post (1/29, Hermann) reported that in February of last year, authorities launched a task force that aims to prevent carjackings in the District of Columbia "and in Montgomery and Prince George's counties in Maryland." DC Police Chief Robert J. Contee III "said the task force arrested 149 people on carjacking charges last year, 100 of them juveniles." Contee added that as of January 26, 2022, the task force has arrested 18 people, 14 of whom are juveniles.

Some Democrats, Activists Question Accuracy Of Federal Government's Hate Crimes Tally

The Washington Post (1/29, Nakumara) reported that some “Democrats and civil rights advocates have long argued that the federal tally” for hate crimes in the US “represents a major undercount because of lax reporting and inconsistent standards among local jurisdictions. Compounding the problem, they say: Victims of hate crimes tend to be among society’s most marginalized, and many are reticent about coming forward” to report such crimes.

Guatemalan, US Authorities Arrest 10 People Linked To Massacre Of 19 People In Mexico

Reuters (1/28) reports authorities in Guatemala, working with the US Department of Homeland Security, on Friday “arrested 10 people in raids against a migrant smuggling group linked to the massacre of 19 people in Mexico last year, Guatemalan officials said.” Guatemala’s Public Prosecutor’s Office “said 19 raids were being carried out in the western town of Comitancillo to dismantle the human smuggling network that took the Guatemalan migrants to Mexico.” A spokesperson for the national police “said eight men and two women had been detained so far.”

Officer Safety and Wellness

Spate Of Attacks On Law Enforcement Officers Shows Traffic Stop Dangers

CNN (1/28, Nickeas) reports, “At least four law enforcement officers were seriously injured during traffic stops across America over the last week – three by gunfire – leading to the death of one sheriff’s deputy.” CNN explains, “A motorist dragged a Philadelphia police officer for five blocks while attempting to flee after the officer spotted a gun in the car. A man pulled over by a Houston-area deputy over the weekend shot the deputy to death. A man emerged from a garbage can and shot a Milwaukee County sheriff’s deputy during a search for someone who fled a traffic stop. In Georgia, a sheriff’s deputy was shot in the chest during a stop – their vest stopped the round.” According to law enforcement experts, “the attacks this week highlight the risks inherent to the job of policing, even if they aren’t evidence of a growing trend.”

Technology

Denver Police Solve 40-Year-Old Murders Of Three Women, Teen Girl

The Washington Post (1/29, Francis) reports, “Police in Colorado have identified the man who killed three women and a teenage girl more than 40 years ago, with the help of genetic genealogy and DNA.” The Post continues, “Between 1978 and 1981, three of the women were stabbed to death in Denver, while the fourth was found dead with stab wounds in an Adams County field, police said.” After DNA evidence linked the crimes, police were able to identify the suspect as Joe Michael Ervin. Ervin “was arrested after 26-year-old police officer Debra Sue Corr pulled him over at a traffic stop in June 1981. He shot her with her gun in what became the first line-of-duty death for the Aurora Police Department. He later killed himself in custody.”

Policing and Policy

New NYC Mayor Makes Crime His Focus Ahead Of Biden Visit

Politico (1/28, Durkin) says that during his first month as mayor of New York City, Eric Adams “-- often clad in an NYPD jacket – has routinely rushed to crime scenes like the beat cop he once was.” According to Politico, “The events of recent weeks have already turned crime – and the question of what to do about it – into the single biggest issue facing his administration and has drawn in President Joe Biden, who will visit New York next week to discuss gun violence with Adams.” Politico says “detractors fear his tough-on-crime persona and pro-police policies are a sign that years of hard-won reforms starting in 2013 when Michael Bloomberg was the mayor are at risk of being reversed.”

WPost Analysis: Harsh Maryland Sentencing Policies Prompt Changes To Parole Process

In an approximately 3,662-word article, The Washington Post (1/28, Tan) discusses the parole process for Maryland convicts serving life sentences. The Post says, “For decades, politics has shaped the parole process...in Maryland. In the heat of a tough-on-crime campaign in the 1990s, a governor declared that he would reject all ‘lifers’ for parole even after parole commissioners had recommended their release. The policy, maintained by governors from both parties, left hundreds of prisoners with parole-eligible sentences – the vast majority of them Black men – to grow old and die in prison.” Now, “state lawmakers, buoyed by the Floyd protests,” are taking steps to remove the governor from the parole process. In December, “they voted...to revoke his authority over parole, taking one of the most concrete steps nationwide to change the prospects of early release for lifers.”

Police Trainer Testifies Officers Charged In Floyd Death Received Training To Intervene

The Washington Post (1/28, Bailey) reports former Minneapolis Police Department inspector Katie Blackwell, who commanded the agency's training division at the time of Floyd's May 2020 death, testified that "three former Minneapolis police officers on trial for violating George Floyd's civil rights had been trained to verbally and physically intervene to stop a colleague from using unreasonable force and broke department policy when they didn't stop Derek Chauvin from kneeling on Floyd's neck." Blackwell is quoted as saying, "You are accountable for what you do – and if you don't do anything at all."

Federal Authorities Release Memo Highlighting 42 "Indicators" Of Violent Extremist Behavior

CBS News (1/28, Sganga) reported as the threat of "domestic violent extremism intensifies, federal law enforcement agencies are asking communities to report family members, friends or peers who show signs of extremist behavior." The FBI, DHS, and the "National Counterterrorism Center have published a resource designed to help" the public spot "ideologically motivated US based violent extremists." The 34-page report released Friday "lists 42 'indicators' that range from 'unusual goodbyes or post-death instructions' to 'surveilling potential attack targets' to 'isolating oneself from family and peers, particularly if citing violent extremist doctrine or ideology.'" The report notes previous editions "have focused solely on the indicators of homegrown violent extremist mobilization to violence," and that this edition "has been expanded to include indicators that apply to multiple ideologically motivated US-based violent extremists, given the evolving complexity and variety of factors influencing the domestic threat landscape."

Axios (1/28, Chen) reported similarly.

FBI, Kentucky Police Investigating Alleged Attack On Afghan Refugee

The Owensboro (KY) Times (1/28) reported the FBI is investigating an "alleged attack on an Afghan refugee that occurred Thursday night in the vicinity of Owensboro's Comfort Inn and Suites." A witness told Owensboro Times "two refugees were followed from a gym to their hotel before one was pepper sprayed. Local leaders who are helping the refugees resettle claim it was a hate crime." According to a spokesperson "with the FBI Louisville office, both the FBI and the Owensboro Police Department received complaints of an assault on an Afghan refugee Thursday evening."

Task Force Aims To Prevent Carjackings In DC, Two Maryland Counties

The Washington Post (1/29, Hermann) reported that in February of last year, authorities launched a task force that aims to prevent carjackings in the District of Columbia "and in Montgomery and Prince George's counties in Maryland." DC Police Chief Robert J. Contee III "said the task force arrested 149 people on carjacking charges last year, 100 of them juveniles." Contee added that as of January 26, 2022, the task force has arrested 18 people, 14 of whom are juveniles.

Some Democrats, Activists Question Accuracy Of Federal Government's Hate Crimes Tally

The Washington Post (1/29, Nakumara) reported that some “Democrats and civil rights advocates have long argued that the federal tally” for hate crimes in the US “represents a major undercount because of lax reporting and inconsistent standards among local jurisdictions. Compounding the problem, they say: Victims of hate crimes tend to be among society’s most marginalized, and many are reticent about coming forward” to report such crimes.

Guatemalan, US Authorities Arrest 10 People Linked To Massacre Of 19 People In Mexico

Reuters (1/28) reports authorities in Guatemala, working with the US Department of Homeland Security, on Friday “arrested 10 people in raids against a migrant smuggling group linked to the massacre of 19 people in Mexico last year, Guatemalan officials said.” Guatemala’s Public Prosecutor’s Office “said 19 raids were being carried out in the western town of Comitancillo to dismantle the human smuggling network that took the Guatemalan migrants to Mexico.” A spokesperson for the national police “said eight men and two women had been detained so far.”

Spate Of Attacks On Law Enforcement Officers Shows Traffic Stop Dangers

CNN (1/28, Nickeas) reports, “At least four law enforcement officers were seriously injured during traffic stops across America over the last week – three by gunfire – leading to the death of one sheriff’s deputy.” CNN explains, “A motorist dragged a Philadelphia police officer for five blocks while attempting to flee after the officer spotted a gun in the car. A man pulled over by a Houston-area deputy over the weekend shot the deputy to death. A man emerged from a garbage can and shot a Milwaukee County sheriff’s deputy during a search for someone who fled a traffic stop. In Georgia, a sheriff’s deputy was shot in the chest during a stop – their vest stopped the round.” According to law enforcement experts, “the attacks this week highlight the risks inherent to the job of policing, even if they aren’t evidence of a growing trend.”

Denver Police Solve 40-Year-Old Murders Of Three Women, Teen Girl

The Washington Post (1/29, Francis) reports, “Police in Colorado have identified the man who killed three women and a teenage girl more than 40 years ago, with the help of genetic genealogy and DNA.” The Post continues, “Between 1978 and 1981, three of the women were stabbed to death in Denver, while the fourth was found dead with stab wounds in an Adams County field, police said.” After DNA evidence linked the crimes, police were able to identify the suspect as Joe Michael Ervin. Ervin “was arrested after 26-year-old police officer Debra Sue Corr pulled him over at a traffic stop in June 1981. He shot her with her gun in what became the first line-of-duty death for the Aurora Police Department. He later killed himself in custody.”

Special Alert | January 31, 2022 Today is final chance to complete ILACP survey collecting data on recruitment and retention

“Recruitment and retention” was the number one challenge and concern of our members in our September 2021 Membership Survey.

Want to know how your department compares with others in Illinois?

We have put together a survey to ask about your recruitment and retention numbers from 2020 to 2022. Please complete this survey or delegate to someone in your department to complete. Those who have the numbers will complete the survey in ten minutes or less.

Compiling this data will also allow us to explain to our own members, to elected officials, and to the public what is going on with recruitment and retention statewide. You don't have to be an ILACP member to complete the survey. We want as much data as possible.

Thank you in advance for taking the time to complete this.

343. Webinar - Drone Programs and SWAT Capabilities - Why Your Team Needs Drones

From: National Tactical Officers Association (NTOA) <ntoanews@ntoa.org>
To: dkh@vniles.com
Sent Date: Jan 28, 2022 11:09:02

Attachment:

Brought to you live by the NTOA!

March 25, 2022

1200 - 1300 EST

Check your respective time zone.

Drone technology is one of the fastest-growing areas in law enforcement. This webinar is an introductory overview of drones in law enforcement and SWAT operations. The presenter will include a summary of SWAT cases where drones were used in real-world applications. Other discussion points include platform selection, mission typing, FAA requirements, and choosing a regulatory framework that works best for your agency.

This webinar will show how drone technology is changing law enforcement. In addition to policy considerations, live drone footage will give attendees a better understanding of how and why implementing drones into SWAT operations can be beneficial.

There will be time allotted for Q&A at the end of the webinar.

As a participant, you will receive a Certificate of Attendance at the completion of this webinar which may fulfill continuing education requirements.

Cost: Free for individual NTOA members, $25 for non-members

Eligibility: Law Enforcement/Fire/EMS

For additional information on NTOA member benefits and how to join, click here.

REGISTER NOW

If you wish to access this or other webinars in our On-Demand library at a later date, you will need to be an NTOA member.

Your Presenter:

Chad Karlewicz is a commander with the Renton (WA) Police Department and is currently assigned to the Special Operations Division. Chad has 31 years of law enforcement experience. In that time, he has been involved in many aspects of law enforcement including patrol, traffic, narcotics investigations, detectives, recruitment/hiring and training. During his career, he has served in a variety of leadership positions as a supervisor and a commander. He is most proud of his 23 plus years of service to the 42-man regional Valley SWAT team where he also held several leadership positions including entry team Leader, sniper team leader, and SWAT team commander.

Chad attended college at Northwest University. He is a graduate of the International Association of Chiefs of Police - Leadership in Police Organizations, and the Emergency Management Institutes Integrated Emergency Management program in Emmetsburg, Maryland. He developed the Renton Police Department's Unmanned Aircraft System (UAS) program in 2015 and holds a Part 107 Certification. That program now has more than 30 unmanned aircraft and over 25 pilots. Unmanned aircraft have been integrated into every division of the police department.

Chad is also the owner/operator of Frontline UAS. He focuses on consulting and training to develop and implement Unmanned Aerial Systems programs. He specializes in the complete program development and implementation of UAS programs for public safety organizations, including attaining FAA Certificates of Authorization and FAA Part 107 licenses. He also focuses on policy and SOP development and comprehensive department training programs. Additionally, Chad is a Deputy Director at DRONERESPONDERS, an Advisory Committee Member at the Law Enforcement Drone Association, and a frequent speaker at various national UAS events. This webinar will show how drone technology is changing law enforcement. In addition to policy considerations, live drone footage will give attendees a better understanding of how and why implementing drones into SWAT operations can be beneficial.

There will be time allotted for Q&A at the end of the webinar.

As a participant, you will receive a Certificate of Attendance at the completion of this webinar which may fulfill continuing education requirements.

Cost: Free for individual NTOA members, $25 for non-members

Your Presenter:

Chad Karlewicz is a commander with the Renton (WA) Police Department and is currently assigned to the Special Operations Division. Chad has 31 years of law enforcement experience. In that time, he has been involved in many aspects of law enforcement including patrol, traffic, narcotics investigations, detectives, recruitment/hiring and training. During his career, he has served in a variety of leadership positions as a supervisor and a commander. He is most proud of his 23 plus years of service to the 42-man regional Valley SWAT team where he also held several leadership positions including entry team Leader, sniper team leader, and SWAT team commander.

Chad attended college at Northwest University. He is a graduate of the International Association of Chiefs of Police - Leadership in Police Organizations, and the Emergency Management Institutes Integrated Emergency Management program in Emmetsburg, Maryland. He developed the Renton Police Department's Unmanned Aircraft System (UAS) program in 2015 and holds a Part 107 Certification. That program now has more than 30 unmanned aircraft and over 25 pilots. Unmanned aircraft have been integrated into every division of the police department.

Chad is also the owner/operator of Frontline UAS. He focuses on consulting and training to develop and implement Unmanned Aerial Systems programs. He specializes in the complete program development and implementation of UAS programs for public safety organizations, including attaining FAA Certificates of Authorization and FAA Part 107 licenses. He also focuses on policy and SOP development and comprehensive department training programs. Additionally, Chad is a Deputy Director at DRONERESPONDERS, an Advisory Committee Member at the Law Enforcement Drone Association, and a frequent speaker at various national UAS events. Special Alert | January 28, 2022 Deadline Jan. 31 for ILACP survey collecting data on recruitment and retention

“Recruitment and retention” was the number one challenge and concern of our members in our September 2021 Membership Survey.

Want to know how your department compares with others in Illinois?

We have put together a survey to ask about your recruitment and retention numbers from 2020 to 2022. Please complete this survey or delegate to someone in your department to complete. Those who have the numbers will complete the survey in ten minutes or less.

Compiling this data will also allow us to explain to our own members, to elected officials, and to the public what is going on with recruitment and retention statewide. You don't have to be an ILACP member to complete the survey. We want as much data as possible.

Thank you in advance for taking the time to complete this.

Policing and Policy

WSJournal Report: Police Departments Struggling To Retain, Replace Officers

The Wall Street Journal (1/27, Maher, Subscription Publication) reports police departments nationwide are struggling to remain fully staffed, as resignations increase despite some departments increasing funding and recruitment. Officers cite budget cuts and increased hostility toward police during defund-the-police movements that began after the killing of George Floyd. California Job Corps Program Aiming To Help Young People With Substance Use Disorder

The AP (1/27, Antczak) reports California has launched the Californians For All Youth Jobs Corps, a program that aims to put “disadvantaged youth and young adults to work helping their communities while improving their prospects for future success.” California Chief Service Officer Josh Fryday said the hope is that, among other things, the program can help young people who have a substance use disorder or mental health issues.

Infrastructure Law Funds To Be Used To Address Increase In Traffic Fatalities

The New York Times (1/27, Ngo) reports the US Department of Transportation (DOT) “is embarking on a national strategy to tackle rising traffic fatalities.” The strategy, which involves “using new funding in the $1 trillion infrastructure law,” comes as officials have blamed the increasing traffic fatalities trend on “more people speeding recklessly and using alcohol and drugs to cope with” COVID-19 pandemic-related stress.

Report Suggests Maine Police Should Plan For Mental Health Crises

The AP (1/27) reports from Augusta, Maine, “Law enforcement agencies in Maine need to implement plans to respond to reports of people in the midst of mental health crises, a new report from the state's deadly force review panel said." The panel's "report suggested that police need to frequently communicate with mental health professionals while also receiving training to deal with mental health crises. Departments that cannot afford to hire mental health professionals should also train officers about local resources in their areas. Between 2017 and 2020, the panel assessed 10 cases involving officers who used deadly force when responding to calls. In 10 of the cases reviewed, 90% of the people police used deadly force against were experiencing a mental health crisis. Some 70% of the people involved lived in rural areas, highlighting the necessity of having a plan in place for responding to and communicating about calls involving people in the midst of mental health crises."

Alabama Man Executed For 1996 Killing After Supreme Court Clears Way

The AP (1/27, Reeves) reports Alabama "executed an inmate by lethal injection for a 1996 murder on Thursday after a divided US Supreme Court sided with the state and rejected defense claims the man had an intellectual disability that cost him a chance to choose a less 'torturous,' yet untried, execution method." Matthew Reeves "was put to death at Holman Prison after the court lifted a lower court order that had prevented corrections workers from executing the prisoner. He was pronounced dead at 9:24 p.m. CST, state Attorney General Steve Marshall said in a statement."

Michigan School Shooting Suspect To Pursue Insanity Defense

The AP (1/27, Householder) reports a teenager "charged with killing four students at a Michigan high school will pursue an insanity defense, his lawyers said in a notice filed Thursday as he, his parents and school officials faced a new lawsuit over the attack at Oxford High School." The notice "should lead to mental health exams of 15-year-old Ethan Crumbley, who is charged as an adult with murder and other crimes for the shooting." Experts "will consider whether the teen understood the wrongfulness of his conduct on the day of the shooting." Meanwhile, a lawsuit filed Thursday "was announced on behalf of the parents of Tate Myre, who was slain Nov. 30, and other students who witnessed the shootings. It alleges negligence by school officials and Crumbley's parents over the attack."

Reuters (1/27, Ayyub) reports Crumbley “is being held without bond in an adult jail in Oakland County, although isolated from other inmates.” Crumbley’s parents, “who have pleaded not guilty, are being held in the same county jail as their son in lieu of $500,000 bail each on charges of involuntary manslaughter.” In response to the defense’s Thursday announcement, prosecuting attorney Karen McDonald “wrote in a separate court notice: ‘Please take notice that if Defendant should successfully assert the defense of insanity, the prosecution gives notice of intent to rebut this claimed defense.’”

Report: “Two Little-Known Drugs” Contributing To US Overdose Crisis

An AP (1/27, Stobbe) article says the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention (CDC) is reporting that “two little-known drugs are making lethal new contributions to” the US drug overdose crisis. According to a newly released CDC report , para-fluorofentanyl “and metonitazene are being seen more often by medical examiners looking into overdose deaths.” Representatives of the DEA, the University of California, San Francisco, “and the Knox County Regional Forensic Center” in Tennessee were involved with the formation of the CDC report.

Conspiracy Theorists Connecting With Audiences Via Newsletters, Podcasts

The Washington Post (1/27, Dwoskin) reports Substack, which researchers from the nonprofit Center for Countering Digital Hate “say makes millions of dollars off anti-vaccine misinformation, on Wednesday defended its tolerance for publishing ‘writers with whom we strongly disagree.’” According to the Post, prominent figures known for spreading misinformation “have flocked to Substack, podcasting platforms and a growing number of right-wing social media networks over the past year after getting kicked off or restricted on Facebook, Twitter and YouTube.” Now these alternative platforms “are beginning to face some of the scrutiny that has imperiled social media services.” But there’s a “fundamental difference in the architecture of newsletters and podcasts when compared to that of social media companies. Whereas “social networks use algorithms “to spread content – sometimes misinformation – to users who don’t want to see it,” newsletters and podcasts do not.

One Dead, Four Hospitalized After DC Hotel Shooting

The Hill (1/27, Rai) reports, “Five people were shot at a Washington, DC., hotel in the early hours of Thursday morning in an incident that left one woman dead, police said.” The shooting “took place at a Days Inn hotel...near the University of the District of Columbia, according to tweets posted by the city’s Metropolitan Police Department.” One adult female victim was “pronounced dead at the hospital.” According to police, “the other four victims also received treatment at the hospital.” Metro PD and Commander Duncan Bedlion “said...Thursday that some of the shooting victims were found at the scene and others took themselves to the hospital.” Police Chief Robert J. Contee III “told reporters that the police were searching in the immediate area of the hotel for a person in connection with the shooting, The Washington Post reported.”

White House Unveils Plan To Strengthen Cyber Defenses For Water Utilities

Reuters (1/27, Bose) reports, “The White House on Thursday unveiled a plan to beef up cybersecurity in the nation’s water sector, an extension of its efforts to thwart attacks against critical infrastructure including electricity and natural gas pipeline operators.” According to senior Administration officials, “water facilities use automation and electronic networks that are vulnerable to cyber attacks, which could include producing unsafe water, stopping water flow to consumers, and damaging infrastructure.” The Administration’s “plan will push for the adoption of new technologies that offer early detection of cyber threats, improve response to such incidents, and provide the sharing of such data with the US government.”

Officers cite budget cuts and increased hostility toward police during defund-the-police movements that began after the killing of George Floyd. California Job Corps Program Aiming To Help Young People With Substance Use Disorder

The AP (1/27, Antczak) reports California has launched the Californians For All Youth Jobs Corps, a program that aims to put “disadvantaged youth and young adults to work helping their communities while improving their prospects for future success.” California Chief Service Officer Josh Fryday said the hope is that, among other things, the program can help young people who have a substance use disorder or mental health issues.

Infrastructure Law Funds To Be Used To Address Increase In Traffic Fatalities

The New York Times (1/27, Ngo) reports the US Department of Transportation (DOT) “is embarking on a national strategy to tackle rising traffic fatalities.” The strategy, which involves “using new funding in the $1 trillion infrastructure law,” comes as officials have blamed the increasing traffic fatalities trend on “more people speeding recklessly and using alcohol and drugs to cope with” COVID-19 pandemic-related stress.

Report Suggests Maine Police Should Plan For Mental Health Crises

The AP (1/27) reports from Augusta, Maine, “Law enforcement agencies in Maine need to implement plans to respond to reports of people in the midst of mental health crises, a new report from the state's deadly force review panel said." The panel's "report suggested that police need to frequently communicate with mental health professionals while also receiving training to deal with mental health crises. Departments that cannot afford to hire mental health professionals should also train officers about local resources in their areas. Between 2017 and 2020, the panel assessed 10 cases involving officers who used deadly force when responding to calls. In 10 of the cases reviewed, 90% of the people police used deadly force against were experiencing a mental health crisis. Some 70% of the people involved lived in rural areas, highlighting the necessity of having a plan in place for responding to and communicating about calls involving people in the midst of mental health crises."

Alabama Man Executed For 1996 Killing After Supreme Court Clears Way

The AP (1/27, Reeves) reports Alabama "executed an inmate by lethal injection for a 1996 murder on Thursday after a divided US Supreme Court sided with the state and rejected defense claims the man had an intellectual disability that cost him a chance to choose a less 'torturous,' yet untried, execution method." Matthew Reeves "was put to death at Holman Prison after the court lifted a lower court order that had prevented corrections workers from executing the prisoner. He was pronounced dead at 9:24 p.m. CST, state Attorney General Steve Marshall said in a statement."

Michigan School Shooting Suspect To Pursue Insanity Defense

The AP (1/27, Householder) reports a teenager "charged with killing four students at a Michigan high school will pursue an insanity defense, his lawyers said in a notice filed Thursday as he, his parents and school officials faced a new lawsuit over the attack at Oxford High School." The notice "should lead to mental health exams of 15-year-old Ethan Crumbley, who is charged as an adult with murder and other crimes for the shooting." Experts "will consider whether the teen understood the wrongfulness of his conduct on the day of the shooting." Meanwhile, a lawsuit filed Thursday "was announced on behalf of the parents of Tate Myre, who was slain Nov. 30, and other students who witnessed the shootings. It alleges negligence by school officials and Crumbley's parents over the attack."

Reuters (1/27, Ayyub) reports Crumbley “is being held without bond in an adult jail in Oakland County, although isolated from other inmates.” Crumbley’s parents, “who have pleaded not guilty, are being held in the same county jail as their son in lieu of $500,000 bail each on charges of involuntary manslaughter.” In response to the defense’s Thursday announcement, prosecuting attorney Karen McDonald “wrote in a separate court notice: ‘Please take notice that if Defendant should successfully assert the defense of insanity, the prosecution gives notice of intent to rebut this claimed defense.’”

Report: “Two Little-Known Drugs” Contributing To US Overdose Crisis

An AP (1/27, Stobbe) article says the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention (CDC) is reporting that “two little-known drugs are making lethal new contributions to” the US drug overdose crisis. According to a newly released CDC report , para-fluorofentanyl “and metonitazene are being seen more often by medical examiners looking into overdose deaths.” Representatives of the DEA, the University of California, San Francisco, “and the Knox County Regional Forensic Center” in Tennessee were involved with the formation of the CDC report.

Conspiracy Theorists Connecting With Audiences Via Newsletters, Podcasts

The Washington Post (1/27, Dwoskin) reports Substack, which researchers from the nonprofit Center for Countering Digital Hate “say makes millions of dollars off anti-vaccine misinformation, on Wednesday defended its tolerance for publishing ‘writers with whom we strongly disagree.’” According to the Post, prominent figures known for spreading misinformation “have flocked to Substack, podcasting platforms and a growing number of right-wing social media networks over the past year after getting kicked off or restricted on Facebook, Twitter and YouTube.” Now these alternative platforms “are beginning to face some of the scrutiny that has imperiled social media services.” But there’s a “fundamental difference in the architecture of newsletters and podcasts when compared to that of social media companies. Whereas “social networks use algorithms “to spread content – sometimes misinformation – to users who don’t want to see it,” newsletters and podcasts do not.

One Dead, Four Hospitalized After DC Hotel Shooting

The Hill (1/27, Rai) reports, “Five people were shot at a Washington, DC., hotel in the early hours of Thursday morning in an incident that left one woman dead, police said.” The shooting “took place at a Days Inn hotel...near the University of the District of Columbia, according to tweets posted by the city’s Metropolitan Police Department.” One adult female victim was “pronounced dead at the hospital.” According to police, “the other four victims also received treatment at the hospital.” Metro PD and Commander Duncan Bedlion “said...Thursday that some of the shooting victims were found at the scene and others took themselves to the hospital.” Police Chief Robert J. Contee III “told reporters that the police were searching in the immediate area of the hotel for a person in connection with the shooting, The Washington Post reported.”

White House Unveils Plan To Strengthen Cyber Defenses For Water Utilities

Reuters (1/27, Bose) reports, “The White House on Thursday unveiled a plan to beef up cybersecurity in the nation’s water sector, an extension of its efforts to thwart attacks against critical infrastructure including electricity and natural gas pipeline operators.” According to senior Administration officials, “water facilities use automation and electronic networks that are vulnerable to cyber attacks, which could include producing unsafe water, stopping water flow to consumers, and damaging infrastructure.” The Administration’s “plan will push for the adoption of new technologies that offer early detection of cyber threats, improve response to such incidents, and provide the sharing of such data with the US government.”

Drive away with rates as low as 1.49% APR with an ISPFUCU Auto Loan!

Whether you're looking to buy a brand-new vehicle, or just one new to you, let us help you drive away in the vehicle you want with our new, lower auto loan rates! For a limited time, you can now enjoy New Auto Loan rates as low as 1.49%* and Used Auto Loan rates as low as 1.74%!* In addition, you also have the option to defer your first loan payment for 90 days free of charge!

Even if you are not in the market for a new vehicle you can still take advantage of this special offer by refinancing an existing auto loan from another financial institution with ISPFUCU. Not only could we lower your monthly loan payments and save you money in interest over the life of your loan, but you will also enjoy 90 days of no auto loan payments! Apply online at www.ispfcu.org or call us at 800-255-0886 with any questions you may have today!

*All rates are stated as an Annual Percentage Rate (APR). Rates are subject to change at any time. Special applies to new non-ISPFUCU loans. Rates quoted are for individuals with excellent credit. Individuals with less than excellent credit may be offered higher rates. Fixed loan rate of 1.49% equals payments of $17.31 for 60 months for each $1,000 borrowed.

Even if you are not in the market for a new vehicle you can still take advantage of this special offer by refinancing an existing auto loan from another financial institution with ISPFUCU. Not only could we lower your monthly loan payments and save you money in interest over the life of your loan, but you will also enjoy 90 days of no auto loan payments! Apply online at www.ispfcu.org or call us at 800-255-0886 with any questions you may have today!

*All rates are stated as an Annual Percentage Rate (APR). Rates are subject to change at any time. Special applies to new non-ISPFUCU loans. Rates quoted are for individuals with excellent credit. Individuals with less than excellent credit may be offered higher rates. Fixed loan rate of 1.49% equals payments of $17.31 for 60 months for each $1,000 borrowed.

Illinois' Voice of Professional Law Enforcement

Follow us to get more leadership resources

Each month we are working to bring you words of wisdom from leaders in all areas of law enforcement - featuring both members and non-members. Deputy Kip Heinle of the Madison County Sheriff's Department shared what it is like to be a school resource officers. Deputy Heinle is PR Director of the Illinois School Resource Officer Association.

: Deputy Heinle poses with his daughters at Triopia High School where he is an SRO.

In case you missed it: 2022 Legislative Priorities

On January 12, 2022, the Legislative Committee met via Zoom with (190) members participating to discuss the upcoming legislative session. It was determined that we will be conducting our Bill Review on February 9 via Zoom. During this meeting we will establish our bill positions and identify our 2022 priority list. All members are invited to participate (more details will be forthcoming). A list of current priorities and bills we are tracking is now available on our website.

Take our survey to benefit recruitment and retention

We have put together a survey to ask about your recruitment and retention numbers from 2020 to 2022. Please complete this survey or delegate to someone in your department to complete. Those who have the numbers will complete the survey in ten minutes or less. Compiling this data will also allow us to explain to our own members, to elected officials, and to the public what is going on with recruitment and retention statewide. You don't have to be an ILACP member to complete the survey. We want as much data as possible. Thank you in advance for taking the time to complete this.

MADDs yearly 2021 Ignition Interlock Report now available

This report honors victims and survivors who advocate for change to eliminate impaired driving through the passage of strong ignition interlock laws. Advocacy efforts of victims and survivors have helped save lives by preventing millions of drinking and driving attempts. Ignition interlocks are effective in changing behavior and are a valuable tool for saving lives and preventing injuries on our nation's roads.

Ed,

I know you are busy, but I was wondering if you had an opportunity to speak with Mr. Bradford from the ILEAP Council regarding the Niles submission? I understand that Lt Hamer submitted five more ILEAP applications to the council for review, and I hope Niles is not passed over...DC Zakula provided you with all the facts of the case, and I hope based on these facts and the rule of law, you support our submission, and encourage the council to vote on the merit of our accreditation submission, as well as the recommendation of the two assessors...

If you require additional, or need me to do anything, please call me...

Thanks Ed

Ed,

Sorry I missed the call, but I was called away to a meeting...I hope the briefing by DC Zakula provided a better picture of the truth vs a one sided story by a disenchanting former NPD employee...

I am frustrated that his disingenuous allegations of this agency is holding up our TIER II Accreditation...

If you or any council members need additional information, pls call me on my cell at [REDACTED]

Ed,

I spoke with Marc Maton yesterday, and we agreed that I should call you and provide you with information you may not be aware of...but, as you are aware, the Niles PD has been submitted for Tier II Accreditation by Lt. Jeff Hamer and retired DC Holly Nearing for the on-site NPD assessment of 9/22 and 9/23...I understand that the Accreditation Council is holding up the approval/denial process because of a pending complaint in the Cook County States Attorney's Office by a former Niles Police officer who retired not in good standings during an internal investigations...also, as part of that internal investigation, two of his subordinates resigned also, not in standings, and one received a five day suspension without dispute...this complaint to the S/A's office has not merit, we followed the facts, interviewed all parties involved, reviewed all BWC and concluded "NO COVER –UP"...in addition, our labor attorney participated in every aspect of this investigation...

I have attached a PDF document identifying the "A-Z" of this matter, but also attached is a report from an independent Law Firm who investigated Mr. Beyer's allegations of a cover up by the NPD, the conclusion indicated the NPD did not violate any policies of this incident or the internal investigations...

After you review the attach, pls call me to discuss my concerns/frustrations with this process...let me know your availability, however if you are available , I would like to speak with you this afternoon....thank you...

Policing and Policy

Self-Proclaimed Policing Experts Tell Officers Not To Change Approach

The Washington Post (1/26, Klemko) reports rhetoric critical of Black Lives Matter and Democrats is “flourishing in commercial police training settings, a Washington Post investigation shows, as departments try to respond to demands for change but also find themselves on the defensive in many communities.” The Post adds that with “local, state and federal money for training plentiful, and with little guidance or oversight for what officers should be taught, some speakers at training conferences tell officers that pushback against conventional policing is a media invention. Others demonize civilian protesters and reformers, describing them as loud voices holding minority opinions. Still others say police should maintain a ‘warrior mentality’ to weather the rigors of what they describe as the most dangerous job outside of military service.” According to the Post, “Trainers include many former law enforcement officers and military personnel, some of whom are linked to extremist groups and anti-government movements.”

Deputy US Attorney General Pledges To Address Both Violent Crime, Police Misconduct

CNN (1/26, Perez, Sneed) reports, “Amid a violent crime wave, and as congressional efforts on police reform have petered out, Deputy Attorney General Lisa Monaco touted the Biden administration’s efforts to both support law enforcement and address police misconduct. ‘This is not an either/or,’ Monaco told CNN in an exclusive interview Tuesday. ‘We have got to do both.’” The Justice Department under President Biden “has doubled down on investigations into allegations of discriminatory policing after the Trump administration scaled back that work,” but “the Biden administration has also bolstered the resources the department’s offered law enforcement, with the department making $1.6 billion in grants available last year for policing programs aimed at reducing violent crime. Monaco, who is the number 2 leader at the department, said Tuesday that public safety is the ‘top priority.’”

City In Rhode Island To Hire Social Worker Who Will Assist First Responders

The AP (1/26) reports, "East Providence is close to becoming the first community in Rhode Island to hire a social worker to help" police officers "and other first responders deal with certain emergencies." East Providence plans to hire a full-time social worker who "will assist with crisis intervention involving abuse, suicide, serious car crashes, emotional trauma and mental health matters, and will also support firefighters and police in dealing with" substance use disorder-related problems and other matters. East Providence Police Chief Christopher Francesconi said, "We really need a person who can follow up" with certain "calls and see what type of services can be offered to someone in their time of need."

Biden To Meet With Adams In NYC To Discuss Gun Violence

Politico (1/26, Durkin) reports President Biden plans to travel to New York City next week to meet with Mayor Eric Adams (D) to "discuss the Administration's comprehensive strategy to combat gun crime, which includes historic levels of funding for cities and states to put more cops on the beat and invest in community violence prevention and intervention programs, as well as stepped up federal law enforcement efforts against illegal gun traffickers," according to a White House statement. Politico adds that the meeting "comes as Adams is scrambling to combat a surge in gun violence in the city and deliver on his key campaign promise of restoring public safety."

Bloomberg (1/26, Epstein) reports Adams "campaigned on a pledge to tackle the city's rising crime rate," but "since he took office on Jan. 1, five officers have been shot, including two who died after responding to a domestic disturbance call in Harlem on January 21." In a statement, Adams said, "We welcome the opportunity to display to President Biden how federal and local governments can coordinate and support each other in this fight to keep New Yorkers safe." The Hill (1/26, Choi) and Wall Street Journal (1/26, Vielkind, Subscription Publication) provide similar coverage.

Hochul Names Head Of New NY Office Of Gun Violence Prevention. The AP (1/26, Villeneuve) reports that New York Gov. Kathy Hochul (D) on Wednesday announced the appointment of Calliana Thomas to direct the state's new Office of Gun Violence Prevention, which "will try to curb gun violence." The AP adds that per Hochul's office, "Thomas previously worked on gun violence prevention programs during seven years with New York City's health department and was also an assistant director of technical assistance in an institute affiliated with the Harlem Children's Zone, a youth development group."

Manhattan DA Taking Tougher Approach To Guns. The New York Times (1/26, A1, Bromwich) says that when Alvin Bragg (D) "was a candidate for Manhattan district attorney, he spoke often about gun possession cases that did not merit harsh prosecution or imprisonment, saying that not every person charged with such a crime was linked to violence," but on Wednesday, "facing a backlash over the lenient policies he put in place upon taking office earlier this month and following a string of high-profile shootings, Mr. Bragg announced the appointment of a new prosecutor dedicated to preventing gun violence – and acknowledged that his emphasis, if not his approach, had changed." According to the Times, "Bragg's shift comes as New York City grapples with gun violence that rose sharply in the summer of 2020 and has remained elevated since then."

Federal Appeals Court Blocks Alabama Execution

The AP (1/26, Long) reports a federal appeals court on Wednesday “blocked the state from executing an inmate convicted of killing a driver who gave him a ride, upholding a lower court ruling that he can’t be put to death unless the state uses an untested, new method.” Matthew Reeves “was scheduled for execution on Thursday, Jan. 27, 2022.” The execution “was put on hold by a federal judge earlier this month. A Corrections spokeswoman said in a later email that the department was getting set to give Reeves a lethal injection Thursday evening if it’s ultimately given official notice to proceed.” The state “had asked the appeals court to lift a lower court injunction and allow the execution, but the panel refused in a decision that said a judge didn’t abuse his discretion in blocking the execution.”

British Police Arrest Two More In Connection With Texas Synagogue Attack

Reuters (1/26) reports that “British police said on Wednesday they had arrested two men in the northern English city of Manchester as part of a U.S. investigation into a hostage taking at a synagogue in Texas earlier in January.” According to Reuters, “British police had previously said they had arrested four people over the incident: two teenagers in Manchester plus one man in Birmingham and another man in Manchester.” The New York Times (1/26, Kwai) notes that “a British man, Malik Faisal Akram, 44, who took four people hostage at the synagogue in Colleyville, Texas, was killed during the rescue that helped free the hostages unharmed.” The Times adds that “the arrests came after revelations from British and American officials that Mr. Akram, 44, had been ‘a subject of interest’ on a security watch list of MI5, Britain’s domestic counterintelligence service. An investigation in 2020 by the agency concluded that Mr. Akram was not a terrorist threat at that time.”

Meanwhile, the AP (1/26, Bleiberg, Tucker) reports Henry “Michael” Williams, 32, “was charged with being a felon in possession of a firearm after authorities say he sold the weapon that Malik Faisal Akram used when he entered Congregation Beth Israel in Colleyville, Texas, on Jan. 15 and held the synagogue’s rabbi and three others hostage for hours.”

City In California Votes To Require Liability Insurance, Fee For Gun Owners

The Washington Post (1/26, Bella) reports lawmakers in the California-based city of San Jose lawmakers “took a preliminary vote Tuesday to require gun owners to carry liability insurance and pay an annual fee, a step toward adopting what the mayor said is the first measure of its kind in the United States aiming to reduce the risk of gun harm by incentivizing safer behavior.” The San Jose City Council “overwhelmingly approved the Gun Harm Reduction Ordinances, despite opposition from gun owners.” The council “decided in a 10-to-1 vote that gun owners would be required to purchase liability insurance.” They “also voted, 8 to 3, for gun owners to pay an annual fee.” The ordinance “must be approved next month before it can take effect by August.”

Proposed Resolution for Membership Consideration

The IACP Board of Directors recently reviewed resolution on Embracing and Implementing a Trauma-Informed Approach. Following the IACP Resolutions Process, the proposed resolution is being sent to the IACP membership for review and comment.

38 Missing After Human Smugglers' Boat Capsizes Off Florida Coast

Reuters (1/26) reports, "Rescue teams have found one body in their search for 39 people reported missing after their boat capsized off Florida's coast, the U.S. Coast Guard said on Wednesday, in what is being called a human smuggling attempt gone awry." Coast Guard Commander Jo-Ann Burdian "said during a news conference in Miami that search and rescue efforts would continue for survivors, a day after a good Samaritan found a man perched on the mostly submerged hull of the overturned boat in the Atlantic Ocean and rescued him. 'We do suspect that this is a case of human smuggling, as this event occurred in a normal route for human smuggling,' Burdian said, adding that U.S. Homeland Security officials were investigating the incident."

According to the AP (1/26, Licon), "Crews searched around the clock, extrapolating from where the wreck was spotted about 40 miles (64 kilometers) off Fort Pierce. By Wednesday morning, crews on at least four ships and five aircraft scanned a vast area about the size of New Jersey, Burdian said. They planned to keep searching throughout the day and then reevaluate." The AP reports that, according to Burdian, "the rescued man said he was part of a group of 40 people who left the island of Bimini in the Bahamas in what the Coast Guard suspects was a human smuggling operation. ... The man said the boat capsized shortly thereafter, and no one aboard was wearing a life jacket, she added."

The Washington Post (1/26) reports that "the number of migrants making the risky voyage to the Florida coast has been rising in recent months due to factors ranging from the coronavirus pandemic to instability in countries such as Haiti." According to the Post, "Migrants making the journey from nations such as Haiti frequently stop in the Bahamas en route to the United States. Some regroup in Bimini, the westernmost islands of the archipelago, before continuing on to the Miami area, which lies 50 miles west." The New York Times (1/26, Robles, Jordan) reports that the Bahamas is "a popular departure location for Haitians trying to make it to the United States."

Police In Germany Say University Attacker Obtained Weapons In Austria

The AP (1/26) reports, "The 18-year-old gunman who opened fire Monday during a packed lecture at Heidelberg University in Germany "bought three weapons about a week ago in Austria," according to a German police statement. That gunman "killed one person and wounded three others before killing himself." The AP adds, "Police say the German man – who was a biology student at the university – purchased the two weapons used in the attack from a weapons dealer and the third from a private individual, both in Austria. The precise motive for the attack was still being investigated, but the suspect was known to have suffered from a psychological illness in the past.”

Technology

White House Moves To Boost Federal Agencies' Cybersecurity

The Hill (1/26, Dress) reports the White House “announced on Wednesday new measures to boost cybersecurity within federal agencies following increased cyberattacks on private and public U.S. infrastructure. ... According to a memo released by” OMB Director Shalanda Young, “agencies will be transitioning to a ‘zero trust’ approach that assumes no actor, system or network operating outside the security perimeter is to be trusted.” The memo calls it a “dramatic paradigm shift in philosophy of how we secure our infrastructure, networks, and data.” The strategy “is in line with President Biden’s executive order on improving the nation’s cybersecurity, which he signed in May after a major cyberattack crippled Colonial Pipeline.” A Russian group “known as DarkSide secured a $4.4 million ransom after shutting the company’s operating system down, but the Department of Justice later recouped most of the money.”

Official Says Puerto Rican Senate Targeted By Cyberattack. The AP (1/26) reports Puerto Rico’s Senate “announced Wednesday that it was the target of a cyberattack that disabled its internet provider, phone system and official online page, the latest in a string of similar incidents in recent years.” Senate President José Luis Dalmau “said in a statement that there is no evidence that hackers were able to access sensitive information belonging to employees, contractors or consultants, although the incident is still under investigation.” He “said the incident was reported to local and federal authorities.”

DEA Cracking Emoji Codes Used For Illegal Drug Sales

An online WJBK-TV Detroit (1/26, Dupnack, Komer) article says, “The DEA is cracking” emoji codes that dealers use to sell dangerous counterfeit pills and other illegal drugs, “oftentimes on protected, encrypted messaging apps.” The article quotes DEA Detroit Acting Special Agent in Charge Kent Kleinschmidt, who stressed that it is very dangerous to ingest pills that are not properly prescribed for your use. Kleinschmidt warned, “The market is being flooded with these counterfeit pills and people are taking their life into their own hands when they take them.” According to Kleinschmidt, every counterfeit pill may contain enough fentanyl to cause a fatal overdose. The WJBK article links to a video clip that shows Kleinschmidt emphasizing that counterfeit pills pose a deadly threat to US citizens in Detroit and other parts of the country. The WDIV-TV Detroit (1/26, Ley, Clarke) website publishes a similar story.

Meanwhile, the AP (1/26, Bleiberg, Tucker) reports Henry “Michael” Williams, 32, “was charged with being a felon in possession of a firearm after authorities say he sold the weapon that Malik Faisal Akram used when he entered Congregation Beth Israel in Colleyville, Texas, on Jan. 15 and held the synagogue’s rabbi and three others hostage for hours.”

City In California Votes To Require Liability Insurance, Fee For Gun Owners

The Washington Post (1/26, Bella) reports lawmakers in the California-based city of San Jose lawmakers “took a preliminary vote Tuesday to require gun owners to carry liability insurance and pay an annual fee, a step toward adopting what the mayor said is the first measure of its kind in the United States aiming to reduce the risk of gun harm by incentivizing safer behavior.” The San Jose City Council “overwhelmingly approved the Gun Harm Reduction Ordinances, despite opposition from gun owners.” The council “decided in a 10-to-1 vote that gun owners would be required to purchase liability insurance.” They “also voted, 8 to 3, for gun owners to pay an annual fee.” The ordinance “must be approved next month before it can take effect by August.”

Proposed Resolution for Membership Consideration

The IACP Board of Directors recently reviewed resolution on Embracing and Implementing a Trauma-Informed Approach. Following the IACP Resolutions Process, the proposed resolution is being sent to the IACP membership for review and comment.

38 Missing After Human Smugglers' Boat Capsizes Off Florida Coast

Reuters (1/26) reports, "Rescue teams have found one body in their search for 39 people reported missing after their boat capsized off Florida's coast, the U.S. Coast Guard said on Wednesday, in what is being called a human smuggling attempt gone awry." Coast Guard Commander Jo-Ann Burdian "said during a news conference in Miami that search and rescue efforts would continue for survivors, a day after a good Samaritan found a man perched on the mostly submerged hull of the overturned boat in the Atlantic Ocean and rescued him. 'We do suspect that this is a case of human smuggling, as this event occurred in a normal route for human smuggling,' Burdian said, adding that U.S. Homeland Security officials were investigating the incident."

According to the AP (1/26, Licon), "Crews searched around the clock, extrapolating from where the wreck was spotted about 40 miles (64 kilometers) off Fort Pierce. By Wednesday morning, crews on at least four ships and five aircraft scanned a vast area about the size of New Jersey, Burdian said. They planned to keep searching throughout the day and then reevaluate." The AP reports that, according to Burdian, "the rescued man said he was part of a group of 40 people who left the island of Bimini in the Bahamas in what the Coast Guard suspects was a human smuggling operation. ... The man said the boat capsized shortly thereafter, and no one aboard was wearing a life jacket, she added."

The Washington Post (1/26) reports that "the number of migrants making the risky voyage to the Florida coast has been rising in recent months due to factors ranging from the coronavirus pandemic to instability in countries such as Haiti." According to the Post, "Migrants making the journey from nations such as Haiti frequently stop in the Bahamas en route to the United States. Some regroup in Bimini, the westernmost islands of the archipelago, before continuing on to the Miami area, which lies 50 miles west." The New York Times (1/26, Robles, Jordan) reports that the Bahamas is "a popular departure location for Haitians trying to make it to the United States."

Police In Germany Say University Attacker Obtained Weapons In Austria

The AP (1/26) reports, "The 18-year-old gunman who opened fire Monday during a packed lecture at Heidelberg University in Germany "bought three weapons about a week ago in Austria," according to a German police statement. That gunman "killed one person and wounded three others before killing himself." The AP adds, "Police say the German man – who was a biology student at the university – purchased the two weapons used in the attack from a weapons dealer and the third from a private individual, both in Austria. The precise motive for the attack was still being investigated, but the suspect was known to have suffered from a psychological illness in the past.”

White House Moves To Boost Federal Agencies' Cybersecurity

The Hill (1/26, Dress) reports the White House “announced on Wednesday new measures to boost cybersecurity within federal agencies following increased cyberattacks on private and public U.S. infrastructure. ... According to a memo released by” OMB Director Shalanda Young, “agencies will be transitioning to a ‘zero trust’ approach that assumes no actor, system or network operating outside the security perimeter is to be trusted.” The memo calls it a “dramatic paradigm shift in philosophy of how we secure our infrastructure, networks, and data.” The strategy “is in line with President Biden’s executive order on improving the nation’s cybersecurity, which he signed in May after a major cyberattack crippled Colonial Pipeline.” A Russian group “known as DarkSide secured a $4.4 million ransom after shutting the company’s operating system down, but the Department of Justice later recouped most of the money.”

Official Says Puerto Rican Senate Targeted By Cyberattack. The AP (1/26) reports Puerto Rico’s Senate “announced Wednesday that it was the target of a cyberattack that disabled its internet provider, phone system and official online page, the latest in a string of similar incidents in recent years.” Senate President José Luis Dalmau “said in a statement that there is no evidence that hackers were able to access sensitive information belonging to employees, contractors or consultants, although the incident is still under investigation.” He “said the incident was reported to local and federal authorities.”

DEA Cracking Emoji Codes Used For Illegal Drug Sales

An online WJBK-TV Detroit (1/26, Dupnack, Komer) article says, “The DEA is cracking” emoji codes that dealers use to sell dangerous counterfeit pills and other illegal drugs, “oftentimes on protected, encrypted messaging apps.” The article quotes DEA Detroit Acting Special Agent in Charge Kent Kleinschmidt, who stressed that it is very dangerous to ingest pills that are not properly prescribed for your use. Kleinschmidt warned, “The market is being flooded with these counterfeit pills and people are taking their life into their own hands when they take them.” According to Kleinschmidt, every counterfeit pill may contain enough fentanyl to cause a fatal overdose. The WJBK article links to a video clip that shows Kleinschmidt emphasizing that counterfeit pills pose a deadly threat to US citizens in Detroit and other parts of the country. The WDIV-TV Detroit (1/26, Ley, Clarke) website publishes a similar story.

Self-Proclaimed Policing Experts Tell Officers Not To Change Approach

The Washington Post (1/26, Klemko) reports rhetoric critical of Black Lives Matter and Democrats is “flourishing in commercial police training settings, a Washington Post investigation shows, as departments try to respond to demands for change but also find themselves on the defensive in many communities.” The Post adds that with “local, state and federal money for training plentiful, and with little guidance or oversight for what officers should be taught, some speakers at training conferences tell officers that pushback against conventional policing is a media invention. Others demonize civilian protesters and reformers, describing them as loud voices holding minority opinions. Still others say police should maintain a ‘warrior mentality’ to weather the rigors of what they describe as the most dangerous job outside of military service.” According to the Post, “Trainers include many former law enforcement officers and military personnel, some of whom are linked to extremist groups and anti-government movements.”

Deputy US Attorney General Pledges To Address Both Violent Crime, Police Misconduct

CNN (1/26, Perez, Sneed) reports, “Amid a violent crime wave, and as congressional efforts on police reform have petered out, Deputy Attorney General Lisa Monaco touted the Biden administration’s efforts to both support law enforcement and address police misconduct. ‘This is not an either/or,’ Monaco told CNN in an exclusive interview Tuesday. ‘We have got to do both.’” The Justice Department under President Biden “has doubled down on investigations into allegations of discriminatory policing after the Trump administration scaled back that work,” but “the Biden administration has also bolstered the resources the department’s offered law enforcement, with the department making $1.6 billion in grants available last year for policing programs aimed at reducing violent crime. Monaco, who is the number 2 leader at the department, said Tuesday that public safety is the ‘top priority.’”

City In Rhode Island To Hire Social Worker Who Will Assist First Responders

The AP (1/26) reports, "East Providence is close to becoming the first community in Rhode Island to hire a social worker to help" police officers "and other first responders deal with certain emergencies." East Providence plans to hire a full-time social worker who "will assist with crisis intervention involving abuse, suicide, serious car crashes, emotional trauma and mental health matters, and will also support firefighters and police in dealing with" substance use disorder-related problems and other matters. East Providence Police Chief Christopher Francesconi said, "We really need a person who can follow up" with certain "calls and see what type of services can be offered to someone in their time of need."

Biden To Meet With Adams In NYC To Discuss Gun Violence

Politico (1/26, Durkin) reports President Biden plans to travel to New York City next week to meet with Mayor Eric Adams (D) to "discuss the Administration's comprehensive strategy to combat gun crime, which includes historic levels of funding for cities and states to put more cops on the beat and invest in community violence prevention and intervention programs, as well as stepped up federal law enforcement efforts against illegal gun traffickers," according to a White House statement. Politico adds that the meeting "comes as Adams is scrambling to combat a surge in gun violence in the city and deliver on his key campaign promise of restoring public safety."

Bloomberg (1/26, Epstein) reports Adams "campaigned on a pledge to tackle the city's rising crime rate," but "since he took office on Jan. 1, five officers have been shot, including two who died after responding to a domestic disturbance call in Harlem on January 21." In a statement, Adams said, "We welcome the opportunity to display to President Biden how federal and local governments can coordinate and support each other in this fight to keep New Yorkers safe." The Hill (1/26, Choi) and Wall Street Journal (1/26, Vielkind, Subscription Publication) provide similar coverage.

Hochul Names Head Of New NY Office Of Gun Violence Prevention. The AP (1/26, Villeneuve) reports that New York Gov. Kathy Hochul (D) on Wednesday announced the appointment of Calliana Thomas to direct the state's new Office of Gun Violence Prevention, which "will try to curb gun violence." The AP adds that per Hochul's office, "Thomas previously worked on gun violence prevention programs during seven years with New York City's health department and was also an assistant director of technical assistance in an institute affiliated with the Harlem Children's Zone, a youth development group."

Manhattan DA Taking Tougher Approach To Guns. The New York Times (1/26, A1, Bromwich) says that when Alvin Bragg (D) "was a candidate for Manhattan district attorney, he spoke often about gun possession cases that did not merit harsh prosecution or imprisonment, saying that not every person charged with such a crime was linked to violence," but on Wednesday, "facing a backlash over the lenient policies he put in place upon taking office earlier this month and following a string of high-profile shootings, Mr. Bragg announced the appointment of a new prosecutor dedicated to preventing gun violence – and acknowledged that his emphasis, if not his approach, had changed." According to the Times, "Bragg's shift comes as New York City grapples with gun violence that rose sharply in the summer of 2020 and has remained elevated since then."

Federal Appeals Court Blocks Alabama Execution

The AP (1/26, Long) reports a federal appeals court on Wednesday “blocked the state from executing an inmate convicted of killing a driver who gave him a ride, upholding a lower court ruling that he can’t be put to death unless the state uses an untested, new method.” Matthew Reeves “was scheduled for execution on Thursday, Jan. 27, 2022.” The execution “was put on hold by a federal judge earlier this month. A Corrections spokeswoman said in a later email that the department was getting set to give Reeves a lethal injection Thursday evening if it’s ultimately given official notice to proceed.” The state “had asked the appeals court to lift a lower court injunction and allow the execution, but the panel refused in a decision that said a judge didn’t abuse his discretion in blocking the execution.”

British Police Arrest Two More In Connection With Texas Synagogue Attack

Reuters (1/26) reports that “British police said on Wednesday they had arrested two men in the northern English city of Manchester as part of a U.S. investigation into a hostage taking at a synagogue in Texas earlier in January.” According to Reuters, “British police had previously said they had arrested four people over the incident: two teenagers in Manchester plus one man in Birmingham and another man in Manchester.” The New York Times (1/26, Kwai) notes that “a British man, Malik Faisal Akram, 44, who took four people hostage at the synagogue in Colleyville, Texas, was killed during the rescue that helped free the hostages unharmed.” The Times adds that “the arrests came after revelations from British and American officials that Mr. Akram, 44, had been ‘a subject of interest’ on a security watch list of MI5, Britain’s domestic counterintelligence service. An investigation in 2020 by the agency concluded that Mr. Akram was not a terrorist threat at that time.”

Meanwhile, the AP (1/26, Bleiberg, Tucker) reports Henry “Michael” Williams, 32, “was charged with being a felon in possession of a firearm after authorities say he sold the weapon that Malik Faisal Akram used when he entered Congregation Beth Israel in Colleyville, Texas, on Jan. 15 and held the synagogue’s rabbi and three others hostage for hours.”

Illinois' Voice of Professional Law Enforcement

Special Alert | January 26, 2022 Legislative priorities for 2022

On January 12, 2022, the Legislative Committee met via Zoom with 190 members participating to discuss the upcoming legislative session.

It was determined that we will be conducting our Bill Review on February 9 via Zoom. During this meeting we will establish our bill positions and identify our 2022 priority list. All members are invited to participate (more details will be forthcoming).

We will also be advancing several of our own initiatives, including changes to the Body Worn Camera Law to make it easier for departments to enact and comply with mandates; expanded utilization of drones, enhanced penalties for fleeing and eluding and motor vehicle thefts that occur on residential curtilage. Below are the bills we are carrying over from 2021, however we will maintain our previous lists and positions in case others are reintroduced this session.

- HB 52 Vehicle Security Circumvention Device, Rep. Andrade Jr. (SUPPORT): Defined as a device capable of obtaining, intercepting, or processing information from a motor vehicle keyless entry system. The bill prohibits those who have been convicted of a felony from buying or owning these devices and stipulates sellers of these devices must run criminal background checks before selling or they face criminal penalties. This bill passed the house in April and was re-referred to assignments.
- HB 733 Vehicle Relay Box Possession, Rep. Andrade Jr. (SUPPORT): Defines the term “relay box” as a device designed to capture a signal from the key fob of a motor vehicle to unlock and start the motor vehicle without the use or possession of the motor vehicle key. Sets rules allowing only specific groups – including law enforcement – to possess. Passed the house in April and was re-referred to assignments.
- HB 1727 Qualified and Tort Immunity, Rep. Tarver (OPPOSE): Eliminates qualified immunity at state level and creates the “Bad Apples in Law Enforcement Accountability Act.” It was introduced in February and was last re-referred to the House Rules committee. The Qualified Immunity Task Force, in which Ret. Chief Chris Conrad is our representative, has not concluded its work on the various recommendations.
- HB 1943 Public Duty Rule Codifies the Public Duty Rule, Rep. McCombie (SUPPORT): Establishes that “a local government entity and its employees owe no duty of care to individual members of the general public to provide governmental services.” Introduced last February and re-referred to the House Rules Committee.

- HB 2402 Theft and Retail Theft Limits, Rep. Buckner (OPPOSE): Raises the felony threshold amount of “theft of property not from the person” from $500 to $2,000 and retail theft from $300 to $2,000. Introduced in March and re-referred to the House Rules Committee.
 - HB 2539 Retail Theft Limits, Rep Wang-Stoneback (OPPOSE): Increases felony threshold for retail theft from $300 to $2,000. Removes enhancement of the penalties for retail theft for previous convictions of robbery, armed robbery, burglary, residential burglary, possession of burglary tools, home invasion, unlawful use of a credit card, or forgery. Introduced in February 2021 and re-referred to the House Rules Committee in March.
 - HB 2779 Consent Search Ban, Rep. Slaughter (OPPOSE): Prohibits search or inspection of a motor vehicle, its contents, the driver, or a passenger solely because the driver or passenger consented to the search. Allows searches of vehicles, drivers, and passengers if there is an arrest, warrant or a probable cause crime has been committed. The bill was introduced in March and re-referred to the House Rules Committee.
 - HB 2865 U of I Scholarship- County Rep. Keicher (SUPPORT): Establishes that a University of Illinois scholarship be awarded to children of police officers or firefighters killed in the line of duty. Re-referred to the House Rules Committee.
- HB 3447 Misdemeanor Diversion Rep Ammons/Slaughter (OPPOSE): Would change the penalties for methamphetamine delivery or possession upon completion of a diversion program and allow for the expungement of arrest records, among other expungement law changes. Passed the House in April and we are still negotiating this one.

Other bills from the legislative meeting chat that we are monitoring that may or may not be reintroduced this session:

- HB 28 Crisis Intervention Training (CIT): Requires 40 hours of CIT training in the academy.
- HB 29 SRO Prohibition Bill: Prohibit LE presence on school grounds unless there exists an imminent threat of danger or there is reason to believe that urgent and immediate action is necessary to prevent such danger to students.
- HB 90 Traffic Ticket Fine Waiver Program: Creates traffic ticket fine waiver program available to a defendant who is in default or is unable to pay required fines, fees, costs, or court assessments, or who has a suspended driver's license, resulting from a minor traffic offense under the code or a similar provision of a local ordinance.
- HB 111 Juvenile Court- Delinquent Minor: Changes the age of a “delinquent minor” from 19 to 21 for Juvenile Court recommendations.
- HB 451 Ban No Knock Warrants: States that no law enforcement officer shall seek, execute, or participate in the execution of a no-knock search warrant.
- HB 2788 Citizen Safety Act (Use of Force Limits): Places limitations on when and what types of force can be used. Mandates reporting and intervening while limiting types of military equipment that can be used.
- SB 2918 Fund the Police Act: Creates the Police Grant Fund for hiring, overtime, equipment, technology, mental health screenings, etc.

- SB 2939 Cannabis in Vehicle: Provides that the odor of cannabis is not probable cause for the search of a motor vehicle.
 - HB 3055 Police Quotas/Points: Prohibits the use of points systems, quotas, or any related process that tracks or monitors the number of citations or warnings issued by a police officer. The number of traffic stops completed and written warnings are not included (these currently are included) in the definition of "points of contact."
 - HB 3961 Police Training- Social Work: No person shall receive permanent appointment as a law enforcement officer unless he or she has obtained a bachelor's degree with a major or minor in social work.
 - HB 4066 Critical Race Theory Academy: Creates the Critical Race Theory Academy curriculum. All officers would be required to complete the course before graduating from the academy and current police officers would be required to complete continuing education through the Academy yearly.
 - HB 4414 Expressway Camera Act: Amends the Expressway Camera Act to include several new counties from the Chicagoland and Metro-East areas. Other departments would like to see it expanded to their metro areas.
- If there is a bill we missed and should be monitoring, please contact me. This information is accessible on the website here and there is a link on our homepage and a copy is attached.

Special Alert | January 26, 2022 Legislative priorities for 2022

On January 12, 2022, the Legislative Committee met via Zoom with 190 members participating to discuss the upcoming legislative session.

It was determined that we will be conducting our Bill Review on February 9 via Zoom. During this meeting we will establish our bill positions and identify our 2022 priority list. All members are invited to participate (more details will be forthcoming).

We will also be advancing several of our own initiatives, including changes to the Body Worn Camera Law to make it easier for departments to enact and comply with mandates; expanded utilization of drones, enhanced penalties for fleeing and eluding and motor vehicle thefts that occur on residential curtilage. Below are the bills we are carrying over from 2021, however we will maintain our previous lists and positions in case others are reintroduced this session.

- HB 52 Vehicle Security Circumvention Device, Rep. Andrade Jr. (SUPPORT): Defined as a device capable of obtaining, intercepting, or processing information from a motor vehicle keyless entry system. The bill prohibits those who have been convicted of a felony from buying or owning these devices and stipulates sellers of these devices must run criminal background checks before selling or they face criminal penalties. This bill passed the house in April and was re-referred to assignments.
- HB 733 Vehicle Relay Box Possession, Rep. Andrade Jr. (SUPPORT): Defines the term “relay box” as a device designed to capture a signal from the key fob of a motor vehicle to unlock and start the motor vehicle without the use or possession of the motor vehicle key. Sets rules allowing only specific groups – including law enforcement – to possess. Passed the house in April and was re-referred to assignments.
- HB 1727 Qualified and Tort Immunity, Rep. Tarver (OPPOSE): Eliminates qualified immunity at state level and creates the “Bad Apples in Law Enforcement Accountability Act.” It was introduced in February and was last re-referred to the House Rules committee. The Qualified Immunity Task Force, in which Ret. Chief Chris Conrad is our representative, has not concluded its work on the various recommendations.
- HB 1943 Public Duty Rule Codifies the Public Duty Rule, Rep. McCombie (SUPPORT): Establishes that “a local government entity and its employees owe no duty of care to individual members of the general public to provide governmental services.” Introduced last February and re-referred to the House Rules Committee.

- HB 2402 Theft and Retail Theft Limits, Rep. Buckner (OPPOSE): Raises the felony threshold amount of “theft of property not from the person” from $500 to $2,000 and retail theft from $300 to $2,000. Introduced in March and re-referred to the House Rules Committee.
 - HB 2539 Retail Theft Limits, Rep Wang-Stoneback (OPPOSE): Increases felony threshold for retail theft from $300 to $2,000. Removes enhancement of the penalties for retail theft for previous convictions of robbery, armed robbery, burglary, residential burglary, possession of burglary tools, home invasion, unlawful use of a credit card, or forgery. Introduced in February 2021 and re-referred to the House Rules Committee in March.
 - HB 2779 Consent Search Ban, Rep. Slaughter (OPPOSE): Prohibits search or inspection of a motor vehicle, its contents, the driver, or a passenger solely because the driver or passenger consented to the search. Allows searches of vehicles, drivers, and passengers if there is an arrest, warrant or a probable cause crime has been committed. The bill was introduced in March and re-referred to the House Rules Committee.
 - HB 2865 U of I Scholarship- County Rep. Keicher (SUPPORT): Establishes that a University of Illinois scholarship be awarded to children of police officers or firefighters killed in the line of duty. Re-referred to the House Rules Committee.
- HB 3447 Misdemeanor Diversion Rep Ammons/Slaughter (OPPOSE): Would change the penalties for methamphetamine delivery or possession upon completion of a diversion program and allow for the expungement of arrest records, among other expungement law changes. Passed the House in April and we are still negotiating this one.

Other bills from the legislative meeting chat that we are monitoring that may or may not be reintroduced this session:

- HB 28 Crisis Intervention Training (CIT): Requires 40 hours of CIT training in the academy.
- HB 29 SRO Prohibition Bill: Prohibit LE presence on school grounds unless there exists an imminent threat of danger or there is reason to believe that urgent and immediate action is necessary to prevent such danger to students.
- HB 90 Traffic Ticket Fine Waiver Program: Creates traffic ticket fine waiver program available to a defendant who is in default or is unable to pay required fines, fees, costs, or court assessments, or who has a suspended driver's license, resulting from a minor traffic offense under the code or a similar provision of a local ordinance.
- HB 111 Juvenile Court- Delinquent Minor: Changes the age of a “delinquent minor” from 19 to 21 for Juvenile Court recommendations.
- HB 451 Ban No Knock Warrants: States that no law enforcement officer shall seek, execute, or participate in the execution of a no-knock search warrant.
- HB 2788 Citizen Safety Act (Use of Force Limits): Places limitations on when and what types of force can be used. Mandates reporting and intervening while limiting types of military equipment that can be used.
- SB 2918 Fund the Police Act: Creates the Police Grant Fund for hiring, overtime, equipment, technology, mental health screenings, etc.

- SB 2939 Cannabis in Vehicle: Provides that the odor of cannabis is not probable cause for the search of a motor vehicle.
 - HB 3055 Police Quotas/Points: Prohibits the use of points systems, quotas, or any related process that tracks or monitors the number of citations or warnings issued by a police officer. The number of traffic stops completed and written warnings are not included (these currently are included) in the definition of "points of contact."
 - HB 3961 Police Training- Social Work: No person shall receive permanent appointment as a law enforcement officer unless he or she has obtained a bachelor's degree with a major or minor in social work.
 - HB 4066 Critical Race Theory Academy: Creates the Critical Race Theory Academy curriculum. All officers would be required to complete the course before graduating from the academy and current police officers would be required to complete continuing education through the Academy yearly.
 - HB 4414 Expressway Camera Act: Amends the Expressway Camera Act to include several new counties from the Chicagoland and Metro-East areas. Other departments would like to see it expanded to their metro areas.
- If there is a bill we missed and should be monitoring, please contact me. This information is accessible on the website here and there is a link on our homepage and a copy is attached.

Illinois' Voice of Professional Law Enforcement

Special Alert | January 26, 2022 Illinois Chiefs welcome retiring Springfield Chief Winslow as deputy director

Kenny Winslow will join the Illinois Association of Chiefs of Police as part-time deputy director. In his new role, Winslow will help guide the strategic direction of the organization, provide expertise on policing issues, advocate for pro-law-enforcement legislative policies, develop training and resources for members and cultivate new partnerships.

"I am excited to take the next step in my law enforcement career. I am humbled to be given the opportunity to join the ILACP management team and continue to give back to the profession I love," Winslow said. "Being and advocate for professional law enforcement and those who selflessly serve comes naturally and I look forward to the challenge."

Winslow has been active in the Illinois Chiefs for several years. He serves as a leader locally and statewide and was named the 2021 Chief of the Year for exceling in his department and providing extraordinary service to the association.

"Chief Winslow has long been viewed by his peers as a model for what a 21st century police chief should be," ILACP Executive Director Ed Wojcicki said. "We are excited about the level of experience and expertise he will bring to strengthen our organization and better serve law enforcement."

A native of Alton, Illinois, Winslow has a bachelor's degree from the University of Illinois Springfield and an associate degree from Lewis and Clark Community College. He is a graduate of Northwestern University's Executive Management Program and School of Police Staff and Command, Southern Police Institute's Chief Executive Leadership Course amongst other executive and management courses.

Under his direction, Springfield was the first major department in Illinois to use body cameras, and Winslow has been a leading voice in the Illinois Chiefs association in making recommendations for how the cameras can be used most successively in Illinois. He has been called upon many times for his insights based on the Springfield Police Department's experiences. Earlier this year, he provided direction and served as one of the expert presenters for ILACP's training "Planning for Body Cameras 2022 and Beyond."

Winslow notably played a key role in building ILACP's relationship with the NAACP which led to the development of the Ten Shared Principles designed to build trust between law enforcement and communities of color. After the statewide adoption of these principles in 2018, he helped to get all 26 law enforcement agencies in Sangamon County to adopt the principles and incorporated the concepts into policy and training for his department. In 2018, Winslow received the President's Award from the NAACP for Minority Recruitment and Community Engagement.

During his tenure as chief in Springfield, his department implemented many community-policing initiatives, including partnering with The Outlet Mentoring Group for their annual Bridging the Gap barbecue with residents, the NAACP and NOBLE on their "Know Your Rights" and "Law and You" programs, Lights in the Mirror program, Coffee with Cops, Halloween Safety Event, Focused Deterrence, Community Staff Walks, National Night Out, Teen Police Academy, school reading programs and much more.

Winslow will retire as the chief of police in the city of Springfield after a successful 28-year career with the department; he was named chief in 2013. His last day for the department is Friday.

"It has been an honor and privilege to serve the citizens of Springfield," Winslow said in a letter announcing his retirement earlier this month. "I am humbled to have had the opportunity to work alongside all of you to make our community a safer place, while moving our department forward. The men and women of SPD are truly everyday heroes who go above and beyond on a daily basis."

Beyond his law enforcement career, he is active in his community and participates in many events and serves on various boards, including Memorial Behavioral Health and Illinois Law Enforcement Alarm System's Executive Board.

: Chief Winslow accepts his Chief of the Year award from President Mitchell R. Davis III at the Annual Awards Banquet in Tinley Park on Aug. 20, 2021.

Good Morning;

A number of our member agencies are unaware of the excellent work, assistance and numerous assets provided by the Mid-States Organized Crime Information Center (MOCIC). Created BY law enforcement officers FOR law enforcement agencies, MOCIC is your one-stop source for critical information and support that can save your agency time and money, enhance your agency's resources and make your job a little easier. As one of the six Regional Information Sharing Systems (RISS) Centers, MOCIC serves law enforcement in a nine-state region, which includes Illinois, Iowa, Kansas, Minnesota, Missouri, Nebraska, North Dakota, South Dakota, Wisconsin and the Canadian province of Manitoba. When I worked investigations, I used their services a lot. MOCIC is not a substitute for STIC but yet another significant and useful source of assistance. Please note that there are hyperlinks on the digital summary handout that download a pdf explanation of each MOCIC program. Membership fees can be found here: <https://www.mocicbilling.com/> The MOCIC rep for ILEAS Regions 7,8, 9 and 11 is listed below.

DHS Warns Of Domestic Extremists' Plans To Attack US Power Infrastructure

The Hill (1/25, Beitsch) reports, "Domestic extremists have been developing plans to attack U.S. electric power infrastructure, the Department of Homeland Security (DHS) warned in a bulletin obtained by The Hill." The DHS "said both domestic violent extremists and extremists specifically motivated by racial animus are among those eyeing the power system as a target for attack." The Department's bulletin says extremists "have developed credible, specific plans to attack electricity infrastructure since at least 2020, identifying the electric grid as a particularly attractive target given its interdependency with other infrastructure sectors." The "memo was issued Monday, the same day DHS warned law enforcement agencies that Russia could launch a cyberattack, including on U.S. infrastructure."

Administration Cyber Safety Review Board Still Being Set Up

The AP (1/25, Suderman) reports that the Cyber Safety Review Board is "a key part" of President Biden's "plans to fight major ransomware attacks and digital espionage campaigns," but it "still hasn't been set up" which "means critical tasks haven't been completed, including an investigation of the massive SolarWinds espionage campaign first discovered more than a year ago." Sen. Mark Warner (D-VA), chairman of the Intelligence Committee, said, "Such a delay is detrimental to our national security and I urge the administration to expedite its process."

IACP Statement on the Rise in Violent Crime

Over the last several months, the United States has witnessed deeply troubling increases in violent crime in many communities across the nation. At the same time, violent and fatal attacks against police officers have surged. This present state is unacceptable and warrants immediate action and thoughtful, comprehensive long-term solutions.

While the IACP remains deeply committed to reforming our criminal justice system, such reform cannot come at the expense of public safety or endanger police officers serving their communities. It is essential that reform efforts support, not diminish, policies that will combat violence in communities and enhance both community and officer safety.

As the United States Congress and the Administration move forward on policing reform efforts, deliberative balance is required. It is essential that policymakers carefully assess the short- and long-term impacts of their proposals, with diverse input while adopting only those policies that will reduce violent crime, stem gun violence, promote safer communities, and protect the lives of both citizens and police officers.

US Offers New York City Support After Shooting Deaths Of Two NYPD Officers

The Hill (1/25, Samuels) reports President Biden “phoned New York City Mayor Eric Adams (D) late Tuesday to express his condolences after two police officers were shot over the weekend. The call to Adams follows several high-profile violent crimes in New York City and multiple shootings of police officers in recent days.” According to White House Press Secretary Jen Psaki, “President Biden reiterated his admiration for the brave men and women of law enforcement who risk their lives on a daily basis to protect our communities. ... He expressed his firm support for Mayor Adams’s efforts to combat gun violence and violent crime” and “also reiterated his commitment to serve as a strong federal partner for New York City and other cities grappling with the increase in gun crime we’ve seen over the past two years.”

Maryland Lawmakers Considering Ghost Guns Bill

The Washington Post (1/25, Wiggins) reports Maryland lawmakers are considering a new bill that would ban the purchase and possession of ghost guns, “which are assembled from parts and sold in kits on the Internet without background checks.” The legislation, “which has the backing of top Democratic officials, including state Attorney General Brian E. Frosh (D), is the latest attempt by the Democratic-controlled legislature to rein in violence by strengthening the state’s gun-control laws.”

Security, Crime, and Drugs

Portland Police Referred Seven Cases To FBI Joint Terrorism Task Force In 2021

The Oregonian (1/25, Bernstein) reports Portland police last year “referred seven cases to the FBI for further investigation, according to an annual report to the City Council on the FBI-led Joint Terrorism Task Force.” Those cases included “bomb threats to a religious facility, a city bridge and a federal building; a man who was later charged with firing a gun at the downtown federal courthouse and sentenced to five years of probation; a woman accused of setting a fire at the police union office in North Portland; and a man accused of using a scooter to smash out a window at the federal courthouse.” The FBI’s special agent in charge “didn’t ask for any criminal intelligence officers from Portland police to work with the multi-agency team last year, the report said.”

Federal Prosecutors Charge Six Men For Plot To Smuggle Weapons, Ammo To Drug Cartel

The Hill (1/25) reports that on Monday, federal prosecutors “charged six men...in a plot on Monday to smuggle weapons and ammunition to a Mexican drug cartel during the pandemic.” According to the US Attorney’s Office for the Central District of California, “the group, led by Marco Antonio Santillan Valencia, began collecting weapons and ammunition to smuggle to the violent gang Cártel Jalisco Nueva Generación, or New Generation, in March 2020.” Now, “Valencia, Anthony Marmolejo Aguilar, Marco Santillan Jr., Michael Diaz, Luis De Arcos and Rafael Magallon Castillo are facing charges of violating export regulations, with some of the men facing other charges such as money laundering.”

Package Thefts, Other Crimes May Threaten LA District Attorney’s Plans For Reform

CNN (1/25, Watt) reports railroad company “Union Pacific, in large part, blames” the “rash of package thefts” from freight trains that pass through downtown Los Angeles “on Los Angeles County District Attorney George Gascón, a progressive who took office 13 months ago on promises to enact a ‘more humane’ criminal justice system.” The company “points to a controversial order issued in December 2020 by the DA to his staff not to prosecute many misdemeanors including most cases of trespassing.” Despite the pushback, CNN says “Gascón isn’t backing down from the mandate – or from other initiatives that have drawn fierce opposition from within his own ranks, as well as from the community he serves, where organizers are now driving a second attempt to throw him out of office.”

New Stats Show Sixfold Increase In Hate Crimes Against San Francisco’s AAPI Community

The San Francisco Chronicle (1/25, Vainshtein) reports that according to newly released police statistics, “San Francisco saw a more than sixfold increase in reported hate crimes against its Asian American Pacific Islander communities in 2021.” According to San Francisco Police Chief Bill Scott, “hate crimes targeting AAPI individuals rose to at least 60 victims in 2021 – a steep jump from 9 reported in 2020, and 8 victims in 2019.” The Chronicle adds, “Scott said police suspect that a single person arrested last August was responsible for at least 31 of the 60 reported incidents last year. The person, whom Scott did not name, faces hate crime enhancements for all of those alleged incidents.”

Reuters (1/25, Whitcomb) reports that following the release of the statistics, “San Francisco city leaders pledged to step up policing in Asian-American communities.” Mayor London Breed (D) “sought to reassure residents of the city’s large Asian-American community ahead of the Chinese Lunar New Year, which begins on Feb. 1 and will be celebrated in San Francisco with a parade on Feb. 19.” She is quoted as saying, “This is an extraordinary community and I am heartbroken, I’m frustrated, I’m embarrassed, I’m angry about the violence that has continued to impact many of the people who are part of our Asian community but especially our seniors.”

Bay Area Sees Rise In Dognappings

The San Francisco Chronicle (1/25, Picon) reports that “dognappings have become a weekly occurrence in the Bay Area, especially in San Francisco and the East Bay. In Oakland, where several cases have been reported, the number of dogs taken from owners has increased in each of the past two years, rising from 19 reported in 2019 to 31 reported in 2021.” The Chronicle continues, “Dognappings – specifically of French bulldogs – received national attention last year when Lady Gaga’s two Frenchies were taken by force. ... French bulldogs, known for their playful and affectionate nature, wrinkly face and big ears, are prime targets for dognappers” because they “are expensive – people regularly shell out $1,500 to $6,000 for them – meaning robbers might try to resell them for similarly high prices.”

FBI Seeks Recovery Of “Potentially Explosive Military” Items

Newsweek (1/25, Impelli) reports the FBI in St. Louis is “seeking to recover ‘potentially explosive military’ items, such as bombs, mines and cannonballs, which could harm residents if not handled correctly.” In a press release, “the FBI St. Louis field office said that the agency’s Eastern Missouri Bomb Tech Task Force and other local law enforcement partners will be ‘on stand-by’ to recover these type of items.” FBI St. Louis will be “assisted by the St. Louis Metropolitan Police Department, the St. Louis County Police Department, the Missouri State Highway Patrol as well as several other local law enforcement agencies.”

Texas Man Pleads Guilty To Attempted Smuggling Of Two Men In A Coffin

The New York Times (1/25, Jimenez) reports a Texas man “pleaded guilty on Tuesday to attempting to smuggle two men from Mexico into the country in a flag-draped coffin, a crime that federal prosecutors said had been uncovered by a couple of U.S. Border Patrol employees who happened to be military veterans and sensed that something was amiss.” Border Patrol agents “found two men – both very much alive – inside the coffin, and the men admitted to being in the United States illegally, according to the complaint.” One “told the authorities that he had agreed to pay a total of $6,000 to reach San Antonio, according to the complaint.” He “said he had been joined in the coffin by his cousin, according to the complaint.”

DHS Warns Of Domestic Extremists' Plans To Attack US Power Infrastructure

The Hill (1/25, Beitsch) reports, "Domestic extremists have been developing plans to attack U.S. electric power infrastructure, the Department of Homeland Security (DHS) warned in a bulletin obtained by The Hill." The DHS "said both domestic violent extremists and extremists specifically motivated by racial animus are among those eyeing the power system as a target for attack." The Department's bulletin says extremists "have developed credible, specific plans to attack electricity infrastructure since at least 2020, identifying the electric grid as a particularly attractive target given its interdependency with other infrastructure sectors." The "memo was issued Monday, the same day DHS warned law enforcement agencies that Russia could launch a cyberattack, including on U.S. infrastructure."

Administration Cyber Safety Review Board Still Being Set Up

The AP (1/25, Suderman) reports that the Cyber Safety Review Board is "a key part" of President Biden's "plans to fight major ransomware attacks and digital espionage campaigns," but it "still hasn't been set up" which "means critical tasks haven't been completed, including an investigation of the massive SolarWinds espionage campaign first discovered more than a year ago." Sen. Mark Warner (D-VA), chairman of the Intelligence Committee, said, "Such a delay is detrimental to our national security and I urge the administration to expedite its process."

IACP Statement on the Rise in Violent Crime

Over the last several months, the United States has witnessed deeply troubling increases in violent crime in many communities across the nation. At the same time, violent and fatal attacks against police officers have surged. This present state is unacceptable and warrants immediate action and thoughtful, comprehensive long-term solutions.

While the IACP remains deeply committed to reforming our criminal justice system, such reform cannot come at the expense of public safety or endanger police officers serving their communities. It is essential that reform efforts support, not diminish, policies that will combat violence in communities and enhance both community and officer safety.

As the United States Congress and the Administration move forward on policing reform efforts, deliberative balance is required. It is essential that policymakers carefully assess the short- and long-term impacts of their proposals, with diverse input while adopting only those policies that will reduce violent crime, stem gun violence, promote safer communities, and protect the lives of both citizens and police officers.

US Offers New York City Support After Shooting Deaths Of Two NYPD Officers

The Hill (1/25, Samuels) reports President Biden “phoned New York City Mayor Eric Adams (D) late Tuesday to express his condolences after two police officers were shot over the weekend. The call to Adams follows several high-profile violent crimes in New York City and multiple shootings of police officers in recent days.” According to White House Press Secretary Jen Psaki, “President Biden reiterated his admiration for the brave men and women of law enforcement who risk their lives on a daily basis to protect our communities. ... He expressed his firm support for Mayor Adams’s efforts to combat gun violence and violent crime” and “also reiterated his commitment to serve as a strong federal partner for New York City and other cities grappling with the increase in gun crime we’ve seen over the past two years.”

In related, front-page coverage, the New York Times (1/25, A1, Watkins) reports New York City Police Department (NYPD) Officers Wilbert Mora and Jason Rivera “were killed by a man who opened fire during a domestic call” on Friday. Rivera died at the scene while Mora succumbed to injuries from the shooting on Tuesday. The Times adds, “The two young officers – Mora was 27, Rivera was 22 – were emblematic of a changing police force that has struggled to repair its relationships with the city’s Black and Hispanic communities. Both Latino in a department that was once overwhelmingly white, the officers were cognizant of problems with policing and eager to play a role in confronting them.”

Maryland Lawmakers Considering Ghost Guns Bill

The Washington Post (1/25, Wiggins) reports Maryland lawmakers are considering a new bill that would ban the purchase and possession of ghost guns, “which are assembled from parts and sold in kits on the Internet without background checks.” The legislation, “which has the backing of top Democratic officials, including state Attorney General Brian E. Frosh (D), is the latest attempt by the Democratic-controlled legislature to rein in violence by strengthening the state’s gun-control laws.”

Security, Crime, and Drugs

Portland Police Referred Seven Cases To FBI Joint Terrorism Task Force In 2021

The Oregonian (1/25, Bernstein) reports Portland police last year “referred seven cases to the FBI for further investigation, according to an annual report to the City Council on the FBI-led Joint Terrorism Task Force.” Those cases included “bomb threats to a religious facility, a city bridge and a federal building; a man who was later charged with firing a gun at the downtown federal courthouse and sentenced to five years of probation; a woman accused of setting a fire at the police union office in North Portland; and a man accused of using a scooter to smash out a window at the federal courthouse.” The FBI’s special agent in charge “didn’t ask for any criminal intelligence officers from Portland police to work with the multi-agency team last year, the report said.”

Federal Prosecutors Charge Six Men For Plot To Smuggle Weapons, Ammo To Drug Cartel

The Hill (1/25) reports that on Monday, federal prosecutors “charged six men...in a plot on Monday to smuggle weapons and ammunition to a Mexican drug cartel during the pandemic.” According to the US Attorney’s Office for the Central District of California, “the group, led by Marco Antonio Santillan Valencia, began collecting weapons and ammunition to smuggle to the violent gang Cártel Jalisco Nueva Generación, or New Generation, in March 2020.” Now, “Valencia, Anthony Marmolejo Aguilar, Marco Santillan Jr., Michael Diaz, Luis De Arcos and Rafael Magallon Castillo are facing charges of violating export regulations, with some of the men facing other charges such as money laundering.”

Package Thefts, Other Crimes May Threaten LA District Attorney’s Plans For Reform

CNN (1/25, Watt) reports railroad company “Union Pacific, in large part, blames” the “rash of package thefts” from freight trains that pass through downtown Los Angeles “on Los Angeles County District Attorney George Gascón, a progressive who took office 13 months ago on promises to enact a ‘more humane’ criminal justice system.” The company “points to a controversial order issued in December 2020 by the DA to his staff not to prosecute many misdemeanors including most cases of trespassing.” Despite the pushback, CNN says “Gascón isn’t backing down from the mandate – or from other initiatives that have drawn fierce opposition from within his own ranks, as well as from the community he serves, where organizers are now driving a second attempt to throw him out of office.”

New Stats Show Sixfold Increase In Hate Crimes Against San Francisco’s AAPI Community

The San Francisco Chronicle (1/25, Vainshtein) reports that according to newly released police statistics, “San Francisco saw a more than sixfold increase in reported hate crimes against its Asian American Pacific Islander communities in 2021.” According to San Francisco Police Chief Bill Scott, “hate crimes targeting AAPI individuals rose to at least 60 victims in 2021 – a steep jump from 9 reported in 2020, and 8 victims in 2019.” The Chronicle adds, “Scott said police suspect that a single person arrested last August was responsible for at least 31 of the 60 reported incidents last year. The person, whom Scott did not name, faces hate crime enhancements for all of those alleged incidents.”

Reuters (1/25, Whitcomb) reports that following the release of the statistics, “San Francisco city leaders pledged to step up policing in Asian-American communities.” Mayor London Breed (D) “sought to reassure residents of the city’s large Asian-American community ahead of the Chinese Lunar New Year, which begins on Feb. 1 and will be celebrated in San Francisco with a parade on Feb. 19.” She is quoted as saying, “This is an extraordinary community and I am heartbroken, I’m frustrated, I’m embarrassed, I’m angry about the violence that has continued to impact many of the people who are part of our Asian community but especially our seniors.”

Bay Area Sees Rise In Dognappings

The San Francisco Chronicle (1/25, Picon) reports that “dognappings have become a weekly occurrence in the Bay Area, especially in San Francisco and the East Bay. In Oakland, where several cases have been reported, the number of dogs taken from owners has increased in each of the past two years, rising from 19 reported in 2019 to 31 reported in 2021.” The Chronicle continues, “Dognappings – specifically of French bulldogs – received national attention last year when Lady Gaga’s two Frenchies were taken by force. ... French bulldogs, known for their playful and affectionate nature, wrinkly face and big ears, are prime targets for dognappers” because they “are expensive – people regularly shell out $1,500 to $6,000 for them – meaning robbers might try to resell them for similarly high prices.”

ACTION ALERT | January 26, 2022 Still time: ILACP survey collecting data on recruitment and retention

As a reminder, we are asking all Illinois police departments to help us tell the story of "recruitment and retention." That was the number one challenge and concern of our members in our September 2021 Membership Survey.

Want to know how your department compares with others in Illinois?

We have put together a survey to ask about your recruitment and retention numbers from 2020 to 2022. Please complete this survey or delegate to someone in your department to complete. Those who have the numbers will complete the survey in ten minutes or less.

Compiling this data will also allow us to explain to our own members, to elected officials, and to the public what is going on with recruitment and retention statewide. You don't have to be an ILACP member to complete the survey. We want as much data as possible.

Thank you in advance for taking the time to complete this.

ACTION ALERT | January 26, 2022 Still time: ILACP survey collecting data on recruitment and retention

As a reminder, we are asking all Illinois police departments to help us tell the story of "recruitment and retention." That was the number one challenge and concern of our members in our September 2021 Membership Survey.

Want to know how your department compares with others in Illinois?

We have put together a survey to ask about your recruitment and retention numbers from 2020 to 2022. Please complete this survey or delegate to someone in your department to complete. Those who have the numbers will complete the survey in ten minutes or less.

Compiling this data will also allow us to explain to our own members, to elected officials, and to the public what is going on with recruitment and retention statewide. You don't have to be an ILACP member to complete the survey. We want as much data as possible.

Thank you in advance for taking the time to complete this.

The survey is available here:

<https://www.surveymonkey.com/r/2022StaffingILACP>

Good Morning;

A number of our member agencies are unaware of the excellent work, assistance and numerous assets provided by the Mid-States Organized Crime Information Center (MOCIC). Created BY law enforcement officers FOR law enforcement agencies, MOCIC is your one-stop source for critical information and support that can save your agency time and money, enhance your agency's resources and make your job a little easier. As one of the six Regional Information Sharing Systems (RISS) Centers, MOCIC serves law enforcement in a nine-state region, which includes Illinois, Iowa, Kansas, Minnesota, Missouri, Nebraska, North Dakota, South Dakota, Wisconsin and the Canadian province of Manitoba. When I worked investigations, I used their services a lot. MOCIC is not a substitute for STIC but yet another significant and useful source of assistance. Please note that there are hyperlinks on the digital summary handout that download a pdf explanation of each MOCIC program. Membership fees can be found here: <https://www.mocicbilling.com/> The MOCIC rep for ILEAS Regions 7,8, 9 and 11 is listed below.

I am asking for your help. This is Larry Nowak from 3SI Security, and I have worked with your agency over the years with supporting installed GPS in the banking and retail industry. I need to speak with you or a designee regarding your ESO GPS 3SI Tracker(s).

The Cellular 3G grid will be coming to its end of life in a few months. We have replaced all of our 3G ESO GPS trackers and Upgraded them to 4G/WiFi ESOPro Units and your device(s) will need to be upgraded at year's end.

Since the sunseting of the 3G network is out of our control, we are offering a discounted upgrade opportunity. The new devices available right now are the Hard Case unit or the Cash Pack and Soft Case Unit. Your current active devices can be upgraded NOW for a cost of $305

Originally, we were offering an upgrade price of $305 rather than the full price of $556 (a 46% discount).

The boss wants to make sure we get everyone upgraded as soon as possible so he has sweetened the deal for law enforcement. We can now offer the upgrade for $0.00 with the purchase of a 3-year service plan of $684. So, you get 3 years of a locked in service and a free 4G/WiFi Upgrade.

We will need a decision as soon as possible. With national supply chain issues, I want to make sure you are added to the upgrade list ASAP.

New Features:

- All 4G devices will now be able to track on motion, Geo-Fence, and Tilt (Now a standard feature).
- We have increased our GPS tracking from 8 to 12 satellites to enhance live tracking accuracy.
- Devices will use Wi-Fi Sniffing to help with tracking accuracy in areas where GPS is challenging.
- Again - Your current active devices can be upgraded NOW for a cost of $305 a 46% discount.

See Attached PDF for additional information on the 4G Upgrade.

I am also available for a meeting, to review tracker settings or to give the department refresher training and how to best deploy the trackers for investigations and armed robberies.

My signature contact information is below. Please call or email me so that we can upgrade your device.

Hi Stephanie—

For Elk Grove Village PD, CALEA accreditation is a shared responsibility between myself and an Admin Commander. This past October, we just got a new Admin Commander and since his promotion he's attended some IPAC meetings. He is currently taking the accreditation manager training.

Since he recently got promoted and wouldn't have the chance to attend at least half of the IPAC meetings within the last 12 months after his AM Training, would my attendance to the IPAC meetings count towards his? I am just trying to figure out if he would be eligible for the scholarship.

Thank you,

Bolor

All,

Please see the below link and information on our newly voted on IPAC Scholarship Program. This link will require you utilize your members only password. If you do not know this password please reach out to your assigned VP. Thank you so much. We are so excited to be able to give back to our membership and truly live by our motto of “dedication to professionalism”

<https://www.i-pac.org/members-only-2/scholarship-application/>

This scholarship is offered only to IPAC agencies and members in good standing as defined by our bylaws. To be considered for this scholarship you must have attended (virtually or in-person) at least half of the IPAC meetings within the last 12 months. All applicants who apply by the due date of February 17, 2022, fully complete this application, and meet the requirements will be put into a random drawing which will be conducted during the IPAC meeting on February 19, 2022, using <https://wheelofnames.com/> .

There are two scholarships available for CALEA agencies and two available for ILEAP agencies. The CALEA Scholarships are for the attendance in the online accreditation manager training for a specific program (Law Enforcement, Training Academy, Public Safety Communications, and Campus Security). The dollar amount reimbursed will be up to $700 and will be done so after a certificate of completion has been presented to the Board.

The ILEAP scholarships are for attendance at the annual Illinois Association of Chiefs of Police Conference. The dollar amount reimbursed will be up to $350 and will be done so after proof of registration has been presented to the Board.

I agree with Ben. Elk Grove Village has hosted meetings and been part of our PAC for a long time. I think department participation should count, I wasn't sure with virtual zoom meetings if we have been keeping track of the actual person that attend from each department or just which departments attend.

Hi Stephanie—

For Elk Grove Village PD, CALEA accreditation is a shared responsibility between myself and an Admin Commander. This past October, we just got a new Admin Commander and since his promotion he's attended some IPAC meetings. He is currently taking the accreditation manager training.

Since he recently got promoted and wouldn't have the chance to attend at least half of the IPAC meetings within the last 12 months after his AM Training, would my attendance to the IPAC meetings count towards his? I am just trying to figure out if he would be eligible for the scholarship.

Thank you,

Bolor

All,

Please see the below link and information on our newly voted on IPAC Scholarship Program. This link will require you utilize your members only password. If you do not know this password please reach out to your assigned VP. Thank you so much. We are so excited to be able to give back to our membership and truly live by our motto of “dedication to professionalism”

<https://www.i-pac.org/members-only-2/scholarship-application/>

This scholarship is offered only to IPAC agencies and members in good standing as defined by our bylaws. To be considered for this scholarship you must have attended (virtually or in-person) at least half of the IPAC meetings within the last 12 months. All applicants who apply by the due date of February 17, 2022, fully complete this application, and meet the requirements will be put into a random drawing which will be conducted during the IPAC meeting on February 19, 2022, using <https://wheelofnames.com/> .

There are two scholarships available for CALEA agencies and two available for ILEAP agencies. The CALEA Scholarships are for the attendance in the online accreditation manager training for a specific program (Law Enforcement, Training Academy, Public Safety Communications, and Campus Security). The dollar amount reimbursed will be up to $700 and will be done so after a certificate of completion has been presented to the Board.

The ILEAP scholarships are for attendance at the annual Illinois Association of Chiefs of Police Conference. The dollar amount reimbursed will be up to $350 and will be done so after proof of registration has been presented to the Board.

Hi Stephanie—

For Elk Grove Village PD, CALEA accreditation is a shared responsibility between myself and an Admin Commander. This past October, we just got a new Admin Commander and since his promotion he's attended some IPAC meetings. He is currently taking the accreditation manager training.

Since he recently got promoted and wouldn't have the chance to attend at least half of the IPAC meetings within the last 12 months after his AM Training, would my attendance to the IPAC meetings count towards his? I am just trying to figure out if he would be eligible for the scholarship.

Thank you,

Bolor

All,

Please see the below link and information on our newly voted on IPAC Scholarship Program. This link will require you utilize your members only password. If you do not know this password please reach out to your assigned VP. Thank you so much. We are so excited to be able to give back to our membership and truly live by our motto of “dedication to professionalism”

<https://www.i-pac.org/members-only-2/scholarship-application/>

This scholarship is offered only to IPAC agencies and members in good standing as defined by our bylaws. To be considered for this scholarship you must have attended (virtually or in-person) at least half of the IPAC meetings within the last 12 months. All applicants who apply by the due date of February 17, 2022, fully complete this application, and meet the requirements will be put into a random drawing which will be conducted during the IPAC meeting on February 19, 2022, using <https://wheelofnames.com/> .

There are two scholarships available for CALEA agencies and two available for ILEAP agencies. The CALEA Scholarships are for the attendance in the online accreditation manager training for a specific program (Law Enforcement, Training Academy, Public Safety Communications, and Campus Security). The dollar amount reimbursed will be up to $700 and will be done so after a certificate of completion has been presented to the Board.

The ILEAP scholarships are for attendance at the annual Illinois Association of Chiefs of Police Conference. The dollar amount reimbursed will be up to $350 and will be done so after proof of registration has been presented to the Board.

Good Morning;

A number of our member agencies are unaware of the excellent work, assistance and numerous assets provided by the Mid-States Organized Crime Information Center (MOCIC). Created BY law enforcement officers FOR law enforcement agencies, MOCIC is your one-stop source for critical information and support that can save your agency time and money, enhance your agency's resources and make your job a little easier. As one of the six Regional Information Sharing Systems (RISS) Centers, MOCIC serves law enforcement in a nine-state region, which includes Illinois, Iowa, Kansas, Minnesota, Missouri, Nebraska, North Dakota, South Dakota, Wisconsin and the Canadian province of Manitoba. When I worked investigations, I used their services a lot. MOCIC is not a substitute for STIC but yet another significant and useful source of assistance. Please note that there are hyperlinks on the digital summary handout that download a pdf explanation of each MOCIC program. Membership fees can be found here: <https://www.mocicbilling.com/> The MOCIC rep for ILEAS Regions 7,8, 9 and 11 is listed below.

Good morning,

Thank you again for attending last week's training, Gangs and Guns: Making Your Firearms Case More Prosecutable. As promised, attached are a number of materials that were referenced during the training and that the trainers have graciously made available. Please note that several of these documents are marked "Law Enforcement Sensitive" and are not for distribution outside of your law enforcement agency.

For any additional requests for training materials or information, please reach out to the trainers directly:

Regarding training credit:

The names and emails of those who attended the course will be sent to the appropriate MTU's today. For those outside of the Northern District of IL your info will be sent to NEMRT as they have agreed to certify any officer in the State whose designated MTU did not have time to certify the course. They may reach out regarding your PTBID # or for other information if they cannot find you in their system. If they reach out, it will be via the email address you used to register for the course. If they don't reach out, they were able to find you and will go through the normal certification process as if you attended one of their other courses. You should not need to do anything proactively unless they ask. For ISP Officers, all of your names will be sent to your In-Service Training Coordinator. For questions on this contact Kali Thomas kali.thomas@usdoj.gov

Training Impact:

Lastly, if you have already incorporated something that you learned during the training into your work, please share a short description with me (carletonb@cna.org). We love to hear about how you are using the techniques and practices that you learn during the training. Also, feel free to share any future examples with me as well.

Policing and Policy

Violent Attacks On Officers On The Rise In 2022

The Washington Times (1/24, Mordock) reports, "A police officer has been shot nearly every day this year as a growing wave of shootings and other attacks across the country claimed the lives of four officers in less than a month." The Times adds, "Through the first 24 days of the year, gunmen opened fire on cops 22 times, killing three officers, according to data from the National Gun Violence Archive. Another four officers have been ambushed in vehicle attacks. One incident resulted in the death of a Houston police officer over the weekend." According to the Times, "Even two police dogs have died in the line of duty: one stabbed by a suspect and the other killed by a passenger car during a traffic stop. Last year was the deadliest on record for police officers, according to data from the National Law Enforcement Officers Memorial Fund."

White House Blames Crime Spike On "Gun Violence" And "Underfunding" Of Police

On its website, Fox News (1/24, Keene) reports White House Press Secretary Jen Psaki on Monday "blamed the 'underfunding' of some police forces for the spike in crime gripping America." Fox says when asked "what the Biden administration believes is fueling the crime surge that has stunned Americans," Psaki "pointed to 'gun violence' as a 'huge reason' for the uptick in crime as well as the 'underfunding of some police departments and their need for additional resources.'" Psaki also "said that President Biden has 'advocated' for additional resources for police 'consistently' throughout his multi-decade political career and is something the White House knows 'we need to take action on.'"

NYC Mayor Details Plan To Combat Gun Violence In NYC

Reuters (1/24, Goldberg, Harte) reports New York City Mayor Eric Adams (D) on Monday "announced a plan to end gun violence in a city reeling from the fatal shooting of a police officer and a spate of violent crimes." Adams "said the plan would deliver on his November election campaign pledge by deploying more officers, stemming the flow of guns into the city, and appointing anti-gun violence coordinators in every city agency." The New York Times (1/24, A1, Fitzsimmons, Southall) describes his proposal as “an ambitious public safety plan” that comes during “what has quickly become a pivotal moment in his first weeks in office.” By introducing his plan, Adams has “called on state lawmakers to make a number of changes, including to New York’s bail law and to a law that altered how the state handles teenage defendants.” The plan also calls for “the restoration of an anti-gun police unit,” which Bloomberg (1/24, Akinnibi, Nahmias) says had been “disbanded under former Mayor Bill de Blasio after misconduct complaints mounted.”

Meanwhile, USA Today (1/24, Miller) reports Adams “blamed the illegal flow of guns into the city for” an increase in shootings in New York City. Adams “called for federal and state help to address the ‘iron pipeline.’”

MTA CEO Pledges To Work With Police To Reduce Subway Crime. Bloomberg (1/24, Kaske) reports Metropolitan Transportation Authority (MTA) CEO Janno Lieber has “pledged to work with” New York City’s police department to decrease subway crime. That pledge was made after New York City Mayor Eric Adams (D) “said 1,000 police officers will shift to transit stations and will walk inside train cars and interact with passengers instead of monitoring from station platforms.” On Monday, Lieber “said he welcomed the additional police presence and help with riders who are suffering from mental health issues.”

The Wall Street Journal (1/24, Abdel-Baqui, Subscription Publication) reports the number of assaults and murders in the New York City subway system in 2021 were the highest since at least 1997, according to recently released NYPD statistics.

The Washington Post (1/24, Hassan) reports a 62-year-old man “was pushed onto the tracks of a New York subway station Sunday – a little more than a week after an Asian American woman died after being shoved in front of a train in Times Square.” The Post adds “the two incidents, which the New York Police Department said were both unprovoked, have thrust the issue of subway violence back into the spotlight and sparked widespread calls for officials to do more to protect subway riders.”

Mothers Express Concern About New Mexico’s Pretrial Detention System

The AP (1/24, Bryan) reports from Albuquerque, New Mexico that “District Attorney Dianna Luce, who represents three counties in” New Mexico, and mothers who lost sons to violence in that state “testified Monday that something has to be done to keep suspects accused of brutal crimes behind bars ahead of their trials.” The testimony marked “the official start of a legislative debate over a proposed change to the state’s troubled pretrial detention system.” The AP adds, “Demands have reached a feverish pitch for New Mexico lawmakers to reconsider bail reforms that were initially intended to prevent low-risk defendants from languishing in jail for months before their trials while still giving judges the ability to mandate detention for defendants considered dangerous.”

Toronto Police Service Launches Campaign To Keep Pedestrians Safe

The Toronto (CAN) Sun (1/24, Connor) reports the Toronto Police Service has launched Winter Watch, a pedestrian safety campaign that targets “errant motorists who pose a threat to those walking in the city.” The campaign, which began on Monday and runs through January 30, is focused “on the so-called ‘big four’ – speeding, aggressive driving, distracted driving, and impaired driving.” In the “past three years, 164 people have been killed on roads in Toronto, in what police describe as preventable deaths.” The Sun adds, “Police caution drivers to pay extra attention when making turns. Between 2019-21, 28% of pedestrian fatalities involved a driver turning at a signalized intersection. ‘We have put a message out on social media and are blasting it out that way,’ said traffic spokesman Melissa Kulik. ‘We also sent this out to all platoons across the city so they can participate.’”

Security, Crime, and Drugs

Three Injured, One Killed In German College Campus Shooting

The Washington Post (1/24, Morris, Guinan-Bank) reports German police on Monday “said one person was killed and three others were injured in a rare campus shooting in the university town of Heidelberg in the country’s southwest.” The gunman, and 18-year-old student, “opened fire in a lecture hall where about 30 people had gathered for a biology tutorial, local police chief Siegfried Kollmar said.” Four students were injured, with one student fatally hurt. The gunman died by suicide, Kollmar added.

Anti-Semitic Flyers Distributed In Two Florida Cities

The AP (1/24) reports anti-Semitic flyers “were distributed over the weekend to hundreds of homes in two South Florida cities with large Jewish populations, authorities said.” Miami Beach Mayor Dan Gelber “tweeted that flyers in plastic sandwich bags with small pebbles were distributed to hundreds of homes. In neighboring Surfside, the same type of flyers were distributed to homes, officials said in a ‘community alert’ email to residents.” In a photo Gelber “posted, half of the flyer is legible. It lists of some of the health officials in Washington leading the response to COVID-19 and says they are Jewish.” Gelber and Surfside officials “said patrols were being stepped up in neighborhoods and at religious institutions. Local and federal law enforcement agencies were investigating the flyers’ origins, officials said.”

Montgomery Teen Bought “Ghost Gun” Components Online Before Shooting Classmate

The Washington Post (1/24, Morse, Hilton) reports a Montgomery County teenager “charged with critically wounding a classmate with an untraceable ghost gun told authorities he purchased the components online and a friend helped him assemble the weapon, a prosecutor said in court Monday.” Montgomery County Police Chief Marcus Jones said, “Three different parts were literally delivered to his home.” Alston “was discovered in a classroom with other students Friday and arrested by police officers around 3 p.m. They found the gun near him, but it had been disassembled, authorities said. He had earlier broken the weapon down into at least three parts.” The Post says that the “ease with which the student allegedly obtained his gun parts highlighted an alarming problem of proliferating ‘ghost guns,’ called such because they typically are not traceable.”

Advocates To Study Recently Increased Violence Against The Unhoused

The Washington Post (1/24) reports, "According to experts and advocates, the last year has seen a spike in violence against the homeless." The Post reports that there "are dozens of daily acts of violence occasioned by increasing collisions between the housed and unhoused populations in the wake of the coronavirus pandemic, experts say." Advocates "are mounting a new effort to try to capture violence against the unhoused." The Post says "increased levels of unhoused individuals have also triggered a public backlash against homelessness." Among other efforts, The National Coalition for the Homeless "is teaming with other groups to present a broader study of the recent violence." The effort "aims to focus on patterns and risk factors within the incidents."

California Highway Patrol Seizes More Than 70 Pounds Of Counterfeit Pills

Newsweek (1/24, Ferris) reports the California Highway Patrol seized "approximately 75 pounds of counterfeit Oxycodone pills" during a recent traffic stop operation. Two people who live in the state of Washington were arrested in connection with the seizure of those pills, which are suspected of being laced with the extremely dangerous drug fentanyl. Just one kilogram of fentanyl "has the potential to kill 500,000 people, per the United States Drug Enforcement Administration." According to the California Highway Patrol, the street value of the seized "pills is approximately $3,000,000." The KSEE-TV Fresno, CA (1/24) website does not mention the DEA in its coverage of this story.

Hackers Launched Cyberattack On Canadian Foreign Ministry; Some Services Still Down

Reuters (1/24, Ljunggren) reports hackers "launched a cyber attack on Canada's foreign ministry last week and some services are still down, officials said on Monday without disclosing who Ottawa thought was responsible." The incident "was detected last Wednesday, a day before Canada's signals intelligence agency said network operators of critical infrastructure should boost their defenses against Russian state-sponsored threats." The country's Treasury Board, which has overall responsibility for government operations, said, "Critical services...are currently functioning. Some access to internet and internet-based services are currently not working." The Treasury Board added, "There is no indication that any other government departments have been impacted."

Violent Attacks On Officers On The Rise In 2022

The Washington Times (1/24, Mordock) reports, "A police officer has been shot nearly every day this year as a growing wave of shootings and other attacks across the country claimed the lives of four officers in less than a month." The Times adds, "Through the first 24 days of the year, gunmen opened fire on cops 22 times, killing three officers, according to data from the National Gun Violence Archive. Another four officers have been ambushed in vehicle attacks. One incident resulted in the death of a Houston police officer over the weekend." According to the Times, "Even two police dogs have died in the line of duty: one stabbed by a suspect and the other killed by a passenger car during a traffic stop. Last year was the deadliest on record for police officers, according to data from the National Law Enforcement Officers Memorial Fund."

White House Blames Crime Spike On "Gun Violence" And "Underfunding" Of Police

On its website, Fox News (1/24, Keene) reports White House Press Secretary Jen Psaki on Monday "blamed the 'underfunding' of some police forces for the spike in crime gripping America." Fox says when asked "what the Biden administration believes is fueling the crime surge that has stunned Americans," Psaki "pointed to 'gun violence' as a 'huge reason' for the uptick in crime as well as the 'underfunding of some police departments and their need for additional resources.'" Psaki also "said that President Biden has 'advocated' for additional resources for police 'consistently' throughout his multi-decade political career and is something the White House knows 'we need to take action on.'"

NYC Mayor Details Plan To Combat Gun Violence In NYC

Reuters (1/24, Goldberg, Harte) reports New York City Mayor Eric Adams (D) on Monday "announced a plan to end gun violence in a city reeling from the fatal shooting of a police officer and a spate of violent crimes." Adams "said the plan would deliver on his November election campaign pledge by deploying more officers, stemming the flow of guns into the city, and appointing anti-gun violence coordinators in every city agency." The New York Times (1/24, A1, Fitzsimmons, Southall) describes his proposal as “an ambitious public safety plan” that comes during “what has quickly become a pivotal moment in his first weeks in office.” By introducing his plan, Adams has “called on state lawmakers to make a number of changes, including to New York’s bail law and to a law that altered how the state handles teenage defendants.” The plan also calls for “the restoration of an anti-gun police unit,” which Bloomberg (1/24, Akinnibi, Nahmias) says had been “disbanded under former Mayor Bill de Blasio after misconduct complaints mounted.”

Meanwhile, USA Today (1/24, Miller) reports Adams “blamed the illegal flow of guns into the city for” an increase in shootings in New York City. Adams “called for federal and state help to address the ‘iron pipeline.’”

MTA CEO Pledges To Work With Police To Reduce Subway Crime. Bloomberg (1/24, Kaske) reports Metropolitan Transportation Authority (MTA) CEO Janno Lieber has “pledged to work with” New York City’s police department to decrease subway crime. That pledge was made after New York City Mayor Eric Adams (D) “said 1,000 police officers will shift to transit stations and will walk inside train cars and interact with passengers instead of monitoring from station platforms.” On Monday, Lieber “said he welcomed the additional police presence and help with riders who are suffering from mental health issues.”

The Wall Street Journal (1/24, Abdel-Baqui, Subscription Publication) reports the number of assaults and murders in the New York City subway system in 2021 were the highest since at least 1997, according to recently released NYPD statistics.

The Washington Post (1/24, Hassan) reports a 62-year-old man “was pushed onto the tracks of a New York subway station Sunday – a little more than a week after an Asian American woman died after being shoved in front of a train in Times Square.” The Post adds “the two incidents, which the New York Police Department said were both unprovoked, have thrust the issue of subway violence back into the spotlight and sparked widespread calls for officials to do more to protect subway riders.”

Mothers Express Concern About New Mexico’s Pretrial Detention System

The AP (1/24, Bryan) reports from Albuquerque, New Mexico that “District Attorney Dianna Luce, who represents three counties in” New Mexico, and mothers who lost sons to violence in that state “testified Monday that something has to be done to keep suspects accused of brutal crimes behind bars ahead of their trials.” The testimony marked “the official start of a legislative debate over a proposed change to the state’s troubled pretrial detention system.” The AP adds, “Demands have reached a feverish pitch for New Mexico lawmakers to reconsider bail reforms that were initially intended to prevent low-risk defendants from languishing in jail for months before their trials while still giving judges the ability to mandate detention for defendants considered dangerous.”

Toronto Police Service Launches Campaign To Keep Pedestrians Safe

The Toronto (CAN) Sun (1/24, Connor) reports the Toronto Police Service has launched Winter Watch, a pedestrian safety campaign that targets “errant motorists who pose a threat to those walking in the city.” The campaign, which began on Monday and runs through January 30, is focused “on the so-called ‘big four’ – speeding, aggressive driving, distracted driving, and impaired driving.” In the “past three years, 164 people have been killed on roads in Toronto, in what police describe as preventable deaths.” The Sun adds, “Police caution drivers to pay extra attention when making turns. Between 2019-21, 28% of pedestrian fatalities involved a driver turning at a signalized intersection. ‘We have put a message out on social media and are blasting it out that way,’ said traffic spokesman Melissa Kulik. ‘We also sent this out to all platoons across the city so they can participate.’”

Three Injured, One Killed In German College Campus Shooting

The Washington Post (1/24, Morris, Guinan-Bank) reports German police on Monday “said one person was killed and three others were injured in a rare campus shooting in the university town of Heidelberg in the country’s southwest.” The gunman, and 18-year-old student, “opened fire in a lecture hall where about 30 people had gathered for a biology tutorial, local police chief Siegfried Kollmar said.” Four students were injured, with one student fatally hurt. The gunman died by suicide, Kollmar added.

Anti-Semitic Flyers Distributed In Two Florida Cities

The AP (1/24) reports anti-Semitic flyers “were distributed over the weekend to hundreds of homes in two South Florida cities with large Jewish populations, authorities said.” Miami Beach Mayor Dan Gelber “tweeted that flyers in plastic sandwich bags with small pebbles were distributed to hundreds of homes. In neighboring Surfside, the same type of flyers were distributed to homes, officials said in a ‘community alert’ email to residents.” In a photo Gelber “posted, half of the flyer is legible. It lists of some of the health officials in Washington leading the response to COVID-19 and says they are Jewish.” Gelber and Surfside officials “said patrols were being stepped up in neighborhoods and at religious institutions. Local and federal law enforcement agencies were investigating the flyers’ origins, officials said.”

Montgomery Teen Bought “Ghost Gun” Components Online Before Shooting Classmate

The Washington Post (1/24, Morse, Hilton) reports a Montgomery County teenager “charged with critically wounding a classmate with an untraceable ghost gun told authorities he purchased the components online and a friend helped him assemble the weapon, a prosecutor said in court Monday.” Montgomery County Police Chief Marcus Jones said, “Three different parts were literally delivered to his home.” Alston “was discovered in a classroom with other students Friday and arrested by police officers around 3 p.m. They found the gun near him, but it had been disassembled, authorities said. ACTION ALERT: ILACP survey collecting data on recruitment and retention

“Recruitment and retention” was the number one challenge and concern of our members in our September 2021 Membership Survey.

Want to know how your department compares with others in Illinois?

We have put together a survey to ask about your recruitment and retention numbers from 2020 to 2022. Please complete this survey or delegate to someone in your department to complete. Those who have the numbers will complete the survey in ten minutes or less.

Compiling this data will also allow us to explain to our own members, to elected officials, and to the public what is going on with recruitment and retention statewide. You don't have to be an ILACP member to complete the survey. We want as much data as possible.

Thank you in advance for taking the time to complete this.

Policing and Policy

Two NYPD Officers Shot While Responding To Domestic Dispute

The New York Times (1/22, A1, Wilson) reports that a domestic dispute in Harlem on Friday night ended with a 47-year-old man opening fire on two police officers, “killing Officer Jason Rivera, 22, and gravely injuring his partner, Wilbert Mora, 27.” The article notes the shootings were “the third and fourth of New York City police officers in the line of duty in the last week” and serve as “a grim reminder of the dangers of workaday policing and the potential for deadly violence behind even mundane calls.”

Fox News (1/22, Conklin) reports online that President Biden on Saturday “reacted to news of two New York Police Department officers shot on Friday evening while responding to a domestic dispute.” In a tweet, the President said First Lady Jill Biden “and I are saddened to hear two NYPD officers were shot last night – one fatally.” He added, “We’re keeping them and their families in our prayers.” Biden continued, “Officers put on the badge and head into harm’s way every day. We’re grateful to them and their families for their extraordinary sacrifice.”

Biden Calls For Increased Police Funding At Mayors’ Conference Speech

Fox News (1/21) reports President Biden called for increased funding for police departments during a speech at the US Conference of Mayors’ 90th Annual Winter Meeting. During Friday’s meeting, Biden said police departments can use the funding to “hire other social workers, folks trained in mental health, so they can partner with trusted community leaders.” Though several progressive Democrats “have called for the dismantling or defunding of police departments,” Biden attempted “to distance himself from the rhetoric” recently by signing “three pieces of bipartisan legislation that support police officers, the law enforcement community and federal officials.”

Meanwhile, the Washington Post (1/21, A1, Witte) reports “mayors are pumping money into crime prevention programs that have demonstrated early promise” amid a record rise in homicide rates over the last few years. According to the Post, “evidence that the pendulum could be swinging toward safer streets is already visible in cities such as Boston, Charlotte and Dallas, all of which recorded significant reductions in homicides last year.”

Supreme Court To Revisit 2020 Ruling On Native American Crimes In Oklahoma

The New York Times (1/21, Liptak) reports Supreme Court on Friday agreed to revisit a “landmark 2020 decision declaring that much of eastern Oklahoma falls within an Indian reservation,” but “rejected a request to consider overruling the decision entirely.” McGirt v. Oklahoma held “that Native Americans who commit crimes on the reservation, which includes much of Tulsa, cannot be prosecuted by state or local law enforcement.” The court will now decide “whether those same limits apply to non-Indians who commit crimes against Indians on reservations.”

An editorial from the Wall Street Journal (1/21, Subscription Publication) is hopeful a new case concerning state jurisdiction over crimes against Native Americans will increase states’ authority so crimes can be fully and properly prosecuted.

New York Governor Calls On Congress To Act To “Fight The Scourge Of Illegal Guns”

Fox News (1/23, Chasmar) reports on its website that New York Gov. Kathy Hochul (D) on Saturday “said the ambush shooting of two New York City police officers Friday signaled the need for congressional action in Washington, DC to help ‘fight the scourge of illegal guns on our streets.’” Hochul stated, “Our hearts and prayers are with the families and the members of the NYPD, but also, it’s a resounding call to action.” She added, “We have to do more to fight the scourge of illegal guns on our streets. And we need Washington teaming up with us, teaming up with locals, to get it done.”

Security, Crime, and Drugs

FBI Investigating Texas Synagogue Attack As “Hate Crime And An Act Of Terrorism”

USA Today (1/21, Johnson) reports the FBI’s investigation into last week’s Texas synagogue attack, which was described as a “hate crime and an act of terrorism,” has “reached into United Kingdom where British authorities have questioned the assailant’s teen-age children.” Meanwhile, at a Friday briefing, Rabbi Cytron-Walker “said that he and the three other hostages feared for their lives as it appeared that Akram was becoming further agitated.” Dallas FBI chief Matthew DeSarno called the hostages “survivors” and “heroes.”

In his New York Times (1/21, Stephens) column, Bret Stephens discusses the “antisemitic attack,” criticizing the lack of “substantial reporting” on the terrorist’s motives. Instead, he says “there was a focus on the assailant’s supposed mental illness, along with additional reporting on the ever-increasing security-consciousness of synagogues worldwide.” As a result, he argues, Jews are “victimized twice,” by both being “physically targeted for being Jewish” and “being begrudged the universal recognition that we were morally targeted.”

Terrorist In Texas Synagogue Attack Eluded Notice For Weeks Before Attack. In an approximately 3,000-word article, the Washington Post (1/22, Douglas, Zapotosky) profiles Malik Faisal Akram – the British man who took four people hostage at a Texas synagogue last Sunday to try to force the release of convicted Pakistani terrorist Aafia Siddiqui – and discusses his activities in the days before he staged his attack. The Post says, “the 44-year-old terrorist...managed impressive stealth, entering the United States without a hitch, eluding notice in New York for several days, and wandering around Dallas and its suburbs for two weeks without attracting much attention.” On Friday, the FBI “said...that it has learned many details about Akram’s movements and contacts, although key questions remain outstanding, such as how he obtained the gun he brandished at Beth Israel. As recently as late this week, FBI agents were still knocking on doors at motels and checking footage from surveillance cameras in an effort to put together the pieces of the puzzle.”

Georgia Pastor Arrested After Police Find Eight People “Imprisoned” In Basement

The Hill (1/22, Dress) reports police have arrested Georgia pastor Curtis Keith Bankston “and charged him with false imprisonment after officials allegedly found eight people locked inside his basement.” According to the Griffin Police Department, the pastor and his wife, Sophia Simm-Bankston “were running an ‘unlicensed group home’ at the house ‘under the guise of a church known as One Step of Faith 2nd Chance.’ An investigation found that the ‘the ‘caretakers’ have been leasing this property for approximately fourteen months, using the basement as a personal care home for the individuals, which essentially imprisoned them against their will.”

British Royal Navy Seizes More Than A Ton Of Illicit Drugs

On its website, CNN (1/23, Mendonca) reported, “The British Royal Navy has seized more than a ton of illicit drugs worth almost £15 million ($20.3 million) in the Gulf of Oman,” according to a UK government statement that was issued this past weekend.

Study Focuses On How Marijuana Vendors Use Social Media For Marketing

HealthDay (1/21, Thompson) reported, “Dr. Megan Moreno, division chief of general pediatrics and adolescent medicine at the University of Wisconsin-Madison,” led a study that focused on how recreational marijuana dispensaries use social media to market their products. The study, which looked at dispensaries in the states of Washington, Oregon, Colorado and Alaska, found, among other things, that approximately 35% of social media “posts featured discounts or promotions” and six percent of such posts “appealed to youth through the use of cartoon characters.” According to Moreno, young people may be drawn to “discounts and promotions...because they’re very price-sensitive.” Moreno added, “I think it’s time to realize that what happens on social media is real life. It’s taken us a while as a society to figure out that we can regulate it as real life.”

Michigan Implements Harm Reduction Strategy For Stemming Overdose Deaths

The Detroit Free Press (1/21, Kovanis) reported that harm reduction strategies for stemming drug overdose deaths are “making headlines across the nation and in Michigan,” where it is an official part of the state’s drug policy. Last year, Michigan “spent six months and $900,000 in grant money on an advertising campaign to educate the public on where and how to get Narcan [naloxone], the medication that reverses opioid overdoses, and where and how to find needle exchanges.”

Technology

Police Department Urged To Prepare For Cyber Threats

Government Technology (1/20, Pattison-Gordon) reports, “Police departments handle exceptionally sensitive data – everything from victim statements and case evidence to employees’ personal information – which made 2021’s onslaught of successful ransomware attacks hit hard.” GT adds, “This year, law enforcement organizations are likely to see continued ransomware attempts and will need to confront the growing risks as the adoption of digital tools and services expands attack surfaces, explained Christian Quinn, former commander of Fairfax County, Va.’s Cyber and Forensic Bureau and chair of the International Association of Chiefs of Police (IACP)’s Subcommittee on Cyber. Many departments are also entering the year with the usual challenges experienced in public-sector IT – limited cybersecurity investments, lack of dedicated technology personnel and struggles to get issues treated seriously enough before attacks happen, Quinn said.” According to GT, “Agencies that used software to track crime statistics or use-of-force incidents could see a decade’s worth of information wiped out, for example, and may struggle to recapture it from paper sources.”

NordVPN Will Comply With Law Enforcement Data Requests

TechRadar (1/20, Spadafora) reports NordVPN has clarified its “position regarding whether or not it will comply with information requests from international law enforcement agencies.” As reported “by PCMag, the VPN provider reached out to the news outlet” saying that it “will comply with lawful requests as long as they are delivered according to all laws and regulations”. NordVPN also “stressed that while it is a company that protects the security and privacy” of its customers, it does “operate according to laws and regulations.”

Dallas Police Department Introduces Its New Drone Unit

The Dallas Morning News (1/21, Choi) reports the Dallas Police Department is “now among a growing number of law enforcement agencies using aerial drones as part of their operations, but advocates say more oversight is needed to protect residents’ rights.” Thursday marked the Dallas Police Department’s “formal introduction of its new drone unit. The five-person team will use aerial drones in search-and-rescue missions, for de-escalation tactics and in building searches, said Dallas Police Sgt. Ross Stinson. The unit was deployed during search efforts for an 11-year-old boy reported missing Thursday in Mountain Creek just south of Grand Prairie. Dallas police started research and planning for an aerial drone unit in 2015. Drone pilots in the unit have received proper Federal Aviation Administration training, and the department will use several different types of drones, depending on the situation. In September, the department deployed drones to assist Dallas-Fire Rescue at the scene of an apartment explosion in southeast Oak Cliff, Stinson said.”

Policing and Policy

Two NYPD Officers Shot While Responding To Domestic Dispute

The New York Times (1/22, A1, Wilson) reports that a domestic dispute in Harlem on Friday night ended with a 47-year-old man opening fire on two police officers, “killing Officer Jason Rivera, 22, and gravely injuring his partner, Wilbert Mora, 27.” The article notes the shootings were “the third and fourth of New York City police officers in the line of duty in the last week” and serve as “a grim reminder of the dangers of workaday policing and the potential for deadly violence behind even mundane calls.”

Fox News (1/22, Conklin) reports online that President Biden on Saturday “reacted to news of two New York Police Department officers shot on Friday evening while responding to a domestic dispute.” In a tweet, the President said First Lady Jill Biden “and I are saddened to hear two NYPD officers were shot last night – one fatally.” He added, “We’re keeping them and their families in our prayers.” Biden continued, “Officers put on the badge and head into harm’s way every day. We’re grateful to them and their families for their extraordinary sacrifice.”

Biden Calls For Increased Police Funding At Mayors’ Conference Speech

Fox News (1/21) reports President Biden called for increased funding for police departments during a speech at the US Conference of Mayors’ 90th Annual Winter Meeting. During Friday’s meeting, Biden said police departments can use the funding to “hire other social workers, folks trained in mental health, so they can partner with trusted community leaders.” Though several progressive Democrats “have called for the dismantling or defunding of police departments,” Biden attempted “to distance himself from the rhetoric” recently by signing “three pieces of bipartisan legislation that support police officers, the law enforcement community and federal officials.”

Meanwhile, the Washington Post (1/21, A1, Witte) reports “mayors are pumping money into crime prevention programs that have demonstrated early promise” amid a record rise in homicide rates over the last few years. According to the Post, “evidence that the pendulum could be swinging toward safer streets is already visible in cities such as Boston, Charlotte and Dallas, all of

Supreme Court To Revisit 2020 Ruling On Native American Crimes In Oklahoma

The New York Times (1/21, Liptak) reports Supreme Court on Friday agreed to revisit a “landmark 2020 decision declaring that much of eastern Oklahoma falls within an Indian reservation,” but “rejected a request to consider overruling the decision entirely.” McGirt v. Oklahoma held “that Native Americans who commit crimes on the reservation, which includes much of Tulsa, cannot be prosecuted by state or local law enforcement.” The court will now decide “whether those same limits apply to non-Indians who commit crimes against Indians on reservations.”

An editorial from the Wall Street Journal (1/21, Subscription Publication) is hopeful a new case concerning state jurisdiction over crimes against Native Americans will increase states’ authority so crimes can be fully and properly prosecuted.

New York Governor Calls On Congress To Act To “Fight The Scourge Of Illegal Guns”

Fox News (1/23, Chasmar) reports on its website that New York Gov. Kathy Hochul (D) on Saturday “said the ambush shooting of two New York City police officers Friday signaled the need for congressional action in Washington, DC to help ‘fight the scourge of illegal guns on our streets.’” Hochul stated, “Our hearts and prayers are with the families and the members of the NYPD, but also, it’s a resounding call to action.” She added, “We have to do more to fight the scourge of illegal guns on our streets. And we need Washington teaming up with us, teaming up with locals, to get it done.”

Security, Crime, and Drugs

FBI Investigating Texas Synagogue Attack As “Hate Crime And An Act Of Terrorism”

USA Today (1/21, Johnson) reports the FBI’s investigation into last week’s Texas synagogue attack, which was described as a “hate crime and an act of terrorism,” has “reached into United Kingdom where British authorities have questioned the assailant’s teen-age children.” Meanwhile, at a Friday briefing, Rabbi Cytron-Walker “said that he and the three other hostages feared for their lives as it appeared that Akram was becoming further agitated.” Dallas FBI chief Matthew DeSarno called the hostages “survivors” and “heroes.”

In his New York Times (1/21, Stephens) column, Bret Stephens discusses the “antisemitic attack,” criticizing the lack of “substantial reporting” on the terrorist’s motives. Instead, he says “there was a focus on the assailant’s supposed mental illness, along with additional reporting on the ever-increasing security-consciousness of synagogues worldwide.” As a result, he argues, Jews are “victimized twice,” by both being “physically targeted for being Jewish” and “being begrudged the universal recognition that we were morally targeted.”

Terrorist In Texas Synagogue Attack Eluded Notice For Weeks Before Attack. In an approximately 3,000-word article, the Washington Post (1/22, Douglas, Zapotosky) profiles Malik Faisal Akram – the British man who took four people hostage at a Texas synagogue last Sunday to try to force the release of convicted Pakistani terrorist Aafia Siddiqui – and discusses his activities in the days before he staged his attack. The Post says, “the 44-year-old terrorist...managed impressive stealth, entering the United States without a hitch, eluding notice in New York for several days, and wandering around Dallas and its suburbs for two weeks without attracting much attention.” On Friday, the FBI “said...that it has learned many details about Akram’s movements and contacts, although key questions remain outstanding, such as how he obtained the gun he brandished at Beth Israel. As recently as late this week, FBI agents were still knocking on doors at motels and checking footage from surveillance cameras in an effort to put together the pieces of the puzzle.”

Georgia Pastor Arrested After Police Find Eight People “Imprisoned” In Basement

The Hill (1/22, Dress) reports police have arrested Georgia pastor Curtis Keith Bankston “and charged him with false imprisonment after officials allegedly found eight people locked inside his basement.” According to the Griffin Police Department, the pastor and his wife, Sophia Simm-Bankston “were running an ‘unlicensed group home’ at the house ‘under the guise of a church known as One Step of Faith 2nd Chance.’ An investigation found that the ‘the ‘caretakers’ have been leasing this property for approximately fourteen months, using the basement as a personal care home for the individuals, which essentially imprisoned them against their will.”

ILEAP Assessors and potential Assessors!!

If you are getting this email you are a current assessor or have expressed interest in becoming an assessor (or somewhere in between).

You can elect to take a $400 check OR if you are going to the assessment while on the clock from your home agency, you can elect to send the stipend back to your home agency to pay for ILEAP fees, Power DMS, overtime, or whatever your agency decides.

In order to make sure this stipend plan works well, I need each of you to complete the attached form and send it back to Carmen at the ILACP office. Her email is carmen@ilchiefs.org

When I coordinate an assessment, schedule the assessors, and “hand-off” the assessment to the lead and second assessor, I’ll ask if you want paid or kicked back to home agency. Then we tell Carmen what your choice is, complete the assessment, and once completed, I’ll let Carmen know and she’ll issue checks.

I plan to push out some Assessor training and Power DMS training in the near future, so be on the look out for that February-ish.

Thanks for your strong commitment to the profession and your peer departments.

Hello Jeff,

I will need a W9 from each assessor to have all of their information for tax purposes. I have attached one for you to send out. If you could, ask that they send them back to me. If an assessor is opting to have their check go to their agency, maybe I can come up with a form for them to sign to make this request. Thoughts? As for tracking, I can add a column on my "ILEAP tracking" spreadsheet for you to add the assessor(s) assigned. Then I can track when they are paid. I can share this document with you like we do the Use of force form. Like with that one, you will just need to be sure not to keep it open once you have edited it. What do you think? Thank you for reaching out!

Assessor's –

Question arose...

If you are kicking back the assessor stipend to your Municipality, the ILACP office will need a W9 from your town as well. This all has to do with Tax rule/laws.

Thanks and let me know if you have questions

ILEAP Assessors and potential Assessors!!

If you are getting this email you are a current assessor or have expressed interest in becoming an assessor (or somewhere in between).

Beginning 2022, ILACP will begin providing a stipend of $400 for assessors to complete assessments. You can elect to take a $400 check OR if you are going to the assessment while on the clock from your home agency, you can elect to send the stipend back to your home agency to pay for ILEAP fees, Power DMS, overtime, or whatever your agency decides.

In order to make sure this stipend plan works well, I need each of you to complete the attached form and send it back to Carmen at the ILACP office. Her email is carmen@ilchiefs.org

When I coordinate an assessment, schedule the assessors, and “hand-off” the assessment to the lead and second assessor, I’ll ask if you want paid or kicked back to home agency. Then we tell Carmen what your choice is, complete the assessment, and once completed, I’ll let Carmen know and she’ll issue checks.

I plan to push out some Assessor training and Power DMS training in the near future, so be on the look out for that February-ish.

Thanks for your strong commitment to the profession and your peer departments.

Any questions or think of things I missed, let me know.

Hello Jeff,

I will need a W9 from each assessor to have all of their information for tax purposes. I have attached one for you to send out. If you could, ask that they send them back to me. If an assessor is opting to have their check go to their agency, maybe I can come up with a form for them to sign to make this request. Thoughts? As for tracking, I can add a column on my "ILEAP tracking" spreadsheet for you to add the assessor(s) assigned. Then I can track when they are paid. I can share this document with you like we do the Use of force form. Like with that one, you will just need to be sure not to keep it open once you have edited it. What do you think? Thank you for reaching out!

Carmen,

Based on the recent decision to pay assessors, I wanted to brainstorm with you. I CC'd Ed so he could verify my information and make corrections if needed.

New facts -

Beginning 2022 ILEAP Assessors will be paid $400 per assessment

ILEAP uses 2 assessors (generally) per assessment

Assessors have choice to receive check made out to them for the stipend

Or

Choice to have check go back to their home agency

Brainstorming here-

-what do you need from me to record keep the assessor and assignments?

-what do you need from assessors to pay them? (tax form?)

-what do you need from assessors to forward stipend to home agency?

-Anything else I missed?

Good Afternoon,

I wanted to reach out to you to see if you had any questions regarding importing your policy manual and attaching your policies to your assessment. Also, I want to give you an update on what to expect when you update your policy manual in Lexipol. Right now, Lexipol is still developing the technology for the updates to import into PowerDMS automatically. This means that as you update your policy manual in Lexipol, it will not show up yet in PowerDMS. We do not have a time frame on that from Lexipol yet, but as soon as I do, we can set up a meeting to ensure you know the steps to follow and what to expect. Let me know if you have any questions.

Have a great day!

Illinois' Voice of Professional Law Enforcement

Book your room now for IACP conference in fall

The International Association of Chiefs of Police Annual Conference and Exposition on October 15-18 brings together more than 16,000 public safety professionals to learn new techniques, advance their knowledge and careers, and equip their department for ongoing success.

The three tenets of the conference are training, networking, and exhibit hall education. IACP 2022 will span four days of education and networking. The exposition hall will be open Sunday – Tuesday of the conference to meet with more than 600 vendors showcasing products and services to assist the law enforcement profession.

Drive away with rates as low as 1.49% APR with an ISPFCU Auto Loan!

Whether you're looking to buy a brand-new vehicle, or just one new to you, let us help you drive away in the vehicle you want with our new, lower auto loan rates! For a limited time, you can now enjoy New Auto Loan rates as low as 1.49%* and Used Auto Loan rates as low as 1.74%!* In addition, you also have the option to defer your first loan payment for 90 days free of charge!

Even if you are not in the market for a new vehicle you can still take advantage of this special offer by refinancing an existing auto loan from another financial institution with ISPFCU. Not only could we lower your monthly loan payments and save you money in interest over the life of your loan, but you will also enjoy 90 days of no auto loan payments! Apply online at www.ispfcu.org or call us at 800-255-0886 with any questions you may have today!

*All rates are stated as an Annual Percentage Rate (APR). Rates are subject to change at any time. Special applies to new non-ISPFCU loans. Rates quoted are for individuals with excellent credit. Individuals with less than excellent credit may be offered higher rates. Fixed loan rate of 1.49% equals payments of $17.31 for 60 months for each $1,000 borrowed.

In case you missed it: Sample “notice of rights” signs for 3 phone calls and public defender number

A new law requires you to post signs with the phone number of the public defender and people's rights to 3 phones once they are in a place of detention after being taken into custody.

This topic came up on the Zoom Legislative Committee meeting this week. As a public service, we are sharing two signs that have been developed for DuPage County areas (attached and linked below). Other jurisdictions might wish to consider some of this language as they create their own signage.

The law says:

Posting notice of rights. Every sheriff, chief of police or other person who is in charge of any jail, police station or other building where persons under arrest are held in custody pending investigation, bail or other criminal proceedings, shall post in every room, other than cells, of such buildings where persons are held in custody, in conspicuous places where it may be seen and read by persons in custody and others, a poster, printed in large type, containing a verbatim copy in the English language of the provisions of Sections 103-2, 103-3, 103-4, 109-1, 110-2, 110-4, and sub-parts (a) and (b) of Sections 110-7 and 113-3 of this Code

Presenters needed for upcoming conference

ILACP's annual conference is planned for April 27-29 in Northbrook. As is the Chief's custom, members will lead the breakout sessions. If you are interested in being a presenter, please fill out the form on our website. Registration to attend the conference will open in February.

It is for expired CPS technicians who have maintained their child passenger safety knowledge and their hands-on skills but who, for one reason or another, allowed their certifications to expire. The fee is $95. Class start dates are:

- March 4, 2022, in Chicago
- April 5, 2022, in Evergreen Park
- April 26, 2022 in Peru
- May 6, 2022, in Chicago
- May 25, 2022, in Libertyville
- July 1, 2022 in Chicago
- August 31, 2022, in Beecher

For more information on classes, registration, and payment, go to cert.safekids.org. Any questions, contact Melanie Wingo at melaniewilacp@gmail.com. Check the Safe Kids website often as new classes are always being added.

January 2022

The DRE and the State Highway Safety Office

As many of you already know, your State Highway Safety Office (SHSO) is one of your best partners for advancing your DEC Program and in training DREs. We all have the same goal of preventing impaired driving while reducing injuries and deaths on our roadways. By funding and supporting the DEC Program and its' components such as SFST, ARIDE and DRE training, as well as law enforcement phlebotomy, the SHSO and DEC Programs across the country can and will make our roadways safer. As a retired trooper with 30 years of experience as an SFST instructor, I know how important the work of the IACP Technical Advisory Panel (TAP) and DEC Programs are and why we need strong, credible, and professionally recognized standards. As the TAP representative for highway safety offices, I am committed to fostering and growing this natural and strong partnership. For the past several years, IACP and GHSA have generously supported various states with grant funding to support and expand state ARIDE and DRE training. If your state has not taken advantage of these grant opportunities, I encourage you to work with your SHSO and apply for these funding resources. Additionally, Congress recently authorized $4 billion dollars through the Infrastructure Investment and Jobs Act (IIJA).

Some of the funding opportunities made available are:

- Back-filling patrol vacancies to allow officers to attend ARIDE/DRE training
- Ignition interlock device laws
- 24/7 sobriety programs
- Public education on marijuana-impaired driving

Additional information regarding the IIJA funding can be found here.

Drugged driving has been increasing exponentially across the country and DREs make a difference. If I can be of assistance to you, your agency, or your SHSO, please feel free to contact me: michael.hanson@state.mn.us.

Policing and Policy

FBI Director: Texas Synagogue Incident "An Act Of Terrorism Targeting The Jewish Community"

The Hill (1/20) reports FBI Director Christopher Wray "said in a webinar Thursday that the hostage-taking at a Texas synagogue" over the weekend was "an act of terrorism targeting the Jewish community." The comment came during "a webinar hosted by the Anti-Defamation League as the FBI has faced backlash after the agent in charge of the bureau's Dallas field office said the suspect in the incident, Malik Faisal Akram, wasn't motivated by an issue 'specifically related to the Jewish community' when he took four people hostage at the Congregation Beth Israel on Saturday, The New York Times reported."

The New York Times (1/20, Graham) reports Wray said, "This was not some random occurrence. It was intentional, it was symbolic and we're not going to tolerate antisemitism in this country." In the webinar "on Thursday, Mr. Wray emphasized the FBI's commitment to combating antisemitic attacks." Wray said, "We recognize that the Jewish community in particular has suffered violence and faces very real threats from...across the hate spectrum."

FBI Digs Into Synagogue Hostage-taker's "Digital Trail." The Washington Post (1/20, Barrett, Zapotosky, Douglas, Mekhennet) reports Malik Faisal Akram conducted "Internet searches for influential rabbis, an imprisoned terrorist and gun and pawnshops in the days before he took congregants hostage inside a Texas synagogue, according to law enforcement officials." FBI agents examining the "digital trail left by 44-year-old Malik Faisal Akram have found plenty of evidence hinting at his plan and state of mind in the days before the attack, said the officials, who spoke on the condition of anonymity to discuss the ongoing investigation." Searches on Akram's cellphone "led him to focus on Rabbi Angela Buchdahl of New York City's Central Synagogue, who has been named on various online lists over the past decade as one of the most influential Jewish people in the country."

Britain Arrests Two In Connection To Synagogue Hostage Standoff. The Hill (1/20, Schnell) reports two men were arrested “in the United Kingdom on Thursday in connection to this weekend’s hostage standoff at a Texas synagogue.” Greater Manchester Police announced “in a tweet on Thursday that two men were arrested in Birmingham and Manchester that morning.” They are still in “custody for questioning, according to authorities.” According to a police statement, “Officers from Counter Terrorism Policing North West continue to support US authorities with their investigation into the events in Texas.”

North Carolina Law Mandates Psychological Screenings For New Deputies

The New Bern (NC) Sun Journal (1/20, Dunnell) reports a new North Carolina law requires “psychological screenings of sheriff’s deputies and dispatchers prior to certification or employment.” The law, which took effect at the start of 2022, “is intended to educate law enforcement on maintaining good mental health and provide information to officers on mental health resources available to them.” Because the “new law went into effect as an unfunded” state mandate, counties in North Carolina will have to pay for the psychological screenings.

California Governor Pledges State Help In Cracking Down On Los Angeles Rail Theft

The AP (1/20, Weber) reports California Gov. Gavin Newsom (D) “is promising statewide coordination as law enforcement and prosecutors go after thieves who have been raiding cargo containers aboard trains near downtown Los Angeles for months.” On Thursday, Newsom “joined a cleanup crew from the state Department of Transportation.” The crew filled “dozens of trash bags with crushed cardboard from packages stolen on their way from retailers to people across the US.” Newsom “said his new budget proposal includes funds to expand the Organized Retail Theft Task Force.” That task force was “created last year when Los Angeles, San Francisco and other cities saw organized groups of roving thieves carrying out smash-and-grab robberies at retail stores.”

Police Chief In One Canadian City Warns Of Need For More Redeployments

CTV News (CAN) (1/20) reports, “Responding to an onslaught of 9-1-1 calls is increasingly taking priority over efforts to prevent crime in” the Canadian city of London, according to London Police Chief Steve Williams. Williams “warns that officers assigned to foot patrol and traffic division could be next for redeployment to frontline service, and that the previously redeployed Community Oriented Response (COR) Unit will not be reconstituted anytime soon.” Williams sounded that warning while addressing the London Police Services Board. CTV News adds, “The focus of the COR Unit was proactive policing including quick intervention to prevent escalation to more serious crimes. In November, Chief Williams redeployed the COR Unit’s 14 officers to frontline service to address a steep rise in complex calls and investigations. Response times to life-threatening Code 1 emergency calls had grown by 27 per cent, and police were taking 97 per cent longer to respond to Code 2 crimes in progress.”

Police Arrest Man For Anti-Sikh Hate Crime At JFK Airport

NBC News (1/20, Kaur) reports authorities have arrested and “charged a man with a hate crime in connection with an alleged attack on a Sikh taxi driver at John F. Kennedy International Airport early this month.” The criminal complaint alleges “a verbal dispute on Jan. 3 between the Sikh driver and another man, who has been identified as 21-year-old Mohamed Hassanain, escalated into a physical assault, which led to the Sikh man’s turban unraveling and falling off his head.”

Man Charged With Human Smuggling After Migrants Freeze To Death Near Canadian Border

Reuters (1/20, Shakil) reports that on Thursday, the US attorney’s office in Minnesota charged Steve Shand “with human smuggling of Indian nationals from Canada.” On Wednesday, a baby and three other people “were found frozen to death in a remote part of Canada close to the Minnesota border.” Shand was “had been arrested just south of the border on Wednesday while driving two undocumented Indian citizens. US border patrol agents soon came across five more Indians traveling on foot, one of whom was carrying a backpack belonging to a family of four who had become separated from the group as they tried to cross the border. They alerted Canadian police who found the victims – a man, a woman, a teenage boy and a baby – about 40 feet...from the frontier with Minnesota. First indications are that they died from exposure to the cold.”

Health Experts Say Fentanyl Use By Teenagers Is A Growing Problem

An online Fox News (1/20, McGorry) story says the recent, suspected overdose death of a 13-year-old in Connecticut “sheds light on the dangers of teen use of fentanyl.” Health experts “told Fox News that fentanyl use is a growing problem with teenagers.” Related coverage appears in another Fox News (1/20, Conklin) website report.

Study Finds Marijuana Use Impairs Some Areas Of Cognition

An online CNN (1/20, LaMotte) article says, “Dr. Alexandre Dumais, associate clinical professor of psychiatry at the University of Montreal” in Canada, co-authored a study that found marijuana use impairs “several areas of cognition,” including the ability to “control emotions and behavior.”

Dumais said the study found that marijuana use by young people “may consequently lead to reduced educational attainment, and, in adults, to poor work performance and dangerous driving. These consequences may be worse in regular and heavy users.” Dumais expressed particular concern about young people, saying “preventive and interventional measures to educate youths on cannabis use and discourage them from using the substance in a chronic manner should be considered.” CTV News (CAN) (1/20, Neustaeter) publishes a similar article.

Washington, DC Carjacking Spike Mirrors Nationwide Trend

The Washington Times (1/20, Zantow) reports, “Carjackings in the nation’s capital have tripled since 2019. Officials say the alarming trend – reflected in similarly stunning crime statistics from the Washington suburbs and cities across the country – is driven by youngsters.” Washington, DC “recorded 426 carjackings last year, up from 360 in 2020 and 142 in 2019, a Metropolitan Police Department spokesperson told The Washington Times on Thursday. ‘We have noticed that a large number of these crimes are committed by young teenagers,’ the spokesperson said, with a significant number of carjackings by 13- to 16-year-olds.” The spokesperson also “said 100 juveniles were arrested for carjacking offenses last year compared with 59 in 2020. The stolen vehicles ‘are often used to commit other crimes such as robberies and shootings,’ the spokesperson said.”
