Nationally Certified Child Passenger Safety (CPS) Technicians, whose certifications have expired, are eligible to take the one-day Certification Renewal Testing Course. The course is not an update/refresher class. It is for expired CPS technicians who have maintained their child passenger safety knowledge and their hands-on skills but who, for one reason or another, allowed their certifications to expire. The fee is $95. Class start dates are:

- January 6, 2022, in Rochester
- March 4, 2022, in Chicago
- April 26, 2022 in Peru
- May 6, 2022, in Chicago
- July 1, 2022 in Chicago

Assessors and beyond,

This is excellent news for JEFF & ILEAP!!! Assessors will have the option of getting paid the stipend (if they work from their home agencies' time clock) OR kick the stipend to their home agency if they go on the clock from their home department. Departments getting the stipend can use it for ILEAP fees, Power DMS, or whatever.

I'm very excited about this. Hopefully this will energize a few chiefs to keep loaning out the AMs / Assessors

Jeff

Weekly Bulletin | December 16, 2021

Illinois' Voice of Professional Law Enforcement

Maple Park leads state in fundraising for Special Olympics

Congratulations to Maple Park PD who will be adding 2021 to its list of top fundraising years! Maple Park raised an impressive $152,000 over the past year. We are working with the Special Olympics to release more information about all of the top agencies who supported this efforts soon. Thank you to everyone who participated to help this worthy cause.

ILEAP assessors to get stipend starting in 2022

Beginning in 2022, the Illinois Association of Chiefs of Police will begin paying its ILEAP assessors $400 each per assessment. That became possible with the ILACP's adoption of its 2022 budget this week. Most of the assessors' work is done on the PowerDMS electronic platform, and there is typically a two-day on-site assessment. Travel expenses for that are covered by the local municipality.

Drive away with rates as low as 1.49% APR with an ISPFUCU Auto Loan!

Whether you're looking to buy a brand-new vehicle, or just one new to you, let us help you drive away in the vehicle you want with our new, lower auto loan rates! For a limited time, you can now enjoy New Auto Loan rates as low as 1.49%* and Used Auto Loan rates as low as 1.74%!* In addition, you also have the option to defer your first loan payment for 90 days free of charge!

Even if you are not in the market for a new vehicle you can still take advantage of this special offer by refinancing an existing auto loan from another financial institution with ISPFUCU. Not only could we lower your monthly loan payments and save you money in interest over the life of your loan, but you will also enjoy 90 days of no auto loan payments! Apply online at www.ispfcu.org or call us at 800-255-0886 with any questions you may have today!

*All rates are stated as an Annual Percentage Rate (APR). Rates are subject to change at any time. Special applies to new non-ISPFUCU loans. Rates quoted are for individuals with excellent credit. Individuals with less than excellent credit may be offered higher rates. Fixed loan rate of 1.49% equals payments of $17.31 for 60 months for each $1,000 borrowed.

Chief of Police Darren J. Gault of the Moline Police Department has submitted a letter of nomination to run for Vice President At- Large for the Illinois Association of Chiefs of Police in Region 2, Northwest and Central Illinois on Dec. 8, 2021.

Here is information about all candidates running for election 2022. You can also find a map of ILACP's three regions at this link.

The deadline for filing to be a candidate is February 27, which is 60 days before the beginning of the Annual Conference on April 27-29 in Northbrook. If you have any questions about this, ask any member of the Board of Officers.

Illinois' Voice of Professional Law Enforcement

Maple Park leads state in fundraising for Special Olympics

Congratulations to Maple Park PD who will be adding 2021 to its list of top fundraising years! Maple Park raised an impressive $152,000 over the past year. We are working with the Special Olympics to release more information about all of the top agencies who supported this efforts soon. Thank you to everyone who participated to help this worthy cause.

ILEAP assessors to get stipend starting in 2022

Beginning in 2022, the Illinois Association of Chiefs of Police will begin paying its ILEAP assessors $400 each per assessment. That became possible with the ILACP's adoption of its 2022 budget this week. Most of the assessors' work is done on the PowerDMS electronic platform, and there is typically a two-day on-site assessment. Travel expenses for that are covered by the local municipality.

Drive away with rates as low as 1.49% APR with an ISPFUCU Auto Loan!

Whether you're looking to buy a brand-new vehicle, or just one new to you, let us help you drive away in the vehicle you want with our new, lower auto loan rates! For a limited time, you can now enjoy New Auto Loan rates as low as 1.49%* and Used Auto Loan rates as low as 1.74%!* In addition, you also have the option to defer your first loan payment for 90 days free of charge!

Even if you are not in the market for a new vehicle you can still take advantage of this special offer by refinancing an existing auto loan from another financial institution with ISPFCU. Not only could we lower your monthly loan payments and save you money in interest over the life of your loan, but you will also enjoy 90 days of no auto loan payments! Apply online at www.ispfcu.org or call us at 800-255-0886 with any questions you may have today!

*All rates are stated as an Annual Percentage Rate (APR). Rates are subject to change at any time. Special applies to new non-ISPFCU loans. Rates quoted are for individuals with excellent credit. Individuals with less than excellent credit may be offered higher rates. Fixed loan rate of 1.49% equals payments of $17.31 for 60 months for each $1,000 borrowed.

Please see attached. I also have helpful pamphlets that COPS sent me for every officer if you want to take a look at them.

Good morning,

Does anyone have a policy on death/serious injury to employee? We are looking to implement a policy to help family members in the case of a serious injury or death to an officer, which we unfortunately had last year. I have a draft policy but wanted to make sure I have everything covered.

Thank you.

So when the Board was in person in Niles we had briefly discussed VPs reaching out to their agencies who were close to their onsite to encourage mock assessments. CALEA has a client database that we can easily acquire dates to keep track of this but does ILEAP have one that would tell us if they are close to their onsite?

San Francisco Mayor Announces Emergency Intervention Targeting Illegal Drugs

KPIX-TV San Francisco (12/15) reports, "Mayor London Breed launched an emergency police intervention in San Francisco's crime-ridden Tenderloin neighborhood Tuesday, targeting a pipeline of illegal drugs that has been fueling a surge in gun violence and deadly fentanyl overdoses." Breed said, "It's time the reign of criminals who are destroying our city, it is time for it to come to an end. And it comes to an end when we take the steps to more aggressive with law enforcement." Additionally, Breed announced four other initiatives, including "securing emergency police funding for needed resources," "amending our surveillance ordinance so law enforcement can interrupt crime in real time," and "disrupting the illegal street sales of stolen goods."

Justice Department Launches Digital Law Enforcement Partnership With Australia

The Washington Times (12/15, Zantow) reports the Justice Department on Wednesday "launched a law enforcement partnership with Australia to make it easier for officials to share digital evidence on crimes." Attorney General Garland "signed off on a bilateral agreement aimed at cutting some red tape by allowing the two countries direct access to each other's digital crime evidence, including information held by US-based global providers."

Tennessee To Raise Salaries For Correctional Officers

The Tennessean (12/15, Wegner) reports Tennessee "will increase its starting salary for correctional officers by 37%, Gov. Bill Lee announced Wednesday." Current security staff "will also receive a minimum 15% pay increase, a news release from Lee's office said."

South Carolina City Bans Open Carry At Public Events

The AP (12/15) reports Goose Creek, South Carolina "has become the latest community to ban people from openly carrying firearms at public events." The City Council on Tuesday "approved the ban on public property at permitted events, including parades and protests.”

Danville Aldermen Recommend Accepting $750K COPS Hiring Program Grant

The Danville (IL) Commercial News (12/14, Bailey) reported aldermen in Danville, Illinois on Tuesday “recommended approving acceptance of the $750,000 three-year 2021 COPS hiring program grant for six new police officers.” The full city council “will act on the grant next week.” The city’s portion would be nearly $300,000 the first year, $376,000 the second year, and just under $400,000 the third year.

German Authorities Arrest Six After Uncovering Vaccine-Related Murder Plans

CNN (12/15, Pleitgen, Otto, Berlinger) reports authorities in Germany “arrested six suspects and raided several properties in Dresden on Wednesday morning after uncovering plans to murder Michael Kretschmer, the pro-vaccine governor of Saxony, police in the state said.” Germany is starting to see the beginnings of a “increasingly radical anti-vaccination movement that, according to police, has plotted to murder elected officials and is actively threatening others.”

Connecticut Forms Task Force To Address Organized Retail Crime

The AP (12/15, Eaton-Robb) reports Connecticut “has formed a task force charged with combating the growing problem of organized robberies at brick-and-mortar retailers, Gov. Ned Lamont and Attorney General William Tong announced Wednesday.” Tong “said this is far more than run-of-the mill shoplifting and involves high-level criminal bosses sending crews out to rob the stores.”

The Utica (NY) Observer Dispatch (12/15, Schneider) reports Oneida County, New York has launched a database “to document residents with preexisting mental health concerns, developmental disabilities, health conditions and or religious or cultural considerations to assist police and other first responders during interactions.” The ASCEND (Assistance for Special, Cognitive, Emotional Needs and Disabilities) database “was announced this week by Oneida County Executive Anthony Picente Jr. and Oneida County Sheriff Robert Maciol.”

New Albany Police Department To Purchase Automated LPRs

The Columbus (OH) Dispatch (12/15, Seman Jr.) reports the New Albany Police Department intends to purchase automated license-plate readers (LPRs) “and place them at strategic points throughout the city to help solve criminal offenses, such as property crimes, national and local warrants and violent crimes.” Police Chief Greg Jones “said the city intends to spend $20,000 on the LPR technology, which surveils license plates every hour of every day, feeding the information into a database to show whether a vehicle had been involved in a crime.”

San Francisco Mayor Announces Emergency Intervention Targeting Illegal Drugs

KPIX-TV San Francisco (12/15) reports, "Mayor London Breed launched an emergency police intervention in San Francisco's crime-ridden Tenderloin neighborhood Tuesday, targeting a pipeline of illegal drugs that has been fueling a surge in gun violence and deadly fentanyl overdoses." Breed said, "It's time the reign of criminals who are destroying our city, it is time for it to come to an end. And it comes to an end when we take the steps to more aggressive with law enforcement." Additionally, Breed announced four other initiatives, including "securing emergency police funding for needed resources," "amending our surveillance ordinance so law enforcement can interrupt crime in real time," and "disrupting the illegal street sales of stolen goods."

Justice Department Launches Digital Law Enforcement Partnership With Australia

The Washington Times (12/15, Zantow) reports the Justice Department on Wednesday "launched a law enforcement partnership with Australia to make it easier for officials to share digital evidence on crimes." Attorney General Garland "signed off on a bilateral agreement aimed at cutting some red tape by allowing the two countries direct access to each other's digital crime evidence, including information held by US-based global providers."

Tennessee To Raise Salaries For Correctional Officers

The Tennessean (12/15, Wegner) reports Tennessee "will increase its starting salary for correctional officers by 37%, Gov. Bill Lee announced Wednesday." Current security staff "will also receive a minimum 15% pay increase, a news release from Lee's office said."

South Carolina City Bans Open Carry At Public Events

The AP (12/15) reports Goose Creek, South Carolina "has become the latest community to ban people from openly carrying firearms at public events." The City Council on Tuesday "approved the ban on public property at permitted events, including parades and protests.”

Danville Aldermen Recommend Accepting $750K COPS Hiring Program Grant

The Danville (IL) Commercial News (12/14, Bailey) reported aldermen in Danville, Illinois on Tuesday “recommended approving acceptance of the $750,000 three-year 2021 COPS hiring program grant for six new police officers.” The full city council “will act on the grant next week.” The city’s portion would be nearly $300,000 the first year, $376,000 the second year, and just under $400,000 the third year.

German Authorities Arrest Six After Uncovering Vaccine-Related Murder Plans

CNN (12/15, Pleitgen, Otto, Berlinger) reports authorities in Germany “arrested six suspects and raided several properties in Dresden on Wednesday morning after uncovering plans to murder Michael Kretschmer, the pro-vaccine governor of Saxony, police in the state said.” Germany is starting to see the beginnings of a “increasingly radical anti-vaccination movement that, according to police, has plotted to murder elected officials and is actively threatening others.”

Connecticut Forms Task Force To Address Organized Retail Crime

The AP (12/15, Eaton-Robb) reports Connecticut “has formed a task force charged with combating the growing problem of organized robberies at brick-and-mortar retailers, Gov. Ned Lamont and Attorney General William Tong announced Wednesday.” Tong “said this is far more than run-of-the mill shoplifting and involves high-level criminal bosses sending crews out to rob the stores.”

Officer Safety and Wellness

Police In Two Maryland Towns To Be Required To Attend Quarterly Mental Health Check-Ins With Clinicians

WJLA-TV Washington (12/14, Roussey) reports police departments in two Maryland towns “will be required to attend quarterly mental health check-ins with licensed clinicians” in a program “organizers believe may be the first of its kind in the US.” The towns involved are Hyattsville and Brentwood. The meetings “are being funded with $50,000 approved by the Hyattsville City Council, plus a Dept. of Justice grant that provides $118,800 over two years.”

LA City Council Members Paid For More Than $1.5M In LAPD Overtime

The Los Angeles Times (12/14, Rector) reports some Los Angeles City Council members have been using funding from their districts to pay for additional police presence in the wake of increased crime in recent months. Council members have used their own funds to pay for more than $1.5 million in Los Angeles Police Department (LAPD) overtime, on top of the LAPD's budget of $1.76 billion. The spending highlights the complex relationship between the city's revenue deficits, political conversations about the role of police, and the rise in crime rates during the pandemic.

San Francisco Mayor Seeks Expanded Law Enforcement Access To Some Surveillance Video

The AP (12/14) reports San Francisco Mayor London Breed on Tuesday "said at a news conference attended by the police chief and other public safety personnel that she would introduce legislation to allow law enforcement real-time access to surveillance video in certain situations and to make it harder for people to sell stolen goods." Breed also announced emergency intervention in the low-income neighborhood, the Tenderloin, "where parents have pleaded for protection from drug dealers and violent street behavior."

Adams To Appoint First Woman Commissioner Of NYPD

Reuters (12/14) reports New York City Mayor-elect Eric Adams "will appoint a woman to serve as commissioner of the city's police department for the first time in its 176-year history, local media reported on Tuesday." Adams will introduce Keechant Sewell on Wednesday. Sewell is a veteran of the Nassau County police department, where she is chief of detectives.

DOJ's OVW Announces Awards For 11 Indian Tribal Governments To Combat Domestic Violence

The Muskogee (OK) Phoenix (12/14) reports the DOJ's Office on Violence Against Women (OVW) "announced awards to 11 Indian Tribal governments to support them in exercising special domestic violence criminal jurisdiction (SDVCJ)." Acting US Attorney Christopher Wilson said domestic violence "is a scourge" for communities and the grant funding "will aid Cherokee, Chickasaw, Muscogee (Creek), Seminole and Tribal prosecutors in the Eastern District to address the issue of domestic violence within their reservations."

Colorado Law Enforcement Begins Annual Holiday Season DUI Enforcement Period

The Denver Post (12/14) reports, "The annual Heat Is On Holiday Parties DUI enforcement period starts Wednesday and drivers can expect a stout effort by law enforcement and highway officials, in partnership, to keep roads safe by curtailing impaired driving and strictly enforcing DUI laws." The seasonal period "runs through Dec. 29 and drivers can expect sobriety checkpoints and law enforcement saturation patrols."

Also reporting is the Denver Gazette (12/14, Metzger).

Police, MADD Support Massachusetts Bill Cracking Down On Drugged Driving

The Boston Herald (12/14) reports that Massachusetts law enforcement officials and Mothers Against Drunk Driving support a bill filed by Gov. Charlie Baker (R-MA) codifying that THC "impairs the ability to operate a vehicle, legally recognize a field sobriety test and impose consequences on suspected drugged drivers who refuse to submit to testing, among other things." A National Highway Traffic Safety Administration report found that between "October 2020 and December 2020...56% of drivers involved in serious injury and fatal crashes at those centers tested positive for at least one drug."

LA City Council Members Paid For More Than $1.5M In LAPD Overtime

The Los Angeles Times (12/14, Rector) reports some Los Angeles City Council members have been using funding from their districts to pay for additional police presence in the wake of increased crime in recent months. Council members have used their own funds to pay for more than $1.5 million in Los Angeles Police Department (LAPD) overtime, on top of the LAPD's budget of $1.76 billion. The spending highlights the complex relationship between the city's revenue deficits, political conversations about the role of police, and the rise in crime rates during the pandemic.

Special Alert | December 14, 2021 Past ILACP President James Roche passed away on Dec.10

James Leo Roche, 71, of Jacksonport, Wisconsin and Tucson, Arizona, died at his Door County home on Friday, December 10, 2021.

He served as Chief of Police in Crete, NE for six years, Deputy Chief of Police in Wheeling for two years, and Chief of Police in St. Charles for 13 years. Roche was ILACP president in 1999 when he was chief in St. Charles.

After retiring from law enforcement, he went on to serve as a Federal Security Director for the Transportation Security Administration (TSA) and then as a Federal Coordinating Officer for the Federal Emergency Management Agency (FEMA). He proudly served in the Army and National Guard for 38 years before retiring as a Lt. Colonel in 2010.

A memorial mass will be held in Pontiac at a later date. Memorial donations can be made in his name to any charity benefitting children.

IACP/ecoATM Leadership in Crime Prevention Award

The IACP/ecoATM Leadership in Crime Prevention Award recognizes innovative, data-driven, low-cost and high-impact crime prevention programs.

Denver Police Department 2021 Award Winner

The Denver Police Department, in collaboration with the Mental Health Center of Denver and the Denver Crime Prevention and Control Commission, partnered to launch an ambitious co-responder pilot program. The co-responder program pairs licensed professional behavioral health clinicians with police officers to respond to calls involving people experiencing behavioral health issues and/or co-occurring substance use issues. A co-responder team is dispatched when weapons, threats, or safety issues are involved so that an officer is present to help address any safety issues. These programs are part of a comprehensive approach to increasing safety in the community, addressing individual and community needs with immediate action and long-term support to promote stabilization, access to resources, and strategic utilization of resources through cross-system and cross-discipline public, private, and community coordination and collaboration to ensure flexibility, and the right response in the place, at the right time.

“ecoATM is proud to sponsor the International Association of Chiefs of Police/ecoATM Leadership in Crime Prevention Award which recognizes innovative crime prevention programs throughout the world. Crime prevention has been part of ecoATM’s DNA since 2009. With over 4,400 kiosks, we are the global leader in handheld electronic device recycling. ecoATM’s automated handheld electronic device recycling kiosks are engineered and designed to use sophisticated technology and processes to capture and provide detailed information about each sale to law enforcement and detect and deter a criminal’s ability to profit from their crimes.”

Chief (ret.) Jim Smith, Director of Law Enforcement Relations

ecoATM US and International Expansion

In January of 2022, ecoATM will now be operational in all 50 States. In addition to our United States expansion, ecoATM currently operates in the United Kingdom, Germany, France and the Netherlands. We continue to identify additional markets to combat the global e-waste problem.

ecoATM encourages law enforcement to report all stolen devices to the FBI's NCIC Article File [NCIC]

As we all know, law enforcement agencies across the U.S. report stolen items to NCIC in an effort to recover those items and return them to their rightful owner. Most agencies follow the NCIC Operating Manual criteria for entry into NCIC which states in part, "records for stolen articles can be entered in the Article File if a theft report has been made, . . . (and), a record for any item in the theft report which is valued at $500 or more and has a unique manufacturer assigned serial number. . . , may be entered." Unfortunately, some law enforcement personnel have interpreted this guideline as prohibiting the use of NCIC to report stolen cell phones valued under $500. In our experience throughout the U.S., many agencies are entering all stolen devices (regardless of the value) into NCIC following the NCIC Operating Manual criteria which states in part, "Office equipment, . . . , may be entered regardless of value." The NCIC Operating Manual also permits the entry of any item, regardless of value, having a unique manufacturer assigned serial number if the circumstances of the theft indicate that there is a probability of interstate movement, or the seriousness of the crime dictates that an entry should be made for investigative purposes.

WHY REPORT ALL STOLEN DEVICES TO NCIC?

ecoATM promptly reports 100 percent of their transactions to law enforcement in any manner they request. Many of the third-party electronic reporting systems used by ecoATM screen the device IMEIs and serial numbers in NCIC and notify the Originating Agency which allows law enforcement to notify ecoATM, who in turn immediately returns the device and provides a detailed transaction report on the individual who sold the device – all at no cost to law enforcement and without any need for a subpoena or search warrant.

WHY REPORT ALL STOLEN DEVICES TO NCIC?

ecoATM also encourages law enforcement when entering the stolen item into NCIC, that they enter "IN" in the "OPT" field. (See 1.6 Message Field Codes and Edits, NCIC Operating Manual.)

REMEMBER TO "OPT" IN!

ecoATM also encourages law enforcement when entering the stolen item into NCIC, that they enter "IN" in the "OPT" field. (See 1.6 Message Field Codes and Edits, NCIC Operating Manual.)

Excerpt from NCIC Operating Manual, 2.5 Message Field Edits for Single Article Entry

ecoATM screens devices at the point of sale via a paid subscription service called Checkmend.com. In addition to checking the wireless carrier's lost or stolen database, Checkmend.com also checks if a device is reported stolen in NCIC, but only if the Originating Agency "opted in" to sharing the record with the public. If the ecoATM kiosk is alerted of a Checkmend.com "hit," the transaction is rejected. We encourage you to "OPT IN" to assist us in deterring criminals from profiting from the sale of a stolen device.

28 Million Devices Collected with ecoATM!

We're celebrating a major milestone here at ecoATM – one that's been over ten years in the making, and we couldn't have reached it without the millions of smart consumers just like you! As of April 2020, we have officially collected over 28 million devices at our kiosks. That's over 28 million used, broken or damaged smartphones, MP3 players and tablets that have been either properly recycled or given a chance at a second life. What exactly does this number breakdown to, you may ask? Let's dive into some estimates based on the Environmental Protection Agency assessment tool to paint a picture of how much this really is.

What 28 Million Devices Looks Like

When a device is collected at a kiosk, it is deferred from becoming a piece of electronic waste that could end up back in our natural environment. The other devices that aren't so lucky, such as the ones remaining in your drawers at home, or those or thrown into the trash, could become e-waste. This e-waste not only remains in landfills for many years, but also contains harsh chemicals that can have hazardous effects on our community's health.

Here are example estimates of what purchasing, recycling and reusing 28 million devices looks like using the EPA calculator tool*:

- 28 million devices are roughly 7 million pounds of e-waste
- This is equivalent to the reduced electricity to power an estimate of 55,468 households for one year
- This same amount is equivalent to an estimate 12,236 tons of greenhouse gas emissions reduced

Where Do the Devices Collected at an ecoATM Kiosk Go?

- Once a device is collected at an ecoATM kiosk, it begins its journey to one of two options. We either give the devices collected an opportunity for a new life or ensures the devices are properly recycled and materials reclaimed.

How to Join the Fight Against E-Waste with ecoATM Kiosks

With 53.6 million tons of e-waste discarded globally in 2019 alone and only about 17.4% of it recycled, it's more important than ever to take electronic recycling seriously. Our kiosks are an excellent, simple first step towards helping consumers to limiting e-waste. The kiosks are conveniently located in over 4,500 malls, grocers and retailers throughout the US. We accept all devices for either proper recycling or reuse. All you need to do is grab a valid state ID or driver's license and your used devices and head to your local ecoATM kiosk.

We couldn't have reached this milestone without your help. We thank all our partners and smart consumers for helping to fight for a future filled with less electronic waste and more sustainability!

Contact ecoATM early in an investigation

When a consumer uses an ecoATM kiosk but does not complete a transaction our network may have some limited information on the attempt. It is very important to contact ecoATM as early as possible in an investigation, as that information, if it was available is purged soon after the attempted transaction.

We hold all devices for a minimum of thirty (30) days, (longer if required by state or local laws and/or regulations). It is important to contact ecoATM within those thirty days, so we may send you any devices you may need as part of your investigation.

Our completed transaction reports in electronic form are maintained for three (3) years in compliance with ISO27001.

ecoATM is certified under the ISO 27001 standard for our information security management system (ISMS). An ISMS is a framework of policies and procedures that includes all legal, physical, and technical controls involved in securing company information. This helps ensure that ecoATM protects consumer data, employee information, financial accounting, third party information, and intellectual property across all systems and networks.

International Mobile Equipment Identity (IMEI):

An IMEI is a unique global identifier for a mobile device. No two devices will have the same IMEI which makes it a very useful tool for tracking lost or stolen cell phones. The Global System for Mobile Communications Association (GSMA) is the single worldwide authority for the issuance of IMEIs to mobile device manufacturers.

The IMEI is comprised of 14 digits (15 digits if the check digit is included) and uniquely identifies the device.

ecoATM and Assistance to Law Enforcement Highlighted Testimonials

“It was a murder case in which the Defendant had sold a cellphone to an ecoATM with evidence of the murder on the phone. EcoATM helped law enforcement retrieve the phone from the kiosk.” “He (DLER Michael McCann) did an excellent job explaining the process for the jury.”

Quote: “We prosecuted a murder case in which a large portion of the evidence in the case came from a cellphone that was sold by the Defendant to an ecoATM kiosk. EcoATM assisted law enforcement in obtaining the phone as well as coming to trial and explaining the process to the Jury. EcoATM's cooperation was vital to the conviction for Murder.” A Terre Haute man faces up to 91 years in prison. . . https://www.tribstar.com/news/local_news/terre-haute-man-convicted-in-greencastle-slaying/article_20b9b0c8-3aa6-5972-b6ae-1896674799a7.html

The IACP/ecoATM Leadership in Crime Prevention Award recognizes innovative, data-driven, low-cost and high-impact crime prevention programs.

Denver Police Department 2021 Award Winner

The Denver Police Department, in collaboration with the Mental Health Center of Denver and the Denver Crime Prevention and Control Commission, partnered to launch an ambitious co-responder pilot program. The co-responder program pairs licensed professional behavioral health clinicians with police officers to respond to calls involving people experiencing behavioral health issues and/or co-occurring substance use issues. A co-responder team is dispatched when weapons, threats, or safety issues are involved so that an officer is present to help address any safety issues. These programs are part of a comprehensive approach to increasing safety in the community, addressing individual and community needs with immediate action and long-term support to promote stabilization, access to resources, and strategic utilization of resources through cross-system and cross-discipline public, private, and community coordination and collaboration to ensure flexibility, and the right response in the place, at the right time.

“ecoATM is proud to sponsor the International Association of Chiefs of Police/ecoATM Leadership in Crime Prevention Award which recognizes innovative crime prevention programs throughout the world. Crime prevention has been part of ecoATM’s DNA since 2009. With over 4,400 kiosks, we are the global leader in handheld electronic device recycling. ecoATM’s automated handheld electronic device recycling kiosks are engineered and designed to use sophisticated technology and processes to capture and provide detailed information about each sale to law enforcement and detect and deter a criminal’s ability to profit from their crimes.”

Chief (ret.) Jim Smith, Director of Law Enforcement Relations

ecoATM US and International Expansion

In January of 2022, ecoATM will now be operational in all 50 States. In addition to our United States expansion, ecoATM currently operates in the United Kingdom, Germany, France and the Netherlands. We continue to identify additional markets to combat the global e-waste problem.

ecoATM encourages law enforcement to report all stolen devices to the FBI's NCIC Article File [NCIC]

As we all know, law enforcement agencies across the U.S. report stolen items to NCIC in an effort to recover those items and return them to their rightful owner. Most agencies follow the NCIC Operating Manual criteria for entry into NCIC which states in part, "records for stolen articles can be entered in the Article File if a theft report has been made, . . . (and), a record for any item in the theft report which is valued at $500 or more and has a unique manufacturer assigned serial number. . . , may be entered." Unfortunately, some law enforcement personnel have interpreted this guideline as prohibiting the use of NCIC to report stolen cell phones valued under $500. In our experience throughout the U.S., many agencies are entering all stolen devices (regardless of the value) into NCIC following the NCIC Operating Manual criteria which states in part, "Office equipment, . . . , may be entered regardless of value." The NCIC Operating Manual also permits the entry of any item, regardless of value, having a unique manufacturer assigned serial number if the circumstances of the theft indicate that there is a probability of interstate movement, or the seriousness of the crime dictates that an entry should be made for investigative purposes.

WHY REPORT ALL STOLEN DEVICES TO NCIC?

ecoATM promptly reports 100 percent of their transactions to law enforcement in any manner they request. Many of the third-party electronic reporting systems used by ecoATM screen the device IMEIs and serial numbers in NCIC and notify the Originating Agency which allows law enforcement to notify ecoATM, who in turn immediately returns the device and provides a detailed transaction report on the individual who sold the device – all at no cost to law enforcement and without any need for a subpoena or search warrant.

WHY REPORT ALL STOLEN DEVICES TO NCIC?

ecoATM also encourages law enforcement when entering the stolen item into NCIC, that they enter "IN" in the "OPT" field. (See 1.6 Message Field Codes and Edits, NCIC Operating Manual.)

REMEMBER TO "OPT" IN!

ecoATM also encourages law enforcement when entering the stolen item into NCIC, that they enter "IN" in the "OPT" field. (See 1.6 Message Field Codes and Edits, NCIC Operating Manual.)

Excerpt from NCIC Operating Manual, 2.5 Message Field Edits for Single Article Entry

ecoATM screens devices at the point of sale via a paid subscription service called Checkmend.com. In addition to checking the wireless carrier's lost or stolen database, Checkmend.com also checks if a device is reported stolen in NCIC, but only if the Originating Agency "opted in" to sharing the record with the public. If the ecoATM kiosk is alerted of a Checkmend.com "hit," the transaction is rejected. We encourage you to "OPT IN" to assist us in deterring criminals from profiting from the sale of a stolen device.

28 Million Devices Collected with ecoATM!

We're celebrating a major milestone here at ecoATM – one that's been over ten years in the making, and we couldn't have reached it without the millions of smart consumers just like you! As of April 2020, we have officially collected over 28 million devices at our kiosks. That's over 28 million used, broken or damaged smartphones, MP3 players and tablets that have been either properly recycled or given a chance at a second life. What exactly does this number breakdown to, you may ask? Let's dive into some estimates based on the Environmental Protection Agency assessment tool to paint a picture of how much this really is.

What 28 Million Devices Looks Like

When a device is collected at a kiosk, it is deferred from becoming a piece of electronic waste that could end up back in our natural environment. The other devices that aren't so lucky, such as the ones remaining in your drawers at home, or those or thrown into the trash, could become e-waste. This e-waste not only remains in landfills for many years, but also contains harsh chemicals that can have hazardous effects on our community's health.

Here are example estimates of what purchasing, recycling and reusing 28 million devices looks like using the EPA calculator tool*:

- 28 million devices are roughly 7 million pounds of e-waste
- This is equivalent to the reduced electricity to power an estimate of 55,468 households for one year
- This same amount is equivalent to an estimate 12,236 tons of greenhouse gas emissions reduced

Where Do the Devices Collected at an ecoATM Kiosk Go?

- Once a device is collected at an ecoATM kiosk, it begins its journey to one of two options. We either give the devices collected an opportunity for a new life or ensures the devices are properly recycled and materials reclaimed.

How to Join the Fight Against E-Waste with ecoATM Kiosks

With 53.6 million tons of e-waste discarded globally in 2019 alone and only about 17.4% of it recycled, it's more important than ever to take electronic recycling seriously. Our kiosks are an excellent, simple first step towards helping consumers to limiting e-waste. The kiosks are conveniently located in over 4,500 malls, grocers and retailers throughout the US. We accept all devices for either proper recycling or reuse. All you need to do is grab a valid state ID or driver's license and your used devices and head to your local ecoATM kiosk.

We couldn't have reached this milestone without your help. We thank all our partners and smart consumers for helping to fight for a future filled with less electronic waste and more sustainability!

Contact ecoATM early in an investigation

When a consumer uses an ecoATM kiosk but does not complete a transaction our network may have some limited information on the attempt. It is very important to contact ecoATM as early as possible in an investigation, as that information, if it was available is purged soon after the attempted transaction.

We hold all devices for a minimum of thirty (30) days, (longer if required by state or local laws and/or regulations). It is important to contact ecoATM within those thirty days, so we may send you any devices you may need as part of your investigation.

Our completed transaction reports in electronic form are maintained for three (3) years in compliance with ISO27001.

ecoATM is certified under the ISO 27001 standard for our information security management system (ISMS). An ISMS is a framework of policies and procedures that includes all legal, physical, and technical controls involved in securing company information. This helps ensure that ecoATM protects consumer data, employee information, financial accounting, third party information, and intellectual property across all systems and networks.

International Mobile Equipment Identity (IMEI):

An IMEI is a unique global identifier for a mobile device. No two devices will have the same IMEI which makes it a very useful tool for tracking lost or stolen cell phones. The Global System for Mobile Communications Association (GSMA) is the single worldwide authority for the issuance of IMEIs to mobile device manufacturers.

The IMEI is comprised of 14 digits (15 digits if the check digit is included) and uniquely identifies the device.

TSA Detected All-Time High Number Of Guns At Airport Checkpoints In 2021

Reuters (12/13, Shepardson) reports that the TSA “said Monday that security personnel had confiscated more than 5,700 firearms at airport security checkpoints in 2021, the highest ever in a single year.” TSA Administrator David Pekoske “told reporters at a briefing the prior yearly record was about 4,400 in 2019 and the current rate of gun detections in carry-on luggage at checkpoints per million passengers is twice the prior high. He said he thinks the increase reflects an increase in firearms being carried by Americans.” Reuters notes that “airline passengers can transport an unloaded firearm on an airplane but only in checked baggage. ‘It’s a pretty costly mistake to make,’ Pekoske said, saying TSA will ‘always proceed with a civil penalty action that will cost thousands of dollars after we complete an investigation.’”

Tennessee Officers Train To Respond To Mental Health Crises

The Tennessean (12/14, Villena) reports, “Williamson County law enforcement agencies are offering new training to better respond to calls involving mental health crises. Officers from six agencies graduated from the county’s first Crisis Intervention Team training, a program intended to improve connections between citizens in crisis, law enforcement agencies and mental health services. ‘When you’re dealing with a person in crisis, it’s not your typical police call,’ said Williamson County Sheriff’s Office Lt. Chris Mobley, who helped organize the training. ‘But the goal is still going to be the same, and that’s to improve the safety for our officers and the safety for the individual that’s going through the crisis and improve the safety for the public that’s around them.’”

Australian Police Retirees Rejoin Reserve Ranks

The PS News (AUS) (12/13) reports, “Former members of the Australian Federal Police (AFP) have rejoined as Reserves to help provide operational support during the pandemic and Operation

Ironside, the biggest organised crime operation in the AFP's history. AFP Reserve Inspector Jo Brown said that since the Reserve program's launch in April last year reserves had undertaken duties such as supporting national and ACT investigations; assisting with selection, training of and planning for police and Protection Services Officers recruits; intelligence support; emergency management and major events planning; and governance, policy and project work. 'The Reserves program has brought former members with significant knowledge and experience back into the workforce to help support and deliver key organisational priorities,' Inspector Brown said. 'We currently have more than 70 Reserves in the AFP Reserve pool, with 29 currently placed across various Commands within the AFP,' she said."

Under New Worcester, Massachusetts Safety Plan, Police Liaison Officers Would Not Be Present In Schools

The Worcester (MA) Telegram & Gazette (12/13, Chamer) reports, "A new school safety plan has been proposed by a city school safety task force that would include liaison officers who would not be present in the public schools." The Telegram & Gazette adds, "Like school resources officers (SROs), school liaison officers (SLOs) will be Worcester police officers. However, unlike SROs, who were stationed full-time inside of a school building, six SLOs will be assigned to four quadrants where they will be present for arrivals, dismissals and available to respond to calls from schools in their assigned area, Mayor Joseph M. Petty said. 'A lot of research went into this and the data from national level and the state level, and it became clear that this is something that can work,' Petty said."

Minneapolis, Minnesota Begins Mental Health Responders Pilot Program

The AP (12/13) reports from Minneapolis, Minnesota, "Minneapolis began a pilot program on Monday that would send unarmed mental health professionals to residents who call 911 about behavioral or mental-health related crises." According to the AP, "The behavioral crisis response teams – which aim to provide counseling, crisis intervention and connection to support services – will be staffed by professionals from Canopy Mental Health & Consulting." The teams "are funded by money originally allocated to the Minneapolis Police Department, which was diverted by the City Council's 2020 Safety for All plan to fund alternative public safety programs. The teams won't respond to incidents concerning firearms or other violent behavior, and 911 dispatchers will determine which incidents would require the unarmed teams, authorities said. Police officers will only be involved if the teams request their support or the dispatcher determines a scene needs to be cleared."

New Squads Mixing Police, Community Workers To Serve Four Quebec Towns

CFCF-TV Montreal, CAN (12/13) reports from Gatineau, Quebec, "Four new intervention teams, made up of a mix of police officers and community workers, will be set up in Quebec to work with Indigenous people and non-Indigenous people struggling with certain social problems. These teams will first hit the ground in Roberval, Chibougamau, Joliette and Maniwaki, municipalities served by the Sûreté du Québec provincial police." According to CFCF-TV, "The Legault government plans to invest nearly $11.7 million over four years in the project. Quebec Minister of Public Security Geneviève Guilbault and the Minister responsible for Indigenous Affairs, Ian

Lafrenière, made the announcement Monday in Gatineau. 'We are going to have police officers from the Sûreté du Québec who will work jointly with community workers who will be associated either with Native Friendship Centres, [regional health authorities] or who will also come from Indigenous police forces,' Guilbault explained."

St. Louis Mayor Signs Bill That Eases City's Marijuana Enforcement Policy

The AP (12/13) reports St. Louis Mayor Tishaura Jones has approved repealing "ordinances that make it illegal to possess small amounts of marijuana" in that Missouri city. A bill that Jones signed on Monday also "bars police from enforcing state and federal laws against possession of small amounts or of marijuana paraphernalia, with certain exceptions." In explaining why she decided to sign the bill, Jones "said nearly 600 people have been arrested in St. Louis on marijuana charges in the past three years, and nearly 500 of them were Black."

Judge Refuses To Move Accused Michigan School Shooter From Adult Jail

Reuters (12/13, Goldberg) reports Ethan Crumbley, "the Michigan teenager charged in the deadliest U.S. school shooting of 2021," on Monday "calmly answered questions via video link...during a hearing in which his lawyers unsuccessfully pleaded with the judge to move him from a facility where he is being jailed with adults."

Free Test Strip Kits Part Of Effort To Prevent Fentanyl Overdoses In Chicago

The Chicago Tribune (12/13, Yin) reports a free fentanyl test strip kit "is one of the latest tools Chicago officials and social service organizations are using against the deadly opioid that has infiltrated the city's illicit drug supply and is responsible for most of its fatal overdoses in recent years." The Chicago Department of Public Health's Dr. Wilnise Jasmin "said the names of individuals requesting a kit are protected and the city does not track who requests them."

Depression A Recurrent Theme In Interviews About Pandemic

In front-page coverage, the New York Times (12/13, A1, Cohen) reports, "After two years of zigzagging policy and roller coaster emotions, terrible loss and tantalizing false dawns, closing borders and intermittently shuttered schools, people's resilience has dwindled" as the COVID-19 pandemic continues to take its toll on the US and other countries. The Times adds, "This sense of endlessness, accompanied by growing psychological distress leading to depression, was a recurrent theme in two dozen interviews conducted in...the Americas,” Africa, Europe and Asia. The Times highlights that US Surgeon General Vivek Murthy recently warned that the pandemic and other challenges have had a “devastating” impact on the mental health of young people in the US.

Biden Worried About Mental Health Of Those Affected By Tornadoes

The AP (12/13, Miller, Boak) reports that while speaking about the impact of recent tornadoes in Kentucky and several other states, President Biden “said he was worried, beyond the lives lost, about the emotional toll the disaster is putting on all those impacted.” On Monday, Biden stated, “I worry quite frankly about the mental health of these people.”

TSA Detected All-Time High Number Of Guns At Airport Checkpoints In 2021

Reuters (12/13, Shepardson) reports that the TSA “said Monday that security personnel had confiscated more than 5,700 firearms at airport security checkpoints in 2021, the highest ever in a single year.” TSA Administrator David Pekoske “told reporters at a briefing the prior yearly record was about 4,400 in 2019 and the current rate of gun detections in carry-on luggage at checkpoints per million passengers is twice the prior high. He said he thinks the increase reflects an increase in firearms being carried by Americans.” Reuters notes that “airline passengers can transport an unloaded firearm on an airplane but only in checked baggage. ‘It’s a pretty costly mistake to make,’ Pekoske said, saying TSA will ‘always proceed with a civil penalty action that will cost thousands of dollars after we complete an investigation.’”

Tennessee Officers Train To Respond To Mental Health Crises

The Tennessean (12/14, Villena) reports, “Williamson County law enforcement agencies are offering new training to better respond to calls involving mental health crises. Officers from six agencies graduated from the county’s first Crisis Intervention Team training, a program intended to improve connections between citizens in crisis, law enforcement agencies and mental health services. ‘When you’re dealing with a person in crisis, it’s not your typical police call,’ said Williamson County Sheriff’s Office Lt. Chris Mobley, who helped organize the training. ‘But the goal is still going to be the same, and that’s to improve the safety for our officers and the safety for the individual that’s going through the crisis and improve the safety for the public that’s around them.’”

Australian Police Retirees Rejoin Reserve Ranks

The PS News (AUS) (12/13) reports, “Former members of the Australian Federal Police (AFP) have rejoined as Reserves to help provide operational support during the pandemic and Operation

Ironside, the biggest organised crime operation in the AFP's history. AFP Reserve Inspector Jo Brown said that since the Reserve program's launch in April last year reserves had undertaken duties such as supporting national and ACT investigations; assisting with selection, training of and planning for police and Protection Services Officers recruits; intelligence support; emergency management and major events planning; and governance, policy and project work. 'The Reserves program has brought former members with significant knowledge and experience back into the workforce to help support and deliver key organisational priorities,' Inspector Brown said. 'We currently have more than 70 Reserves in the AFP Reserve pool, with 29 currently placed across various Commands within the AFP,' she said."

Under New Worcester, Massachusetts Safety Plan, Police Liaison Officers Would Not Be Present In Schools

The Worcester (MA) Telegram & Gazette (12/13, Chamer) reports, "A new school safety plan has been proposed by a city school safety task force that would include liaison officers who would not be present in the public schools." The Telegram & Gazette adds, "Like school resources officers (SROs), school liaison officers (SLOs) will be Worcester police officers. However, unlike SROs, who were stationed full-time inside of a school building, six SLOs will be assigned to four quadrants where they will be present for arrivals, dismissals and available to respond to calls from schools in their assigned area, Mayor Joseph M. Petty said. 'A lot of research went into this and the data from national level and the state level, and it became clear that this is something that can work,' Petty said."

Minneapolis, Minnesota Begins Mental Health Responders Pilot Program

The AP (12/13) reports from Minneapolis, Minnesota, "Minneapolis began a pilot program on Monday that would send unarmed mental health professionals to residents who call 911 about behavioral or mental-health related crises." According to the AP, "The behavioral crisis response teams – which aim to provide counseling, crisis intervention and connection to support services – will be staffed by professionals from Canopy Mental Health & Consulting." The teams "are funded by money originally allocated to the Minneapolis Police Department, which was diverted by the City Council's 2020 Safety for All plan to fund alternative public safety programs. The teams won't respond to incidents concerning firearms or other violent behavior, and 911 dispatchers will determine which incidents would require the unarmed teams, authorities said. Police officers will only be involved if the teams request their support or the dispatcher determines a scene needs to be cleared."

New Squads Mixing Police, Community Workers To Serve Four Quebec Towns

CFCF-TV Montreal, CAN (12/13) reports from Gatineau, Quebec, "Four new intervention teams, made up of a mix of police officers and community workers, will be set up in Quebec to work with Indigenous people and non-Indigenous people struggling with certain social problems. These teams will first hit the ground in Roberval, Chibougamau, Joliette and Maniwaki, municipalities served by the Sûreté du Québec provincial police." According to CFCF-TV, "The Legault government plans to invest nearly $11.7 million over four years in the project. Quebec Minister of Public Security Geneviève Guilbault and the Minister responsible for Indigenous Affairs, Ian

Lafrenière, made the announcement Monday in Gatineau. 'We are going to have police officers from the Sûreté du Québec who will work jointly with community workers who will be associated either with Native Friendship Centres, [regional health authorities] or who will also come from Indigenous police forces,' Guilbault explained."

St. Louis Mayor Signs Bill That Eases City's Marijuana Enforcement Policy

The AP (12/13) reports St. Louis Mayor Tishaura Jones has approved repealing "ordinances that make it illegal to possess small amounts of marijuana" in that Missouri city. A bill that Jones signed on Monday also "bars police from enforcing state and federal laws against possession of small amounts or of marijuana paraphernalia, with certain exceptions." In explaining why she decided to sign the bill, Jones "said nearly 600 people have been arrested in St. Louis on marijuana charges in the past three years, and nearly 500 of them were Black."

Safer Roads, Stronger Communities: How Traffic Safety Saves Lives and Actually Improves Them is a resource designed to assist law enforcement officials address traffic-related issues in the communities they serve. Providing an overview of initiatives being used by agencies and departments, the resource emphasizes the importance of viewing traffic safety as a critical role in law enforcement and as an opportunity to strengthen community engagement. This can produce many benefits, such as improving community trust and saving lives by making roads safer.

Judge Refuses To Move Accused Michigan School Shooter From Adult Jail

Reuters (12/13, Goldberg) reports Ethan Crumbley, "the Michigan teenager charged in the deadliest U.S. school shooting of 2021," on Monday "calmly answered questions via video link...during a hearing in which his lawyers unsuccessfully pleaded with the judge to move him from a facility where he is being jailed with adults."

Free Test Strip Kits Part Of Effort To Prevent Fentanyl Overdoses In Chicago

The Chicago Tribune (12/13, Yin) reports a free fentanyl test strip kit "is one of the latest tools Chicago officials and social service organizations are using against the deadly opioid that has infiltrated the city's illicit drug supply and is responsible for most of its fatal overdoses in recent years." The Chicago Department of Public Health's Dr. Wilnise Jasmin "said the names of individuals requesting a kit are protected and the city does not track who requests them."

Depression A Recurrent Theme In Interviews About Pandemic

In front-page coverage, the New York Times (12/13, A1, Cohen) reports, "After two years of zigzagging policy and roller coaster emotions, terrible loss and tantalizing false dawns, closing borders and intermittently shuttered schools, people's resilience has dwindled" as the COVID-19 pandemic continues to take its toll on the US and other countries. The Times adds, "This sense of endlessness, accompanied by growing psychological distress leading to depression, was a recurrent theme in two dozen interviews conducted in...the Americas,” Africa, Europe and Asia. The Times highlights that US Surgeon General Vivek Murthy recently warned that the pandemic and other challenges have had a “devastating” impact on the mental health of young people in the US.

Biden Worried About Mental Health Of Those Affected By Tornadoes

The AP (12/13, Miller, Boak) reports that while speaking about the impact of recent tornadoes in Kentucky and several other states, President Biden “said he was worried, beyond the lives lost, about the emotional toll the disaster is putting on all those impacted.” On Monday, Biden stated, “I worry quite frankly about the mental health of these people.”

Subject: [ilist] Matteson PD Mock Request

Good Afternoon,

Sergeant Jeremy Sims of Matteson PD is requesting fellow I-PACers to conduct a mock assessment for the City of Matteson Police Department. They are an ILEAP town.

The assessment will be done in person on January 21, 2022. This is to prepare for their ILEAP assessment that is coming up.

We all know how beneficial mock assessments are, not only for the department we are working with but for newer accreditation managers and even the veterans. There is always that one proof we look at and say, "oh I could use that too."

Please let me know if you can assist. I am looking for at least 3 ILEAP mock assessors to assist.

Thanks, have a great day and be safe!

New Hampshire Supreme Court Rules Police Can Keep Details About Covert Equipment Secret

The AP (12/11) reports from Concord, New Hampshire, “The New Hampshire Supreme Court has ruled that the Concord Police Department does not have to divulge information about its ‘covert communications equipment.’” The American Civil Liberties Union of New Hampshire and the Concord Monitor “filed the lawsuit after receiving the redacted license agreement through a public records request,” but “a divided court upheld most of the city’s redactions to the license agreement with the unnamed vendor this week because revealing more ‘could reasonably be expected to risk circumvention of the law by allowing individuals to learn about the surveillance technology and take evasive measures against it.’” Concord City Manager Tom Aspell “said the city is pleased with the decision because it upholds and preserves the law enforcement exemption under New Hampshire’s right to know law.”

Proposed DC Legislation On Juvenile Offenders Draws Police Pushback

The Washington Post (12/11) reports the DC Council “is considering legislation that would change the way police can investigate young people suspected of committing crimes, including banning consent searches of those under 18 and requiring an attorney be present for interrogations of youths that may later be used in court.” The Post adds that proponents of Youth Rights Amendment Act of 2021 argue “juveniles should not be treated in the same ways as adults because young people may not fully understand their rights and the potential implications of their situation.” However, the proposed legislation has drawn “pushback from D.C. police, who say it would limit their ability to fight a rise in violent crime.”

Coalition Proposes Drugs Decriminalization Framework For Canada

The Canadian Press (12/10, Ibrahim) reports a coalition that “includes human rights organizations, front-line service providers and researchers” has released a drugs decriminalization framework for Canada. That “framework calls for funds that would flow to police to be invested instead in community-based organizations, services that promote harm reduction and address mental health issues, safe supply programs, and other forms of healing.”

In Light Of “Smash-And-Grab Robberies,” Retailers Want Congress To Make It More Difficult For Individuals To Stay Anonymous When Selling Goods Online

The Washington Post (12/10) reports that a number of the country’s biggest “retailers are urging Congress to help combat a wave of smash-and-grab robberies by cutting off the resale pipeline for stolen goods, which they say is enabled by online marketplaces that don’t do enough to verify the identity of sellers.” The Post also says, “In a letter signed by the chief executives of 20 retailers – including Best Buy, Target, Nordstrom, Home Depot and Dollar General – House and Senate leaders were urged to pass legislation that would make it harder for people to remain anonymous when they sell things online.” The Retail Industry Leaders Association was “responsible for the letter.”

Despite Rise In “Smash-And-Grab” Robberies, Some Major Cities Saw Robberies Drop In 2021. Newsweek (12/10, Roos) reports, “Some of the US cities that have been impacted by the recent spike in smash-and-grab retail robberies have reported an overall decline in robberies citywide compared with those reported last year.” According to Newsweek, “The retail theft surge has shaken store owners across the country as security footage shared by police showed groups of thieves entering department stores and boutiques alike to steal products. While these kinds of incidents have been reported in several US cities, the problem has been particularly prevalent in California’s Los Angeles and Bay Area communities. In one case, about 80 people were estimated to have targeted a Nordstrom store in what police said was ‘clearly a planned event’ in the Walnut Creek area.”

California Governor Pledges To Empower Citizens To Enforce Assault Weapons Ban

The AP (12/12, Beam) reports California Gov. Gavin Newsom (D) on Saturday “pledged to empower private citizens to enforce a ban on the manufacture and sale of assault weapons in the state, citing the same authority claimed by conservative lawmakers in Texas to outlaw most abortions once a heartbeat is detected.” The AP says that while California’s ban has been in effect “for decades,” a federal judge “overturned that ban in June, ruling it was unconstitutional,” though it has “remained in place while the state appealed.” According to the AP, “Newsom’s Saturday night declaration is a fulfilled prophecy for some gun rights groups who had predicted progressive states would attempt to use Texas’ abortion law to restrict access to guns.” Reuters (12/12, Shibu) also covers this story.

High Number Of Louisiana Traffic Deaths During Thanksgiving Weekend

The AP (12/10) reports from Baton Rouge, “Thanksgiving weekend was Louisiana’s deadliest for traffic crashes in seven years.” The state Department of Transportation and Development “said Thursday that a total of 15 crashes and 20 fatalities were reported between Nov. 24-29. ‘This is not an urban problem; it is not a rural problem,’ said Shawn Wilson, transportation secretary. ‘It is a driver problem throughout the state of Louisiana.’” The AP adds, “Lisa Freeman, executive director of the Louisiana Highway Safety Commission, said theories for the high number of traffic deaths include road rage, motorists using the roadways to blow off steam and good drivers avoiding the roads.” According to the AP, “Roadway fatalities statewide already had exceeded the total for 2020, with 828 deadly traffic accidents last year and 896 so far this year. And the 2020 number of traffic deaths was the highest number since 2008, according to the safety commission.”

Gun Control Advocates “Disappointed” In “Lack Of Reaction” Following Michigan Shooting

McClatchy (12/10, Roarty, Wollner) reports gun control advocates are “disappointed in the reaction – or lack of reaction – in Washington following last week’s mass shooting at a Michigan high school that left four dead.” McClatchy says that in interviews, “lawmakers, activists and former elected officials expressed a deep disappointment – bordering at times on outright anger – with what they regard as Washington’s collective shrug to the latest in a string of school shootings that have occurred in the past decade.”

San Franciscans “Losing Patience” With Rising Crime

The AP (12/11, Rodriguez, Har) says San Franciscans “wake up to news of attacks on Asian American seniors, burglarized restaurants, and boarded-up storefronts in the city’s once-vibrant downtown,” with the AP adding that there are indications that the city renowned for its open-mindedness “is losing patience.” One resident is quoted as having said, “There’s a widespread sense that things are on the wrong track in San Francisco.” The AP goes on to say, “In a sign of civic frustration, San Franciscans will vote in June on whether to recall District Attorney Chesa Boudin, a former public defender elected in 2019 whose critics say he’s too lenient on crime.”

NYPD: Anti-Asian Hate Crimes Rose 361% This Year

Axios (12/10, Chen) reports the New York Police Department this week announced “anti-Asian hate crimes increased by 361% this year,” while New York City “saw a 100% overall increase in hate crimes this year.” Axios says that “the surge...is part of a nationwide spike in anti-Asian hate over the last two years.”

New Orleans Homicides Hit 14-Year High

On its website, Fox News (12/11, Morris) reports, “A man was fatally shot on Friday in New Orleans, marking the city’s 201st homicide of the year, a 14-year high in the total number of homicides in Louisiana's most populous city." Fox adds NOLA.com indicates that the shooting occurred in proximity to the Pontchartrain Hotel and constituted the day's second homicide.

Twitter's Audio Chats Exploited By Racists, Taliban

In a more than 2,300-word article, the Washington Post (12/10) reports that when Twitter "earlier this year...raced to roll out Spaces, its new live audio chat feature, some employees asked how the company planned to make sure the service didn't become a platform for hate speech, bullying and calls to violence," but "there was no plan." Six months later, "Taliban supporters, white nationalists, and anti-vaccine activists sowing coronavirus misinformation have hosted live audio broadcasts on Spaces that hundreds of people have tuned in to, according to researchers, users and screenshots viewed by The Washington Post. Other Spaces conversations have disparaged transgender people and Black Americans." The Post describes the Spaces controversy as "a sign of how ongoing turmoil at Twitter is causing it to overlook hate, polarization, and extremism – and to repeat the mistakes that have long plagued Silicon Valley companies."

New Hampshire Supreme Court Rules Police Can Keep Details About Covert Equipment Secret

The AP (12/11) reports from Concord, New Hampshire, “The New Hampshire Supreme Court has ruled that the Concord Police Department does not have to divulge information about its ‘covert communications equipment.’” The American Civil Liberties Union of New Hampshire and the Concord Monitor “filed the lawsuit after receiving the redacted license agreement through a public records request,” but “a divided court upheld most of the city’s redactions to the license agreement with the unnamed vendor this week because revealing more ‘could reasonably be expected to risk circumvention of the law by allowing individuals to learn about the surveillance technology and take evasive measures against it.’” Concord City Manager Tom Aspell “said the city is pleased with the decision because it upholds and preserves the law enforcement exemption under New Hampshire’s right to know law.”

Proposed DC Legislation On Juvenile Offenders Draws Police Pushback

The Washington Post (12/11) reports the DC Council “is considering legislation that would change the way police can investigate young people suspected of committing crimes, including banning consent searches of those under 18 and requiring an attorney be present for interrogations of youths that may later be used in court.” The Post adds that proponents of Youth Rights Amendment Act of 2021 argue “juveniles should not be treated in the same ways as adults because young people may not fully understand their rights and the potential implications of their situation.” However, the proposed legislation has drawn “pushback from D.C. police, who say it would limit their ability to fight a rise in violent crime.”

Coalition Proposes Drugs Decriminalization Framework For Canada

The Canadian Press (12/10, Ibrahim) reports a coalition that “includes human rights organizations, front-line service providers and researchers” has released a drugs decriminalization framework for Canada. That “framework calls for funds that would flow to police to be invested instead in community-based organizations, services that promote harm reduction and address mental health issues, safe supply programs, and other forms of healing.”

In Light Of “Smash-And-Grab Robberies,” Retailers Want Congress To Make It More Difficult For Individuals To Stay Anonymous When Selling Goods Online

The Washington Post (12/10) reports that a number of the country’s biggest “retailers are urging Congress to help combat a wave of smash-and-grab robberies by cutting off the resale pipeline for stolen goods, which they say is enabled by online marketplaces that don’t do enough to verify the identity of sellers.” The Post also says, “In a letter signed by the chief executives of 20 retailers – including Best Buy, Target, Nordstrom, Home Depot and Dollar General – House and Senate leaders were urged to pass legislation that would make it harder for people to remain anonymous when they sell things online.” The Retail Industry Leaders Association was “responsible for the letter.”

Despite Rise In “Smash-And-Grab” Robberies, Some Major Cities Saw Robberies Drop In 2021. Newsweek (12/10, Roos) reports, “Some of the US cities that have been impacted by the recent spike in smash-and-grab retail robberies have reported an overall decline in robberies citywide compared with those reported last year.” According to Newsweek, “The retail theft surge has shaken store owners across the country as security footage shared by police showed groups of thieves entering department stores and boutiques alike to steal products. While these kinds of incidents have been reported in several US cities, the problem has been particularly prevalent in California’s Los Angeles and Bay Area communities. In one case, about 80 people were estimated to have targeted a Nordstrom store in what police said was ‘clearly a planned event’ in the Walnut Creek area.”

California Governor Pledges To Empower Citizens To Enforce Assault Weapons Ban

The AP (12/12, Beam) reports California Gov. Gavin Newsom (D) on Saturday “pledged to empower private citizens to enforce a ban on the manufacture and sale of assault weapons in the state, citing the same authority claimed by conservative lawmakers in Texas to outlaw most abortions once a heartbeat is detected.” The AP says that while California’s ban has been in effect “for decades,” a federal judge “overturned that ban in June, ruling it was unconstitutional,” though it has “remained in place while the state appealed.” According to the AP, “Newsom’s Saturday night declaration is a fulfilled prophecy for some gun rights groups who had predicted progressive states would attempt to use Texas’ abortion law to restrict access to guns.” Reuters (12/12, Shibu) also covers this story.

High Number Of Louisiana Traffic Deaths During Thanksgiving Weekend

The AP (12/10) reports from Baton Rouge, “Thanksgiving weekend was Louisiana’s deadliest for traffic crashes in seven years.” The state Department of Transportation and Development “said Thursday that a total of 15 crashes and 20 fatalities were reported between Nov. 24-29. ‘This is not an urban problem; it is not a rural problem,’ said Shawn Wilson, transportation secretary. ‘It is a driver problem throughout the state of Louisiana.’” The AP adds, “Lisa Freeman, executive director of the Louisiana Highway Safety Commission, said theories for the high number of traffic deaths include road rage, motorists using the roadways to blow off steam and good drivers avoiding the roads.” According to the AP, “Roadway fatalities statewide already had exceeded the total for 2020, with 828 deadly traffic accidents last year and 896 so far this year. And the 2020 number of traffic deaths was the highest number since 2008, according to the safety commission.”

Gun Control Advocates “Disappointed” In “Lack Of Reaction” Following Michigan Shooting

McClatchy (12/10, Roarty, Wollner) reports gun control advocates are “disappointed in the reaction – or lack of reaction – in Washington following last week’s mass shooting at a Michigan high school that left four dead.” McClatchy says that in interviews, “lawmakers, activists and former elected officials expressed a deep disappointment – bordering at times on outright anger – with what they regard as Washington’s collective shrug to the latest in a string of school shootings that have occurred in the past decade.”

Illinois' Voice of Professional Law Enforcement

Special Alert | December 10, 2021 ISP, STIC can assist with school threats

An increase in threats to schools is common following a school shooting. Many communities in Illinois have experienced increases in threats reported to school districts and several police departments have been successful in obtaining criminal charges.

Michigan authorities have reportedly received months' worth of threats in the days following the tragedy in Oxford. As you know, Illinois launched Safe2Help Illinois in 2021. This is a program to facilitate tip reporting, and the Statewide Terrorism & Intelligence Center (STIC) manages the intake and distribution portion of the program. More about the program and how it works can be learned here: <https://www.safe2helpil.com/>

Most Illinois K-12 schools are in session through next week, and the end of the semester may have an impact on those planning harm. Just this morning the Daytona, Florida, Police Department arrested a 19-year-old who was allegedly planning a Columbine-style attack on a private university. You can learn more about that plot and read the full story here: <https://www.nbcnews.com/news/us-news/students-reported-snapchat-messages-may-thwarted-shooting-florida-poli-rcna8325>

As always, the STIC and the broader Illinois State Police (ISP) are ready to help in the event your agency needs assistance. STIC can be reached at stic@illinois.gov or 877-ILL-STIC // 877-455-7842. Due to the current increases in calls, please consider e-mailing the Watch Center first, but feel free to call with urgent or time-sensitive matters.

If during this time of increased threats you should need the ISP, please see contacts for the Division of Patrol here: <https://isp.illinois.gov/Patrol/Districts> and the Division of Criminal Investigation here: <https://isp.illinois.gov/CriminalInvestigations/Zones>

Additionally, if you require federal assistance in Illinois please contact the National Threats Operation Center at 800-CALL-FBI.

Special Alert | December 10, 2021 ISP, STIC can assist with school threats

An increase in threats to schools is common following a school shooting. Many communities in Illinois have experienced increases in threats reported to school districts and several police departments have been successful in obtaining criminal charges.

Michigan authorities have reportedly received months' worth of threats in the days following the tragedy in Oxford. As you know, Illinois launched Safe2Help Illinois in 2021. This is a program to facilitate tip reporting, and the Statewide Terrorism & Intelligence Center (STIC) manages the intake and distribution portion of the program. More about the program and how it works can be learned here: <https://www.safe2helpil.com/>

Most Illinois K-12 schools are in session through next week, and the end of the semester may have an impact on those planning harm. Just this morning the Daytona, Florida, Police Department arrested a 19-year-old who was allegedly planning a Columbine-style attack on a private university. You can learn more about that plot and read the full story here: <https://www.nbcnews.com/news/us-news/students-reported-snapchat-messages-may-thwarted-shooting-florida-poli-rcna8325>

As always, the STIC and the broader Illinois State Police (ISP) are ready to help in the event your agency needs assistance. STIC can be reached at stic@illinois.gov or 877-ILL-STIC // 877-455-7842. Due to the current increases in calls, please consider e-mailing the Watch Center first, but feel free to call with urgent or time-sensitive matters.

If during this time of increased threats you should need the ISP, please see contacts for the Division of Patrol here: <https://isp.illinois.gov/Patrol/Districts> and the Division of Criminal Investigation here: <https://isp.illinois.gov/CriminalInvestigations/Zones>

Additionally, if you require federal assistance in Illinois please contact the National Threats Operation Center at 800-CALL-FBI.

I am asking for your help. This is Larry Nowak from 3SI Security, and I have worked with your agency over the years with supporting installed GPS in the banking and retail industry. I need to speak with you or a designee regarding your ESO GPS 3SI Tracker(s).

The Cellular 3G grid will be coming to its end of life in a few months. We have replaced all of our 3G ESO GPS trackers and Upgraded them to 4G/WiFi ESOpro Units and your device(s) will need to be upgraded at year's end.

Since the sunseting of the 3G network is out of our control, we are offering a discounted upgrade opportunity. The new devices available right now are the Hard Case unit or the Cash Pack and Soft Case Unit. Your current active devices can be upgraded NOW for a cost of $305 Originally, we were offering an upgrade price of $305 rather than the full price of $556 (a 46% discount).

The boss wants to make sure we get everyone upgraded as soon as possible so he has sweetened the deal for law enforcement. We can now offer the upgrade for $0.00 with the purchase of a 3-year service plan of $684. So, you get 3 years of a locked in service and a free 4G/WiFi Upgrade.

We will need as decision as soon as possible. With national supply chain issues, I want to make sure you are added to the upgrade list ASAP.

New Features:

- All 4G devices will now be able to track on motion, Geo-Fence, and Tilt (Now a standard feature).
- We have increased our GPS tracking from 8 to 12 satellites to enhance live tracking accuracy.
- Devices will use Wi-Fi Sniffing to help with tracking accuracy in areas where GPS is challenging.
- Again - Your current active devices can be upgraded NOW for a cost of $305 a 46% discount.

See Attached PDF for additional information on the 4G Upgrade.

I am also available for a meeting, to review tracker settings or to give the department refresher training and how to best deploy the trackers for investigations and armed robberies.

My signature contact information is below. Please call or email me so that we can upgrade your device.

Report: FBI's Use-Of-Force Data Collection Program In Jeopardy

The Washington Post (12/9, Jackman) reports the FBI launched a "National Use-of-Force Data Collection program in 2019," but according to a new Government Accountability Office (GAO) report, "the failure of police and federal agencies to send their data to the FBI puts the program in jeopardy of being shut down next year without ever releasing a single statistic." The program "was required to obtain data representing 60 percent of law enforcement officers, to meet a standard of quality set by the Office of Management and Budget, or else stop the effort by the end of 2022. In 2019, the data covered 44 percent of local, state, federal and tribal officers, and last year the total increased to 55 percent, according to the program's website. So far this year, the data represents 57 percent of all officers, the FBI said Wednesday."

CNN (12/9, Carrega) reports, "In order to prevent ending the FBI's data collecting program next year, the GAO provided Attorney General Merrick Garland and leaders of the Civil Rights Division, Office of Justice Programs and FBI with 11 recommendations to improve the process. Anthony Coley, the director of public affairs for the Justice Department, says they agreed with nine out of 11 recommendations. 'Including the most important' recommendation, Coley said, are for the attorney general to assign responsibility for collecting data from the law enforcement agencies, to publish the data on the use of force by law enforcement officers annually and to communicate this responsibility to the designated DOJ component." The Wall Street Journal (12/9, Gurman, Subscription Publication) also reports.

Major Retailers Call On Congress To Address Organized Shoplifting, Online Reselling

Reuters (12/9, Shepardson) reports that "the chief executives of major U.S. retailers including Target, Home Depot, Kroger, CVS Health, Autozone and Best Buy on Thursday urged Congress to take action to address the online sale of stolen, counterfeit and dangerous consumer products. The group called on Congress to crack down on anonymous online sales, citing the growing impact of organized retail crime.” In a letter, the CEOs wrote, “Criminals are capitalizing on the anonymity of the Internet and the failure of certain marketplaces to verify their sellers. This trend has made retail businesses a target for increasing theft.” Reuters notes that on Friday, the White House “said it has been in contact with federal law enforcement officials over a string of flash mob ‘smash and grab’ robberies of U.S. retail stores.”

Ottawa’s Decision To Reroute Police Funds Seen As Step Toward New Community Safety Model

The Ottawa (CAN) Citizen (12/9) reports, “Ottawa’s network of community health and resource centres on Thursday greeted the decision by city council to divert some funding from the police towards mental health services and other crime prevention initiatives as a ‘first- step’ towards re-thinking community safety. ‘It’s a signal that the conversation is shifting around how we look at supporting community safety and well-being,’ said Anita James, executive director of the Nepean, Rideau and Osgoode community resource centre, who spoke on behalf of the Coalition of Community Health and Resource Centres of Ottawa.” The Citizen adds, “The new investment, which city council approved on Wednesday following a lengthy discussion on the police budget, includes $2.1 million to support youth programs for racialized youth, community-based 24/7 mental health services and improving access to culturally specific Indigenous supports.”

Durham, North Carolina Top Brass, Detectives To Hit The Streets Amid Officer Shortage

The Raleigh (NC) News & Observer (12/9, Shen-Berro, Blackwell) reports, “Durham’s new police chief, high-ranking officers and detectives will join patrols next month to cope with a vacancy rate” that is “nearly twice what it was a year ago. The ‘very temporary’ program will require four days of patrols over a three-month period, Police Chief Patrice Andrews told the City Council on Thursday. It will not affect ‘the tasks that they have to do in their day-to-day work,’ she said.” Maria Haberfeld, who chairs “the Law and Police Sciences Department at the John Jay College of Criminal Justice, told The News & Observer that police departments are often even shorter staffed than vacancy numbers indicate” because those numbers do not include “police officers who are on vacation, or sick leave, or testifying in court or in training.”

Smollett Found Guilty In Trial Over Hate Crime Hoax

The New York Times (12/9, Jacobs, Guarino) reports that on Thursday, a “jury in Chicago found the actor Jussie Smollett guilty...of falsely reporting to the police that he had been the victim of a racist and homophobic assault in 2019, an attack that investigators concluded was a hoax directed by the actor himself.” The actor “was convicted of five counts of disorderly conduct related to filing a false police report on Jan. 29, the day of the attack, and acquitted of one count related to a follow-up interview he did with police about the attack on Feb. 14.” The Times says the finding shows that, after more than nine hours of deliberation, the 12-person jury chose “to believe the accounts of two brothers who testified that Mr. Smollett had asked them to mildly injure him as part of a publicity stunt.”

At Least 53 Central American Migrants Reportedly Killed As Trailer Overturns In Mexico

BBC World News (UK) (12/9) reports, “At least 53 people have been killed and dozens more injured after the truck they were being transported in crashed in southern Mexico, authorities say. Over 100 people, said to be migrants from Central America, were crammed into the truck’s trailer when it rolled and hit a bridge in the state of Chiapas.” BBC World News adds, “Pictures from the crash scene show victims strewn across the road next to the overturned truck. There were also rows of what appeared to be bodies covered in white sheets.” According to BBC World News, “It is one of the worst accidents of its kind in Mexico, with at least 58 people injured, some seriously, said Luis Manuel Garcia, head of the Chiapas civil protection agency.” The Washington Post (12/9, Sieff, Martinez) reports that officials “said the victims appeared to be mostly, if not all, Central American migrants.”

Police Arrest Florida Student For Threatening To Shoot Up Campus

The AP (12/9) reports, “A student at an aeronautical university in Florida was arrested” on Thursday, “after authorities received tips from other students that he was planning to shoot people on campus on the last day before winter break.” When “officers arrested John Hagins, 19, at his apartment in Daytona Beach, Florida, they found a folding gun and hundreds of rounds of ammunition in his backpack, according to a news release from the Daytona Beach Police Department. ‘We could have had a tragedy unfold today,’ said Daytona Beach Police Department Chief Jakari Young. ‘Instead, these students reported it to the school and that allowed us to get to work right away and bring Hagins into custody before he could carry out his plans.’”

Police In California Arrest 180 In Takedown Of Violent Gang

The AP (12/9) reports from San Bernardino, California, “Authorities on Thursday announced the takedown of a Southern California street gang that included 180 arrests and the seizure of illegal gambling machines, drugs and guns.” According to the AP, “The investigation into the violent Westside Verdugo gang, which has been based in the San Bernardino area for decades, also helped detectives solve two homicides, authorities said. David Green, police chief in the city of San Bernardino, announced the arrests in a news conference with California Attorney General Rob Bonta and Jason Anderson, the county’s district attorney. ‘Members and associates of this gang have committed violent crimes in San Bernardino with no regard for the people in the community who are directly or indirectly harmed,’ Bonta said in a statement. The 180 people arrested include 129 convicted felons, 40 people who are on probation and 12 on parole, Green said in an email.”

Winnipeg Police Issue Tickets, Lay Charges During First Week Of Checkstop Program

CTV Winnipeg (CAN) (12/9) reports, "Officers with the Winnipeg Police Service issued 65 traffic tickets and laid nine impaired driving criminal charges in the first week of this year's Festive Season Checkstop Program." CTV Winnipeg adds, "On Thursday, police released the results of the first week of the program, during which the service stopped 758 cars. Police conducted 99 roadside breath tests, resulting in four warnings and nine fails. Officers note that all nine of the fails were processed by way of Immediate Roadside Prohibitions. In the first week of the checkstop program, officers laid nine impaired driving criminal charges, which includes four refusals to provide a breath or blood sample."

In 2019, the data covered 44 percent of local, state, federal and tribal officers, and last year the total increased to 55 percent, according to the program's website. So far this year, the data represents 57 percent of all officers, the FBI said Wednesday."

CNN (12/9, Carrega) reports, "In order to prevent ending the FBI's data collecting program next year, the GAO provided Attorney General Merrick Garland and leaders of the Civil Rights Division, Office of Justice Programs and FBI with 11 recommendations to improve the process. Anthony Coley, the director of public affairs for the Justice Department, says they agreed with nine out of 11 recommendations. 'Including the most important' recommendation, Coley said, are for the attorney general to assign responsibility for collecting data from the law enforcement agencies, to publish the data on the use of force by law enforcement officers annually and to communicate this responsibility to the designated DOJ component." The Wall Street Journal (12/9, Gurman, Subscription Publication) also reports.

Major Retailers Call On Congress To Address Organized Shoplifting, Online Reselling

Reuters (12/9, Shepardson) reports that "the chief executives of major U.S. retailers including Target, Home Depot, Kroger, CVS Health, Autozone and Best Buy on Thursday urged Congress to take action to address the online sale of stolen, counterfeit and dangerous consumer products. The group called on Congress to crack down on anonymous online sales, citing the growing impact of organized retail crime.” In a letter, the CEOs wrote, “Criminals are capitalizing on the anonymity of the Internet and the failure of certain marketplaces to verify their sellers. This trend has made retail businesses a target for increasing theft.” Reuters notes that on Friday, the White House “said it has been in contact with federal law enforcement officials over a string of flash mob ‘smash and grab’ robberies of U.S. retail stores.”

Ottawa’s Decision To Reroute Police Funds Seen As Step Toward New Community Safety Model

The Ottawa (CAN) Citizen (12/9) reports, “Ottawa’s network of community health and resource centres on Thursday greeted the decision by city council to divert some funding from the police towards mental health services and other crime prevention initiatives as a ‘first- step’ towards re-thinking community safety. ‘It’s a signal that the conversation is shifting around how we look at supporting community safety and well-being,’ said Anita James, executive director of the Nepean, Rideau and Osgoode community resource centre, who spoke on behalf of the Coalition of Community Health and Resource Centres of Ottawa.” The Citizen adds, “The new investment, which city council approved on Wednesday following a lengthy discussion on the police budget, includes $2.1 million to support youth programs for racialized youth, community-based 24/7 mental health services and improving access to culturally specific Indigenous supports.”

Durham, North Carolina Top Brass, Detectives To Hit The Streets Amid Officer Shortage

The Raleigh (NC) News &Observer (12/9, Shen-Berro, Blackwell) reports, “Durham’s new police chief, high-ranking officers and detectives will join patrols next month to cope with a vacancy rate” that is “nearly twice what it was a year ago. The ‘very temporary’ program will require four days of patrols over a three-month period, Police Chief Patrice Andrews told the City Council on Thursday. It will not affect ‘the tasks that they have to do in their day-to-day work,’ she said.” Maria Haberfeld, who chairs “the Law and Police Sciences Department at the John Jay College of Criminal Justice, told The News &Observer that police departments are often even shorter staffed than vacancy numbers indicate” because those numbers do not include “police officers who are on vacation, or sick leave, or testifying in court or in training.”

Smollett Found Guilty In Trial Over Hate Crime Hoax

The New York Times (12/9, Jacobs, Guarino) reports that on Thursday, a “jury in Chicago found the actor Jussie Smollett guilty...of falsely reporting to the police that he had been the victim of a racist and homophobic assault in 2019, an attack that investigators concluded was a hoax directed by the actor himself.” The actor “was convicted of five counts of disorderly conduct related to filing a false police report on Jan. 29, the day of the attack, and acquitted of one count related to a follow-up interview he did with police about the attack on Feb. 14.” The Times says the finding shows that, after more than nine hours of deliberation, the 12-person jury chose “to believe the accounts of two brothers who testified that Mr. Smollett had asked them to mildly injure him as part of a publicity stunt.”

At Least 53 Central American Migrants Reportedly Killed As Trailer Overturns In Mexico

BBC World News (UK) (12/9) reports, “At least 53 people have been killed and dozens more injured after the truck they were being transported in crashed in southern Mexico, authorities say. Over 100 people, said to be migrants from Central America, were crammed into the truck’s trailer when it rolled and hit a bridge in the state of Chiapas.” BBC World News adds, “Pictures from the crash scene show victims strewn across the road next to the overturned truck. There were also rows of what appeared to be bodies covered in white sheets.” According to BBC World News, “It is one of the worst accidents of its kind in Mexico, with at least 58 people injured, some seriously, said Luis Manuel Garcia, head of the Chiapas civil protection agency.” The Washington Post (12/9, Sieff, Martinez) reports that officials “said the victims appeared to be mostly, if not all, Central American migrants.”

Police Arrest Florida Student For Threatening To Shoot Up Campus

The AP (12/9) reports, “A student at an aeronautical university in Florida was arrested” on Thursday, “after authorities received tips from other students that he was planning to shoot people on campus on the last day before winter break.” When “officers arrested John Hagins, 19, at his apartment in Daytona Beach, Florida, they found a folding gun and hundreds of rounds of ammunition in his backpack, according to a news release from the Daytona Beach Police Department. ‘We could have had a tragedy unfold today,’ said Daytona Beach Police Department Chief Jakari Young. ‘Instead, these students reported it to the school and that allowed us to get to work right away and bring Hagins into custody before he could carry out his plans.’”

Police In California Arrest 180 In Takedown Of Violent Gang

The AP (12/9) reports from San Bernardino, California, “Authorities on Thursday announced the takedown of a Southern California street gang that included 180 arrests and the seizure of illegal gambling machines, drugs and guns.” According to the AP, “The investigation into the violent Westside Verdugo gang, which has been based in the San Bernardino area for decades, also helped detectives solve two homicides, authorities said. David Green, police chief in the city of San Bernardino, announced the arrests in a news conference with California Attorney General Rob Bonta and Jason Anderson, the county’s district attorney. ‘Members and associates of this gang have committed violent crimes in San Bernardino with no regard for the people in the community who are directly or indirectly harmed,’ Bonta said in a statement. The 180 people arrested include 129 convicted felons, 40 people who are on probation and 12 on parole, Green said in an email.”

Winnipeg Police Issue Tickets, Lay Charges During First Week Of Checkstop Program

CTV Winnipeg (CAN) (12/9) reports, "Officers with the Winnipeg Police Service issued 65 traffic tickets and laid nine impaired driving criminal charges in the first week of this year's Festive Season Checkstop Program." CTV Winnipeg adds, "On Thursday, police released the results of the first week of the program, during which the service stopped 758 cars. Police conducted 99 roadside breath tests, resulting in four warnings and nine fails. Officers note that all nine of the fails were processed by way of Immediate Roadside Prohibitions. In the first week of the checkstop program, officers laid nine impaired driving criminal charges, which includes four refusals to provide a breath or blood sample."

Qualified immunity task force delays recommendations until next year

In a move that surprised us, the state's qualified immunity task force stopped considering recommendations yesterday (December 8) after a vote on a key recommendation went against the preference of the two chairs, Senator Elgie Sims and Rep. Justin Slaughter. The group was having its eighth meeting and is formally called the Task Force on Constitutional Rights and Remedies. The full update from Ed Wojcicki is on the website.

Drive away with rates as low as 1.49% APR with an ISPCU Auto Loan!

Whether you're looking to buy a brand-new vehicle, or just one new to you, let us help you drive away in the vehicle you want with our new, lower auto loan rates! For a limited time, you can now enjoy New Auto Loan rates as low as 1.49%* and Used Auto Loan rates as low as 1.74%!* In addition, you also have the option to defer your first loan payment for 90 days free of charge!

Even if you are not in the market for a new vehicle you can still take advantage of this special offer by refinancing an existing auto loan from another financial institution with ISPFUCU. Not only could we lower your monthly loan payments and save you money in interest over the life of your loan, but you will also enjoy 90 days of no auto loan payments! Apply online at www.ispfcu.org or call us at 800-255-0886 with any questions you may have today!

*All rates are stated as an Annual Percentage Rate (APR). Rates are subject to change at any time. Special applies to new non-ISPFUCU loans. Rates quoted are for individuals with excellent credit. Individuals with less than excellent credit may be offered higher rates. Fixed loan rate of 1.49% equals payments of $17.31 for 60 months for each $1,000 borrowed.

Whether you're looking to buy a brand-new vehicle, or just one new to you, let us help you drive away in the vehicle you want with our new, lower auto loan rates! For a limited time, you can now enjoy New Auto Loan rates as low as 1.49%* and Used Auto Loan rates as low as 1.74%!* In addition, you also have the option to defer your first loan payment for 90 days free of charge!

Even if you are not in the market for a new vehicle you can still take advantage of this special offer by refinancing an existing auto loan from another financial institution with ISPFUCU. Not only could we lower your monthly loan payments and save you money in interest over the life of your loan, but you will also enjoy 90 days of no auto loan payments! Apply online at www.ispfcu.org or call us at 800-255-0886 with any questions you may have today!

*All rates are stated as an Annual Percentage Rate (APR). Rates are subject to change at any time. Special applies to new non-ISPFUCU loans. Rates quoted are for individuals with excellent credit. Individuals with less than excellent credit may be offered higher rates. Fixed loan rate of 1.49% equals payments of $17.31 for 60 months for each $1,000 borrowed.

Qualified immunity task force delays recommendations until next year

In a move that surprised us, the state's qualified immunity task force stopped considering recommendations yesterday (December 8) after a vote on a key recommendation went against the preference of the two chairs, Senator Elgie Sims and Rep. Justin Slaughter. The group was having its eighth meeting and is formally called the Task Force on Constitutional Rights and Remedies. The full update from Ed Wojcicki is on the website.

Subject: IACP 2022 Dues Renewal

Dear Luis Tigera,

Thank you for being a member of the IACP.

The IACP has worked to ensure you and your agency are prepared for any obstacle you might face. Without you, our work would not be possible. By renewing your membership for 2022, you will be the first to know about new training programs, events, resources, and advocacy efforts and you will continue to receive all the member benefits you have come to expect as an IACP member.

<https://www.myiacp.org/expresspaymentcart?id=a0l3s000000OjIC-757f01b72ea059aa3807787bfc5d42e0>

As a thank you for renewing, if you renew by January 14, 2022, you will receive a complimentary IACP membership for a new member* from your agency.

Auto Renew Today: Know that your membership will remain up to date as you secure your membership for 2022 and beyond by enabling the auto-renew feature and store payment methods on your member profile. Log into your record and follow the prompts on the payment screen to begin the auto-renewal process.

A copy of your renewal notice is below. Printed dues notices will also mail in January.

If you have questions about the renewal process of your IACP membership, contact our membership team at membership@theIACP.org.

*The complimentary membership is for new members and not to be used for renewing members. You will be sent instructions on how to claim your new member in January.

Dear Joseph Romano,

Thank you for being a member of the IACP.

The IACP has worked to ensure you and your agency are prepared for any obstacle you might face. Without you, our work would not be possible. By renewing your membership for 2022, you will be the first to know about new training programs, events, resources, and advocacy efforts and you will continue to receive all the member benefits you have come to expect as an IACP member.

<https://www.myiacp.org/expresspaymentcart?id=a013s00000Ojqs-7193a8c72a3f07c5aed1a8936f932ded>

As a thank you for renewing, if you renew by January 14, 2022, you will receive a complimentary IACP membership for a new member* from your agency.

Auto Renew Today: Know that your membership will remain up to date as you secure your membership for 2022 and beyond by enabling the auto-renew feature and store payment methods on your member profile. Log into your record and follow the prompts on the payment screen to begin the auto-renewal process.

A copy of your renewal notice is below. Printed dues notices will also mail in January.

If you have questions about the renewal process of your IACP membership, contact our membership team at membership@theIACP.org.

*The complimentary membership is for new members and not to be used for renewing members. You will be sent instructions on how to claim your new member in January.

Germany's New Government Planning To Legalize Recreational Cannabis Sales

In online coverage, CNN (12/8, Kottasová) reports Olaf Scholz has been “sworn in as Germany’s new” chancellor. CNN adds, “The incoming government’s vision for” that country “includes plans to legalize cannabis and ease naturalization and dual citizenship rules.” The AP (12/8, Moulson) reports Germany’s new government “plans more liberal social policies, including legalizing the sale of cannabis for recreational purposes.” AFP (12/8) publishes a similar article.

Biden Administration Responding To Overdose Deaths With Harm Reduction

On its website, CNN (12/8) covers its own interview with Office of National Drug Control Policy Director Dr. Rahul Gupta, who spoke about the Administration’s response to an increase in US drug overdose deaths. The coverage links to a video clip of the interview, during which Gupta said the overdose fatalities crisis requires a federal response that utilizes harm reduction measures. Another online CNN (12/8, Kounang) report features additional coverage of this story.

Quebec Launches Major Police Reform Bill Aimed At Rebuilding Public Trust

CFCF-TV Montreal, CAN (12/8) reports, “Quebec is changing its approach in police matters to, among other measures, broaden powers given to the province’s independent police watchdog group to deal with possible offences committed by police officers and to require police forces to follow orders from the public security minister.” According to CFCF-TV, “Bill 18, an omnibus bill tabled Wednesday by Public Security Minister Geneviève Guilbault, is very broad in scope and touches on many aspects of police work and oversight in an effort to ‘regain the public’s trust,’ as Guilbault put it. It will implement some 40 of the 138 recommendations made by the Advisory Committee on Policing in a report tabled last May. One of the bill’s major elements is that all investigations where a police officer may have committed a criminal offence will now be transferred to the Independent Bureau of Investigations, known as the BEI.”

Car Crash Deaths Surged During COVID-19 Pandemic, Show No Sign Of Decreasing

The Los Angeles Times (12/8, Mitchell) reports that there were “38,680 deaths on U.S. roadways last year, the most since 2007 even though pandemic precautions had dramatically reduced driving.” A national Safety Council researcher “guessed that fatal accidents would decline in 2021 when traffic returned.” However, they did not decline, and “the latest evidence suggests that after decades of safety gains, the pandemic has made U.S. drivers more reckless – more likely to speed, drink or use drugs and leave their seatbelts unbuckled.” Experts suggest “that behavior on the road is likely a reflection of widespread feelings of isolation, loneliness and depression.” Axon is a market-leading provider of law enforcement technology. A Dozen US Cities Set Annual Homicide Records In 2021

The New York Post (12/8, O'Neill) reports, “At least 12 major US cities have already set historical murder records in 2021, even as three weeks remain in the year.” According to the Post, “Philadelphia, the nation’s sixth largest city, recorded 523 murders as of Dec. 7, surpassing its formal grim milestone of 500 murders, which was set in 1990, police data showed. The City of Brotherly Love had recorded significantly more murders in 2021 than New York City’s 443, despite having approximately six times fewer residents.” The Post adds, “Columbus, Ohio; Indianapolis, Indiana; Louisville, Kentucky; St Paul, Minnesota; Portland, Oregon; Tucson, Arizona; Toledo, Ohio; Baton Rouge, Louisiana; Austin, Texas; Rochester, New York and Albuquerque, New Mexico also had their deadliest years on record, according to ABC News.”

Illicit Fentanyl Threat In US A Concern For Pharma Firm CEO

The Guardian (UK) (12/8, Schreiber) reports that it interviewed Opiant Pharmaceuticals CEO Roger Crystal, who said he is worried about an illicit fentanyl threat in the US. Crystal said fentanyl is an opioid, but “it’s a different beast entirely.” Crystal’s firm developed a nasal spray product that dispenses naloxone, which can reverse an opioid overdose. This year, harm reduction organizations have “faced a huge increase in the cost of...naloxone treatments.” Some harm reduction advocates have called for companies to temporarily lower the price of naloxone products, but Crystal “rejected the idea that” those prices are making it harder to prevent overdose deaths. Crystal asked, “How cheap do you want a life-saving drug to be?”

Pilot Substance Use Disorder Prevention Program Launched In West Virginia

The AP (12/8) reports West Virginia Gov. Jim Justice (R) “and the board of West Virginia Game Changers,” which is a “public-private coalition designed to educate and empower youth,” recently announced a pilot substance use disorder prevention program. While the program is being launched “at three schools” in Harrison County, West Virginia, Harrison County Schools

Superintendent Dora Stutler said the goal is to expand the program at some point in the future.

German Police Raids Target Alleged Worker Trafficking

The AP (12/8, Grieshaber) reports, “German police and customs officers conducted dozens of raids across the country Wednesday and arrested at least nine people in a crackdown on the alleged human trafficking of temporary workers from outside the European Union.” The AP adds, “Federal police in Berlin tweeted that the raids started at 7 a.m. local time (0800GMT). The police agency said officers searched homes and businesses, focusing on the German capital and surrounding Brandenburg state but also locations in Bremen and Lower Saxony states. Authorities said they were investigating around 20 suspects for suspected involvement in allegedly forging EU citizenship documents and placing the workers, most of them from Ukraine and Moldova, with large logistics companies.” According to the AP, “The federal police and prosecutors said that more than 2,200 police and customs officers were involved in the raids coordinated and led by the general prosecutor’s office of Berlin.”

Police In Canada Warn Of Rising Cryptocurrency Cons

CFCN-TV Calgary, CAN (12/8) reports that police in Lethbridge, Alberta “say though they rarely dealt with calls about cryptocurrency-related fraud in the past, they’re now seeing a boom in cases. This year, police say 18 victims have been defrauded out of more than $800,000 in cases ranging from investment and social media scams to phony texts or calls from people claiming to be with the Canada Revenue Agency. ‘Cryptocurrency is a digital asset used as a medium of exchange. Unlike the Canadian or the US dollar, there is no central authority that manages and maintains the value of a cryptocurrency,’ police said in a Wednesday news release.”

Germany's New Government Planning To Legalize Recreational Cannabis Sales

In online coverage, CNN (12/8, Kottasová) reports Olaf Scholz has been “sworn in as Germany’s new” chancellor. CNN adds, “The incoming government’s vision for” that country “includes plans to legalize cannabis and ease naturalization and dual citizenship rules.” The AP (12/8, Moulson) reports Germany’s new government “plans more liberal social policies, including legalizing the sale of cannabis for recreational purposes.” AFP (12/8) publishes a similar article.

Biden Administration Responding To Overdose Deaths With Harm Reduction

On its website, CNN (12/8) covers its own interview with Office of National Drug Control Policy Director Dr. Rahul Gupta, who spoke about the Administration’s response to an increase in US drug overdose deaths. The coverage links to a video clip of the interview, during which Gupta said the overdose fatalities crisis requires a federal response that utilizes harm reduction measures. Another online CNN (12/8, Kounang) report features additional coverage of this story.

Quebec Launches Major Police Reform Bill Aimed At Rebuilding Public Trust

CFCF-TV Montreal, CAN (12/8) reports, “Quebec is changing its approach in police matters to, among other measures, broaden powers given to the province’s independent police watchdog group to deal with possible offences committed by police officers and to require police forces to follow orders from the public security minister.” According to CFCF-TV, “Bill 18, an omnibus bill tabled Wednesday by Public Security Minister Geneviève Guilbault, is very broad in scope and touches on many aspects of police work and oversight in an effort to ‘regain the public’s trust,’ as Guilbault put it. It will implement some 40 of the 138 recommendations made by the Advisory Committee on Policing in a report tabled last May. One of the bill’s major elements is that all investigations where a police officer may have committed a criminal offence will now be transferred to the Independent Bureau of Investigations, known as the BEI.”

Car Crash Deaths Surged During COVID-19 Pandemic, Show No Sign Of Decreasing

The Los Angeles Times (12/8, Mitchell) reports that there were “38,680 deaths on U.S. roadways last year, the most since 2007 even though pandemic precautions had dramatically reduced driving.” A national Safety Council researcher “guessed that fatal accidents would decline in 2021 when traffic returned.” However, they did not decline, and “the latest evidence suggests that after decades of safety gains, the pandemic has made U.S. drivers more reckless – more likely to speed, drink or use drugs and leave their seatbelts unbuckled.” Experts suggest “that behavior on the road is likely a reflection of widespread feelings of isolation, loneliness and depression.” Axon is a market-leading provider of law enforcement technology. A Dozen US Cities Set Annual Homicide Records In 2021

The New York Post (12/8, O'Neill) reports, “At least 12 major US cities have already set historical murder records in 2021, even as three weeks remain in the year.” According to the Post, “Philadelphia, the nation’s sixth largest city, recorded 523 murders as of Dec. 7, surpassing its formal grim milestone of 500 murders, which was set in 1990, police data showed. The City of Brotherly Love had recorded significantly more murders in 2021 than New York City’s 443, despite having approximately six times fewer residents.” The Post adds, “Columbus, Ohio; Indianapolis, Indiana; Louisville, Kentucky; St Paul, Minnesota; Portland, Oregon; Tucson, Arizona; Toledo, Ohio; Baton Rouge, Louisiana; Austin, Texas; Rochester, New York and Albuquerque, New Mexico also had their deadliest years on record, according to ABC News.”

Illicit Fentanyl Threat In US A Concern For Pharma Firm CEO

The Guardian (UK) (12/8, Schreiber) reports that it interviewed Opiant Pharmaceuticals CEO Roger Crystal, who said he is worried about an illicit fentanyl threat in the US. Crystal said fentanyl is an opioid, but “it’s a different beast entirely.” Crystal’s firm developed a nasal spray product that dispenses naloxone, which can reverse an opioid overdose. This year, harm reduction organizations have “faced a huge increase in the cost of...naloxone treatments.” Some harm reduction advocates have called for companies to temporarily lower the price of naloxone products, but Crystal “rejected the idea that” those prices are making it harder to prevent overdose deaths. Crystal asked, “How cheap do you want a life-saving drug to be?”

Pilot Substance Use Disorder Prevention Program Launched In West Virginia

The AP (12/8) reports West Virginia Gov. Jim Justice (R) “and the board of West Virginia Game Changers,” which is a “public-private coalition designed to educate and empower youth,” recently announced a pilot substance use disorder prevention program. While the program is being launched “at three schools” in Harrison County, West Virginia, Harrison County Schools

Superintendent Dora Stutler said the goal is to expand the program at some point in the future.

Subject: One Mind Campaign Pledge Confirmation

Dear Mr. Bertram,

Thank you for pledging the Niles Police Department to the One Mind Campaign. We are excited to add your department to our growing list of law enforcement agencies that seek to ensure successful interactions between law enforcement and people with mental health conditions. Your agency will be added to the One Mind Campaign webpage shortly.

The three pledge requirements include:

- Establish a clearly defined and sustainable partnership with one or more community health organizations
- Develop and implement a model policy addressing law enforcement response experiencing crisis due to mental health
- Train and certify 100 percent of sworn officers (and selected non-sworn staff, such as dispatchers) in mental health awareness courses by
 - o Providing CIT or equivalent crisis response training to a minimum of 20 percent of sworn officers (and selected non-sworn staff);
 - o Providing Mental Health First Aid training (or equivalent) to the remaining sworn officers (and selected non-sworn staff).

As you prepare to implement the following three pledge requirements over a 12-36-month timeframe, please know that you can reach out to us at any time for support. Attached to this email are several documents including:

- Sample Memorandum of Understanding (MOU)
- Flyer for the Police-Mental Health Collaboration Toolkit and their Self-Assessment Tool
- One Mind Quote Sheet

Once you believe your department has completed the pledge, we require a letter from the Chief or another member of the Command Staff on official letterhead detailing how your agency is in compliance with the pledge requirements. The letter should describe the below:

- the necessary training requirements have been met,
- the nature of the partnership your department has developed with a mental health services provider, and
- the main components of your department's policy on law enforcement response experiencing crisis due to mental health.

If possible, we would also like a copy of the MOU you have established with a mental health services provider in your area.

These documents can be e-mailed to onemindcampaign@theiacp.org as an attachment. The IACP will then send your department a certificate of completion, a letter from the President of the IACP, and Niles Police Department will be listed as completed on the One Mind Campaign webpage.

We look forward to celebrating your completion of the One Mind Campaign pledge! Should you have any questions about the campaign or would like to provide us with feedback on the process of completing the three requirements, please do not hesitate to contact us.

Thank you,

Nikole Metz

Dear Joseph Romano,

Thank you for being a member of the IACP.

The IACP has worked to ensure you and your agency are prepared for any obstacle you might face. Without you, our work would not be possible. By renewing your membership for 2022, you will be the first to know about new training programs, events, resources, and advocacy efforts and you will continue to receive all the member benefits you have come to expect as an IACP member.

<https://www.myiacp.org/expresspaymentcart?id=a0l3s00000O0jqS-7193a8c72a3f07c5aed1a8936f932ded>

As a thank you for renewing, if you renew by January 14, 2022, you will receive a complimentary IACP membership for a new member* from your agency.

Auto Renew Today: Know that your membership will remain up to date as you secure your membership for 2022 and beyond by enabling the auto-renew feature and store payment methods on your member profile. Log into your record and follow the prompts on the payment screen to begin the auto-renewal process.

A copy of your renewal notice is below. Printed dues notices will also mail in January.

If you have questions about the renewal process of your IACP membership, contact our membership team at membership@theIACP.org.

*The complimentary membership is for new members and not to be used for renewing members. You will be sent instructions on how to claim your new member in January.

December 2021 ISSUE

December 2021—Public Health & Policing

Many police departments take on responsibilities for which coordination with public health service organizations is better suited. In fact, cooperation between police and public health organizations is the key to addressing many complex social issues. This issue of Police Chief looks at creative and innovative strategies adopted by police departments to engage in harm-reduction; promote alternatives to arrest and incarceration; and encourage overall safety and well-being.

READ CURRENT ISSUE FEATURES

Pre-Arrest Deflection Programs

Tulsa Police Department offers treatment instead of incarceration to individuals with substance use disorder, enabling important systemic social change.

Envisaging the Future

The Envisaging the Future (EtF) project is a global exercise to discover and document innovative initiatives that address complex issues; this article reviews innovation and program trials in six different regions of the world.

Extreme Risk Protection Orders

Extreme risk protection orders provide a clear process for temporarily removing firearms from someone who is a threat to themselves or others.

The IACP has worked to ensure you and your agency are prepared for any obstacle you might face. Without you, our work would not be possible. By renewing your membership for 2022, you will be the first to know about new training programs, events, resources, and advocacy efforts and you will continue to receive all the member benefits you have come to expect as an IACP member.

<https://www.myiacp.org/expresspaymentcart?id=a0l3s00000OOfnV-bb7031ecdf60225e16dec5f657ba743a>

Auto Renew Today: Know that your membership will remain up to date as you secure your membership for 2022 and beyond by enabling the auto-renew feature and store payment methods on your member profile. Log into your record and follow the prompts on the payment screen to begin the auto-renewal process.

A copy of your renewal notice is below. Printed dues notices will also mail in January.

If you have questions about the renewal process of your IACP membership, contact our membership team at membership@theIACP.org.

San Francisco Stores Can Now Hire Off-Duty Sheriff's Deputies In Push Against Retail Theft

The San Francisco Chronicle (12/7, Moench) reports, "San Francisco sheriff's deputies can soon get paid time and a half to work for retailers while off duty, similar to police officers, amid a push to combat retail theft in the city." According to the Chronicle, "State law only allows the sheriff to provide supplemental law enforcement to private entities for 'special events or occurrences that happen on an occasional basis.' The sheriff would approve each request. Sheriff Paul Miyamoto, Police Chief Bill Scott and Supervisor Ahsha Safaí, who introduced the legislation to authorize deputies to work for retailers for certain occasions, announced an agreement on the steps of City Hall on Tuesday after more than two months of negotiations with the police union, which originally opposed the idea, arguing deputies don't have the same training as police officers. Following the announcement of the agreement, the legislation passed the Board of Supervisors 7-3."

Chris Magnus Confirmed By Senate As CBP Commissioner

The Washington Post (12/7) reports that yesterday the Senate "confirmed Tucson police chief Chris Magnus to be the next U.S. Customs and Border Protection commissioner, installing a new leader for the country's largest law enforcement agency at a time when immigration arrests along the Mexico border have hit record levels." The 50-47 vote was largely along party lines. The Washington Post reports that Magnus "developed a reputation as a reform-minded law enforcement commander during stints in Fargo, N.D., Richmond, Calif., and Tucson, where he became chief in 2016," noting that the 61-year-old Magnus "will be CBP's first openly gay commissioner." In prepared testimony, Magnus "pledged to take a nonpartisan approach to immigration enforcement," writing, "I pride myself on being a pragmatic and bipartisan problem-solver."

USA Today (12/7, Jansen) reports about 130 Capitol Police officers “have left since the Jan. 6 insurrection, according to the department, which a federal watchdog told a Senate panel Tuesday has led to concerns about overtime and recruiting.” Capitol Police Inspector General Michael Bolton told the Senate Rules and Administration Committee, “They are down significantly (in officers and they need to bring...folks on that can augment that,” adding the force has about 200 officers left. Bolton “said morale at the department has improved since [the January 6 riot], but that officers are waiting to see what sort of support Congress provides.”

Oakland, California Votes To Add Police Officers

The AP (12/7, Har) reports from San Francisco, “The Oakland City Council, a longtime leader in the Black Lives Matter movement to cut police funding, reversed course Tuesday and voted to hire more officers as it grapples with a surge in homicides and gun violence.” The AP adds, “The proposal by Mayor Libby Schaaf to add two new police academies and unfreeze positions within the department to add 60 new officers passed with six members voting yes, one voting no and one abstention. Council members ended up not voting on a separate proposal to offer one-time bonuses of at least $50,000 to recruit experienced officers from other cities and at least $20,000 to Oakland residents who become police cadets. They will later consider hiring incentives for experienced officers.”

Ohio Governor Pushes $250M Funding Plan For Police

The AP (12/7) reports, “Ohio police and fire departments and emergency medical service agencies could apply for up to $250 million in federal grants meant to help first responders fight violent crime and recover from pandemic-related hardships, under a proposal announced Monday by Gov. Mike DeWine.” The AP adds, “The fast-tracked measure would spend $175 million on crime fighting efforts such as helping police target violent hot spots, reduce evidence backlogs, and pay for gunshot detection devices, according to the proposal, which would make federal pandemic relief funds available as competitive grants. Another $75 million would provide funding for wellness programs for first responders that address things like suicide prevention and mental health issues unique to police officers, firefighters and EMTs. The money would also pay for programs to help recruit and retain first responders in agencies whose workforce shrank during the pandemic.”

Pilot Program In UK Uses Proceeds Of Crime To Fight Fraud

Independent (UK) (12/7, Shaw) reports, “A pilot scheme launched by a major bank and the police is using the proceeds of crime to fight fraud and support victims. The first tranche of money seized amounts to around £7 million, Lloyds Banking Group said.” Lloyds “has joined forces with the City of London Police to use the proceeds of crime to invest in projects protecting against fraud and supporting victims. The ‘frozen’ cash is made up of money captured from fraudsters by the bank’s specialist mule hunting team. Money mules allow criminals to move cash generated by crimes using their bank accounts. The team rapidly analyses data to spot the signs of money mule behaviour.” Lloyds “said it has shared this intelligence with others in the industry and returned millions to victims of fraud, although it said it is not always possible to directly reunite victims with their cash.”

Police In Dallas, Texas Want Strip Clubs, Sex Businesses To Close By 2 AM

The Dallas Morning News (12/7, Bailey) reports, “Dallas police say most violent crimes reported near strip clubs and other sex businesses in the city over the last three years have happened after 2 a.m. The agency says that should be enough to impose restrictions ordering them to shut down by then,” but “Dallas elected officials on Monday said they need more data before deciding whether to move forward with a police proposal for new city rules banning strip clubs, adult bookstores, video stores and other such businesses from operating between 2 a.m. and 6 a.m.” The Morning News adds, “Council members on the committee for quality of life, arts and culture said it was clear the police data was driven by crimes that occurred near a handful of strip clubs. They said more analysis was needed to determine if all sexually oriented businesses are a problem or just those few. Dallas currently has no rules for when sexually oriented businesses can operate. Closing time for strip clubs, for example, can range from 2 to 6 a.m. Police said there are 14 clubs in the city open past 2 a.m.”

Fox News (12/7, Sorace) reports, “As the trend of follow-home robberies continues in Los Angeles, police are investigating surveillance video showing alleged thieves clad in ‘police-type’ gear attacking a group of victims outside a home before forcing them inside. The video shows three people appearing to return home when two men claiming to be DEA agents approach them. Both men are seen wearing what appear to be police badges as well as black vests with ‘police’ written on them. One suspect was armed with a gun, while the other brandished a rubber mallet, police said. The suspects hold the victims at gunpoint and demand they open the front door, according to the video. When the victim with the keys appears to struggle opening the door, the suspects throw punches and yell curse words.”

Good Samaritan Finds Over $1M Worth Of Cocaine In Florida Keys Waters

Newsweek (12/7, Impelli) reports “a Good Samaritan recently discovered more than $1 million worth of cocaine floating in waters near the Florida Keys.” Thomas Martin, chief of the US Border Patrol’s Miami Sector, said on Twitter, “Over the weekend, a Good Samaritan discovered over 1 million dollars in cocaine floating at sea near the Florida Keys. ... The package contained nearly 69 lbs. of cocaine.” Newsweek says “the Miami Herald reported that the drugs were found by a boater near the island of Islamorada in the upper Florida Keys,” who then “alerted authorities after the discovery.”

Millions In Stolen Goods Recovered In Illinois “Organized Retail Crime” Bust

The Pontiac (IL) Daily Leader (12/7, Nowicki) reports from Springfield, Illinois, “An unrelated arrest by the Chicago Police Department on Sunday led to a state task force this week seizing millions of dollars’ worth of goods stolen from retailers in what Attorney General Kwame Raoul described as an organized retail crime operation.” Raoul “announced the raid in a news conference Friday, calling it the ‘first major bust’ resulting from the work of the Organized Retail Crime Task Force overseen by his office. That statewide public-private collaboration includes retailers, online marketplaces, law enforcement agencies and state’s attorneys. ‘The task force brings together law enforcement from federal, state and local agencies, retailers, online marketplaces, to share information and resources to identify and prosecute criminal enterprises frequently behind these well-organized schemes that can sometimes be mistaken for isolated incidents of retail theft,’ he said. The task force seized four semi-truckloads of goods found after a search warrant was served on eight storage units at two separate locations.”

Gunmen Torch Bus, Kill Dozens In Nigeria

Reuters (12/7) reports that on Tuesday, at least “30 passengers on a bus in Nigeria’s Sokoto state were burnt to death when gunmen torched it...in yet another reminder of growing insecurity in Africa’s most populous country.” A government spokesman “said the bus was carrying 24 passengers when it was set alight by armed men and that seven people had escaped with injuries and taken to hospital.” According to residents, “the villagers were ambushed on a road linking the Sabon Birni local government area and the village of Gidan Bawa in Borno state. Bandits move around on motor-bikes and are known to hide in forests, where they often keep kidnapped victims while awaiting ransom payment.”

Special Alert | December 7, 2021 Task force may review 16 recommendations regarding qualified immunity

The task force assigned to review qualified immunity and related issues has been presented with many recommendations to consider, beginning at its meeting on Wednesday, December 8.

It is formally known as the Task Force on Constitutional Rights and Remedies. Staffing the task force is the Illinois Criminal Justice Information Authority (ICJIA), which has taken all of the recommendations and organized them into 16 different recommendations.

See the attachment or click here for the list that the task force will consider this week. Also attached is a 35-page document that combines ALL of the submitted recommendations; this document includes a two-page summary at the beginning, compiled by the Illinois Chiefs.

The most troublesome recommendations for law enforcement are Recommendation 3 and Recommendation 5. Recommendation 3 would support HB 1727 (Rep. Tarver), which would not only gut qualified immunity for law enforcement, but would also remove other statutory tort protections. All law enforcement groups and the Illinois Municipal League oppose this bill strongly. Recommendation 5 attempts to go directly after law enforcement officers as individuals and set up a new system in which they would be civilly liable for damages.

Chris Conrad of Highland is the Illinois Chiefs' representative on the task force. He is responsible for all or part of ten of the 16 recommendations.

Anyone with thoughts of these recommendations should send them to ed@ilchiefs.org, and ILACP Executive Director Ed Wojcicki will forward them to Conrad and the Board of Officers.

Special Alert | December 7, 2021 Task force may review 16 recommendations regarding qualified immunity

The task force assigned to review qualified immunity and related issues has been presented with many recommendations to consider, beginning at its meeting on Wednesday, December 8.

It is formally known as the Task Force on Constitutional Rights and Remedies. Staffing the task force is the Illinois Criminal Justice Information Authority (ICJIA), which has taken all of the recommendations and organized them into 16 different recommendations.

See the attachment or click here for the list that the task force will consider this week. Also attached is a 35-page document that combines ALL of the submitted recommendations; this document includes a two-page summary at the beginning, compiled by the Illinois Chiefs.

The most troublesome recommendations for law enforcement are Recommendation 3 and Recommendation 5. Recommendation 3 would support HB 1727 (Rep. Quote Sheet Update.pdf

Dear Mr. Bertram,

Thank you for pledging the Niles Police Department to the One Mind Campaign. We are excited to add your department to our growing list of law enforcement agencies that seek to ensure successful interactions between law enforcement and people with mental health conditions. Your agency will be added to the One Mind Campaign webpage shortly.

The three pledge requirements include:

- Establish a clearly defined and sustainable partnership with one or more community health organizations
- Develop and implement a model policy addressing law enforcement response experiencing crisis due to mental health
- Train and certify 100 percent of sworn officers (and selected non-sworn staff, such as dispatchers) in mental health awareness courses by
 - o Providing CIT or equivalent crisis response training to a minimum of 20 percent of sworn officers (and selected non-sworn staff);
 - o Providing Mental Health First Aid training (or equivalent) to the remaining sworn officers (and selected non-sworn staff).

As you prepare to implement the following three pledge requirements over a 12-36-month timeframe, please know that you can reach out to us at any time for support. Attached to this email are several documents including:

- Sample Memorandum of Understanding (MOU)
- Flyer for the Police-Mental Health Collaboration Toolkit and their Self-Assessment Tool
- One Mind Quote Sheet

Once you believe your department has completed the pledge, we require a letter from the Chief or another member of the Command Staff on official letterhead detailing how your agency is in compliance with the pledge requirements. The letter should describe the below:

- the necessary training requirements have been met,
- the nature of the partnership your department has developed with a mental health services provider, and
- the main components of your department's policy on law enforcement response experiencing crisis due to mental health.

If possible, we would also like a copy of the MOU you have established with a mental health services provider in your area.

These documents can be e-mailed to onemindcampaign@theiacp.org as an attachment. The IACP will then send your department a certificate of completion, a letter from the President of the IACP, and Niles Police Department will be listed as completed on the One Mind Campaign webpage.

We look forward to celebrating your completion of the One Mind Campaign pledge! Should you have any questions about the campaign or would like to provide us with feedback on the process of completing the three requirements, please do not hesitate to contact us.

Thank you,

Nikole Metz

Lawmakers Unveil Bill That Would Expand Access To Opioid Use Disorder Treatment

NBC News (12/6, Caldwell) reports on Monday, Rep. Donald Norcross (D-NJ) and Sen. Ed Markey (D-MA) proposed a bill which “would allow some opioid users in treatment to continue obtaining methadone prescriptions from pharmacies to take at home.” The legislation, the “Opioid Treatment Access Act, takes aim at restrictions on methadone, a leading medication used to treat Opioid Use Disorder, that could return late next year when the take-home flexibility is set to expire.” Prior to “the pandemic, patients had to make daily trips to clinics to receive a single dose of the addiction medication.” When the pandemic began, SAMHSA “allowed opioid treatment programs to dispense 28 days of take-home methadone doses to stable patients to treat opioid use disorder and 14-day doses for less stable patients whom opioid treatment programs have determined can safely handle take-home medication.” The agency “announced an extension of the exemption for one year in November, until late 2022.”

Maryland Legislators Not Voting To Decriminalize Drug Paraphernalia This Week

The Baltimore Sun (12/6, Wood) reports Maryland legislators will not “vote this week to decriminalize paraphernalia used to inject drugs, allowing a veto from Gov. Larry Hogan to stand.” On Monday, “the Maryland Senate opted...to ‘postpone indefinitely’ a decision on a paraphernalia decriminalization bill that the Republican governor vetoed earlier this year.” Currently, “having needles, syringes, cookers or other supplies is punishable by up to four years in prison.” Advocates for “decriminalization note that actual possession of drugs carries a more lenient penalty of up to one year behind bars.”

Washington State Officials Warn Of Local Mental Health Crisis Caused By Police Use-Of-Force Law

Fox News (12/6, Springer) reports, “Mental health officials in Washington state are worried about a mental health crisis that has grown steadily during the COVID-19 pandemic and is now getting even worse because of a new state law aimed at reducing use of force by law enforcement. Since HB 1310 went into effect July 25, the backlog of cases has more than doubled in King County as many agencies no longer send officers on mental health calls unless a crime has been committed.” Fox News adds, “Snohomish County Sheriff Adam Fortney says the police reform law makes it too risky for his deputies even when a judge has signed an order for a person’s involuntary commitment. ‘There comes a point in time when a deputy sheriff has to make a split-second decision,’ Fortney says, ‘We can no longer use force unless there is probable cause for someone’s arrest. Nobody is under arrest with a person in a mental health crisis.’ Frank Crouch, the involuntary commitment coordinator for King County, says designated crisis responders typically have about 60 cases pending. But now the backlog is hitting nearly 140 cases.”

Portland, Oregon Police Tell Residents 911 Response Times May Be Delayed Due To Staffing Shortage, Critical Incidents

Fox News (12/6, Best) reports, “Portland residents may have had delayed response times for their 911 calls on Monday due to a number of ‘critical incidents’ and the police department’s ‘staffing shortage,’ the department tweeted.” Police “were only responding to priority 1 and priority 2 calls, which are for incidents in which a life may be in immediate danger or with a potential for physical injury, as well as major property crimes. Officers were not responding to other incidents, such as any crime in progress that doesn’t pose an immediate danger to persons or property. On Monday morning, police responded to reports of multiple armed carjackings in northern Portland that resulted in one victim being shot. Officers fatally shot the suspect when they arrived at the scene.” The Portland Police Department “said in January that it is facing ‘critical’ staffing shortages ‘due to budget cuts, retirements and separations, and the backlog of needed training for new officers caused by the pandemic.’”

State Police At New Jersey Capitol Boost COVID Rule Enforcement

The AP (12/6, Catalini) reports from Trenton, New Jersey, “New Jersey State Police stepped up enforcement Monday of a requirement that statehouse visitors show proof of a COVID-19 vaccination or a negative test.” According to the AP, “Troopers stood guard at entrances around the statehouse complex, including little-used doorways where no state police presence is typically present. Troopers routed visitors – even those with statehouse badges who work in the complex – to a single entrance where they were directed to show vaccination proof and undergo a temperature screening. Later in the day, they put up large orange barriers and put up new signs saying that certain entrances were for lawmakers only, or lawmakers and staff only.” The AP adds, “The stepped-up enforcement comes after confusion broke out last week when Republican Assembly members defied the requirement and attempted to gain access to the Assembly chamber.”

Security, Crime, and Drugs

DOJ Closes Investigation Into Death Of Emmett Till

The AP (12/6, Balsamo, Pettus) reports the Justice Department “told relatives of Emmett Till on Monday that it is ending its investigation into the 1955 lynching of the Black teenager from Chicago who was abducted, tortured and killed after witnesses said he whistled at a white woman in Mississippi.” On its website, CNN (12/6, Jarrett) reports the DOJ had reopened the investigation after professor Timothy Tyson in 2017 “unearthed what appeared to be a key piece of evidence in one of the most haunting and grisly murders of the Jim Crow Era: a recantation from the woman at the center of the case who had accused Till of making sexual advances at her over 60 years ago,” but sources said that when questioned, she “adamantly denied to investigators that she had recanted her testimony.” CNN says the closure of the investigation leaves “more questions after a potentially significant claim from one of the last living witnesses led investigators on a fresh hunt for evidence.”

Prosecutor Criticizes Michigan School Over Preparation To Mass Shooting

The AP (12/6, Callahan, Eggert) reports Oakland County, Michigan Prosecutor Karen McDonald, who is “overseeing the case against the student accused in last week’s deadly Michigan school shooting and who took the rare step of charging his parents,” on Monday “left open the possibility...that school officials could also face charges, saying ‘in this case, a lot could have been done different.’” The AP adds McDonald “said the investigation’s findings will determine whether school officials will be charged,” but she “noted that three hours before Ethan Crumbley allegedly opened fire, killing four fellow students and wounding six others and a teacher, the 15-year-old was sent back to class after a meeting between school counselors and his parents over a drawing a teacher found on his desk that included a bullet and the words ‘blood everywhere.’”

British Authorities Call In Police After Newspaper Reported Cocaine In Parliament

The AP (12/6) reports “British parliamentary authorities are calling in the police after a newspaper reported that traces of cocaine had been found at numerous sites in Parliament.” According to the AP, “House of Commons Speaker Lindsay Hoyle said he was contacting police after the Sunday Times reported that illegal drugs were being used inside Parliament buildings.” The Sunday Times “said tests using drug detection wipes found traces of cocaine in 11 locations that are only accessible by accredited parliamentary lawmakers, staff and journalists, including a washroom near Prime Minister Boris Johnson’s parliamentary office.”

Reports Say Opioid Overdoses In Indigenous Communities Increased Sharply During Pandemic

CBC (CAN) (12/6) reports, “A pair of new reports show that opioid-related deaths among First Nations people in the province increased 132 per cent during the COVID-19 pandemic, and an Ontario regional chief says governments need to work with Indigenous communities to help fix the problem. The studies from the Chiefs of Ontario and the Ontario Drug Policy Research Network show a 68 per cent increase in opioid-related deaths among non-Indigenous people during the pandemic, but a much higher proportion of fatalities among Indigenous people.”

Israel Increases Oversight Of Cyber Exports

The AP (12/6, Federman) reports Israel's Defense Ministry on Monday "announced that it was tightening supervision over cyber exports" following a "series of scandals involving Israeli spyware company NSO Group." The ministry "said the countries purchasing Israeli cyber technology would have to sign a declaration pledging" to use the products "for the investigation and prevention of terrorist acts and serious crimes only," and that violators could be subject to sanctions, "including limiting the cyber system and/or disconnecting it."

Lawmakers Unveil Bill That Would Expand Access To Opioid Use Disorder Treatment

NBC News (12/6, Caldwell) reports on Monday, Rep. Donald Norcross (D-NJ) and Sen. Ed Markey (D-MA) proposed a bill which “would allow some opioid users in treatment to continue obtaining methadone prescriptions from pharmacies to take at home.” The legislation, the “Opioid Treatment Access Act, takes aim at restrictions on methadone, a leading medication used to treat Opioid Use Disorder, that could return late next year when the take-home flexibility is set to expire.” Prior to “the pandemic, patients had to make daily trips to clinics to receive a single dose of the addiction medication.” When the pandemic began, SAMHSA “allowed opioid treatment programs to dispense 28 days of take-home methadone doses to stable patients to treat opioid use disorder and 14-day doses for less stable patients whom opioid treatment programs have determined can safely handle take-home medication.” The agency “announced an extension of the exemption for one year in November, until late 2022.”

Maryland Legislators Not Voting To Decriminalize Drug Paraphernalia This Week

The Baltimore Sun (12/6, Wood) reports Maryland legislators will not “vote this week to decriminalize paraphernalia used to inject drugs, allowing a veto from Gov. Larry Hogan to stand.” On Monday, “the Maryland Senate opted...to ‘postpone indefinitely’ a decision on a paraphernalia decriminalization bill that the Republican governor vetoed earlier this year.” Currently, “having needles, syringes, cookers or other supplies is punishable by up to four years in prison.” Advocates for “decriminalization note that actual possession of drugs carries a more lenient penalty of up to one year behind bars.”

Washington State Officials Warn Of Local Mental Health Crisis Caused By Police Use-Of-Force Law

Fox News (12/6, Springer) reports, “Mental health officials in Washington state are worried about a mental health crisis that has grown steadily during the COVID-19 pandemic and is now getting even worse because of a new state law aimed at reducing use of force by law enforcement. Since HB 1310 went into effect July 25, the backlog of cases has more than doubled in King County as many agencies no longer send officers on mental health calls unless a crime has been committed.” Fox News adds, “Snohomish County Sheriff Adam Fortney says the police reform law makes it too risky for his deputies even when a judge has signed an order for a person’s involuntary commitment. ‘There comes a point in time when a deputy sheriff has to make a split-second decision,’ Fortney says, ‘We can no longer use force unless there is probable cause for someone’s arrest. Nobody is under arrest with a person in a mental health crisis.’ Frank Crouch, the involuntary commitment coordinator for King County, says designated crisis responders typically have about 60 cases pending. But now the backlog is hitting nearly 140 cases.”

Portland, Oregon Police Tell Residents 911 Response Times May Be Delayed Due To Staffing Shortage, Critical Incidents

Fox News (12/6, Best) reports, “Portland residents may have had delayed response times for their 911 calls on Monday due to a number of ‘critical incidents’ and the police department’s ‘staffing shortage,’ the department tweeted.” Police “were only responding to priority 1 and priority 2 calls, which are for incidents in which a life may be in immediate danger or with a potential for physical injury, as well as major property crimes. Officers were not responding to other incidents, such as any crime in progress that doesn’t pose an immediate danger to persons or property. On Monday morning, police responded to reports of multiple armed carjackings in northern Portland that resulted in one victim being shot. Officers fatally shot the suspect when they arrived at the scene.” The Portland Police Department “said in January that it is facing ‘critical’ staffing shortages ‘due to budget cuts, retirements and separations, and the backlog of needed training for new officers caused by the pandemic.’”

State Police At New Jersey Capitol Boost COVID Rule Enforcement

The AP (12/6, Catalini) reports from Trenton, New Jersey, “New Jersey State Police stepped up enforcement Monday of a requirement that statehouse visitors show proof of a COVID-19 vaccination or a negative test.” According to the AP, “Troopers stood guard at entrances around the statehouse complex, including little-used doorways where no state police presence is typically present. Troopers routed visitors – even those with statehouse badges who work in the complex – to a single entrance where they were directed to show vaccination proof and undergo a temperature screening. Later in the day, they put up large orange barriers and put up new signs saying that certain entrances were for lawmakers only, or lawmakers and staff only.” The AP adds, “The stepped-up enforcement comes after confusion broke out last week when Republican Assembly members defied the requirement and attempted to gain access to the Assembly chamber.”

Security, Crime, and Drugs

DOJ Closes Investigation Into Death Of Emmett Till

The AP (12/6, Balsamo, Pettus) reports the Justice Department “told relatives of Emmett Till on Monday that it is ending its investigation into the 1955 lynching of the Black teenager from Chicago who was abducted, tortured and killed after witnesses said he whistled at a white woman in Mississippi.” On its website, CNN (12/6, Jarrett) reports the DOJ had reopened the investigation after professor Timothy Tyson in 2017 “unearthed what appeared to be a key piece of evidence in one of the most haunting and grisly murders of the Jim Crow Era: a recantation from the woman at the center of the case who had accused Till of making sexual advances at her over 60 years ago,” but sources said that when questioned, she “adamantly denied to investigators that she had recanted her testimony.” CNN says the closure of the investigation leaves “more questions after a potentially significant claim from one of the last living witnesses led investigators on a fresh hunt for evidence.”

Prosecutor Criticizes Michigan School Over Preparation To Mass Shooting

The AP (12/6, Callahan, Eggert) reports Oakland County, Michigan Prosecutor Karen McDonald, who is “overseeing the case against the student accused in last week’s deadly Michigan school shooting and who took the rare step of charging his parents,” on Monday “left open the possibility...that school officials could also face charges, saying ‘in this case, a lot could have been done different.’” The AP adds McDonald “said the investigation’s findings will determine whether school officials will be charged,” but she “noted that three hours before Ethan Crumbley allegedly opened fire, killing four fellow students and wounding six others and a teacher, the 15-year-old was sent back to class after a meeting between school counselors and his parents over a drawing a teacher found on his desk that included a bullet and the words ‘blood everywhere.’”

British Authorities Call In Police After Newspaper Reported Cocaine In Parliament

The AP (12/6) reports “British parliamentary authorities are calling in the police after a newspaper reported that traces of cocaine had been found at numerous sites in Parliament.” According to the AP, “House of Commons Speaker Lindsay Hoyle said he was contacting police after the Sunday Times reported that illegal drugs were being used inside Parliament buildings.” The Sunday Times “said tests using drug detection wipes found traces of cocaine in 11 locations that are only accessible by accredited parliamentary lawmakers, staff and journalists, including a washroom near Prime Minister Boris Johnson’s parliamentary office.”

Reports Say Opioid Overdoses In Indigenous Communities Increased Sharply During Pandemic

CBC (CAN) (12/6) reports, “A pair of new reports show that opioid-related deaths among First Nations people in the province increased 132 per cent during the COVID-19 pandemic, and an Ontario regional chief says governments need to work with Indigenous communities to help fix the problem. The studies from the Chiefs of Ontario and the Ontario Drug Policy Research Network show a 68 per cent increase in opioid-related deaths among non-Indigenous people during the pandemic, but a much higher proportion of fatalities among Indigenous people.”

Technology

Israel Increases Oversight Of Cyber Exports

The AP (12/6, Federman) reports Israel's Defense Ministry on Monday "announced that it was tightening supervision over cyber exports" following a "series of scandals involving Israeli spyware company NSO Group." The ministry "said the countries purchasing Israeli cyber technology would have to sign a declaration pledging" to use the products "for the investigation and prevention of terrorist acts and serious crimes only," and that violators could be subject to sanctions, "including limiting the cyber system and/or disconnecting it."

White House Says Federal Law Enforcement In Contact With Local Officials About Retail Robberies

Reuters (12/3, Hunnicutt) reports White House Press Secretary Jen Psaki on Friday revealed the Administration “has been in contact with federal law enforcement officials over a string of flash mob “smash and grab” robberies of U.S. retail stores.” Psaki said, “The Justice Department, the FBI and federal law enforcement has been in touch, in contact with jurisdictions where we have seen this high level of retail theft.”

The New York Times (12/3, Corkery, Maheshwari) reports theft “is an ever-present issue for retailers,” but “it has become more visible, brazen and violent in recent months, forcing an industry already buffeted by pandemic lockdowns and fights over mask requirements to deal with a new problem.” According to the Times, “Retail executives and security experts link the thefts to a confluence of factors, but primarily the ease with which thieves have been able to resell stolen goods on internet marketplaces like Amazon and Facebook. But even industry veterans, who have been tracking generations of shoplifters, have been stunned by the methods and mind-set of the thieves, saying they reflect a sense of impunity.” Likewise, the Washington Post (12/3, Bhattarai, De Vynck) reports the executives “and security experts say the rise of such robberies – which have gone viral online and in some cases, spurred copycats – is the culmination of several factors, including a shortage of security guards, reluctance by police and prosecutors to pursue shoplifting offenses, and the growing use of social media as an organizational tool. They also coincide with a pullback from pandemic-era protocols that limited the number of people who could enter a store at one time.”

Administration Announces Revised National Action Plan To Combat Human Trafficking

The Hill (12/3, Gangitano) reports the Administration on Friday “released an updated National Action Plan to Combat Human Trafficking, with a new focus on gender and racial equity and workers’ rights.” The National Security Council “began updating the National Action Plan eight months ago ‘to integrate the President’s core commitment to gender and racial equity,’ a senior administration official said.”

Ban On Bump Stocks Stays Intact Following Tied Appeals Court Vote

The Hill (12/3, Kruzel) reports, “A tie vote by a federal appeals court Friday left intact a Trump-era ban on ‘bump stock’ devices that modify semi-automatic rifles to fire more rapidly.” The Hill also says, “The 8-8 vote by the Cincinnati-based U.S. Court of Appeals for the 6th Circuit affirmed the ruling of a lower court judge who upheld the federal ban in 2019.” Via a statement, Gun Owners of America, “a challenger in the case,” informed The Hill “that it would seek relief in the Supreme Court.” GOA Senior Vice President Erich Pratt said, “The fact that the Sixth Circuit was so divided that it could not even give us an answer to our question means that the Supreme Court must eventually decide whether unelected (Bureau of Alcohol, Tobacco and Firearms) bureaucrats have the power to create new federal crimes out of thin air.”

Nevada Supreme Court: Firearms Manufacturers Not Liable For 2017 Shooting In Las Vegas

The Wall Street Journal (12/3, Calfas, Subscription Publication) reports the Nevada Supreme Court determined that firearm producers and distributors don’t have liability for the October 2017 shooting in Las Vegas that left in excess 50 people dead as well as hundreds injured.

DC Expands “Safe Passage” Program In Hopes Program Will Prevent Conflict Involving Commuting Students

The Washington Post (12/3) reports, “D.C. officials announced Friday they will expand a program that hires community members to monitor children on their way to and from school in hopes that it will stop conflict before it potentially becomes violent.” The “Safe Passage” program is going to enable “community-based organizations to hire about 215 adults that will be positioned across six of the city’s eight wards and 47 schools.” DC Mayor Muriel Bowser said via statement, “Our young people deserve to feel safe before, during, and after school, and the Safe Passage program is an important part of our commitment to youth safety.”

Police In California Warn Of Burglars Posing As Landscapers Targeting Asian-American Homes

Fox News (12/5, Sorace) reports, “Burglars in California are appearing to target the homes of Asian-Americans while posing as landscapers in a series of thefts that come amid a rise in follow-home robberies, authorities said last week.” The Torrance, California Police Department “issued a warning on Wednesday about the similarities between multiple residential burglaries that have occurred in recent weeks in Torrance, a city in the Los Angeles Metropolitan area. In these robberies, thieves appeared to target townhomes in gated communities where the homeowners are of Asian descent and own businesses outside of Torrance, police said, adding that the victims may have been followed home. Police said large quantities of cash were kept at the homes.” Fox News adds, “There were three to four suspects in these incidents who all posed as gardeners or landscapers, according to authorities. Police released two photos of suspects wearing wide-

New Crime Reduction Resource for Small, Rural, and Tribal Agencies

To support the crime reduction needs of small, rural, and tribal agencies, the IACP recently published the Evidence-Based Crime Reduction Strategies for Small, Rural, and Tribal Agencies Guide. This resource builds on conversations with police leaders, case studies, promising practices, and evidence-based research, and was developed in collaboration with the COPS Office and George Mason University’s Center for Evidence-Based Crime Policy.

Amid Violent Crime Uptick In Los Angeles, “Some Wonder If This Could Be A Turning Point For California”

The Los Angeles Times (12/4, Rector, Winton, Campa) says that while aggregate crime rates in Los Angeles are still significantly “below records set during the notorious gang wars of the 1990s, violent crime has jumped sharply in L.A., as it has in other cities.” The bulk of the violence has happened in impoverished “communities and among vulnerable populations,” though, “since the start of the pandemic and more rapidly in recent months, crime has crept up in wealthier enclaves and thrust its way to the center of public discourse in L.A.” The Times adds that “some wonder if this could be a turning point for California, which for decades has been at the center of the movement for criminal justice reform.”

Kansas City Law Enforcement Probing Vandalism At Jewish Education Center

The AP (12/4) reports, “Kansas City police continue to investigate vandalism at a Jewish community and educational center on the city’s upscale Country Club Plaza.” Rabbi Yitzchak Itkin “said vandals who hit the Chabad on the Plaza Tuesday morning threw papers and books around, tore out electric wires and caused water damage throughout the building.” The AP also says that the vandalism “occurred in the midst of the Jewish Hanukkah holiday.”

Parents Of Michigan School Shooting Suspect Taken Into Custody

The New York Times (12/4, Mullany, Medina, Kasakove) reports, “The parents of a Michigan teenager who the police say fatally shot four classmates in the halls of Oxford High School in suburban Detroit were arrested early Saturday after being the subject of an intense manhunt.” James and Jennifer Crumbley “were taken into custody in a commercial building in Detroit after the police received a tip that led them to the location, officials said.” They were arrested “a day after they were charged with involuntary manslaughter in the deaths, failed to show up for their arraignment and apparently fled town.” The Times goes on to say, “The couple were charged in the students’ deaths after officials said their son, Ethan Crumbley, 15, carried out the shootings on Tuesday using a handgun his parents had bought for him.”

The Washington Post (12/4, A1) says Oxford, Michigan “awoke Saturday to sunny skies, a chilly breeze and one tiny stitch of closure in the gaping chasm of grief ripped open here days before,” with that “stitch” coming in the form of the arrests of Ethan Crumbley’s parents. However, the town was additionally “adjusting to the awful new reality that it had become the latest host of an American school shooting, the deadliest since the spring of 2018. The deep sense of peace and safety in this close-knit village has been at least temporarily shattered, residents said, while anger at the accused and questions about how the school handled Crumbley’s behavior ripples through the community.”

Superintendent: Third Party To Probe Occurrences At Oxford High Prior To Shooting. The AP (12/4) reports Oxford Community Schools Superintendent Tim Throne on Saturday indicated that a third party is going to probe occurrences at Oxford High School that happened prior to the deadly shooting. Throne “said in a statement that he called for the outside investigation because parents have asked questions about ‘the school’s version of events leading up to the shooting.’” Said Throne, “It’s critically important to the victims, our staff and our entire community that a full and transparent accounting be made.” The New York Times (12/4, Goldstein, Saul, Kasakove) says Oxford High School’s actions are being examined very closely, “prompting questions about the school’s responsibility, and whether there could be legal repercussions for administrators.”

Syrian Drug Empire Flourishing In The Mediterranean

The New York Times (12/5, Hubbard, Saad) reports, “Powerful associates of Syria’s president, Bashar al-Assad, are making and selling captagon, an illegal amphetamine, creating” a multibillion-dollar operation on the Mediterranean, “eclipsing Syria’s legal exports and turning the country into the world’s newest narcostate.” The Times “found that much of the production and distribution is overseen by the Fourth Armored Division of the Syrian Army, an elite unit commanded by Maher al-Assad, the president’s younger brother and one of Syria’s most powerful men.”

Belgium Confronts Influx Of Cocaine Smuggling

The New York Times (12/4, Peltier) reports that since the 1980s, the port of Antwerp, Belgium “has grown into a sprawling high-security complex over about 47 square miles, with trucks and cranes handling millions of containers a year,” but the facility is “now at the center of a huge intercontinental drug-smuggling operation.” According to the Times, “Europe is in the grip of a growing cocaine problem, officials say: Seized quantities are skyrocketing in big ports like Antwerp, drug-related violence and corruption are on the rise in countries like Belgium and the Netherlands, and cocaine consumption and deaths have increased on the continent.” The Times adds that customs officers in Antwerp “are on track to intercept 100 tons of cocaine this year – up from 66 tons in 2020 – an amount equal to about twice the volume seized in the whole of the European Union 10 years ago.”

Amid Violent Crime Uptick In Los Angeles, “Some Wonder If This Could Be A Turning Point For California”

The Los Angeles Times (12/4, Rector, Winton, Campa) says that while aggregate crime rates in Los Angeles are still significantly “below records set during the notorious gang wars of the 1990s, violent crime has jumped sharply in L.A., as it has in other cities.” The bulk of the violence has happened in impoverished “communities and among vulnerable populations,” though, “since the start of the pandemic and more rapidly in recent months, crime has crept up in wealthier enclaves and thrust its way to the center of public discourse in L.A.” The Times adds that “some wonder if this could be a turning point for California, which for decades has been at the center of the movement for criminal justice reform.”

Kansas City Law Enforcement Probing Vandalism At Jewish Education Center

The AP (12/4) reports, “Kansas City police continue to investigate vandalism at a Jewish community and educational center on the city’s upscale Country Club Plaza.” Rabbi Yitzchak Itkin “said vandals who hit the Chabad on the Plaza Tuesday morning threw papers and books around, tore out electric wires and caused water damage throughout the building.” The AP also says that the vandalism “occurred in the midst of the Jewish Hanukkah holiday.”

Parents Of Michigan School Shooting Suspect Taken Into Custody

The New York Times (12/4, Mullany, Medina, Kasakove) reports, “The parents of a Michigan teenager who the police say fatally shot four classmates in the halls of Oxford High School in suburban Detroit were arrested early Saturday after being the subject of an intense manhunt.” James and Jennifer Crumbley “were taken into custody in a commercial building in Detroit after the police received a tip that led them to the location, officials said.” They were arrested “a day after they were charged with involuntary manslaughter in the deaths, failed to show up for their arraignment and apparently fled town.” The Times goes on to say, “The couple were charged in the students’ deaths after officials said their son, Ethan Crumbley, 15, carried out the shootings on Tuesday using a handgun his parents had bought for him.”

The Washington Post (12/4, A1) says Oxford, Michigan “awoke Saturday to sunny skies, a chilly breeze and one tiny stitch of closure in the gaping chasm of grief ripped open here days before,” with that “stitch” coming in the form of the arrests of Ethan Crumbley’s parents. However, the town was additionally “adjusting to the awful new reality that it had become the latest host of an American school shooting, the deadliest since the spring of 2018. The deep sense of peace and safety in this close-knit village has been at least temporarily shattered, residents said, while anger at the accused and questions about how the school handled Crumbley’s behavior ripples through the community.”

Superintendent: Third Party To Probe Occurrences At Oxford High Prior To Shooting. The AP (12/4) reports Oxford Community Schools Superintendent Tim Throne on Saturday indicated that a third party is going to probe occurrences at Oxford High School that happened prior to the deadly shooting. Throne “said in a statement that he called for the outside investigation because parents have asked questions about ‘the school’s version of events leading up to the shooting.’” Said Throne, “It’s critically important to the victims, our staff and our entire community that a full and transparent accounting be made.” The New York Times (12/4, Goldstein, Saul, Kasakove) says Oxford High School’s actions are being examined very closely, “prompting questions about the school’s responsibility, and whether there could be legal repercussions for administrators.”

Syrian Drug Empire Flourishing In The Mediterranean

The New York Times (12/5, Hubbard, Saad) reports, “Powerful associates of Syria’s president, Bashar al-Assad, are making and selling captagon, an illegal amphetamine, creating” a multibillion-dollar operation on the Mediterranean, “eclipsing Syria’s legal exports and turning the country into the world’s newest narcostate.” The Times “found that much of the production and distribution is overseen by the Fourth Armored Division of the Syrian Army, an elite unit commanded by Maher al-Assad, the president’s younger brother and one of Syria’s most powerful men.”

Belgium Confronts Influx Of Cocaine Smuggling

The New York Times (12/4, Peltier) reports that since the 1980s, the port of Antwerp, Belgium “has grown into a sprawling high-security complex over about 47 square miles, with trucks and cranes handling millions of containers a year,” but the facility is “now at the center of a huge intercontinental drug-smuggling operation.” According to the Times, “Europe is in the grip of a growing cocaine problem, officials say: Seized quantities are skyrocketing in big ports like Antwerp, drug-related violence and corruption are on the rise in countries like Belgium and the Netherlands, and cocaine consumption and deaths have increased on the continent.” The Times adds that customs officers in Antwerp “are on track to intercept 100 tons of cocaine this year – up from 66 tons in 2020 – an amount equal to about twice the volume seized in the whole of the European Union 10 years ago.”

White House Says Federal Law Enforcement In Contact With Local Officials About Retail Robberies

Reuters (12/3, Hunnicutt) reports White House Press Secretary Jen Psaki on Friday revealed the Administration “has been in contact with federal law enforcement officials over a string of flash mob “smash and grab” robberies of U.S. retail stores.” Psaki said, “The Justice Department, the FBI and federal law enforcement has been in touch, in contact with jurisdictions where we have seen this high level of retail theft.”

The New York Times (12/3, Corkery, Maheshwari) reports theft “is an ever-present issue for retailers,” but “it has become more visible, brazen and violent in recent months, forcing an industry already buffeted by pandemic lockdowns and fights over mask requirements to deal with a new problem.” According to the Times, “Retail executives and security experts link the thefts to a confluence of factors, but primarily the ease with which thieves have been able to resell stolen goods on internet marketplaces like Amazon and Facebook. But even industry veterans, who have been tracking generations of shoplifters, have been stunned by the methods and mind-set of the thieves, saying they reflect a sense of impunity.” Likewise, the Washington Post (12/3, Bhattarai, De Vynck) reports the executives “and security experts say the rise of such robberies – which have gone viral online and in some cases, spurred copycats – is the culmination of several factors, including a shortage of security guards, reluctance by police and prosecutors to pursue shoplifting offenses, and the growing use of social media as an organizational tool. They also coincide with a pullback from pandemic-era protocols that limited the number of people who could enter a store at one time.”

Administration Announces Revised National Action Plan To Combat Human Trafficking

The Hill (12/3, Gangitano) reports the Administration on Friday “released an updated National Action Plan to Combat Human Trafficking, with a new focus on gender and racial equity and workers’ rights.” The National Security Council “began updating the National Action Plan eight months ago ‘to integrate the President’s core commitment to gender and racial equity,’ a senior administration official said.”

Ban On Bump Stocks Stays Intact Following Tied Appeals Court Vote

The Hill (12/3, Kruzel) reports, “A tie vote by a federal appeals court Friday left intact a Trump-era ban on ‘bump stock’ devices that modify semi-automatic rifles to fire more rapidly.” The Hill also says, “The 8-8 vote by the Cincinnati-based U.S. Court of Appeals for the 6th Circuit affirmed the ruling of a lower court judge who upheld the federal ban in 2019.” Via a statement, Gun Owners of America, “a challenger in the case,” informed The Hill “that it would seek relief in the Supreme Court.” GOA Senior Vice President Erich Pratt said, “The fact that the Sixth Circuit was so divided that it could not even give us an answer to our question means that the Supreme Court must eventually decide whether unelected (Bureau of Alcohol, Tobacco and Firearms) bureaucrats have the power to create new federal crimes out of thin air.”

Nevada Supreme Court: Firearms Manufacturers Not Liable For 2017 Shooting In Las Vegas

The Wall Street Journal (12/3, Calfas, Subscription Publication) reports the Nevada Supreme Court determined that firearm producers and distributors don’t have liability for the October 2017 shooting in Las Vegas that left in excess 50 people dead as well as hundreds injured.

DC Expands “Safe Passage” Program In Hopes Program Will Prevent Conflict Involving Commuting Students

The Washington Post (12/3) reports, “D.C. officials announced Friday they will expand a program that hires community members to monitor children on their way to and from school in hopes that it will stop conflict before it potentially becomes violent.” The “Safe Passage” program is going to enable “community-based organizations to hire about 215 adults that will be positioned across six of the city’s eight wards and 47 schools.” DC Mayor Muriel Bowser said via statement, “Our young people deserve to feel safe before, during, and after school, and the Safe Passage program is an important part of our commitment to youth safety.”

Police In California Warn Of Burglars Posing As Landscapers Targeting Asian-American Homes

Fox News (12/5, Sorace) reports, “Burglars in California are appearing to target the homes of Asian-Americans while posing as landscapers in a series of thefts that come amid a rise in follow-home robberies, authorities said last week.” The Torrance, California Police Department “issued a warning on Wednesday about the similarities between multiple residential burglaries that have occurred in recent weeks in Torrance, a city in the Los Angeles Metropolitan area. In these robberies, thieves appeared to target townhomes in gated communities where the homeowners are of Asian descent and own businesses outside of Torrance, police said, adding that the victims may have been followed home. Police said large quantities of cash were kept at the homes.” Fox News adds, “There were three to four suspects in these incidents who all posed as gardeners or landscapers, according to authorities. Police released two photos of suspects wearing wide-

Free Speech Makes Threats Difficult To Police Amid Surge Of Death Threats

USA Today (12/2) reports, "As national politics grow more volatile, death threats are surging against public figures and officials." Today reports "legal experts say prosecutions are rare because of the difficulty deciding what counts as a true threat and court rulings meant to protect free speech." Today says those who "promote First Amendment rights...struggle to draw a line between free expression and criminal acts." The dilemma "is compounded by the United States Supreme Court's failure to clarify which threats are punishable offenses and which are protected." As a result, "police seldom arrest suspects, prosecutors rarely file charges and perpetrators keep making threats." Today says this "leaves election officers, educators, journalists, public health officials, police officers and others fending for themselves."

President Lays Out Plan To Battle Pandemic Ahead Of Potential Winter Surge

The New York Times (12/2, Stolberg) reports President Biden, “confronting a worrisome new coronavirus variant and the potential of a winter surge, laid out a new pandemic strategy on Thursday that includes hundreds of vaccination sites aimed at families, boosters for all adults, new testing requirements for international travelers and free at-home tests that will be covered by private insurers or available at community health centers.” The Washington Post (12/2, A1, Diamond, Sun, Pager) reports Biden “formally unveiled the plan at the National Institutes of Health on Thursday afternoon in a speech that sought to reassure Americans and also rally them around a common enemy.” The President said, “This is a moment we can put the divisiveness behind us I hope,” adding, “This is a moment we can do what we haven’t been able to do enough of through this whole pandemic: Get the nation to come together.”

The AP (12/2, Miller, Jaffe) reports Biden said, “My plan I’m announcing today pulls no punches in the fight against COVID-19, and it’s a plan that I think should unite us.” Roll Call (12/2, McIntire, Cohen) reports the President “wants to get the nation as protected as possible while scientists work to learn more about the omicron variant’s transmissibility and whether it can evade vaccine protection.”

Politico: President Avoiding Most Stringent Measures. Politico (12/2, Cancryn, Lemire) reports the President “has staked his presidency on defeating the pandemic. But nearly a year into his term, the administration is crashing into the limits of its power to end the nation’s fight against Covid-19. And in the few places where it could go further, it seems unwilling to do so, as of now.” For example, the President is “stopping short of the more aggressive measures that health experts believe would more quickly rein in the pandemic — like vaccine mandates for domestic travel, more rigorous public health restrictions and enforced quarantines — wary of further inflaming GOP opposition and demoralizing an exhausted public.”

Washington, DC On Track To Issue Electronic Versions Of Driver’s Licenses

The Washington Post (12/2) reports that residents of Washington, DC “could soon carry a digital version of their driver’s license or identification card on their phones, using it to enter a bar, a government building or when pulled over by police.” The DC Council “is poised this month to approve legislation that would allow the city to issue electronic driver’s licenses and IDs, joining a growing number of states – including Maryland and Virginia – that are embracing digital credentials. The legislation would allow people to present identification in an electronic format, such as on a smartphone, instead of a physical credential, except when prohibited by federal law.” According to the Post, “Technology in recent years has allowed people to use phones to store credit cards, boarding passes, concert tickets and proof of coronavirus vaccinations. Going digital for driver’s licenses is inevitable, transportation officials say, noting that in many jurisdictions, such as the District, residents already provide proof of insurance and car registration through apps.”

Michigan Lawmakers Back Increase In Funding For School Resource Officers

The AP (12/2, Merlan) reports, “The Michigan House passed a $368.5 million public safety and police funding plan Thursday for fiscal year 2021-2022, increased from its $80 million plan proposed in May.” Under the plan, school resource officers will receive an “increase to $50 million in funding.” The spending plan “passed with bipartisan support 97-3 and will now head to the state Senate for approval.”

Michigan House Passes $368.5M In Public Safety Funding

The AP (12/2, Merlan) reports, “The Michigan House passed a $368.5 million public safety and police funding plan Thursday for fiscal year 2021-2022, increased from its $80 million plan proposed in May. One area that got more funding is school resource officers, who work either full-time or part-time in schools with the aim of ensuring students, teachers and staff’s safety.” According to the AP, “The spending plan includes over $80 million to recruit and retain officers with bonuses and marketing, including $57.5 million designated to entice out-of-state officers through ‘Move to Michigan’ incentives. New officers and first responders could be offered up to $5,000 in signing bonuses under the spending plan. Current officers and first responders could be offered up to $5,000 in retention bonuses. Other funding includes $40 million from federal COVID-19 relief money to offer scholarships of up to $20,000 per recruit to attend police academy and up to $4,000 stipends to recruits while they’re attending.”

Colorado Panel Recommends New Rules And More Oversight In Use of Ketamine

The Denver Post (12/1, Burness) reports, “An expert panel convened by Colorado’s health department released a report Wednesday that found the sedative ketamine ‘is a safe drug’ if used under specific circumstances, but recommended several steps the state should take to reduce medical harms and racist outcomes.” The panel met following the death of Elijah McClain, but its “members were not asked to evaluate McClain’s case in particular, but rather to probe whether and how the drug can be safely used in emergency settings in the future.” The recommendations in the panel’s 126-page report (PDF) include “Crafting standard doses based on body structure — small, medium or large — of subjects,” “standardizing ketamine practices among all emergency medical services providers through new statewide oversight,” among others. The panel concluded that it “agreed that ketamine is a safe drug if used properly and monitored closely by properly trained and qualified paramedics.”

Seattle Struggles To Provide Staffing For 911 Calls

KOMO-TV Seattle (12/1, Moreno) reports that in Seattle, “calls for help are sometimes meeting long delays as the city’s 911 system finds itself understaffed and overwhelmed,” noting that the average call is picked up “within 11 seconds. However, 5% of all calls can take more than 40 seconds just to hear a dispatcher’s voice.” Chris Lombard, the interim director of Seattle’s Community Safety and Communications Center, said “We try to find the most critical, the life-safety type events and push those to the top of the list to get officers... Unfortunately what that means is that a lot of your lower priority calls just don’t get answered or don’t get an officer as

Sheriff: Sixty Michigan Schools Close Under “Flood” Of Copycat Threats

MLive (MI) (12/2, Burns) reports in the aftermath of the “Oxford High School shooting that led to the death of four students Tuesday, ‘a flood’ of ‘completely false, intentional’ threats have resulted in the closures of at least 60 Michigan schools, Oakland County Sheriff Michael Bouchard said Thursday.” The sheriff added, “It’s overrunning our resources to investigate these false threats,” and that, “If you’re making threats, we will find you.” The FBI is assisting “the Oakland County Sheriff’s Office with investigations into copycat threats.” Timothy Waters, the special agent in charge of FBI Detroit Field Office, “said his office has investigated 25 separate threats since the Tuesday shooting.”

The Detroit News (12/2, Brand-Williams) reports the FBI and the Secret Service “are joining in to help assess claims, [Bouchard] said.” WDIV-TV Detroit (12/2, Hutchinson) reports Bouchard cited “hundreds” of threats reported, and Waters added the FBI has about “40 people working around the clock at the Detroit command post to track down school threats, Waters said.” The Detroit News (12/2) reports the FBI’s Detroit office “released a statement Thursday saying it is aware of threats to area schools and is coordinating with law enforcement,” and authorities in Southfield and “Sterling Heights said Thursday they have made arrests tied to school threats.”

Michigan Prosecutor To Announce Charging Decision For School Shooting Suspect’s Parents “In 24 Hours”

The Washington Post (12/2) reports a Michigan prosecutor “says a decision on whether to file charges against the parents of the Oxford High School shooting suspect could be coming soon.” The Post reports Oakland County Prosecutor Karen McDonald “said she is...weighing charges for Crumbley’s parents and expects to announce her decision in 24 hours.” McDonald said, “Responsible gun owners have a right to possess a gun but with it comes responsibility.”

The AP (12/2) reports the “teenager accused of killing four students at a Michigan high school was called to the office before the shooting but ‘no discipline was warranted,’ the superintendent said Thursday in his first extended remarks since the tragedy.” Superintendent Tim Throne said, “Yes this student did have contact with our front office, and, yes, his parents were on campus Nov. 30.” Throne said “he couldn’t immediately release additional details.” The AP reports Throne “said he was asking the sheriff’s office to publicly release school video from Tuesday.”

Police In Thunder Bay Seize More Than $700K In Illegal Drugs

CBC (CAN) (12/2). “Five people from the Greater Toronto Area (GTA), and two from Thunder Bay, are facing charges after police seized hundreds of thousands of dollars in illegal drugs from two Thunder Bay homes. The seizures came after police obtained search warrants for two Thunder Bay residences – located on Balsam Street and County Boulevard – as part of an investigation into suspected drug trafficking in the city involving people from the GTA.”

Arrests Made In String Of Grab-And-Go Jewelry Thefts In Canada

The Calgary (CAN) Herald (12/2) reports, “Two men were arrested in Calgary last week in relation to five jewelry store robberies in Calgary, Airdrie and Red Deer. The Southern Alberta Crime Reduction Unit (SACRU) broke the case Nov. 24 when officers spotted a sedan believed to have been used in a robbery at a jewelry store earlier that day in Red Deer.” The Herald adds, “Investigators followed the vehicle, with help from the Calgary Police Service HAWCS helicopter, to a residence in Calgary’s northeast. Armed with a search warrant, police entered the home and found a ring worth $2,500 that had been stolen earlier in the day. Officers also seized a Nissan Maxima, a peace officer’s uniform, several pieces of stolen identification, and other items not related to the Nov. 24 theft, including small amounts of cocaine and meth.”

Washington Police Investigating “Deeply Disturbing” Potential School Board Meeting Hate Crime

The Washington Post (12/2) reports, “The Black superintendent of a Washington state school district was speaking to a mix of in-person and online board meeting attendees last month when he was suddenly interrupted. Someone with an image of George Floyd in their frame unmuted their microphone and played a looped recording of racial slurs — an act known as ‘Zoom-bombing.’” USA Today (12/2, Fernando) reports local police are now “investigating the ‘deeply disturbing’ Nov. 22 incident of what is often referred to as ‘Zoom-bombing’ as a possible hate crime, the department said in a Wednesday statement.”

Also reporting is the AP (12/2).

Free Speech Makes Threats Difficult To Police Amid Surge Of Death Threats

USA Today (12/2) reports, "As national politics grow more volatile, death threats are surging against public figures and officials." Today reports "legal experts say prosecutions are rare because of the difficulty deciding what counts as a true threat and court rulings meant to protect free speech." Today says those who "promote First Amendment rights...struggle to draw a line between free expression and criminal acts." The dilemma "is compounded by the United States Supreme Court's failure to clarify which threats are punishable offenses and which are protected." As a result, "police seldom arrest suspects, prosecutors rarely file charges and perpetrators keep making threats." Today says this "leaves election officers, educators, journalists, public health officials, police officers and others fending for themselves."

President Lays Out Plan To Battle Pandemic Ahead Of Potential Winter Surge

The New York Times (12/2, Stolberg) reports President Biden, “confronting a worrisome new coronavirus variant and the potential of a winter surge, laid out a new pandemic strategy on Thursday that includes hundreds of vaccination sites aimed at families, boosters for all adults, new testing requirements for international travelers and free at-home tests that will be covered by private insurers or available at community health centers.” The Washington Post (12/2, A1, Diamond, Sun, Pager) reports Biden “formally unveiled the plan at the National Institutes of Health on Thursday afternoon in a speech that sought to reassure Americans and also rally them around a common enemy.” The President said, “This is a moment we can put the divisiveness behind us I hope,” adding, “This is a moment we can do what we haven’t been able to do enough of through this whole pandemic: Get the nation to come together.”

The AP (12/2, Miller, Jaffe) reports Biden said, “My plan I’m announcing today pulls no punches in the fight against COVID-19, and it’s a plan that I think should unite us.” Roll Call (12/2, McIntire, Cohen) reports the President “wants to get the nation as protected as possible while scientists work to learn more about the omicron variant’s transmissibility and whether it can evade vaccine protection.”

Politico: President Avoiding Most Stringent Measures. Politico (12/2, Cancryn, Lemire) reports the President “has staked his presidency on defeating the pandemic. But nearly a year into his term, the administration is crashing into the limits of its power to end the nation’s fight against Covid-19. And in the few places where it could go further, it seems unwilling to do so, as of now.” For example, the President is “stopping short of the more aggressive measures that health experts believe would more quickly rein in the pandemic — like vaccine mandates for domestic travel, more rigorous public health restrictions and enforced quarantines — wary of further inflaming GOP opposition and demoralizing an exhausted public.”

Washington, DC On Track To Issue Electronic Versions Of Driver’s Licenses

The Washington Post (12/2) reports that residents of Washington, DC “could soon carry a digital version of their driver’s license or identification card on their phones, using it to enter a bar, a government building or when pulled over by police.” The DC Council “is poised this month to approve legislation that would allow the city to issue electronic driver’s licenses and IDs, joining a growing number of states – including Maryland and Virginia – that are embracing digital credentials. The legislation would allow people to present identification in an electronic format, such as on a smartphone, instead of a physical credential, except when prohibited by federal law.” According to the Post, “Technology in recent years has allowed people to use phones to store credit cards, boarding passes, concert tickets and proof of coronavirus vaccinations. Going digital for driver’s licenses is inevitable, transportation officials say, noting that in many jurisdictions, such

Michigan Lawmakers Back Increase In Funding For School Resource Officers

The AP (12/2, Merlan) reports, “The Michigan House passed a $368.5 million public safety and police funding plan Thursday for fiscal year 2021-2022, increased from its $80 million plan proposed in May.” Under the plan, school resource officers will receive an “increase to $50 million in funding.” The spending plan “passed with bipartisan support 97-3 and will now head to the state Senate for approval.”

Michigan House Passes $368.5M In Public Safety Funding

The AP (12/2, Merlan) reports, “The Michigan House passed a $368.5 million public safety and police funding plan Thursday for fiscal year 2021-2022, increased from its $80 million plan proposed in May. One area that got more funding is school resource officers, who work either full-time or part-time in schools with the aim of ensuring students, teachers and staff’s safety.” According to the AP, “The spending plan includes over $80 million to recruit and retain officers with bonuses and marketing, including $57.5 million designated to entice out-of-state officers through ‘Move to Michigan’ incentives. New officers and first responders could be offered up to $5,000 in signing bonuses under the spending plan. Current officers and first responders could be offered up to $5,000 in retention bonuses. Other funding includes $40 million from federal COVID-19 relief money to offer scholarships of up to $20,000 per recruit to attend police academy and up to $4,000 stipends to recruits while they’re attending.”

Colorado Panel Recommends New Rules And More Oversight In Use of Ketamine

The Denver Post (12/1, Burness) reports, “An expert panel convened by Colorado’s health department released a report Wednesday that found the sedative ketamine ‘is a safe drug’ if used under specific circumstances, but recommended several steps the state should take to reduce medical harms and racist outcomes.” The panel met following the death of Elijah McClain, but its “members were not asked to evaluate McClain’s case in particular, but rather to probe whether and how the drug can be safely used in emergency settings in the future.” The recommendations in the panel’s 126-page report (PDF) include “Crafting standard doses based on body structure — small, medium or large — of subjects,” “standardizing ketamine practices among all emergency medical services providers through new statewide oversight,” among others. The panel concluded that it “agreed that ketamine is a safe drug if used properly and monitored closely by properly trained and qualified paramedics.”

Seattle Struggles To Provide Staffing For 911 Calls

KOMO-TV Seattle (12/1, Moreno) reports that in Seattle, “calls for help are sometimes meeting long delays as the city’s 911 system finds itself understaffed and overwhelmed,” noting that the average call is picked up “within 11 seconds. However, 5% of all calls can take more than 40 seconds just to hear a dispatcher’s voice.” Chris Lombard, the interim director of Seattle’s Community Safety and Communications Center, said “We try to find the most critical, the life-safety type events and push those to the top of the list to get officers... Unfortunately what that means is that a lot of your lower priority calls just don’t get answered or don’t get an officer as

Weekly Bulletin | December 2, 2021

Illinois' Voice of Professional Law Enforcement

In the news: CVS partners with law enforcement to prevent pharmacy theft

ILACP President Mitch Davis praised the action taken by CVS in adding time-delay safes in nearly 400 locations across the state to proactively address pharmacy thefts that contribute to the opioid crisis.

"While methods of illegal acquisition of opioids consistently evolve, collaborative prevention efforts from everyone involved in this partnership have to keep pace. I want to applaud CVS for identifying a problem and providing a solution through the implementation of their new time delayed safe systems," he said.

"I also want to thank Attorney General Raul for his continued leadership in the pooling of resources and promotion of partnerships that will help law enforcement to better serve all communities. Thank you."

Metropolis Department of Public Safety director keynote speaker at veteran event
Chief Harry Masse, Metropolis Department of Public Safety director, was the keynote speaker at the annual American Legion Post 306 Veterans Day Program in Massac County on Nov. 11. Masse served in the Army for three years of active duty, 1977-1980, as a military policeman in the MP Corps and for five years in the reserves. He became Metropolis police chief on March 2, 2012. When the Metropolis City Council combined police and fire departments in August 2017, Masse was appointed to Director of Public Safety.

LE unified in recommendations for Qualified Immunity

The Task Force on Constitutional Rights and Remedies met again Nov. 29, the deadline for submission of any recommendations. The Illinois Chiefs, Illinois Sheriffs, FOP and others strongly recommended not making any changes to qualified immunity in Illinois at this time. They all said that Illinois has just passed comprehensive reform legislation, and its provisions need time for implementation before giving any consideration to providing a state-level remedy for violation of rights.

ILACP Executive Director Ed Wojcicki went one step further and asked the task force to commend law enforcement for actually protecting constitutional rights and civil rights thousands of times a day in Illinois. His data shows that Illinois LE officers respond to a call for service somewhere in Illinois every two seconds, or 38,000 a day, or 14 million times a year, with very few complaints and certainly only a miniscule number of allegations of rights violations. "We should be celebrated for being the first protectors of civil rights everywhere in Illinois," Ed says.

Attached is a document that includes all of the recommendations submitted to the task force, including one by Chris Conrad on behalf of the Illinois Chiefs. Ed created a summary at the beginning, briefly describing what the recommendations say.

Body camera training wraps up in Springfield today

Thank you to everyone who helped make the body camera training series a success. ILACP had almost 250 people at the three training sessions. Chiefs Ana Lalley, Pat Kreis, Kenny Winslow and Steve Johnson dedicated a great deal of time to handle these trainings for us and we are very grateful for their knowledge and hard work. We are also thankful for our sponsors: Axon, Genetec and Motorola Solutions. ILACP's homepage will be updated soon with links to these training materials for all members to access.

Two candidates running for April's election for ILACP vice president

Reminder: Last month, Chief John Bucci of Algonquin and Chief David Wermes of Wauconda have submitted letters of nomination to run for 3rd Vice President of the Illinois Association of Chiefs of Police in the 2022 election. We will have elections for two vice president positions in 2022. The is a statewide position and the winner will be in line to become ILACP President in April 2025.

When there is more than one candidate, we conduct an online election. The Executive Board at its December meeting determines the specific criteria for the election process. Most likely, the election will take place electronically from April 25-28, 2022, and the winner will be installed on Friday evening, April 29, 2022, during a banquet at the conclusion of the Annual Conference in Northbrook.

The deadline for filing to be a candidate is February 27, which is 60 days before the beginning of the Annual Conference on April 27-29 in Northbrook. If you have any questions about this, ask any member of the Board of Officers. Visit our website to read their letters of nomination.

This week's "Three Things" includes personal update

ILACP's weekly update did not include a video this week, but it did share a personal update from Executive Director Ed Wojcicki who has been healing from some medical difficulties in recent weeks. The weekly update also covers some items going on at the association now. If you missed this week's email, click below to read the full update on the website.

Message from President Mitch Davis about the power of ILACP

Weekly Bulletin | December 2, 2021

Illinois' Voice of Professional Law Enforcement

In the news: CVS partners with law enforcement to prevent pharmacy theft

ILACP President Mitch Davis praised the action taken by CVS in adding time-delay safes in nearly 400 locations across the state to proactively address pharmacy thefts that contribute to the opioid crisis.

"While methods of illegal acquisition of opioids consistently evolve, collaborative prevention efforts from everyone involved in this partnership have to keep pace. I want to applaud CVS for identifying a problem and providing a solution through the implementation of their new time delayed safe systems," he said.

"I also want to thank Attorney General Raul for his continued leadership in the pooling of resources and promotion of partnerships that will help law enforcement to better serve all communities. Thank you."

Metropolis Department of Public Safety director keynote speaker at veteran event
Chief Harry Masse, Metropolis Department of Public Safety director, was the keynote speaker at the annual American Legion Post 306 Veterans Day Program in Massac County on Nov. 11. Masse served in the Army for three years of active duty, 1977-1980, as a military policeman in the MP Corps and for five years in the reserves. He became Metropolis police chief on March 2, 2012. When the Metropolis City Council combined police and fire departments in August 2017, Masse was appointed to Director of Public Safety.

LE unified in recommendations for Qualified Immunity

The Task Force on Constitutional Rights and Remedies met again Nov. 29, the deadline for submission of any recommendations. The Illinois Chiefs, Illinois Sheriffs, FOP and others strongly recommended not making any changes to qualified immunity in Illinois at this time. They all said that Illinois has just passed comprehensive reform legislation, and its provisions need time for implementation before giving any consideration to providing a state-level remedy for violation of rights.

ILACP Executive Director Ed Wojcicki went one step further and asked the task force to commend law enforcement for actually protecting constitutional rights and civil rights thousands of times a day in Illinois. His data shows that Illinois LE officers respond to a call for service somewhere in Illinois every two seconds, or 38,000 a day, or 14 million times a year, with very few complaints and certainly only a miniscule number of allegations of rights violations. "We should be celebrated for being the first protectors of civil rights everywhere in Illinois," Ed says.

Attached is a document that includes all of the recommendations submitted to the task force, including one by Chris Conrad on behalf of the Illinois Chiefs. Ed created a summary at the beginning, briefly describing what the recommendations say.

Body camera training wraps up in Springfield today

Thank you to everyone who helped make the body camera training series a success. ILACP had almost 250 people at the three training sessions. Chiefs Ana Lalley, Pat Kreis, Kenny Winslow and Steve Johnson dedicated a great deal of time to handle these trainings for us and we are very grateful for their knowledge and hard work. We are also thankful for our sponsors: Axon, Genetec and Motorola Solutions. ILACP's homepage will be updated soon with links to these training materials for all members to access.

Two candidates running for April's election for ILACP vice president

Reminder: Last month, Chief John Bucci of Algonquin and Chief David Wermes of Wauconda have submitted letters of nomination to run for 3rd Vice President of the Illinois Association of Chiefs of Police in the 2022 election. We will have elections for two vice president positions in 2022. There is a statewide position and the winner will be in line to become ILACP President in April 2025.

When there is more than one candidate, we conduct an online election. The Executive Board at its December meeting determines the specific criteria for the election process. Most likely, the election will take place electronically from April 25-28, 2022, and the winner will be installed on Friday evening, April 29, 2022, during a banquet at the conclusion of the Annual Conference in Northbrook.

The deadline for filing to be a candidate is February 27, which is 60 days before the beginning of the Annual Conference on April 27-29 in Northbrook. If you have any questions about this, ask any member of the Board of Officers. Visit our website to read their letters of nomination.

This week's "Three Things" includes personal update

ILACP's weekly update did not include a video this week, but it did share a personal update from Executive Director Ed Wojcicki who has been healing from some medical difficulties in recent weeks. The weekly update also covers some items going on at the association now. If you missed this week's email, click below to read the full update on the website.

River Grove chief honored as certified police chief

On Nov. 18, Chief Michael Konwinski of River Grove Police Department was presented a plaque for recently completing ILACP's Police Chief Certification program. The award was presented by Chief Frank Kaminski (Park Ridge), ILACP parliamentarian, in a special ceremony.

In case you missed it: Command Magazine: November 2021 issue available online

In the newest issue, the Illinois Chiefs examine the power of police culture and ending 'us against them' mindset. Several association leaders contributed articles on the topic including President Mitchell R. Davis III; Chuck Wexler, executive director of the Police Executive Research Forum; and Aurora Chief (Ret.) Kristen Ziman. Print copies are in the mail now and should be reaching members shortly.

California Governor: Prosecute Shoplifters Under Existing Laws

The AP (12/1, Thompson) reports that California Gov. Gavin Newsom “said Wednesday in no uncertain terms that he thinks shoplifters should be prosecuted under existing California laws, as he called out local officials whom he said have been reluctant to do so.” Newsom “was responding to a recent run of large-scale thefts in California and across the nation in which groups of individuals shoplift en masse from stores or smash and grab from display cases. Single operators have also been a growing [problem] for retailers who say the thieves face little consequence.” Newsom “promised that the proposed budget he sends to state lawmakers next month will ‘significantly increase our efforts to go after these retail rings.’” Attorney General Rob Bonta “separately made similar get-tough comments Wednesday. Both defended Proposition 47, a ballot measure approved by California voters in 2014 that reduced certain theft and drug possession offenses from felonies to misdemeanors.”

Biden Unveils New HIV/AIDS Strategy Involving Greater Emphasis On Syringe Service Programs

The AP (12/1, Madhani) reports that on Wednesday, President Biden “unveiled his new HIV/AIDS strategy to end the more than 40-year-old epidemic, calling for a renewed focus on vulnerable Americans – including gay and bisexual Black and Latino men, who his administration says are too often stigmatized even as they are disproportionately affected.” The new strategy “declares racism a ‘public health threat.’” In addition to “addressing racism’s impact on Americans battling the virus or at risk of contracting it, the new strategy also puts greater emphasis on harm reduction and syringe service programs.”

US, Mexico To Launch Joint Plan To Contain Central America Migration

Reuters (12/1) reports from Mexico City, “The Mexican and U.S. international development agencies will work together on a project in Guatemala, Honduras and El Salvador aimed at alleviating the root causes of migration, Mexico’s foreign ministry said on Wednesday.” According to Reuters, “Dubbed ‘Planting Opportunities,’ the project will bring together the Mexican Agency for International Development Cooperation (Amexcid) and the United States Agency for International Development (USAID) to target the so-called Northern Triangle countries of Central America.” Reuters adds, “Migration from the three countries has fueled record numbers of people being apprehended at the U.S.-Mexico border, and both Mexico and the United States have vowed to tackle the deeper problems behind higher migration levels. The U.S.-Mexico collaboration will begin in Honduras, with an effort to teach job skills to more than 500,000 at-risk youth, the ministry said.”

City Polls Show Public Safety As Priority Over Police Reform

USA Today (12/1, Page) reports, “A comparison of views in Louisville, Kentucky, and Oklahoma City helps explain why changing the way law enforcement works has proved to be so difficult even in the wake of last year’s nationwide protests.” Louisville “has been riven by scrutiny and protests since Breonna Taylor was killed in March 2020 by police officers who used a no-knock warrant to break into her apartment while she slept. In contrast, Oklahoma City continues to register wide public approval of the police even though the state has the highest mortality rate from police violence in the country,” but “while the two cities have different assessments about whether there’s a problem that needs fixing, residents in both worry more about rising crime than police misconduct. In new USA TODAY/Suffolk University CityView polls, they place public safety as a priority well above law enforcement reform.”

Tallahassee, Florida K-9 Cop Sniffs Out Hidden Electronics To Fight Computer Crime

The Tallahassee (FL) Democrat (12/1) reports, “A dog that can find hidden electronic storage devices (ESD) is now working for the Tallahassee office of the Florida Department of Law Enforcement – the first such K-9 cop locally. Rocket, handled by FDLE-Tallahassee Special Agent Aida Limongi, was introduced at a media availability Wednesday.” According to the Democrat, “The 1-year-old black Lab can ‘sniff out anything that can digitally store information, like USB drives, hidden cameras, computers, tablets, thumb drives, cell phones, micro SD cards and SIM cards,’ the department said in a release. The dogs can detect the compounds used in the circuit boards in storage devices. Criminals use such devices to hide evidence, such as child pornography images.”

Oakland, California Lawmaker Proposes Cash Incentives To Attract Experienced Police Officers

The San Francisco Chronicle (12/1, Ravani) reports that as Oakland, California “struggles to respond to a spike in violent crime, one council member is pushing legislation that would offer cash incentives to attract experienced officers and Oakland residents to the police department. The announcement comes as the department grapples with 60 vacant sworn positions due to retirements and moves to other law enforcement departments.” According to the Chronicle, Councilmember Sheng Thao “said she will announce new legislation that will include the incentives at a news conference Thursday. In addition, the legislation will call for partnering with an outside hiring agency that will look nationwide for ‘strongly qualified and experienced lateral police officers.’ The idea, she said in a release, is to improve 911 response time, increase the numbers of visible patrol officers and expand the violence-prevention Ceasefire program.”

Nominate a law enforcement officer employed within Tribal Nations who has performed an act of valor or exceptional service. The International Association of Chiefs of Police is now accepting nominations for the 2022 IACP/FirstNet Indian Country Officer of the Year Award.

Michigan Teen Held Without Bond And Charged For Year’s Deadliest School Shooting

Reuters (12/1) reports Ethan Crumbley – “a 15-year-old sophomore at a high school in Oxford, Michigan” – was ordered “held without bond on Wednesday after being charged with first-degree murder in the deadliest US school shooting of the year, which killed four students and wounded seven other people.” Oakland County Prosecuting Attorney Karen McDonald said, “It was absolutely premeditated.” Reuters reports, “In addition to four counts of first-degree murder, Crumbley faces one count of terrorism causing death, seven counts of assault with intent to murder and 12 counts of possession of a firearm in the commission of a felony, she said.”

Sheriff Provides Updates On Victims’ Conditions. CNN (12/1, Vogt, Sangal, Hammond, Wagner, Macaya) reports Oakland County Sheriff Michael Bouchard “provided updates on the condition of the victims from the Oxford High School shooting.” Bouchard said, “The 17-year-old fourth victim passed today...shortly after 10 a.m., as our fourth decedent to die from gunshot wounds in Tuesday’s senseless shooting.” Bouchard told reporters, “Six students, one teacher, four remain hospitalized, three have now been treated and released.” The Sheriff said a “14-year-old male remains in serious condition with...gunshot wounds to the jaw and hand,” and “a 17-year-old female with neck wounds...is at the local area McLaren Hospital.” The Sheriff continued by saying “a 14-year-old female has improved,” and “has been removed from critical to stable with gunshot wounds to the left chest and neck.” Bouchard said a “17-year-old female ‘still remains in critical condition with a gunshot wound to the chest.’” CNN reports, “Three of the injured have now been discharged, including a 15-year-old male who had a wound to the left leg, a 17-year-old male with a gunshot wound to the hip and a 47-year-old female teacher, who suffered a gunshot wound to her left shoulder, the sheriff said.”

AP Investigation: Military Explosives Missing, Stolen

The AP (12/2, Hall, LaPorta) reports that “hundreds — and possibly thousands — of armor-piercing grenades, hundreds of pounds of plastic explosives, as well as land mines and rockets have been stolen from or lost by the U.S. armed forces over the past decade, according to an ongoing Associated Press investigation into the military’s failure to secure all its weapons of war.” Explosives “have been found in homes and storage units, inside military barracks and alongside roads, even at a US-Mexico border checkpoint.”

Report: Accidental Overdose Was Most Common Cause Of Death Among Unhoused People In Los Angeles During Pandemic

The Guardian (UK) (12/1, Levin) reports that “nearly 1,500 unhoused people are estimated to have died on the streets of Los Angeles during the pandemic, according to a new report.” Written “by researchers from the University of California, Los Angeles (UCLA) and a coalition of unhoused residents, the report analyzed the LA county coroner’s records to identify 1,493 cases of people who died between March 2020 and July 2021 on the streets and were probably unhoused.” The researchers found that “the most common cause of death was accidental overdose.” Almost “40% of the accidental deaths were attributed to drug and alcohol overdoses, mirroring the sharp increase in overdoses in the broader population.”

Fentanyl Test Strips Being Used To Prevent Overdoses, Keep Drug Supply Safer

CNN (12/1, Kounang) reports on fentanyl test strips, which are strips “of paper not much longer than 2 inches” with “the potential to prevent a drug overdose.” The test “strips can detect fentanyl, the deadliest drug in the United States, when it’s mixed with other drugs.” The “test strips were first developed as way to screen for people using fentanyl by testing their urine, but harm reduction groups found a way to utilize the strips to help keep the drug supply safer.” The test “strips cost not much more than a dollar, can be found on Amazon, and are easy to use.”

In an analysis on the topic, CNN (12/1) says that the issue of US drug overdose deaths “needs much more attention.” CNN investigated “fentanyl testing strips” and also noted “New York City this week opened two overdose prevention centers, also known as supervised consumption sites or safe injection sites, where users can receive medical care after injecting themselves with drugs.” These methods are known as “harm reduction’ – giving users safe spaces to shoot drugs or the power to see if what they’re taking contains fentanyl.” They are two “emerging ways to deal with the problem that enables safer drug use rather than rely[ing] on law enforcement.”

Man Arrested After Breaching Security At UK Parliament

The AP (12/1) reports from London, “A man was arrested Wednesday after breaching security at Britain’s Parliament. Photos showed a man being held on the ground inside a gated yard at Parliament while officers stood over him with guns pointed. He was later taken away in a police van.” London’s Metropolitan Police force “said the man was detained on suspicion of trespassing at a protected site. It said the incident was not being treated as terrorism.” The AP adds, “The Houses of Parliament are patrolled by armed police, and security was increased after an officer guarding a gate was stabbed to death by an Islamic State-inspired attacker in March 2017.”

The U.S.-Mexico collaboration will begin in Honduras, with an effort to teach job skills to more than 500,000 at-risk youth, the ministry said.”

City Polls Show Public Safety As Priority Over Police Reform

USA Today (12/1, Page) reports, “A comparison of views in Louisville, Kentucky, and Oklahoma City helps explain why changing the way law enforcement works has proved to be so difficult even in the wake of last year’s nationwide protests.” Louisville “has been riven by scrutiny and protests since Breonna Taylor was killed in March 2020 by police officers who used a no-knock warrant to break into her apartment while she slept. In contrast, Oklahoma City continues to register wide public approval of the police even though the state has the highest mortality rate from police violence in the country,” but “while the two cities have different assessments about whether there’s a problem that needs fixing, residents in both worry more about rising crime than police misconduct. In new USA TODAY/Suffolk University CityView polls, they place public safety as a priority well above law enforcement reform.”

Tallahassee, Florida K-9 Cop Sniffs Out Hidden Electronics To Fight Computer Crime

The Tallahassee (FL) Democrat (12/1) reports, “A dog that can find hidden electronic storage devices (ESD) is now working for the Tallahassee office of the Florida Department of Law Enforcement – the first such K-9 cop locally. Rocket, handled by FDLE-Tallahassee Special Agent Aida Limongi, was introduced at a media availability Wednesday.” According to the Democrat, “The 1-year-old black Lab can ‘sniff out anything that can digitally store information, like USB drives, hidden cameras, computers, tablets, thumb drives, cell phones, micro SD cards and SIM cards,’ the department said in a release. The dogs can detect the compounds used in the circuit boards in storage devices. Criminals use such devices to hide evidence, such as child pornography images.”

Oakland, California Lawmaker Proposes Cash Incentives To Attract Experienced Police Officers

The San Francisco Chronicle (12/1, Ravani) reports that as Oakland, California “struggles to respond to a spike in violent crime, one council member is pushing legislation that would offer cash incentives to attract experienced officers and Oakland residents to the police department. The announcement comes as the department grapples with 60 vacant sworn positions due to retirements and moves to other law enforcement departments.” According to the Chronicle, Councilmember Sheng Thao “said she will announce new legislation that will include the incentives at a news conference Thursday. In addition, the legislation will call for partnering with an outside hiring agency that will look nationwide for ‘strongly qualified and experienced lateral police officers.’ The idea, she said in a release, is to improve 911 response time, increase the numbers of visible patrol officers and expand the violence-prevention Ceasefire program.”

Nominate a law enforcement officer employed within Tribal Nations who has performed an act of valor or exceptional service. The International Association of Chiefs of Police is now accepting nominations for the 2022 IACP/FirstNet Indian Country Officer of the Year Award.

Michigan Teen Held Without Bond And Charged For Year’s Deadliest School Shooting

Reuters (12/1) reports Ethan Crumbley – “a 15-year-old sophomore at a high school in Oxford, Michigan” – was ordered “held without bond on Wednesday after being charged with first-degree murder in the deadliest US school shooting of the year, which killed four students and wounded seven other people.” Oakland County Prosecuting Attorney Karen McDonald said, “It was absolutely premeditated.” Reuters reports, “In addition to four counts of first-degree murder, Crumbley faces one count of terrorism causing death, seven counts of assault with intent to murder and 12 counts of possession of a firearm in the commission of a felony, she said.”

Sheriff Provides Updates On Victims’ Conditions. CNN (12/1, Vogt, Sangal, Hammond, Wagner, Macaya) reports Oakland County Sheriff Michael Bouchard “provided updates on the condition of the victims from the Oxford High School shooting.” Bouchard said, “The 17-year-old fourth victim passed today...shortly after 10 a.m., as our fourth decedent to die from gunshot wounds in Tuesday’s senseless shooting.” Bouchard told reporters, “Six students, one teacher, four remain hospitalized, three have now been treated and released.” The Sheriff said a “14-year-old male remains in serious condition with...gunshot wounds to the jaw and hand,” and “a 17-year-old female with neck wounds...is at the local area McLaren Hospital.” The Sheriff continued by saying “a 14-year-old female has improved,” and “has been removed from critical to stable with gunshot wounds to the left chest and neck.” Bouchard said a “17-year-old female ‘still remains in critical condition with a gunshot wound to the chest.’” CNN reports, “Three of the injured have now been discharged, including a 15-year-old male who had a wound to the left leg, a 17-year-old male with a gunshot wound to the hip and a 47-year-old female teacher, who suffered a gunshot wound to her left shoulder, the sheriff said.”

AP Investigation: Military Explosives Missing, Stolen

The AP (12/2, Hall, LaPorta) reports that “hundreds — and possibly thousands — of armor-piercing grenades, hundreds of pounds of plastic explosives, as well as land mines and rockets have been stolen from or lost by the U.S. armed forces over the past decade, according to an ongoing Associated Press investigation into the military’s failure to secure all its weapons of war.” Explosives “have been found in homes and storage units, inside military barracks and alongside roads, even at a US-Mexico border checkpoint.”

Report: Accidental Overdose Was Most Common Cause Of Death Among Unhoused People In Los Angeles During Pandemic

The Guardian (UK) (12/1, Levin) reports that “nearly 1,500 unhoused people are estimated to have died on the streets of Los Angeles during the pandemic, according to a new report.” Written “by researchers from the University of California, Los Angeles (UCLA) and a coalition of unhoused residents, the report analyzed the LA county coroner’s records to identify 1,493 cases of people who died between March 2020 and July 2021 on the streets and were probably unhoused.” The researchers found that “the most common cause of death was accidental overdose.” Almost “40% of the accidental deaths were attributed to drug and alcohol overdoses, mirroring the sharp increase in overdoses in the broader population.”

Fentanyl Test Strips Being Used To Prevent Overdoses, Keep Drug Supply Safer

CNN (12/1, Kounang) reports on fentanyl test strips, which are strips “of paper not much longer than 2 inches” with “the potential to prevent a drug overdose.” The test “strips can detect fentanyl, the deadliest drug in the United States, when it’s mixed with other drugs.” The “test strips were first developed as way to screen for people using fentanyl by testing their urine, but harm reduction groups found a way to utilize the strips to help keep the drug supply safer.” The test “strips cost not much more than a dollar, can be found on Amazon, and are easy to use.”

In an analysis on the topic, CNN (12/1) says that the issue of US drug overdose deaths “needs much more attention.” CNN investigated “fentanyl testing strips” and also noted “New York City this week opened two overdose prevention centers, also known as supervised consumption sites or safe injection sites, where users can receive medical care after injecting themselves with drugs.” These methods are known as “harm reduction’ – giving users safe spaces to shoot drugs or the power to see if what they’re taking contains fentanyl.” They are two “emerging ways to deal with the problem that enables safer drug use rather than rely[ing] on law enforcement.”

Man Arrested After Breaching Security At UK Parliament

The AP (12/1) reports from London, “A man was arrested Wednesday after breaching security at Britain’s Parliament. Photos showed a man being held on the ground inside a gated yard at Parliament while officers stood over him with guns pointed. He was later taken away in a police van.” London’s Metropolitan Police force “said the man was detained on suspicion of trespassing at a protected site. It said the incident was not being treated as terrorism.” The AP adds, “The Houses of Parliament are patrolled by armed police, and security was increased after an officer guarding a gate was stabbed to death by an Islamic State-inspired attacker in March 2017.”

Joyful Leadership

By Captain Mike Schentrup (RET)

In the last decade, much has been written about positive leadership and how joyful, optimistic leaders are more successful with their teams; but how does this look in the day-to-day routine operations of a police department? How can all bosses, including Lieutenants, Captains, and Chiefs make their departments a place where everyone wants to come to work? Can we make a police department a joyful place to work? I believe the answer is yes.

Being a cop is a tough, stressful job to begin with. More so than ever, cops are under a microscope from the media and the public. Departments across the country have staffing problems and overall morale is low. Numerous surveys suggest that police officers get more stress from internal issues, than external. Let's put a real-life example to this: most cops would rather respond to an active shooter than be called back to the station by their Lieutenant! If you told this to a civilian, they would never believe it.

Let's look at five things leadership can effect immediately to drive up morale.

1. Shift Briefings – most departments start their workday with a short shift briefing. I've known plenty of cops who would tell me this is the worst 20 minutes of their day. How is this possible? I've heard it said that patrol officers feel most helpless and powerless the moment they walk into the briefing room. This is the time where another management directive will be cast upon them. Shift briefings must be light and joyful. Information should be relayed and sometimes frank discussions should be had, but how can we send our front-line folks out to meet the public after the worst 20 minutes of their day? This is low hanging fruit. Work with your shift/watch commanders. Encourage positive shift briefings. Limits "class spanks" (we'll discuss these next). Commend in public those who did well and talk to those privately after who need some coaching. Debrief critical incidents constructively and let the team make their own observations. Normally they will hit all the good points along with the areas where improvement can come. Commanders are there to listen and move the conversation.
2. "Class-Spanks" – we've all been in the room, when the boss starts off with, "Hey, no big deal, but we've had a few complaints of cops speeding along Highway 40. Please slow down." This is the quintessential class spank. A wise sergeant gave me some great advice early on about class spanks; they don't work. Here's why. The ones you were trying to get the message to probably weren't paying attention to begin with and the good officers who were paying attention now think the admonishment was meant for them. This goes for email class-spanks too. Do we really think marginal employees read the emails that are not specifically directed at them? Coaching and corrective action should always be one-on-one. Command staff should NEVER conduct a class spank in briefing. Leave these comments to your shift/watch commanders. Again, is this easy; no, because class spanks are easy. But creating a positive environment takes work on the part of Command.

3. Emails – there should be an entire book written about this, and if fact, I bet there is. We already spoke about class-spanks should never be conducted by email. I will concede email is effective at reaching a large audience, but who are you actually reaching? Secondly, email is the definition of one-way communication. There is no inflection, no way to read sarcasm, and no way to ultimately convey a tough message. Face-to-face is the best. It allows true two-way communication (remember, 80% of communication is nonverbal). I know this is not always possible, so a phone call is next best.
4. Knee-Jerk Reactions – there is nothing more demotivating for front-line officers than the perceived knee-jerk reaction. We all know this. “Johnny screwed up so the City Commission has mandated training for everyone.” To the line personnel, there is usually no rhyme or reason to the change or they believe it is a knee jerk reaction to misguided public sentiment. The IACP puts on a great training course called Leadership in Police Organizations. One of the main points I took from it is that MOST, I mean almost all, decisions do not have to be made really fast. And, you will learn that any decision that is well thought out will be a better decision. So please slow it down. Think about how any decision will affect real people, both sworn and non-sworn.
5. Servant Leadership – finally to be a positive leader, one must be a servant leader. Leaders must serve the ones they lead. This is not counterintuitive. We are responsible for providing those we lead with the things they need. Always take the time to listen to you team. Listen to each one. Sometimes they want to vent. And your main job is to listen and maybe help them understand that sometimes there is a bigger picture. Most of your folks just want to be heard. Never ask them to do a job that you wouldn't do yourself. In fact, the more menial the task, the more important it is that your folks see you performing it.

Although I call these five things low-hanging-fruit, they are not easy. They take time and effort, but you took the job of a leader and now you must live up to it. Procedural Justice teaches us that employees who feel like they are treated well by their leaders are more likely to treat the public well. Maybe if we treat our line-officers better and they feel valued, they would pass this on to the community they serve? Seems easy to me.

US Law Enforcement Grapples With Mob Retail Thefts

CNN (11/30, Sanchez, Campbell) reports, "With in-store customers expected to return in droves for the holiday shopping season, law enforcement agencies are moving to halt a wave of organized 'smash-and-grab' crimes at retailers across the US." CNN adds, "In Chicago, Los Angeles and other major cities, police departments are increasing patrols at retailers targeted by mobs of thieves in brazen raids. In Northern California, district attorneys formed an alliance to prosecute organized theft rings. At the federal level, the FBI said it is in 'close contact' with local law enforcement investigating such cases and prepared to take further action. 'We have been seeing this wave of people invading stores in large numbers,' San Francisco Police Chief William Scott said. 'There is no way in my mind that we can have a situation where 20, up to 80 people can invade a store or series of stores and there not be some communication and some organization.'"

The San Francisco Chronicle (11/30, Cabanatuan) reports that Oakland Police Chief LeRonne Armstrong "vowed to continue deploying specially trained squads to combat what he called 'caravan robberies' and lauded Mayor Libby Schaaf's proposal to hire more police officers." In Split Decision, Ninth Circuit Upholds California Ban On High-Capacity Magazines

The AP (11/30, Thompson) reports that on Tuesday, an 11-member panel of the US Court of Appeals for the Ninth Circuit "overturned a ruling by two of its judges and upheld California's ban on high-capacity magazines...in a split decision that may be headed for the U.S. Supreme Court." The AP explains that the 11-member panel "acted after two of three judges on a smaller 9th Circuit panel last year ruled the state's ban on magazines holding more than 10 bullets violates the U.S. Constitution's protection of the right to bear firearms." In reversing the earlier panel, the majority "reasoned that 'the limitation interferes only minimally with the core right of self-defense, as there is no evidence that anyone ever has been unable to defend his or her home and family due to the lack of a large-capacity magazine; and ... the limitation saves lives.'"

The Los Angeles Times (11/30, Dolan) explains that the “decision hinged in part on which legal standard should be used to determine the outcome.” Over the dissent of the “four Republican appointees on the panel,” the majority “chose the more stringent standard,” finding that “intermediate scrutiny applied because the ban imposed only a minimal burden on the core Second Amendment right to keep and bear arms.” The Times adds, “Gun rights groups hope the Supreme Court will select a lower legal standard for Second Amendment cases in an upcoming decision on a New York law restricting concealed weapons.”

New Jersey AG Announces Pilot Initiative Pairing Troopers With Mental Health Professionals During Certain Crises

The New Jersey Star-Ledger (11/30, Atmonavage) reports the New Jersey “Attorney General’s office announced a pilot program Tuesday that will pair state troopers with a mental health professional when responding to certain crises – a tactic recently adapted by some law enforcement agencies across the country to better respond to mental health emergencies.” The initiative is “known as ARRIVE Together, or ‘Alternative Responses to Reduce Instances of Violence & Escalation.’” Under the pilot initiative, “state police troopers out of...Cumberland County stations will be accompanied in their police vehicles by a certified mental health screener when responding to 911 calls relating to mental, emotional or behavioral crises, including calls for confused or disoriented persons, welfare checks and suicide watch.”

In an opinion piece for the Newark (NJ) Star-Ledger (11/30), Andrew Bruck, New Jersey’s acting attorney general, Colonel Patrick Callahan, superintendent of the New Jersey State Police, and Jennifer Webb-McRae, the Cumberland County prosecutor, discuss the pilot program, and conclude, “Improving how law enforcement interacts with residents in behavioral health crisis could very well be the most important structural change made to the criminal justice system in our time.”

US States See Surge In Traffic Fatalities

The AP (11/30) reports from Portland, Oregon, “Authorities say 2021 has seen the most fatal crashes in Portland, Oregon, in more than 30 years – something police say is due in part to part to low law enforcement staffing.” The Portland Police Bureau “said Tuesday there have been 62 fatal crashes on Portland roadways and 26 pedestrian fatalities to date. KOIN reports this is the highest number of roadway crashes since 1990 which had 63 deaths,” and “a two-year progress report released in September showed traffic deaths increased 34% in 2019. The September report noted that on average, there are more than 23,000 crashes in our region each year that result in injury. The report notes that 38% of the people killed in traffic crashes in 2019 were walking.”

The Honolulu Star-Advertiser (11/30, Wu) reports, “Police are urging drivers to slow down and drive sober this holiday season as the number of traffic-related fatalities continue to surpass those from last year.” The Star-Advertiser adds, “Statewide, there were 81 traffic-related fatalities in roughly the first 11 months of this year – nine more than the same time last year – according to preliminary statistics from the Hawaii Department of Transportation. Of the 81 fatalities from Jan. 1 to last Wednesday, 29 involved motorcycles and scooters, 27 involved motor vehicle occupants, 20 involved pedestrians, four involved bicyclists, and one involved an ATV operator.”

Los Angeles City Council Votes To Ban “Ghost Guns”

The Los Angeles Times (11/30, Wick) reports, “Untraceable, unserialized and relatively easy to assemble at home, so-called ghost guns are typically sold in kits – no background check necessary. Police say the use of ghost guns in Los Angeles has exploded in recent years, in line with broader trends across the nation.” The Times adds, “The number of ghost guns seized by the Los Angeles Police Department has increased by approximately 400% since 2017, with an even sharper uptick this year, according to an Oct. 19 report issued by the department.” On Tuesday, Los Angeles “joined a growing list of California cities that are cracking down on ghost guns, with the City Council voting unanimously to ban the untraceable firearms.”

Prosecutors Reopening Cases Of Possible Police Violence That Predecessors Declined To Pursue

The New York Times (11/30, Eder, Kirkpatrick) reports “in the aftermath of protests over racial justice and police abuse, new prosecutors are taking a previously rare step: They are reopening investigations into all three deadly car stops, asking whether the use of force was justified or if the officers should face criminal charges.” The Times explains, “District attorneys in Democratic precincts around the country have been re-examining other old use-of-force cases, too — including 340 killings in Los Angeles County alone. They are promising a sharp break from the traditionally close relationship between the police and prosecutors that critics say has long shielded officers from accountability.” However, these “reviews are arousing furious resistance from police unions and conservative district attorneys, who call them political stunts that demoralize officers and are unlikely to sway trial court juries. Unions in Austin, Los Angeles, San Francisco and Philadelphia have backed campaigns to oust the top prosecutors.”

Three Dead, Eight Wounded In Shooting At Michigan High School

The AP (11/30, Householder, Kryska) reports that on Tuesday, according to local authorities, a “15-year-old sophomore opened fire at his Michigan high school...killing three students and wounding eight other people, including one teacher.” The AP continues, “Oakland County Undersheriff Mike McCabe said at a news conference that investigators were still trying to determine a motive for the shooting at Oxford High School in Oxford Township, a community of about 22,000 people roughly 30 miles (48 kilometers) north of Detroit.”

CNN (11/30, Vales) reports on its website that McCabe said, “Deputies took the suspect in custody within 5 minutes of the original 911 call.” And “Oakland County Prosecutor Karen D. McDonald said in a statement Tuesday that her office has ‘begun the process of receiving information regarding the investigation.’”

Reuters (11/30) reports according to McCabe, the deceased included “a 16-year-old boy, a 17-year-old girl and a 14-year-old girl. ... Two of the wounded were in surgery and six were in stable condition.” Reuters adds that the incident, which is the “latest in a long series of U.S. school shootings,” is likely to “fuel debates about gun control and mental health care, with many states allowing easy access to firearms while mental health disorders frequently go untreated.”

Meth Use Reportedly Rising In Fresno, California

CNN (11/30, Lah, Rappard, Clarke) reports meth has “taken control of a large swath of Fresno, California.” Evolving distribution and production methods have “kept supply plentiful – and lethal.” In 2020, “there were more meth overdose deaths in Fresno County...than those of any other kind of drug, according to the coroner’s unit.”

A CNN (11/30) video highlights Fresno County Sheriff’s Deputy Todd Burk, who works the graveyard shift in an area where there are many meth users. Burk “says methamphetamine use is rampant on the streets he patrols” every night.

Philadelphia On Track To Record Most Overdose-Related Deaths Ever This Year

The Philadelphia Inquirer (11/30, Whelan) reports “fatal overdoses in the first six months of 2021 rose by nearly 10% compared with the same period last year, putting Philadelphia on track to see its highest-ever overdose death toll by year’s end.” A number “of the same disturbing trends noted in 2020 – a rise in overdoses outside Kensington, the epicenter of the crisis, and a spike in overdoses among Black and Hispanic Philadelphians even as overdose deaths among white residents have decreased – are likely still at play, city officials said.” Meanwhile, fentanyl “is turning up in overdose deaths involving other drugs, suggesting that people unused to opioids may be unknowingly ingesting drugs contaminated with fentanyl.”

Charity Training People In Recovery On How To Administer Naloxone In England Town

BBC News (11/30) reports “a group of volunteers are working with drug charity We Are With You in Weston-super-Mare,” England. The volunteers “are handing out kits which include medication called Naloxone, which helps to reverse the effects of a heroin overdose.” We Are With You’s Cathy Mounsdon “said that training” people in recovery “in how to administer the medication and hand out Naloxone kits was the best way to get the message across, as they had the experience of addiction.”

Police In Germany Bust International Cocaine Smuggling Ring

Reuters (11/30) reports, “German police said on Tuesday that 14 people suspected of smuggling several tonnes of cocaine from South America to Germany were arrested and their decade-old trafficking route dismantled as part of an international investigation.” Reuters adds that 28 suspects “are suspected of links to nine shipments totalling nearly five tonnes of cocaine, Germany’s Federal Criminal Police Office (BKA) and the Berlin public prosecutor’s office said in a joint statement. 'With the arrest warrants and searches today, we have broken the supply chain,' Chief Prosecutor Georg Bauer said." The BKA "kicked off the investigations after the 2018 seizure in Brazil of 690 kg of cocaine – with a street value of around 140 million euros ($159 million) – which was addressed to a company in Berlin."

US Law Enforcement Grapples With Mob Retail Thefts

CNN (11/30, Sanchez, Campbell) reports, "With in-store customers expected to return in droves for the holiday shopping season, law enforcement agencies are moving to halt a wave of organized 'smash-and-grab' crimes at retailers across the US." CNN adds, "In Chicago, Los Angeles and other major cities, police departments are increasing patrols at retailers targeted by mobs of thieves in brazen raids. In Northern California, district attorneys formed an alliance to prosecute organized theft rings. At the federal level, the FBI said it is in 'close contact' with local law enforcement investigating such cases and prepared to take further action. 'We have been seeing this wave of people invading stores in large numbers,' San Francisco Police Chief William Scott said. 'There is no way in my mind that we can have a situation where 20, up to 80 people can invade a store or series of stores and there not be some communication and some organization.'"

The San Francisco Chronicle (11/30, Cabanatuan) reports that Oakland Police Chief LeRonne Armstrong "vowed to continue deploying specially trained squads to combat what he called 'caravan robberies' and lauded Mayor Libby Schaaf's proposal to hire more police officers." In Split Decision, Ninth Circuit Upholds California Ban On High-Capacity Magazines

The AP (11/30, Thompson) reports that on Tuesday, an 11-member panel of the US Court of Appeals for the Ninth Circuit "overturned a ruling by two of its judges and upheld California's ban on high-capacity magazines...in a split decision that may be headed for the U.S. Supreme Court." The AP explains that the 11-member panel "acted after two of three judges on a smaller 9th Circuit panel last year ruled the state's ban on magazines holding more than 10 bullets violates the U.S. Constitution's protection of the right to bear firearms." In reversing the earlier panel, the majority "reasoned that 'the limitation interferes only minimally with the core right of self-defense, as there is no evidence that anyone ever has been unable to defend his or her home and family due to the lack of a large-capacity magazine; and ... the limitation saves lives.'"

The Los Angeles Times (11/30, Dolan) explains that the “decision hinged in part on which legal standard should be used to determine the outcome.” Over the dissent of the “four Republican appointees on the panel,” the majority “chose the more stringent standard,” finding that “intermediate scrutiny applied because the ban imposed only a minimal burden on the core Second Amendment right to keep and bear arms.” The Times adds, “Gun rights groups hope the Supreme Court will select a lower legal standard for Second Amendment cases in an upcoming decision on a New York law restricting concealed weapons.”

New Jersey AG Announces Pilot Initiative Pairing Troopers With Mental Health Professionals During Certain Crises

The New Jersey Star-Ledger (11/30, Atmonavage) reports the New Jersey “Attorney General’s office announced a pilot program Tuesday that will pair state troopers with a mental health professional when responding to certain crises – a tactic recently adapted by some law enforcement agencies across the country to better respond to mental health emergencies.” The initiative is “known as ARRIVE Together, or ‘Alternative Responses to Reduce Instances of Violence & Escalation.’” Under the pilot initiative, “state police troopers out of...Cumberland County stations will be accompanied in their police vehicles by a certified mental health screener when responding to 911 calls relating to mental, emotional or behavioral crises, including calls for confused or disoriented persons, welfare checks and suicide watch.”

In an opinion piece for the Newark (NJ) Star-Ledger (11/30), Andrew Bruck, New Jersey’s acting attorney general, Colonel Patrick Callahan, superintendent of the New Jersey State Police, and Jennifer Webb-McRae, the Cumberland County prosecutor, discuss the pilot program, and conclude, “Improving how law enforcement interacts with residents in behavioral health crisis could very well be the most important structural change made to the criminal justice system in our time.”

US States See Surge In Traffic Fatalities

The AP (11/30) reports from Portland, Oregon, “Authorities say 2021 has seen the most fatal crashes in Portland, Oregon, in more than 30 years – something police say is due in part to part to low law enforcement staffing.” The Portland Police Bureau “said Tuesday there have been 62 fatal crashes on Portland roadways and 26 pedestrian fatalities to date. KOIN reports this is the highest number of roadway crashes since 1990 which had 63 deaths,” and “a two-year progress report released in September showed traffic deaths increased 34% in 2019. The September report noted that on average, there are more than 23,000 crashes in our region each year that result in injury. The report notes that 38% of the people killed in traffic crashes in 2019 were walking.”

The Honolulu Star-Advertiser (11/30, Wu) reports, “Police are urging drivers to slow down and drive sober this holiday season as the number of traffic-related fatalities continue to surpass those from last year.” The Star-Advertiser adds, “Statewide, there were 81 traffic-related fatalities in roughly the first 11 months of this year – nine more than the same time last year – according to preliminary statistics from the Hawaii Department of Transportation. Of the 81 fatalities from Jan. 1 to last Wednesday, 29 involved motorcycles and scooters, 27 involved motor vehicle occupants, 20 involved pedestrians, four involved bicyclists, and one involved an ATV operator.”

Los Angeles City Council Votes To Ban “Ghost Guns”

The Los Angeles Times (11/30, Wick) reports, “Untraceable, unserialized and relatively easy to assemble at home, so-called ghost guns are typically sold in kits – no background check necessary. Police say the use of ghost guns in Los Angeles has exploded in recent years, in line with broader trends across the nation.” The Times adds, “The number of ghost guns seized by the Los Angeles Police Department has increased by approximately 400% since 2017, with an even sharper uptick this year, according to an Oct. 19 report issued by the department.” On Tuesday, Los Angeles “joined a growing list of California cities that are cracking down on ghost guns, with the City Council voting unanimously to ban the untraceable firearms.”

Prosecutors Reopening Cases Of Possible Police Violence That Predecessors Declined To Pursue

The New York Times (11/30, Eder, Kirkpatrick) reports “in the aftermath of protests over racial justice and police abuse, new prosecutors are taking a previously rare step: They are reopening investigations into all three deadly car stops, asking whether the use of force was justified or if the officers should face criminal charges.” The Times explains, “District attorneys in Democratic precincts around the country have been re-examining other old use-of-force cases, too — including 340 killings in Los Angeles County alone. They are promising a sharp break from the traditionally close relationship between the police and prosecutors that critics say has long shielded officers from accountability.” However, these “reviews are arousing furious resistance from police unions and conservative district attorneys, who call them political stunts that demoralize officers and are unlikely to sway trial court juries. Unions in Austin, Los Angeles, San Francisco and Philadelphia have backed campaigns to oust the top prosecutors.”

Resilience Strategies for Your Role – New Resources from the IACP and BJA

Customized to various roles in an agency, these new resilience resources provide succinct strategies that individuals can use to navigate adversity and thrive in the face of challenges. Three Dead, Eight Wounded In Shooting At Michigan High School

The AP (11/30, Householder, Kryska) reports that on Tuesday, according to local authorities, a “15-year-old sophomore opened fire at his Michigan high school...killing three students and wounding eight other people, including one teacher.” The AP continues, “Oakland County Undersheriff Mike McCabe said at a news conference that investigators were still trying to determine a motive for the shooting at Oxford High School in Oxford Township, a community of about 22,000 people roughly 30 miles (48 kilometers) north of Detroit.”

CNN (11/30, Vales) reports on its website that McCabe said, “Deputies took the suspect in custody within 5 minutes of the original 911 call.” And “Oakland County Prosecutor Karen D. McDonald said in a statement Tuesday that her office has ‘begun the process of receiving information regarding the investigation.’”

Reuters (11/30) reports according to McCabe, the deceased included “a 16-year-old boy, a 17-year-old girl and a 14-year-old girl. ... Two of the wounded were in surgery and six were in stable condition.” Reuters adds that the incident, which is the “latest in a long series of U.S. school shootings,” is likely to “fuel debates about gun control and mental health care, with many states allowing easy access to firearms while mental health disorders frequently go untreated.”

Meth Use Reportedly Rising In Fresno, California

CNN (11/30, Lah, Rappard, Clarke) reports meth has “taken control of a large swath of Fresno, California.” Evolving distribution and production methods have “kept supply plentiful – and lethal.” In 2020, “there were more meth overdose deaths in Fresno County...than those of any other kind of drug, according to the coroner’s unit.”

A CNN (11/30) video highlights Fresno County Sheriff’s Deputy Todd Burk, who works the graveyard shift in an area where there are many meth users. Burk “says methamphetamine use is rampant on the streets he patrols” every night.

Philadelphia On Track To Record Most Overdose-Related Deaths Ever This Year

The Philadelphia Inquirer (11/30, Whelan) reports “fatal overdoses in the first six months of 2021 rose by nearly 10% compared with the same period last year, putting Philadelphia on track to see its highest-ever overdose death toll by year’s end.” A number “of the same disturbing trends noted in 2020 – a rise in overdoses outside Kensington, the epicenter of the crisis, and a spike in overdoses among Black and Hispanic Philadelphians even as overdose deaths among white residents have decreased – are likely still at play, city officials said.” Meanwhile, fentanyl “is turning up in overdose deaths involving other drugs, suggesting that people unused to opioids may be unknowingly ingesting drugs contaminated with fentanyl.”

Charity Training People In Recovery On How To Administer Naloxone In England Town

BBC News (11/30) reports “a group of volunteers are working with drug charity We Are With You in Weston-super-Mare,” England. The volunteers “are handing out kits which include medication called Naloxone, which helps to reverse the effects of a heroin overdose.” We Are With You’s Cathy Mounsdon “said that training” people in recovery “in how to administer the medication and hand out Naloxone kits was the best way to get the message across, as they had the experience of addiction.”

Police In Germany Bust International Cocaine Smuggling Ring

Reuters (11/30) reports, “German police said on Tuesday that 14 people suspected of smuggling several tonnes of cocaine from South America to Germany were arrested and their decade-old trafficking route dismantled as part of an international investigation.” Reuters adds that 28 suspects “are suspected of links to nine shipments totalling nearly five tonnes of cocaine, Germany’s Federal Criminal Police Office (BKA) and the Berlin public prosecutor’s office said in a joint statement. 'With the arrest warrants and searches today, we have broken the supply chain,' Chief Prosecutor Georg Bauer said." The BKA "kicked off the investigations after the 2018 seizure in Brazil of 690 kg of cocaine – with a street value of around 140 million euros ($159 million) – which was addressed to a company in Berlin."

Three Things to Know Now | November 30, 2021

Your weekly update from Executive Director Ed Wojcicki on the top three things you need to know about what is happening at the association.

This week we cover a personal update about Ed, strategic planning update based on the membership survey and the upcoming Executive Board meeting.

Good afternoon, I hope you all had a great Thanksgiving holiday. Here are the three things on my mind this week:

3. Ed's been in the hospital

I thought about saying nothing about this, but I know we are in an era when vulnerability in leadership matters, so here's the scoop:

I have been in a Springfield hospital for eight days (since Nov. 23) with a bloodstream infection and sepsis and I hope to go home today. The good news is that the infection is gone, and I'm very grateful for that. Yep, I was here for Thanksgiving. (The current hospitalization occurred after being in Anderson Hospital in Maryville the previous week for prostate surgery.)

But oh well. We were all taught when younger whenever anything happened to "walk it off." Right? Nowadays, we're hearing a lot more about officer wellness and taking care of ourselves. That's wonderful, and it's important.

So don't feel sorry for me. With our small staff doing their wonderful work, I hope you didn't notice any difference. I am so grateful to Carmen, Karen, Amy and Krista for carrying the entire load.

I also hope that by my sharing this information, perhaps I'll give some of you the nudge to do what you need to do to take care of yourselves.

Important reminder: The body camera training scheduled for this week in Fairview Heights and Springfield will go on as scheduled, thanks to Chief Kenny Winslow and Chief Steve Johnson, to our staff, and to our sponsors at Axon, Genetec, and Motorola/WatchGuard.

2. Membership Survey results and committee reports available now. I recommend you take some time to read the report to get an overview of what was achieved during the past year and where we plan to focus efforts in the months ahead. There is also a link on the homepage of our website if you need to come back to this later.

Read the report here.

1. SAVE THE DATE: Executive Board will meet via Zoom on Wednesday, Dec. 15. The Executive Board will meet from 10 a.m. to 1 p.m. Wednesday, December 15, via Zoom. It was going to be in person in Springfield and was originally set for Dec. 8. The meeting was moved to Zoom because of Ed's situation.

Please save the date and look for a Zoom link and additional information soon. And please note that ALL MEMBERS are welcome to observe and participate in the meeting. Members of the Executive Board are listed here.

Those are my three things you need to know this week. I hope you all have a great week as you serve your communities; thank you for all you do.

New Infrastructure Law Mandates Technology In New Vehicles To Curb Drunk Driving

USA Today (11/29, Garrison, Rouan) reports, "Cars of the not-so-distant future could automatically detect whether someone is too drunk to drive under a provision tucked into the $1 trillion law to bolster the nation's infrastructure." USA Today adds, "The new law requires the National Highway Traffic Safety Administration create a rule mandating that new vehicles be equipped with advanced technology to prevent drunken and impaired driving beginning no later than 2026. The legislation leaves it to NHTSA to decide which technology to require, but that could include any device that prevents a driver from operating a vehicle by identifying signs of impairment or detecting a blood-alcohol level above the legal limit. Once a rule is adopted, automakers in the United States would be required to include the technology on newly manufactured vehicles." Advocates "say the change could save thousands of lives lost in drunken-driving crashes every year."

Colorado State Patrol To Continue Low-Tolerance Enforcement Through Holiday Season

The Denver Gazette (11/29, Metzger) reports, "The Colorado State Patrol will continue its low tolerance enforcement of traffic laws through the winter holiday season, punishing violations that would have previously resulted in warnings. This comes as additional street patrols and DUI checkpoints were put in place last week by the state patrol, Department of Transportation and 84 police and sheriff's agencies, in an effort to prevent impaired driving" as people celebrated Thanksgiving. On Monday, "the state patrol said it will continue its targeted Thanksgiving operations to address traffic law violations like distracted driving, speeding and driving while impaired. 'The 2021 crash picture is the worst we have seen in Colorado in over five years,' said Matthew Packard, chief of the state patrol. 'We are lowering our tolerance on what may have once been given a warning. Our southern Denver metro area down I-25 is facing a safety crisis and we know that visibility and strong enforcement will save lives.”

Oakland, California Police To Increase Presence Amid Violence Surge

Fox News (11/29, Casiano) reports Oakland PD “will increase its presence amid a surge in violence that has included roving armed caravans, an uptick in homicides and brazen smash-and-grab burglaries.” Fox says the announcement “came days after a retired police officer working as a security guard was shot and killed while protecting a local television news crew during an armed robbery.” Oakland Mayor Libby Schaaf “said she will push for more police officers and said she will present a plan to the city council to maintain department levels at a minimum of 678 officers in an effort to re-start the city’s Ceasefire crime reduction program.” Oakland Police Officers Association President Barry Donelan said, “Oakland’s dwindling ranks of police officers...is yet another broken promise to Oakland residents.” Police Chief LeRonne Armstrong “said the department needs help from city leaders to combat the violence.”

New BC Training Helps Police Recognize And Respond To Intimate Partner Violence

CIVT-TV Vancouver, CAN (11/29) reports the British Columbia government “says it’s updating its training programs for police so officers can better recognize and respond to intimate partner violence.” CIVT reports, “The new mandatory training will update four previous training modules which were more than a decade old, the province said Monday.” Minister of Public Safety and Solicitor General Mike Farnworth said Monday, “This timely renewal of training materials will prepare officers to better respond to the realities of intimate partner violence today, including its disproportionate impact on Indigenous women and 2SLGBTQ+ people.”

Dutch Police Arrest Couple Who Broke Quarantine And Boarded Plane

The Hill (11/29, Breslin) reports a “couple from Spain was arrested Sunday in The Netherlands after they tested positive for COVID-19 and broke quarantine when they boarded an airplane headed for Spain, The Associated Press reported.” The Hill says Dutch police “detained the couple for violating isolation orders issued by the head of the local security authority.” Police Spokesperson Petra Faber said, “Quarantine is not obligatory, but we assume people will act responsibly.” The Hill says, “According to Dutch travel regulation, if a coronavirus test shows that you are infected, you must self-isolate, even if you are protected against coronavirus.” Head of Local Security Authority Marianne Schuurmans said “it is incomprehensible that people who had tested positive would do this.”

West Auckland Police VP Calls To Arm Officers After Recent Shooting

MSN (NZL) (11/29) reports a “gunman was killed and three officers were shot and injured in Glen Eden, West Auckland, on Monday after a stand-off.” The event “followed another police injury when an officer was struck by a fleeing vehicle on Sunday while deploying road spikes in New Lynn.” Police Association Vice President Chris Cahill “told Morning Report there was a separate firearms incident on Monday involving gang members, and officers should have an immediate defence available when they were confronted.” Cahill said, “Officers have the right to have every tactical option available to defend themselves and members of the public.” MSN reports Police Commissioner Andrew Coster “has said police will not be routinely armed.”

Police Department In Wisconsin Involved With Pilot Co-Responder Program

The Wisconsin State Journal (11/29, Meyerhofer) reports University of Wisconsin–Madison University Health Services and the University of Wisconsin-Madison Police Department have “answered four mental health calls together” since the school launched a pilot co-responder program in October. Officials “say it’s too early to assess the effectiveness of the pilot program, which was initially available twice a week, expanded this month to three days per week, and is expected to run through the end of the school year.” The program “sends clinicians trained in crisis response to the scene with UW-Madison Police.” UW-Madison Police Chief Kristen Roman “said she has wanted to start a co-responder program for several years, but it wasn’t something the department could initiate on its own.” Roman said that with the new program, “not only do we feel that we have this support (from University Health Services) in the moment, but we can walk away knowing that connection has happened.”

Security, Crime, and Drugs

Crime In Maine Dips For Ninth Straight Year

The AP (11/29) reports from Portland, Maine, “Crime dropped during the pandemic in 2020 in Maine, marking the ninth consecutive annual decline, officials said Monday. Violent crime dropped 4.9% from 2019, while overall crime declined 6.1%, the Maine Department of Public Safety said.” Public Safety Commissioner Michael Sauschuck “thanked law enforcement officers for their continued dedication during the pandemic. ‘Our complex world was complicated further with ongoing COVID-related protocols and safety concerns, but you selflessly reported for duty. This is just the latest example of your willingness to evolve as a profession,’ Sauschuck said in a statement.” According to the AP, “Robbery, aggravated assaults and rape all saw declines, while the number of homicides was unchanged, officials said. Domestic assaults and property crimes also declined, officials said.”

Colorado State Domestic Violence Increased During Pandemic

The Fort Collins (CO) Coloradoan (11/29, Bohannon) reports Colorado State domestic violence crimes “increased drastically” last year. Those crimes rose “from just three reported incidents in 2019 to 17 reported in 2020, according to the university’s federally mandated Annual Fire and Safety Report.” The Coloradoan continues, “No other category of crime saw an increase during the pandemic year.” The Coloradoan reports that an increase in domestic violence incidents “was a trend across the nation throughout the pandemic,” and, college “campuses, where students are among the most at-risk populations to experience intimate partner violence, were no exception.” Colorado State Housing and Dining Services Executive Director Mari Strombom said, “People were having financial insecurities, housing insecurities, and the presence or increase in any of those factors will increase an abuser’s rate of violence.”

DEA Administrator Comments On Effort To Prevent Fatal Overdoses

On its website, ABC News (11/29) covers an appearance that DEA Administrator Anne Milgram made on the most recent “This Week with George Stephanopoulos” episode. Stephanopoulos interviewed Milgram, who spoke about what the DEA is doing to prevent US overdose deaths. Milgram said the DEA is aggressively pursuing the criminals who provide illegal drugs that cause overdose deaths. Milgram said the DEA is also prioritizing increasing access to “treatment for folks who have opioid use disorders” and warning the public about a fentanyl-laced counterfeit pills threat. ABC News links to a video clip of the Milgram interview segment.

Missouri Sheriff’s Office To Host Drug Education Summit In Response To Overdoses

The St. Joseph (MO) News-Press (11/29, Lubinski) reports “the Clay County Sheriff’s Office is hosting a Community Drug Education Summit Monday, Dec. 6, at Shoal Creek Community Church.” Sheriff Will Akin said, “The overdoses we’re seeing lately, especially among young people, are unacceptable.” Akin added, “We want to do everything we can to educate our community about what’s happening and how it can be prevented and treated.” The Press says detectives from the Sheriff’s Office’s Drug Squad will be joined by “addiction prevention and treatment resources from community partners.” The Squad “is currently investigating more than a dozen overdose cases involving fentanyl-laced pills.” The Press says the county has seen “nine related deaths so far in 2021.”

Analysts Identify Potent New Opioids In Washington, DC’s Illicit Drug Supply

The Washington Post (11/29, Jamison) reports, “Forensic analysts have identified a new and highly potent family of synthetic opioids in the...illicit drug supply” in Washington, DC. The DC Department of Forensic Sciences’ identification of the synthetic opioids protonitazene and isotonitazene is “a worrisome discovery in a city already struggling with a wave of fatal overdoses that shows no signs of abating.” It is not yet known “whether fentanyl testing strips — which alert users to the possibly higher potency of their drugs — pick up the presence of the nitazene family of substances.”

Colorado State Domestic Violence Increased During Pandemic

The Fort Collins (CO) Coloradoan (11/29, Bohannon) reports Colorado State domestic violence crimes “increased drastically” last year. Those crimes rose “from just three reported incidents in 2019 to 17 reported in 2020, according to the university’s federally mandated Annual Fire and Safety Report.” The Coloradoan continues, “No other category of crime saw an increase during the pandemic year.” The Coloradoan reports that an increase in domestic violence incidents “was a trend across the nation throughout the pandemic,” and, college “campuses, where students are among the most at-risk populations to experience intimate partner violence, were no exception.” Colorado State Housing and Dining Services Executive Director Mari Strombom said, “People were having financial insecurities, housing insecurities, and the presence or increase in any of those factors will increase an abuser’s rate of violence.”

DEA Administrator Comments On Effort To Prevent Fatal Overdoses

On its website, ABC News (11/29) covers an appearance that DEA Administrator Anne Milgram made on the most recent “This Week with George Stephanopoulos” episode. Stephanopoulos interviewed Milgram, who spoke about what the DEA is doing to prevent US overdose deaths. Milgram said the DEA is aggressively pursuing the criminals who provide illegal drugs that cause overdose deaths. Milgram said the DEA is also prioritizing increasing access to “treatment for folks who have opioid use disorders” and warning the public about a fentanyl-laced counterfeit pills threat. ABC News links to a video clip of the Milgram interview segment.

Missouri Sheriff’s Office To Host Drug Education Summit In Response To Overdoses

The St. Joseph (MO) News-Press (11/29, Lubinski) reports “the Clay County Sheriff’s Office is hosting a Community Drug Education Summit Monday, Dec. 6, at Shoal Creek Community Church.” Sheriff Will Akin said, “The overdoses we’re seeing lately, especially among young people, are unacceptable.” Akin added, “We want to do everything we can to educate our community about what’s happening and how it can be prevented and treated.” The Press says detectives from the Sheriff’s Office’s Drug Squad will be joined by “addiction prevention and treatment resources from community partners.” The Squad “is currently investigating more than a dozen overdose cases involving fentanyl-laced pills.” The Press says the county has seen “nine related deaths so far in 2021.”

Analysts Identify Potent New Opioids In Washington, DC’s Illicit Drug Supply

The Washington Post (11/29, Jamison) reports, “Forensic analysts have identified a new and highly potent family of synthetic opioids in the...illicit drug supply” in Washington, DC. The DC Department of Forensic Sciences’ identification of the synthetic opioids protonitazene and isotonitazene is “a worrisome discovery in a city already struggling with a wave of fatal overdoses that shows no signs of abating.” It is not yet known “whether fentanyl testing strips — which alert users to the possibly higher potency of their drugs — pick up the presence of the nitazene family of substances.”

Hi Dawn,

Hope your week is off to a great start. Reaching out for I wanted to propose/recommend Sam Silverstein to the ILCMA team for future conference consideration. Attached is the completed ILCMA proposal form with all of his information.

Out of all the speakers I work with, you're probably wondering why Sam? Well, one key reason is that I saw late last year ILCMA endorsed the 'Ten Shared Principles' that was created a few years back by ILACP and the NAACP Illinois State Conference. One of which is Accountability, and if you do your research, Sam Silverstein is the most trusted voice on Accountability.

Hope to have the opportunity to work with you at some point in the future!

Oak Brook is looking for a mock assessment for their upcoming ILEAP Assessment which is planned for the beginning of March of 2022.

Oak Brook is a Tier 2 agency and uses PowerDMS for their file maintenance.

We are going to plan this a little hybrid. We will open PowerDMS for review Jan 3rd through Jan 7th and then ask for at least a few of those mock assessors to come in on Jan 7th for a morning on-site. We only think a few hours would be needed on-site as long as files are reviewed remotely. We are interested in getting personnel more prepared for what a real on-site would look like. Sgt Foltyniewicz will be logistically handling this mock assessment for Oak Brook and taking over Accreditation Manager role after the on-site with ILEAP.

If you have some time and are available to assist, please let me know.

Los Angeles Police Task Force To Target Follow-Home Robbers

The Hill (11/24, Beals) reports, "Los Angeles Police Chief Michel Moore on Tuesday said that he would set up a 'Follow Home Task Force' to address a recent trend of robberies." Moore "said that he would create the task force of more than 20 detectives from elite divisions like robbery-homicide and other units in the department, the Los Angeles Police Department announced in a statement. The task force will attempt to address instances when 'suspects target victims in Los Angeles, follow them and commit the robberies as the victims go into isolated areas such as a parking lot or as they arrive home.' The trend has targeted high-end restaurants and celebrities in the past few months and escalated on Tuesday when a man was fatally shot in an attempted robbery outside Bossa Nova, a Hollywood restaurant."

NYPD's Clearance Rate Cases Declined As Homicides Rose In 2020

The New York Times (11/26, Watkins) reports that prior to the pandemic, the New York Police Department had been "solving nearly 90 percent of the murder cases in the city. But in 2020, as shootings and homicides increased, the percentage of homicides the police solved, a statistic known as the clearance rate, plummeted to around 60 percent, according to the department's records." According to the Times, this has been felt "especially hard in the Bronx, where shootings reached their highest levels in nearly 15 years." The Times adds that despite being "blanketed with surveillance equipment and video cameras, the police say some of the city's most dangerous pockets do not have enough. The widespread use of masks during the pandemic has made it more difficult to identify assailants, they say. And, the police say, new discovery laws that allow the names of informants to be turned over to defense lawyers have deterred many potential witnesses from coming forward."

US To Revoke Terrorist Designation For Colombia's FARC

Reuters (11/26, Psaledakis, Lewis) reports the US “will revoke its designation of the Colombian group the Revolutionary Armed Forces of Colombia as a foreign terrorist organization on Tuesday while designating two breakaway groups as such, a senior State Department official said on Friday.” Reuters adds that according to the official, “a review of the terrorist listing – required every five years under U.S. law – found that the leftist organization known by the Spanish acronym FARC should no longer be listed,” but “two dissident groups that have formed out of FARC, La Segunda Marquetalia and FARC-EP, or People’s Army, would be designated as foreign terrorist organizations, the official said.” Reuters says this “will allow U.S. government agencies like the U.S. Agency for International Development to work on peace implementation in parts of Colombia where demobilized FARC soldiers are located, the official said.”

North Carolina Database On Police Use Of Force Will Not Be Made Public

The AP (11/28) reports from Raleigh, North Carolina, “Incidents in which police officers kill or injure someone in North Carolina are going to be recorded statewide for the first time in a database,” but “the information will not be made available to the public.” The state’s General Assembly “authorized the database earlier this year as part of legislation on policing. The database will be for law enforcement agencies to use in an effort to weed out problem officers.” You are invited to participate in next year's Officer Safety and Wellness Learning Collaborative!

The Learning Collaborative is a peer-to-peer learning opportunity among agencies of all sizes and geographic locations to come together and discuss current issues within officer safety and wellness. The collaborative will meet virtually once a month to discuss priority issues identified by the participating departments. There will be a commitment to participate in each monthly session. It is scheduled to take place from January 2022 to September 2022.

If you are interested in getting your agency involved and would like to participate, please contact the team at osw@theiacp.org. The deadline to apply is Monday, December 6th.

Shootings, Thieves Mar Black Friday Shopping Experiences

According to the Washington Post (11/27, Paul), “Panic erupted at a North Carolina mall filled with Black Friday shoppers when three people were shot – including a 10-year-old boy – and three others injured in what authorities described as a fight between two groups.” Meanwhile, the AP (11/27) reports police in Washington state on Saturday “were investigating a shooting at a shopping mall that left one person seriously wounded and sent hundreds of Black Friday shoppers fleeing for exits or hiding in stores.” Reuters (11/27, Gorman) reports the shootings sent “bystanders at both locations scurrying for cover.”

Meanwhile, Reuters (11/27, Gorman) says Black Friday shoppers “weren’t the only ones out hunting for bargains on the day after Thanksgiving. Thieves were busy as well.” According to Reuters, “Police in Los Angeles and cities elsewhere across the country spent much of their holiday weekend patrols looking for suspects in a spate of ‘flash mob’ robberies on Friday, part of a surging U.S. crime trend in which groups of thieves swarm a store, ransack the shelves and flee.”

New York Police Hate Crimes Task Force Investigating Attack On Asian Woman

CNN (11/28, Westhoff, Studley) reports a New York Police Department spokesperson said its Hate Crimes Task Force is investigating an attack on a 61-year-old Asian woman in Queens on Friday in which a man struck her in the head with a rock, leaving her in critical condition. A 33-year-old man was arrested Saturday “in connection with the crime and has recommended charges of assault and harassment.”

UN, US Express Concern After Armed Men Disrupt Libyan Court

Reuters (11/26, Perry) reports the UN mission to Libya “expressed alarm on Friday about an incident at a court where Saif al-Islam Gaddafi’s lawyer said armed men stopped him from lodging an appeal against his client’s disqualification from next month’s presidential election,” and the US Embassy “said it shared the U.N. mission’s concerns over violence related to the Dec. 24 election, which is part of a peace process meant to end a decade of turmoil but has stirred fears of renewed conflict.” In a statement on its Twitter account, the US Embassy said, “Attacks against judicial or election facilities or judicial or elections personnel are not only criminal acts, punishable under Libyan law, but also undermine Libyans’ right to participate in the political process.”

Irish Police Seize Major Haul Of Cocaine In Dublin

The Irish Sun (11/24) reports that cocaine “worth an estimated €10million was seized in a major police operation in Dublin Port today. The targeted swoop, involving both Gardai and Revenue officers, was ongoing tonight. The drugs were found in a container that had been at the port for some days, it’s understood. A spokesperson revealed: ‘I can confirm that there is a Revenue operation ongoing in Dublin Port at the moment. It’s thought the massive drugs seizure could turn out to be one of the biggest ever of cocaine in the State.’”

Police In Calgary, Alberta Warn Of Increasingly Violent Pharmacy Robberies

CFCN-TV Calgary, CAN (11/26) reports from Calgary, “Police say pharmacy robberies in Calgary are becoming ‘increasingly violent’ and it’s prompting concern for the safety of the pharmacy staff and citizens present when the crimes occur. This year alone, police said they’ve been called to over 80 robberies at pharmacies throughout the city. ‘We take these robberies very seriously and have dedicated multiple investigative resources to locate and arrest individuals involved,’ police said in a news release.” CFCN-TV adds, “In most cases, police say armed suspects approach pharmacy employees, indicate they have a weapon, rush behind the counter and physically overcome staff while demanding access to drugs and cash. ‘Similar robberies are also taking place at cannabis stores and cellphone stores at a growing rate and these types of robberies have become increasingly violent over time,’ said Staff Sgt. Rod Harbidge of the Calgary Police Service robbery unit.”

Los Angeles Police Task Force To Target Follow-Home Robbers

The Hill (11/24, Beals) reports, "Los Angeles Police Chief Michel Moore on Tuesday said that he would set up a 'Follow Home Task Force' to address a recent trend of robberies." Moore "said that he would create the task force of more than 20 detectives from elite divisions like robbery-homicide and other units in the department, the Los Angeles Police Department announced in a statement. The task force will attempt to address instances when 'suspects target victims in Los Angeles, follow them and commit the robberies as the victims go into isolated areas such as a parking lot or as they arrive home.' The trend has targeted high-end restaurants and celebrities in the past few months and escalated on Tuesday when a man was fatally shot in an attempted robbery outside Bossa Nova, a Hollywood restaurant."

NYPD's Clearance Rate Cases Declined As Homicides Rose In 2020

The New York Times (11/26, Watkins) reports that prior to the pandemic, the New York Police Department had been "solving nearly 90 percent of the murder cases in the city. But in 2020, as shootings and homicides increased, the percentage of homicides the police solved, a statistic known as the clearance rate, plummeted to around 60 percent, according to the department's records." According to the Times, this has been felt "especially hard in the Bronx, where shootings reached their highest levels in nearly 15 years." The Times adds that despite being "blanketed with surveillance equipment and video cameras, the police say some of the city's most dangerous pockets do not have enough. The widespread use of masks during the pandemic has made it more difficult to identify assailants, they say. And, the police say, new discovery laws that allow the names of informants to be turned over to defense lawyers have deterred many potential witnesses from coming forward."

US To Revoke Terrorist Designation For Colombia's FARC

Reuters (11/26, Psaledakis, Lewis) reports the US “will revoke its designation of the Colombian group the Revolutionary Armed Forces of Colombia as a foreign terrorist organization on Tuesday while designating two breakaway groups as such, a senior State Department official said on Friday.” Reuters adds that according to the official, “a review of the terrorist listing – required every five years under U.S. law – found that the leftist organization known by the Spanish acronym FARC should no longer be listed,” but “two dissident groups that have formed out of FARC, La Segunda Marquetalia and FARC-EP, or People’s Army, would be designated as foreign terrorist organizations, the official said.” Reuters says this “will allow U.S. government agencies like the U.S. Agency for International Development to work on peace implementation in parts of Colombia where demobilized FARC soldiers are located, the official said.”

Chief,

Per your request, the update is as follows:

A motion to dismiss was filed on 11/5/21 (attached), at this point the Plaintiff has a right to file an amended pleading. To date the Village has not received anything from the Plaintiff.

Thank you!

Danielle,

See below. This is regarding out Tier II accreditation and they are requesting the following, in regards to the Beyer et al case.. thnx

A status report on any and all lawsuits involving the police stemming for 2021. The Council desires this status report to come from the Village Attorney's Office. I guess so it's not cleaned up.

Bob,

Had a great convo with the ILEAP Council on Friday.

They were wanting a few things:

1. Whole, unedited video of police press conference. They feel the news version was probably edited.
2. A copy of the third party Law Firm report (pdf version is fine)
3. A status report on any and all lawsuits involving the police stemming for 2021. The Council desires this status report to come from the Village Attorney's Office. I guess so it's not cleaned up.

These unfiltered items will help the Council make a decision.

Please send everything to e and I can send it out to my contacts on the council.

Thanks,

Jeff

Suspect In Wisconsin Parade Carnage Was Out On Bail From Previous Case

Reuters (11/22, O'Brien, Orr) reports from Waukesha, Wisconsin, "The man accused of deliberately driving his car into a Christmas parade near Milwaukee, killing five people and injuring dozens, was out on bail from a domestic abuse case and was suspected in another violent altercation earlier that day, officials said on Monday." The suspect, Darrell Brooks, 39, "was arrested near the scene of Sunday's vehicular attack in Waukesha, Wisconsin, and faces five counts of first-degree homicide, Waukesha Police Chief Daniel Thompson said. In addition to the five people killed – ranging in age from 52 to 81 – 48 were injured, including six children who remained hospitalized in critical condition on Monday, authorities said. Among the victims were members of a parade group calling themselves the 'Dancing Grannies,' according to a statement posted on Facebook on Monday. Thompson said the motive for the attack was still a mystery but that it was clear the suspect had acted intentionally."

USA Today (11/23, Wagner) reports, "Before a red SUV smashed into parade marchers Sunday in Waukesha, Wisconsin, the driver plowed through barriers and raced past a police officer at a security post. As horrible as the incident was, the brazenness of the apparent assault is not altogether unusual." USA Today adds, "The incident, which left five people dead and at least 40 injured, raises new questions about the best security practices to protect crowds from a proliferating phenomenon known as 'vehicle ramming.' Weaponizing of vehicles is a practice sometimes used by terrorists abroad. But the wanton attacks have also surged in the United States. A Department of Homeland Security web page on vehicle ramming notes that street events and other gatherings provide 'soft targets' that often have little protection and can be attacked with 'devastating impact.'"

The International Association of Chiefs of Police is now accepting nominations for the 2021 Trooper of the Year Award. Please help us honor and recognize four state troopers and provincial police officers who have demonstrated bravery, courage, leadership, and professionalism.

WPost Examines Cooperation Between Trump Administration, Sheriffs On Detention Of Undocumented Immigrants

The Washington Post (11/23, Cenziper, Muller, Beals, Holland, Tran) examines the cooperation between the Trump administration and local sheriffs across the country on “a contentious national program known as 287(g).” According to the Post, “Operated by U.S. Immigration and Customs Enforcement, the program empowers state and local law enforcement officers to act with federal authority: questioning, reporting and detaining undocumented immigrants. Although ICE promised that the program would focus only on serious criminals, pro-immigration groups have repeatedly warned that the partnerships enable hard-line sheriffs to target undocumented immigrants leading peaceful lives.” The Post adds, “Despite mounting concerns about discriminatory policing, the Trump administration aggressively recruited local law enforcement partners and courted sheriffs who championed similar views on immigration policy, according to dozens of internal ICE emails obtained by The Post.”

Reports: Administration Set To Remove FARC From List Of Terrorist Groups

Reuters (11/23, Spetalnick, Zengerle) reports the Administration “is preparing to remove Colombian rebel group FARC from the U.S. list of foreign terrorist organizations, five years after the rebels signed a peace agreement with Bogota, two people familiar with the matter said on Tuesday.” The State Department notified Congress of its planned delisting of FARC, “and an announcement is expected in coming days, one of the sources told Reuters.” The Wall Street Journal (11/23, Subscription Publication) reports the Administration is also exploring whether to place militant groups composed of former FARC rebels on the terrorism list. The Journal notes that by dropping the terrorist designation, the US could fund projects in which former FARC members are involved.

Los Angeles Launches Pilot Program To Divert 911 Calls About Homelessness

The AP (11/23) reports, “Los Angeles residents who dial 911 for nonviolent issues related to homelessness will have their calls diverted away from law enforcement to trained, unarmed professionals under a pilot program announced Tuesday.” According to the AP, “The new initiative is being tested in Hollywood and Venice, where teams including outreach workers and mental health clinicians have been deployed part-time in neighborhoods with a concentration of people experiencing homelessness and high volume of calls for service. Beginning next month, the teams will be available around the clock to respond to nonemergency calls from the 911 system and the police nonemergency number. ‘The teams will continue to build a rapport with the unhoused community, conduct light sanitation work, de-escalate situations as they arise, and create referrals to local service providers,' said a statement announcing the program from Mayor Eric Garcetti's office."

UK Police To Train In Spotting Child Abuse Linked to Witchcraft

BBC News (11/23) reports, "The Met Police will get new training in spotting the signs of child abuse linked to a belief in witchcraft." Such "beliefs are often 'missed or misdiagnosed' as delusions – and the Met has warned they are on the rise." The Amber Project "will help officers spot warning signs and refer cases to the authorities. Insp Allen Davis said knowledge and awareness are 'not where they should be', and those working with children needed to be able to recognise the potential for abuse in certain situations. 'Cases are often missed or misdiagnosed,' he said. 'Practitioners may not recognise the risk of harm involved, chalking up these accusations to mental health problems or delusion. We need a concerted and co-ordinated response, where this issue is 'championed' locally so that it ceases to be viewed as a taboo issue and hidden harm.'"

Edmonton, Alberta Launches Animal Cruelty Investigation Unit

CFRN-TV Edmonton, CAN (11/23) reports, "The Edmonton Police Service says it has launched the first animal cruelty investigation unit in Canada. Prior to having a dedicated task force, animal cruelty cases would be placed under the domestic offender crimes section because of the violence link, Staff Sgt. Anna Sinclair told the media." Sinclair "said there's been a lot of research into the link between animal abuse, intimate partner violence, sexual violence, children offences and elder abuse. 'Once we start investigating the animal cruelty file that will lead to other violent crimes, particularly partner violence,' Sinclair said. The new unit will be comprised of two EPS constables and a number of animal cruelty liaisons with the city. The investigation unit isn't a new concept but it is new to Canada; both the United States and Europe already have a similar task force in place."

More Los Angeles Stores Hit In "Smash-And-Grab" Robberies

Reuters (11/23, 5:35 p.m. EST, Harte, Sampath Kumar) reports a Los Angeles Nordstrom department store "on Monday night became the latest target in a string of 'smash-and-grab' robberies that have hit luxury retailers in California and Illinois." According to Reuters, "About 80 people entered a Nordstrom department store in the East Bay Area city of Walnut Creek on Saturday night, stealing merchandise until police arrived and arrested three people, according to a Walnut Creek Police Department news release." The release said the incident was "clearly a planned event." Reuters says Louis Vuitton and Burberry stores "were also subject to burglaries by groups of people over the weekend, according to weekend reports." Best Buy CEO Corie Barry "said on Tuesday that stores had seen a large increase in organized theft."

Seventeen "Unite The Right" Rally Leaders Ordered To Pay Over $26M In Damages

The AP (11/23, Lavoie) reports a "jury ordered 17 white nationalist leaders and organizations to pay more than $26 million in damages Tuesday over the violence that erupted during the deadly 2017 Unite the Right rally in Charlottesville." The jury "deadlocked on two key claims but found the white nationalists liable on four other claims." The AP says the verdict, "though mixed, is a rebuke to the white nationalist movement.”

The New York Times (11/23, MacFarquhar) reports legal experts “said that the jury’s decision came down heavily on the side of the plaintiffs.” University of Virginia Law School Professor Richard Schragger said, “The bottom line is that the jury found for the plaintiffs and awarded significant compensatory and punitive damages.”

In One Colombian Community, Volunteers Confront Guerrillas Involved In Drug Trade

On its website, CNN (11/23, Pozzebon) reports, “In the indigenous reservation of Tacueyó” in Colombia, a volunteer organization “controls access to the community and administers local justice in place of the regular police.” Members of that organization “confront guerrillas and paramilitary groups who try to penetrate the community of Nasa indigenous people.” Those “guerrillas are now mostly involved in the drug trade and in Tacueyó they control the cultivation of illegal crops such as marijuana and coca, the raw material behind cocaine.”

Illinois' Voice of Professional Law Enforcement

Special Alert | November 23, 2021 Don't missed it: Planning for Body Cameras 2022 and Beyond final sessions next week in Fairview Heights and Springfield

Sign up now and plan on taking part in next week's training sponsored by Axon, Genetec and Motorola Solutions (Watchguard).

The Illinois Law Enforcement Officer-Worn Body Camera Act was effective January 1, 2016. It was amended by the SAFE-T Act of 2021, which requires all Illinois LE agencies to implement a body-worn camera program, depending on agency type and size, no later than January 1, 2025.

Only about 10 percent of Illinois agencies have implemented body cameras so far. To help prepare all agencies for the new law, this training from ILACP will provide you the collective experience of agencies in northern, central, and southeastern Illinois that have been using the cameras.

You will learn what's in the law, but more important, you will learn how you can best plan for and implement a successful body-worn camera program. The session will address policies, practices, and lessons learned from these agencies. You will learn about interaction with state's attorneys' offices and how the use of cameras can assist with citizen complaints.

Who should attend? Chiefs and command staff who oversee or plan to oversee a BWC program. It will helpful for agencies already using cameras and the other 90 percent that are looking into it.

COST: FREE - Registration is required

Working Agenda

1. Welcome and introductions, Ed Wojcicki, ILACP Executive Director

2. Lessons already learned and updates in the law: What you need to do to plan for and implement body-worn cameras.
1. FAIRVIEW HEIGHTS: Chief Steve Johnson, Swansea
2. SPRINGFIELD: Chief Kenny Winslow, Springfield

We will use the lessons and expertise of all of them at all three locations.

3. A state's attorney perspective

1. FAIRVIEW HEIGHTS: Representative from Madison and St. Clair County SA's office (invited)
 2. SPRINGFIELD: Representative from Sangamon County SA's office (invited)
 4. How these vendors can assist you:
 1. Axon
 2. Genetec
 3. Motorola Solutions
 5. Q&A throughout the program.
 6. Adjourn
- PLUS:

1. A handout about the Illinois Body Worn Camera Act with updates
2. The three vendors will have exhibit booths with opportunities for you to talk to them

Subject: FY22 Grant Notes, ISP Info Request, Child Abduction Trainings

Greetings,

For who have just been added to my distribution list, I am your Law Enforcement Coordinator for the US Attorneys Office in Northern IL.

For everyone, please see below for some reminders about the upcoming grant season and a message I am forwarding on behalf of ISP. There has also been quite a lot going on in our courts recently, so you may be interested in seeing some of our press releases below noting State, Local, and Federal partnerships.

I wish everyone a Happy Thanksgiving!

ISP: Working with the Statewide Terrorism & Intelligence Center (STIC), the Illinois State Police (ISP) Division of Criminal Investigation (DCI) is compiling an index of the license plate readers (LPR) in use in Illinois. The goal of this project is to leverage this information for use by all law enforcement organizations in their investigations. We have some quick questions about the use, sharing and storage of LPR data. None of this material will be released outside the STIC and ISP. Thank you for your participation and write me at aaron.kustermann@illinois.gov with any questions. To get started and participate in this effort click the link below. ISP hosts this data internally.

NOTABLE GRANTS / FUNDING

Some notes about grants:

- I want to remind everyone that the federal grant season will resume again in the new year with some grants being released starting in February and really getting rolling in May. I am here to answer any questions and provide feedback to the extent I am able.
- The FY 2022 Presidential Budget has requested $537.0 million for the COPS Hiring Program (CHP), an increase of $300.0 million above the FY 2021 Enacted level of $237.0 million. If you have been thinking of applying for this program but haven't – this might be a good year.
- Remember, to qualify for a federal grant you must be compliant with the U.S. Department of Justice's standards on safe policing (Executive Order No. 13929). This means you must have received your Federal Use of Force Certification from the Illinois Association of Chiefs of Police, through its Illinois Law Enforcement Accreditation Program (ILEAP). If you haven't received this (see list in link) I would start the process now: <https://www.ilchiefs.org/use-of-force-certification>

Bob,

Had a great convo with the ILEAP Council on Friday.

They were wanting a few things:

1. Whole, unedited video of police press conference. They feel the news version was probably edited.
2. A copy of the third party Law Firm report (pdf version is fine)
3. A status report on any and all lawsuits involving the police stemming for 2021. The Council desires this status report to come from the Village Attorney's Office. I guess so it's not cleaned up.

These unfiltered items will help the Council make a decision.

Please send everything to e and I can send it out to my contacts on the council.

Thanks,

Jeff

DC Police, ATF Up Reward For People Turning In "Ghost Guns," Other Modified Weapons

The Washington Post (11/22) reports, "Authorities in the District announced Monday the temporary expansion of a monetary reward aimed at helping police find and seize untraceable 'ghost guns' made from home kits, as well as other illegal firearms that are modified to fire as fully automatic. The reward – which now can reach up to $7,500 with the addition of federal funding – is linked to police recovering a firearm and making an arrest, but it no longer requires a conviction." The Post adds, "Officials said at a news conference that they hope these new incentives will lead to more tips and the recovery of more illegal firearms, and fewer shootings. The change comes as homicides are rising in the District for the fourth consecutive year. Mayor Muriel E. Bowser (D) said DC police have taken more than 2,000 illegal guns off the streets this year, more than in all of 2020."

US Lawmakers Eye Excessive Bail, Jail Overcrowding In New York City

The Hill (11/22, Choi) reports, "The House Oversight and Reform Committee has requested briefings from five New York City district attorneys regarding prison conditions and excessive bail. 'We have grave concerns that excessive bail amounts are leading to unnecessary pretrial detention and contributing to a humanitarian crisis in New York City's jail system, particularly on Rikers Island. Fourteen people have died this year in the custody of New York City Department of Correction,' the members of the committee wrote in their letter." The Hill adds, "According to the committee, three-quarters of those in custody in New York have not been convicted of a crime and are currently in custody due to being unable to afford bail. The members of the committee specifically pointed to the 'understaffed' Rikers Island, where they described conditions as having 'deteriorated dramatically' in the past few months."

Police In Missouri Ask Lawmakers To Amend Act Blocking Enforcement Of Federal Gun Laws

The Kansas City (MO) Star (11/22, Kang) reports from Columbia, Missouri, “Missouri law enforcement officials are asking the General Assembly to revise the state’s new Second Amendment act that prohibits them from helping enforce certain federal gun laws, telling lawmakers that it is hindering their ability to conduct criminal investigations. The law’s ‘wording and structure have caused confusion and potentially unintended legal implications,’ the Missouri Police Chiefs Association (MCPA) wrote in an October letter to Republican legislative leaders and the bill’s sponsors.” According to the Star, “The Second Amendment Preservation Act (SAPA), which Gov. Mike Parson signed in June, declares ‘invalid’ many federal gun regulations that don’t have an equivalent in Missouri law.”

Texas Authorities Boosting Traffic Enforcement For Thanksgiving Holiday Weekend

The Amarillo (TX) Globe News (11/22) reports “the Texas Department of Public Safety (DPS) wants to ensure people are able to get to and from their holiday celebrations safely” this year. Texas Highway Patrol troopers “will increase enforcement on the roads from Wednesday through Sunday.” The troopers “will be looking for people not wearing seat belts, driving while intoxicated, speeding and failing to follow the Move Over, Slow Down law, among other traffic violations. ‘This Thanksgiving more people will be out and it’s important to remember it’s up to each one of us to keep the roads safe,’ said DPS Director Steven McCraw.”

The IACP is now accepting workshop proposals for the 2022 Technology Conference, taking place May 24–26, 2022, in Milwaukee, Wisconsin. Share your expertise on the latest technology and policy issues confronting the policing profession. Submit your proposal through the IACP’S online system. The call for presentations is open through December 5, 2021. We hope to see you in Milwaukee!

APA Calls For Evidence-Based Overdose Deaths Prevention Effort

Healio (11/22, Gramigna) reports the American Psychiatric Association (APA) is calling for an overdose prevention effort that improves “access to mental health and substance use services via early identification in evidence-based models that combine behavioral health treatment and primary care services.” According to the APA, there “is a need to develop and implement science-based policies and programs” that aim to prevent opioid overdoses. The APA also “highlighted the need for policies and programs to support accredited medical school and residency programs in training clinicians to treat individuals with substance use disorders.”

Researchers Develop Wearable Opioid Overdose Reversal Device

The Hill (11/22, Guzman) reports University of Washington researchers have developed a device that “can detect when a person is experiencing an opioid overdose and administer” the overdose reversal drug naloxone. One of those researchers, Shyam Gollakota, said, “This wearable autoinjector may have the potential to reduce fatalities due to opioid overdoses.” CTV News (CAN) (11/22) also covers this story.

CBP Officers Find Meth In Baby Diapers Package Bound For Australia

McClatchy (11/22) reports US Customs and Border Protection (CBP) officers recently found illegal drugs inside a baby diapers package. A dog detected methamphetamine when inspecting a package that arrived at the Port of Cincinnati earlier this month. The meth was being shipped “from Texas to Australia,” according to the McClatchy article and a similar, online WSYX-TV Columbus, OH (11/22) report. Cox Media Group coverage of this story is posted to the WSOC-TV Charlotte, NC (11/22) website. The KGBT-TV Harlingen, TX (11/22) website publishes Nexstar Media coverage of the Port of Cincinnati meth discovery.

Authorities In San Francisco Seize 21 Illegal Guns, Arrest Four

The AP (11/22) reports from San Francisco, “Police arrested four people and seized 21 illegal weapons, ammunition and drugs after serving search warrants at two San Francisco homes last week, authorities said Monday.” The AP adds, “Federal and local agencies identified social media accounts listing firearms for sale and worked together in the investigation that led to two residences, the San Francisco Police Department and the San Francisco District Attorney’s Office said in statements. The Bureau of Alcohol, Tobacco, Firearms and Explosives also assisted in the investigation. Last Tuesday, ATF agents and San Francisco police officers served search warrants and seized 17 guns at a home in the Bay View District and another four at a home in the Southern District. They also arrested John Sembrano, Kadkda Mean, Kelly Mean and Ryan Chantha on multiple charges including the illegal sale of firearms, being a felon in possession of firearms and being armed while in possession of narcotics.”

Technology

FBI, CISA Issue Thanksgiving Ransomware Warning

CNN (11/22, Lyngaas) reports US officials are warning “American businesses and government organizations to take extra precautions against hackers this Thanksgiving following multiple ransomware attacks during previous holiday periods.” Monday’s advisory from the FBI and CISA “told organizations to identify key IT security employees who can be on call in the event of a ransomware attack” and “underscores how preparing for disruptive hacks has become a daily task for US companies and agencies after a series of high-profile ransomware attacks on critical American infrastructure this year.” CISA Director Jen Easterly said in a statement, “While we are not currently aware of a specific threat, we know that threat actors don’t take holidays.”

McClatchy (11/22) reports US Customs and Border Protection (CBP) officers recently found illegal drugs inside a baby diapers package. A dog detected methamphetamine when inspecting a package that arrived at the Port of Cincinnati earlier this month. The meth was being shipped “from Texas to Australia,” according to the McClatchy article and a similar, online WSYX-TV Columbus, OH (11/22) report. Cox Media Group coverage of this story is posted to the WSOC-TV Charlotte, NC (11/22) website. The KGBT-TV Harlingen, TX (11/22) website publishes Nexstar Media coverage of the Port of Cincinnati meth discovery.

Authorities In San Francisco Seize 21 Illegal Guns, Arrest Four

The AP (11/22) reports from San Francisco, “Police arrested four people and seized 21 illegal weapons, ammunition and drugs after serving search warrants at two San Francisco homes last week, authorities said Monday.” The AP adds, “Federal and local agencies identified social media accounts listing firearms for sale and worked together in the investigation that led to two residences, the San Francisco Police Department and the San Francisco District Attorney’s Office said in statements. The Bureau of Alcohol, Tobacco, Firearms and Explosives also assisted in the investigation. Last Tuesday, ATF agents and San Francisco police officers served search warrants and seized 17 guns at a home in the Bay View District and another four at a home in the Southern District. They also arrested John Sembrano, Kadkda Mean, Kelly Mean and Ryan Chantha on multiple charges including the illegal sale of firearms, being a felon in possession of firearms and being armed while in possession of narcotics.”

FBI, CISA Issue Thanksgiving Ransomware Warning

CNN (11/22, Lyngaas) reports US officials are warning “American businesses and government organizations to take extra precautions against hackers this Thanksgiving following multiple ransomware attacks during previous holiday periods.” Monday’s advisory from the FBI and CISA “told organizations to identify key IT security employees who can be on call in the event of a ransomware attack” and “underscores how preparing for disruptive hacks has become a daily task for US companies and agencies after a series of high-profile ransomware attacks on critical American infrastructure this year.” CISA Director Jen Easterly said in a statement, “While we are not currently aware of a specific threat, we know that threat actors don’t take holidays.”

DC Police, ATF Up Reward For People Turning In "Ghost Guns," Other Modified Weapons

The Washington Post (11/22) reports, "Authorities in the District announced Monday the temporary expansion of a monetary reward aimed at helping police find and seize untraceable 'ghost guns' made from home kits, as well as other illegal firearms that are modified to fire as fully automatic. The reward – which now can reach up to $7,500 with the addition of federal funding – is linked to police recovering a firearm and making an arrest, but it no longer requires a conviction." The Post adds, "Officials said at a news conference that they hope these new incentives will lead to more tips and the recovery of more illegal firearms, and fewer shootings. The change comes as homicides are rising in the District for the fourth consecutive year. Mayor Muriel E. Bowser (D) said DC police have taken more than 2,000 illegal guns off the streets this year, more than in all of 2020."

US Lawmakers Eye Excessive Bail, Jail Overcrowding In New York City

The Hill (11/22, Choi) reports, "The House Oversight and Reform Committee has requested briefings from five New York City district attorneys regarding prison conditions and excessive bail. 'We have grave concerns that excessive bail amounts are leading to unnecessary pretrial detention and contributing to a humanitarian crisis in New York City's jail system, particularly on Rikers Island. Fourteen people have died this year in the custody of New York City Department of Correction,' the members of the committee wrote in their letter." The Hill adds, "According to the committee, three-quarters of those in custody in New York have not been convicted of a crime and are currently in custody due to being unable to afford bail. The members of the committee specifically pointed to the 'understaffed' Rikers Island, where they described conditions as having 'deteriorated dramatically' in the past few months."

Police In Missouri Ask Lawmakers To Amend Act Blocking Enforcement Of Federal Gun Laws

The Kansas City (MO) Star (11/22, Kang) reports from Columbia, Missouri, “Missouri law enforcement officials are asking the General Assembly to revise the state’s new Second Amendment act that prohibits them from helping enforce certain federal gun laws, telling lawmakers that it is hindering their ability to conduct criminal investigations. The law’s ‘wording and structure have caused confusion and potentially unintended legal implications,’ the Missouri Police Chiefs Association (MCPA) wrote in an October letter to Republican legislative leaders and the bill’s sponsors.” According to the Star, “The Second Amendment Preservation Act (SAPA), which Gov. Mike Parson signed in June, declares ‘invalid’ many federal gun regulations that don’t have an equivalent in Missouri law.”

Texas Authorities Boosting Traffic Enforcement For Thanksgiving Holiday Weekend

The Amarillo (TX) Globe News (11/22) reports “the Texas Department of Public Safety (DPS) wants to ensure people are able to get to and from their holiday celebrations safely” this year. Texas Highway Patrol troopers “will increase enforcement on the roads from Wednesday through Sunday.” The troopers “will be looking for people not wearing seat belts, driving while intoxicated, speeding and failing to follow the Move Over, Slow Down law, among other traffic violations. ‘This Thanksgiving more people will be out and it’s important to remember it’s up to each one of us to keep the roads safe,’ said DPS Director Steven McCraw.”

The IACP is now accepting workshop proposals for the 2022 Technology Conference, taking place May 24–26, 2022, in Milwaukee, Wisconsin. APA Calls For Evidence-Based Overdose Deaths Prevention Effort

Healio (11/22, Gramigna) reports the American Psychiatric Association (APA) is calling for an overdose prevention effort that improves “access to mental health and substance use services via early identification in evidence-based models that combine behavioral health treatment and primary care services.” According to the APA, there “is a need to develop and implement science-based policies and programs” that aim to prevent opioid overdoses. The APA also “highlighted the need for policies and programs to support accredited medical school and residency programs in training clinicians to treat individuals with substance use disorders.”

Researchers Develop Wearable Opioid Overdose Reversal Device

The Hill (11/22, Guzman) reports University of Washington researchers have developed a device that “can detect when a person is experiencing an opioid overdose and administer” the overdose reversal drug naloxone. One of those researchers, Shyam Gollakota, said, “This wearable autoinjector may have the potential to reduce fatalities due to opioid overdoses.” CTV News (CAN) (11/22) also covers this story.

CBP Officers Find Meth In Baby Diapers Package Bound For Australia

A dog detected methamphetamine when inspecting a package that arrived at the Port of Cincinnati earlier this month. Hi Dawn,

Hope your week is off to a great start. Reaching out for I wanted to propose/recommend Sam Silverstein to the ILCMA team for future conference consideration. Attached is the completed ILCMA proposal form with all of his information.

Out of all the speakers I work with, you're probably wondering why Sam? Well, one key reason is that I saw late last year ILCMA endorsed the 'Ten Shared Principles' that was created a few years back by ILACP and the NAACP Illinois State Conference. One of which is Accountability, and if you do your research, Sam Silverstein is the most trusted voice on Accountability.

Hope to have the opportunity to work with you at some point in the future!

Bob,

Had a great convo with the ILEAP Council on Friday.

They were wanting a few things:

1. Whole, unedited video of police press conference. They feel the news version was probably edited.
2. A copy of the third party Law Firm report (pdf version is fine)

3. A status report on any and all lawsuits involving the police stemming for 2021. The Council desires this status report to come from the Village Attorney's Office. I guess so it's not cleaned up.

These unfiltered items will help the Council make a decision.

Please send everything to e and I can send it out to my contacts on the council.

Thanks,

Jeff

2. A copy of the third party Law Firm report (pdf version is fine)
3. A status report on any and all lawsuits involving the police stemming for 2021. The Council desires this status report to come from the Village Attorney's Office. I guess so it's not cleaned up.

These unfiltered items will help the Council make a decision.

Biden Administration Testing Whether Federal Intervention Can Lead To Improved Policing

In front-page coverage, the Washington Post (11/21, A1, Nakamura) reports the Louisville Metro Police Department in Kentucky “has become a testing ground in” an Administration “effort to demonstrate that federal intervention can lead to sustainable improvements in policing.” Louisville Metro Police Maj. Steven Healey was interviewed for a radio show by Bishop Dennis V. Lyons of the Gospel Missionary Church, who “pressed Healey to work more closely with church leaders and help protect Dino’s, a popular neighborhood food mart, which city government leaders have sought to close over allegations that it draws drug dealers and prostitutes to the area.” After the interview, Healey said the question about Dino’s brought up a good point. Healey asked, “Do we want to shut down another business or make a safe neighborhood store in a community that doesn’t have many?”

Demonstrators Trace Rittenhouse’s Route To Protest Acquittal

The AP (11/21, 7:00 p.m. EST) reports “several dozen” demonstrators gathered “at Kenosha’s Civic Center Park on Sunday...before taking to the streets in protest of the acquittal of Kyle Rittenhouse.” Demonstrators “traced the route Rittenhouse took” when he shot and killed two police-violence protestors and wounded one other. The AP reports protestors “carried signs that said ‘Reject Racist Vigilante Terror’ and ‘THE WHOLE SYSTEM IS GUILTY!’” Rainbow PUSH Coalition National Field Director Bishop Grant said in a statement, “The verdict of not guilty is very revealing of the state of criminal justice in America.” NAACP President and CEO Derrick Johnson “said Sunday that the verdict was hard for African Americans to reconcile.” The AP reports Johnson “called it ‘a warning shot that vigilante justice is allowed in this country or in particular communities.’” Rev. Jesse Jackson “was scheduled to appear in Kenosha, but did not come.” The

Proposed Resolutions for Membership Consideration

The IACP Board of Directors recently reviewed resolutions in Support for Incorporating and Enhanced Response to Victims as a Priority in Daily Law Enforcement Operations and to Combat the Dramatic Increase in Traffic Fatalities. Following the IACP Resolutions Process, the proposed resolutions are being sent to the IACP membership for review and comment.

As a reminder, resolutions can be submitted at any time of the year to ensure time-sensitive topics are being addressed. Submitted resolutions are then considered by the IACP Governing Body on a quarterly basis.

Police Arrest Three After 80 Thieves Loot Department Store Near San Francisco

The AP (11/21) reports police arrested three people after “about 80 people, some wearing ski masks and wielding crowbars, ransacked a high-end department store in the San Francisco Bay Area, assaulting employees and stealing merchandise before fleeing in cars waiting outside, police and witnesses said.” However, the AP adds “the majority got away after the large-scale theft Saturday night shocked shoppers at the Nordstrom at the Broadway Plaza outdoor mall in Walnut Creek, police said in a statement Sunday.” According to Reuters (11/21, Szekely), “The robbery followed another brazen mob-heist of high-end stores on Friday night in San Francisco’s Union Square, about 25 miles (40 km) to the west.”

Firearms Becoming More Common On US Streets

The AP (11/21) says proceedings last week at the Rittenhouse trial – as well as at the trial of Ahmaud Arbery’s killers – “sent startling new signals about the boundaries of self-defense as more guns emerge from homes.” The AP says the Giffords Law Center to Prevent Gun Violence reports “six more states this year removed requirements to get a permit to carry guns in public, the largest number in any single year,” and that “30 states have enacted ‘stand your ground’ laws, which remove a requirement to retreat from confrontations before using deadly force.” The AP reports, “Prohibitions on possessing guns in public could soon change if the US Supreme Court strikes down a New York law” based on “a dispute over whether New York’s gun permitting law violates the Second Amendment right to ‘keep and bear arms.’”

Panic Ensues At Hartsfield-Jackson Airport Following “Accidental Discharge” Of Gun

The New York Times (11/20, Medina, Paz) reports that “gunfire at the Hartsfield-Jackson Atlanta International Airport on Saturday resulted from an ‘accidental discharge’ of a firearm, officials said, but it caused holiday travelers to flee and seek cover.” The Transportation Security Administration indicated that in the chaos, three individuals sustained non life-threatening injuries. The panic occurred amid what is among “the busiest times of the year for air travel, when millions of people are expected to fly for Thanksgiving.” Meanwhile, the TSA also said a passenger discharged the gun. The Times adds, “At a news conference on Saturday night, the authorities identified the passenger as 42-year-old Kenny Wells. The police said he was a felon and there were warrants out for his arrest.”

Fentanyl Linked To High Number Of US Overdose Deaths During 12-Month Period

In front-page coverage, the New York Times (11/20, A1, Nir) reported, “In the 12-month period that ended in April, more than 100,000 Americans, a record number, died from overdoses, according to preliminary data” that the US Centers for Disease Control and Prevention (CDC) recently released. The Times highlights that a majority of those “deaths were linked to synthetic opioids like fentanyl.” Earlier this year, the DEA “issued a public safety alert: More than 40 percent of black-market prescription pills contain lethal amounts of fentanyl.”

Marijuana Use Among College Students Reached 1980s Levels In 2020

The Across Washington (WA) Patch (11/21) reports “marijuana use among college students in 2020 reached levels not seen since the 1980s,” according to “the latest research from Monitoring the Future – an annual survey that looks at drug and alcohol use among the nation’s young people.” The Patch adds, “Use of high potency cannabis is associated with a number of outcomes, including greater risk of...adverse mental health outcomes” and marijuana use disorder.

New Mexico Raid Casts Shadow Over Marijuana’s Economic Potential For Indigenous Communities

The AP (11/19, Contreras) reported that a Bureau of Indian Affairs raid operation in New Mexico “is sowing uncertainty and resentment about US drug enforcement priorities on Native American reservations.” The man who planted the raid’s target, a garden that was located on tribal land, “is enrolled in the state’s medical marijuana program to ease post-traumatic stress and anxiety.” The New Mexico raid operation, which was conducted in late September, “has cast a shadow over cannabis as an economic development opportunity for Indigenous communities.”

Some Afghan Farmers Planting Poppies

A front-page Wall Street Journal (11/21, A1, Trofimov, Subscription Publication) article says some farmers in Afghanistan’s Kandahar province say they are planting poppies, which are used to make heroin, because drought conditions and the international response to Taliban rule in that country have made legal crops unprofitable. The New York Times (11/21, Gibbons-Neff, Shah) reports the planting of poppies, which is happening “in the middle of a dire economic collapse that has led to a nationwide cash crunch, may have ramifications for” heroin production and trafficking in Afghanistan. The Taliban had “indicated a desire to ban production of the drug after the group took power in August.” But during a recent interview, Taliban spokesperson Zabihullah Mujahid “said that there was no plan to stop or eradicate poppy cultivation.” Mujahid added, however, that the Taliban is encouraging farmers to “find alternatives” to poppy cultivation.

Spokane Police Announce 62-Year-Old Killing Finally Solved

The New York Times (11/21, Levenson) reports the 1959 disappearance of nine-year-old Candice Rogers “rocked Spokane,” and “on Friday, more than 62 years after Candy was killed, the Spokane police announced that they had solved the case with DNA evidence and old-fashioned detective work.” The Times says police “identified the suspect as John Reigh Hoff, who died by suicide in 1970, when he was 31. His daughter provided a DNA sample that linked her father to semen that had been found on Candy’s clothing, which had been preserved as evidence in an era long before the advent of genetic testing at crime scenes.”

Some Afghan Farmers Planting Poppies

A front-page Wall Street Journal (11/21, A1, Trofimov, Subscription Publication) article says some farmers in Afghanistan’s Kandahar province say they are planting poppies, which are used to make heroin, because drought conditions and the international response to Taliban rule in that country have made legal crops unprofitable. The New York Times (11/21, Gibbons-Neff, Shah) reports the planting of poppies, which is happening “in the middle of a dire economic collapse that has led to a nationwide cash crunch, may have ramifications for” heroin production and trafficking in Afghanistan. The Taliban had “indicated a desire to ban production of the drug after the group took power in August.” But during a recent interview, Taliban spokesperson Zabihullah Mujahid “said that there was no plan to stop or eradicate poppy cultivation.” Mujahid added, however, that the Taliban is encouraging farmers to “find alternatives” to poppy cultivation.

Spokane Police Announce 62-Year-Old Killing Finally Solved

The New York Times (11/21, Levenson) reports the 1959 disappearance of nine-year-old Candice Rogers “rocked Spokane,” and “on Friday, more than 62 years after Candy was killed, the Spokane police announced that they had solved the case with DNA evidence and old-fashioned detective work.” The Times says police “identified the suspect as John Reigh Hoff, who died by suicide in 1970, when he was 31. His daughter provided a DNA sample that linked her father to semen that had been found on Candy’s clothing, which had been preserved as evidence in an era long before the advent of genetic testing at crime scenes.”

Biden Administration Testing Whether Federal Intervention Can Lead To Improved Policing

In front-page coverage, the Washington Post (11/21, A1, Nakamura) reports the Louisville Metro Police Department in Kentucky “has become a testing ground in” an Administration “effort to demonstrate that federal intervention can lead to sustainable improvements in policing.” Louisville Metro Police Maj. Steven Healey was interviewed for a radio show by Bishop Dennis V. Lyons of the Gospel Missionary Church, who “pressed Healey to work more closely with church leaders and help protect Dino’s, a popular neighborhood food mart, which city government leaders have sought to close over allegations that it draws drug dealers and prostitutes to the area.” After the interview, Healey said the question about Dino’s brought up a good point. Healey asked, “Do we want to shut down another business or make a safe neighborhood store in a community that doesn’t have many?”

Demonstrators Trace Rittenhouse’s Route To Protest Acquittal

The AP (11/21, 7:00 p.m. EST) reports “several dozen” demonstrators gathered “at Kenosha’s Civic Center Park on Sunday...before taking to the streets in protest of the acquittal of Kyle Rittenhouse.” Demonstrators “traced the route Rittenhouse took” when he shot and killed two police-violence protestors and wounded one other. The AP reports protestors “carried signs that said ‘Reject Racist Vigilante Terror’ and ‘THE WHOLE SYSTEM IS GUILTY!’” Rainbow PUSH Coalition National Field Director Bishop Grant said in a statement, “The verdict of not guilty is very revealing of the state of criminal justice in America.” NAACP President and CEO Derrick Johnson “said Sunday that the verdict was hard for African Americans to reconcile.” The AP reports Johnson “called it ‘a warning shot that vigilante justice is allowed in this country or in particular communities.’” Rev. Jesse Jackson “was scheduled to appear in Kenosha, but did not come.” The

Proposed Resolutions for Membership Consideration

The IACP Board of Directors recently reviewed resolutions in Support for Incorporating and Enhanced Response to Victims as a Priority in Daily Law Enforcement Operations and to Combat the Dramatic Increase in Traffic Fatalities. Following the IACP Resolutions Process, the proposed resolutions are being sent to the IACP membership for review and comment.

As a reminder, resolutions can be submitted at any time of the year to ensure time-sensitive topics are being addressed. Submitted resolutions are then considered by the IACP Governing Body on a quarterly basis.

Please send any comments to the IACP Resolutions Committee at resolutions@theiacp.org by November 26, 2021.

Police Arrest Three After 80 Thieves Loot Department Store Near San Francisco

The AP (11/21) reports police arrested three people after “about 80 people, some wearing ski masks and wielding crowbars, ransacked a high-end department store in the San Francisco Bay Area, assaulting employees and stealing merchandise before fleeing in cars waiting outside, police and witnesses said.” However, the AP adds “the majority got away after the large-scale theft Saturday night shocked shoppers at the Nordstrom at the Broadway Plaza outdoor mall in Walnut Creek, police said in a statement Sunday.” According to Reuters (11/21, Szekely), “The robbery followed another brazen mob-heist of high-end stores on Friday night in San Francisco’s Union Square, about 25 miles (40 km) to the west.”

Firearms Becoming More Common On US Streets

The AP (11/21) says proceedings last week at the Rittenhouse trial – as well as at the trial of Ahmaud Arbery’s killers – “sent startling new signals about the boundaries of self-defense as more guns emerge from homes.” The AP says the Giffords Law Center to Prevent Gun Violence reports “six more states this year removed requirements to get a permit to carry guns in public, the largest number in any single year,” and that “30 states have enacted ‘stand your ground’ laws, which remove a requirement to retreat from confrontations before using deadly force.” The AP reports, “Prohibitions on possessing guns in public could soon change if the US Supreme Court strikes down a New York law” based on “a dispute over whether New York’s gun permitting law violates the Second Amendment right to ‘keep and bear arms.’”

Panic Ensues At Hartsfield-Jackson Airport Following “Accidental Discharge” Of Gun

The New York Times (11/20, Medina, Paz) reports that “gunfire at the Hartsfield-Jackson Atlanta International Airport on Saturday resulted from an ‘accidental discharge’ of a firearm, officials said, but it caused holiday travelers to flee and seek cover.” The Transportation Security Administration indicated that in the chaos, three individuals sustained non life-threatening injuries. The panic occurred amid what is among “the busiest times of the year for air travel, when millions of people are expected to fly for Thanksgiving.” Meanwhile, the TSA also said a passenger discharged the gun. The Times adds, “At a news conference on Saturday night, the authorities identified the passenger as 42-year-old Kenny Wells. The police said he was a felon and there were warrants out for his arrest.”

Fentanyl Linked To High Number Of US Overdose Deaths During 12-Month Period

In front-page coverage, the New York Times (11/20, A1, Nir) reported, “In the 12-month period that ended in April, more than 100,000 Americans, a record number, died from overdoses, according to preliminary data” that the US Centers for Disease Control and Prevention (CDC) recently released. The Times highlights that a majority of those “deaths were linked to synthetic opioids like fentanyl.” Earlier this year, the DEA “issued a public safety alert: More than 40 percent of black-market prescription pills contain lethal amounts of fentanyl.”

Marijuana Use Among College Students Reached 1980s Levels In 2020

The Across Washington (WA) Patch (11/21) reports “marijuana use among college students in 2020 reached levels not seen since the 1980s,” according to “the latest research from Monitoring the Future – an annual survey that looks at drug and alcohol use among the nation’s young people.” The Patch adds, “Use of high potency cannabis is associated with a number of outcomes, including greater risk of...adverse mental health outcomes” and marijuana use disorder.

New Mexico Raid Casts Shadow Over Marijuana’s Economic Potential For Indigenous Communities

The AP (11/19, Contreras) reported that a Bureau of Indian Affairs raid operation in New Mexico “is sowing uncertainty and resentment about US drug enforcement priorities on Native American reservations.” The man who planted the raid’s target, a garden that was located on tribal land, “is enrolled in the state’s medical marijuana program to ease post-traumatic stress and anxiety.” The New Mexico raid operation, which was conducted in late September, “has cast a shadow over cannabis as an economic development opportunity for Indigenous communities.”

Sergio,

Since I really don't have an intimate knowledge of what Skokie PD does and doesn't participate in, I used your website and social media accounts to look at what you guys are doing so far. First off – you guys are killing it already and look to be participating in most of the events and outreach programs recognized locally and nationally. So kudos!

Here is what I thought up tonight while I was working that you could bring up (improve on, add to etc.):

- Develop and Maintain a Junior Police Academy (Summertime).
 - o Middle school-High school students for 1 or 2 week police academy.
 - o Similar to Citizens Police Academy, but less time and different syllabus (incorporate physical fitness, health standards etc.)

- Utilize newer/younger social media platforms like Tik Tok, and Instagram to make short videos/pictures etc.
 - o You guys killed it with the music video, I bet younger officers would do Tik Tok stuff

- Skokie is a VERY diverse community and you have a history with bad blood with blue line flag etc.

- o Develop a faith based round table with various faith leaders and your Chief to sit together and identify current issues plaguing each religious group

- o Pictures, great public relations

- Develop Beat Program similar to Chicago CAPS program

- o Unsure if you have this or not, assign patrol officers as beat liaisons and have them meet quarterly with you overseeing beats with most calls for service or area with most citizen complaints

- o Actually follow up and fix issues (even if not police related – work with Public Works, Fire etc.)

- Build upon your relationships with retail stores at Old Orchard to identify their interests, expectations and then educate them on current charging thresholds/standards

- o What to look for

- o How to mitigate retail theft

- Coffee with the Chief

- o Q/A with Chief Baker (and not just Village members, actual community members)

- Get involved with Chamber of Commerce to be Representative for PD at all events

- Homeless Initiative

- o Develop policy on how to humanly manage homeless issues

- o Work with local shelters and family services departments

- o Work with homeless and Chamber of Commerce or Adult Centers to get jobs, help get them ID's through SOS

- Work with non for profits to clean up Skokie Initiative

- o Clean up litter, garbage etc.

- o Develop graffiti removal program (if you don't already have one)

- Develop and Organize Inclusion and Diversity Groups or Committees within the Village of Skokie

- o Set this committee as priority for Department
- o Set policy for training regarding diversity/inclusion
- o Invite outside groups to participate
 - Bicycle Registration
- o Bicycle safety events, work with North Shore Hospital for helmet safety etc.
 - Holiday oriented events
- o Shop with a Cop
- o Polar Express
- o 4th of July
- o St. Patrick's Day (DUI enforcement)
- o Halloween Trunk or Treat
- o Valentine's Day Valentine pass out at school
- o Work together with VFW or similar with your Honor Guard to honor military holidays
 - Carnival / Special Event Practices
- o Develop policies and practices for special events
- o Staffing levels
- o Aggregating factors (music, alcohol, crowd size)
- o Background checks on Carnival Workers
- o ICS Plans
 - Reach out to elected officials and participate with them in events that make you both look good

- o Paper shredding
- o Electronic recycling
- o Town Hall Meetings
 - Hold an Open House at your station
- o Show off your station (it's beautiful, and green etc..)
- o Station Tours (cub/by/girl scouts, schools, park districts)
 - Participate in patch events
- o Autism, Cancer
- o No shave November etc.
 - Crime Prevention includes Crime Statistics
- o Use predicative policing models to help curb crimes
- o Identify trends of crimes and learn statistics to break it down to learn when specific crimes are occurring and where and present that info to command staff
 - Participate in the Chief's Traffic Safety Challenge (IACP)
 - You have an annual report, but do you guys have a strategic vision ?
- o Difference is strategic vision documents what you're going to do; whereas annual report documents what you did
 - Review your FY2022 budget found here. You should be able to articulate how much monies are allocated to Crime Prevention and either at the end or at the beginning wrap it all up and say something like, with these monies I'd like to accomplish this.... We should increase our already strong community policing activities to include.... Etc. etc.. Always grease the interviewer by saying, Skokie PD has led the way in community policing and crime prevention activity for many years. As the leader compared to our surroundings towns, we need to always be one step ahead, constantly evolving to expectations of our peers and residents to ensure we are providing the very best to our citizens, businesses and visitors alike.
- o Budget 001-1650-405.05-80 (Travel and Meetings) for Crime Prevention = $ 300.00 annually

§ How do you plan on using those allocated funds

o Budget 001-1650-406.06-09 (Minor Equipment and Tools) for Crime Prevention/Child Safety Supplies = $500.00

§ How do you plan on using those allocated funds

o Budget 001-1650-406.06-13 (Recording Media) for Crime Prevention? = $ 2,110.00 annually

§ How do you plan on using those allocated funds – Make crime prevention videos?

o Budget 001-1650-406.06-14 (Clothing) for Crossing Guards and Volunteers = $ 1,500 and $ 250.00 annually

§ How do you plan on using those allocated funds (increased visibility etc.)

o Budget 001-1650-406.06-99 (Other Commodities) for Crime Prevention = $ 400.00 and $ 3,365 annually

§ How do you plan on using those allocated funds for events and stickers etc. (think outside the box)

I guarantee if you go in there with these budgetary line items and first cite them, then say how you plan on using them – the interviewer will see you have foresight into planning for the future while understanding you need to be fiscally responsible. Any good administrative manager will have a hard on for that. FYI – the numbers above are literally taken from Skokie PD FY2022 budget so they are on point.

Exploit your expansive networking contacts and explain that by using all the contacts you have made over the years, you can make Skokie PD a better Agency (efficient, inclusive, active in the community with businesses etc.). With this list, and the current activities you guys are doing already, you should be on your way to a good interview. Always compliment the previous officer (administration or whatever ran it prior to you), and then say you want to add to their success etc..

Good luck with your interview, let me know how it goes.

- Participate in the Chief's Traffic Safety Challenge (IACP)
- You have an annual report, but do you guys have a strategic vision ?
 - o Difference is strategic vision documents what you're going to do; whereas annual report documents what you did
- Review your FY2022 budget found here. You should be able to articulate how much monies are allocated to Crime Prevention and either at the end or at the beginning wrap it all up and say something like, with these monies I'd like to accomplish this... We should increase our already strong community policing activities to include.... Etc. etc.. Always grease the interviewer by saying, Skokie PD has led the way in community policing and crime prevention activity for many years. As the leader compared to our surroundings towns, we need to always be one step ahead, constantly evolving to expectations of our peers and residents to ensure we are providing the very best to our citizens, businesses and visitors alike.
 - o Budget 001-1650-405.05-80 (Travel and Meetings) for Crime Prevention = $ 300.00 annually
 - § How do you plan on using those allocated funds
 - o Budget 001-1650-406.06-09 (Minor Equipment and Tools) for Crime Prevention/Child Safety Supplies = $500.00

§ How do you plan on using those allocated funds

o Budget 001-1650-406.06-13 (Recording Media) for Crime Prevention? = $ 2,110.00 annually

§ How do you plan on using those allocated funds – Make crime prevention videos?

o Budget 001-1650-406.06-14 (Clothing) for Crossing Guards and Volunteers = $ 1,500 and $ 250.00 annually

§ How do you plan on using those allocated funds (increased visibility etc.)

o Budget 001-1650-406.06-99 (Other Commodities) for Crime Prevention = $ 400.00 and $ 3,365 annually

§ How do you plan on using those allocated funds for events and stickers etc. (think outside the box)

I guarantee if you go in there with these budgetary line items and first cite them, then say how you plan on using them – the interviewer will see you have foresight into planning for the future while understanding you need to be fiscally responsible. Any good administrative manager will have a hard on for that. FYI – the numbers above are literally taken from Skokie PD FY2022 budget so they are on point.

Exploit your expansive networking contacts and explain that by using all the contacts you have made over the years, you can make Skokie PD a better Agency (efficient, inclusive, active in the community with businesses etc.). With this list, and the current activities you guys are doing already, you should be on your way to a good interview. Always compliment the previous officer (administration or whatever ran it prior to you), and then say you want to add to their success etc..

Good luck with your interview, let me know how it goes.

President Signs Three Bills Boosting Law Enforcement, First Responders

CNN (11/18, Klein) reports President Biden on Thursday “signed three bipartisan bills into law aimed at supporting the nation’s law enforcement and first responders, as well as the communities they serve.” The President said, “Today’s investment and the bills I’m about to sign share goals of law enforcement and first responders: be the protectors and the partners our communities need.” The President signed the COPS Counseling Act, the Protect America’s First Responders Act, and the Jaime Zapata and Victor Avila Federal Officers and Employees Protection Act.

The New York Post (11/18, Patteson) reports all three new laws “serve to support law enforcement through increased benefits, peer support, and granting the US extraterritorial jurisdiction over certain crimes against federal officers or employees abroad. Shortly after signing the bills, Biden was spotted speaking with Jake Bomba,” the son of an officer who took his own life, “and was pictured putting his hand on the boy’s arm. The President also handed Jake the pen he signed the bills with.”

DOJ Announces $139 Million In COPS Grants

The AP (11/18, Balsamo) reports the DOJ is granting “$139 million to police departments across the US as part of a grant program that would bring on more than 1,000 new officers.” The grant funding comes from the DOJ’s Office of Community Oriented Policing Services and “will be awarded to 183 law enforcement agencies across the country and in US territories.” AG Garland said in a statement, “We are committed to providing police departments with the resources needed to help ensure community safety and build community trust.”

DC Police High School Cadet Program Relunched

The Washington Post (11/18, Thomas) reports the District of Columbia (DC) Mayor Muriel Bowser (D) and DC Police Chief Robert J. Contee III have “relunched a high school cadet program” that aims to attract “a new generation of homegrown law enforcement officers.” During a Thursday ceremony that marked the relaunching, Bowser said, “We want police officers who represent and reflect DC residents, who understand our city and our culture, and who are invested in our communities.” She was speaking about a program that “will allow seniors to gain insight into what it means to be part of the DC police force while continuing to complete their high school education. They will get mentoring and training in a part-time program 12 hours each week. After school, they can join the cadet corps program full time, earning about $35,000 a year working a variety of police jobs and earning 60 tuition-free college credits at the University of the District of Columbia.”

Ohio Supreme Court Decides Gun Rights Case

The AP (11/18, Smyth) reports from Columbus, Ohio, “An Ohio woman has successfully blocked her abusive ex-husband’s right to possess a gun, under a crime victims’ rights law amended into the state Constitution in 2017.” The Ohio Supreme Court’s Thursday ruling “reversed a lower court’s order granting the ex-husband relief under an Ohio law that allows for lifting gun limits if someone’s conviction is fully discharged, and other conditions. In the 4-3 decision, the court said Jamie Suwalski could invoke Marsy’s Law in order to block the order involving her former spouse, Roy Ewing, who was convicted of misdemeanor domestic violence against her. The law requires police to notify victims or their families when an offender is released from jail or escapes, and guarantees a victim’s ‘right to be treated with respect, fairness and dignity throughout the criminal justice process.’”

UK Announces Punishments For Touching Phones While Driving

The Daily Mail (UK) (11/18, Line) reports, “Drivers will soon face £200 fines and six points on their licence if they so much as touch their phone while at the wheel, ministers announced” this week. Laws that take “effect early next year will make phone use while driving illegal in almost all circumstances.” Those “stringent rules will also apply when stopped at a red light or stuck in traffic.” The “only significant exception is that drivers will still be able to use their phone as a sat-nav as long as it is secured in a holder, and hands-free calls. Mobile payments at drive-through restaurants or on toll roads will also be allowed. But motorists performing one of these actions could still be prosecuted if the police find them not in proper control of their vehicle.”

Tennessee Governor Invites Out-Of-State Police To Join State’s Highway Patrol, Regardless Of COVID-19 Vaccination Status

The AP (11/18, Kruesi, Mattise) reports Tennessee Gov. Bill Lee (R) “has sought to capitalize on rising law enforcement tensions with city leaders surrounding COVID-19 vaccine mandates, offering to help pay unvaccinated out-of-state officers to relocate and join the Tennessee Highway Patrol.”

NPR (11/18, Treisman) also covers the story.

UK Home Secretary To Announce Plan To Make Support Of Hamas Illegal

The Guardian (UK) (11/19, Syal) reports, “Supporters of Hamas could face up to 14 years in jail under plans to be announced on Friday by Priti Patel. The home secretary said the organisation will be proscribed by the government under the Terrorism Act. It means anyone who expresses support for Hamas, flies their flag or arranges meetings for the organisation will be in breach of the law.” Patel “hopes to push through the change in parliament next week in a move she says will help to combat antisemitism. She told reporters in Washington DC: ‘We’ve taken the view that we can no longer disaggregate the sort of military and political side. It’s based upon a wide range of intelligence, information and also links to terrorism. The severity of that speaks for itself.’” According to the Guardian, “Until now, the UK has banned only its military wing – the Izz ad-Din al-Qassam Brigades.”

Acts of mass violence pose unique challenges for law enforcement leaders. Responding to these incidents while operating under extreme pressure and public scrutiny may be one of the most difficult experiences of your career.

The IACP’s Mass Violence Advisory Initiative is here to provide assistance if an incident occurs in your jurisdiction. Through the Mass Violence Peer to Peer Advisory Team, experienced law enforcement leaders and public information officers who have responded to similar incidents in the past will deploy to provide immediate and ongoing guidance at no cost to the community.

Ten Bodies Found In Part Of Mexico Where Two Cartels Have Been Fighting For Territory

The AP (11/19) reports, “Mexican authorities on Thursday discovered 10 bodies — nine of them hanging from an overpass — in the central state of Zacatecas,” where two drug cartels have been engaged in a turf war. The Sinaloa Cartel and the Jalisco New Generation Cartel “have been battling for control in the state, which is a key transit point for” illicit fentanyl and other drugs. Officials Investigating Whether Fentanyl-Laced Marijuana Is In Connecticut

The New York Post (11/18, Reilly) reports Connecticut health officials are investigating whether fentanyl-laced marijuana is circulating in that state. The investigation follows more than three dozen “reports of patients who suffered opioid overdose symptoms after claiming they had only smoked marijuana.” The Connecticut Department of Public Health (DPH) announced on Thursday that marijuana which is linked to one of those patients tested positive for fentanyl. Connecticut DPH Commissioner Manisha Juthani stated, “This is the first lab-confirmed case of marijuana with fentanyl in Connecticut and possibly the first confirmed case in the United States.”

President Signs Three Bills Boosting Law Enforcement, First Responders

CNN (11/18, Klein) reports President Biden on Thursday “signed three bipartisan bills into law aimed at supporting the nation’s law enforcement and first responders, as well as the communities they serve.” The President said, “Today’s investment and the bills I’m about to sign share goals of law enforcement and first responders: be the protectors and the partners our communities need.” The President signed the COPS Counseling Act, the Protect America’s First Responders Act, and the Jaime Zapata and Victor Avila Federal Officers and Employees Protection Act.

The New York Post (11/18, Patteson) reports all three new laws “serve to support law enforcement through increased benefits, peer support, and granting the US extraterritorial jurisdiction over certain crimes against federal officers or employees abroad. Shortly after signing the bills, Biden was spotted speaking with Jake Bomba,” the son of an officer who took his own life, “and was pictured putting his hand on the boy’s arm. The President also handed Jake the pen he signed the bills with.”

DOJ Announces $139 Million In COPS Grants

The AP (11/18, Balsamo) reports the DOJ is granting “$139 million to police departments across the US as part of a grant program that would bring on more than 1,000 new officers.” The grant funding comes from the DOJ’s Office of Community Oriented Policing Services and “will be awarded to 183 law enforcement agencies across the country and in US territories.” AG Garland said in a statement, “We are committed to providing police departments with the resources needed to help ensure community safety and build community trust.”

DC Police High School Cadet Program Relunched

The Washington Post (11/18, Thomas) reports the District of Columbia (DC) Mayor Muriel Bowser (D) and DC Police Chief Robert J. Contee III have “relunched a high school cadet program” that aims to attract “a new generation of homegrown law enforcement officers.” During a Thursday

ceremony that marked the relaunching, Bowser said, “We want police officers who represent and reflect DC residents, who understand our city and our culture, and who are invested in our communities.” She was speaking about a program that “will allow seniors to gain insight into what it means to be part of the DC police force while continuing to complete their high school education. They will get mentoring and training in a part-time program 12 hours each week. After school, they can join the cadet corps program full time, earning about $35,000 a year working a variety of police jobs and earning 60 tuition-free college credits at the University of the District of Columbia.”

Ohio Supreme Court Decides Gun Rights Case

The AP (11/18, Smyth) reports from Columbus, Ohio, “An Ohio woman has successfully blocked her abusive ex-husband’s right to possess a gun, under a crime victims’ rights law amended into the state Constitution in 2017.” The Ohio Supreme Court’s Thursday ruling “reversed a lower court’s order granting the ex-husband relief under an Ohio law that allows for lifting gun limits if someone’s conviction is fully discharged, and other conditions. In the 4-3 decision, the court said Jamie Suwalski could invoke Marsy’s Law in order to block the order involving her former spouse, Roy Ewing, who was convicted of misdemeanor domestic violence against her. The law requires police to notify victims or their families when an offender is released from jail or escapes, and guarantees a victim’s ‘right to be treated with respect, fairness and dignity throughout the criminal justice process.’”

UK Announces Punishments For Touching Phones While Driving

The Daily Mail (UK) (11/18, Line) reports, “Drivers will soon face £200 fines and six points on their licence if they so much as touch their phone while at the wheel, ministers announced” this week. Laws that take “effect early next year will make phone use while driving illegal in almost all circumstances.” Those “stringent rules will also apply when stopped at a red light or stuck in traffic.” The “only significant exception is that drivers will still be able to use their phone as a sat-nav as long as it is secured in a holder, and hands-free calls. Mobile payments at drive-through restaurants or on toll roads will also be allowed. But motorists performing one of these actions could still be prosecuted if the police find them not in proper control of their vehicle.”

Tennessee Governor Invites Out-Of-State Police To Join State’s Highway Patrol, Regardless Of COVID-19 Vaccination Status

The AP (11/18, Kruesi, Mattise) reports Tennessee Gov. Bill Lee (R) “has sought to capitalize on rising law enforcement tensions with city leaders surrounding COVID-19 vaccine mandates, offering to help pay unvaccinated out-of-state officers to relocate and join the Tennessee Highway Patrol.”

NPR (11/18, Treisman) also covers the story.

UK Home Secretary To Announce Plan To Make Support Of Hamas Illegal

The Guardian (UK) (11/19, Syal) reports, “Supporters of Hamas could face up to 14 years in jail under plans to be announced on Friday by Priti Patel. The home secretary said the organisation will be proscribed by the government under the Terrorism Act. It means anyone who expresses support for Hamas, flies their flag or arranges meetings for the organisation will be in breach of the law.” Patel “hopes to push through the change in parliament next week in a move she says will help to combat antisemitism. She told reporters in Washington DC: ‘We’ve taken the view that we can no longer disaggregate the sort of military and political side. It’s based upon a wide range of intelligence, information and also links to terrorism. The severity of that speaks for itself.’” According to the Guardian, “Until now, the UK has banned only its military wing – the Izz ad-Din al-Qassam Brigades.”

Acts of mass violence pose unique challenges for law enforcement leaders. Responding to these incidents while operating under extreme pressure and public scrutiny may be one of the most difficult experiences of your career.

The IACP’s Mass Violence Advisory Initiative is here to provide assistance if an incident occurs in your jurisdiction. Through the Mass Violence Peer to Peer Advisory Team, experienced law enforcement leaders and public information officers who have responded to similar incidents in the past will deploy to provide immediate and ongoing guidance at no cost to the community.

E-mail MVAI@theIACP.org to request assistance. For more information, visit www.theiacp.org/mvai.

Ten Bodies Found In Part Of Mexico Where Two Cartels Have Been Fighting For Territory

The AP (11/19) reports, “Mexican authorities on Thursday discovered 10 bodies — nine of them hanging from an overpass — in the central state of Zacatecas,” where two drug cartels have been engaged in a turf war. The Sinaloa Cartel and the Jalisco New Generation Cartel “have been battling for control in the state, which is a key transit point for” illicit fentanyl and other drugs.

Officials Investigating Whether Fentanyl-Laced Marijuana Is In Connecticut

The New York Post (11/18, Reilly) reports Connecticut health officials are investigating whether fentanyl-laced marijuana is circulating in that state. The investigation follows more than three dozen “reports of patients who suffered opioid overdose symptoms after claiming they had only smoked marijuana.” The Connecticut Department of Public Health (DPH) announced on Thursday that marijuana which is linked to one of those patients tested positive for fentanyl. Connecticut DPH Commissioner Manisha Juthani stated, “This is the first lab-confirmed case of marijuana with fentanyl in Connecticut and possibly the first confirmed case in the United States.”

Illinois' Voice of Professional Law Enforcement

Member spotlight: Chatham PD & the Illinois Traffic Safety Challenge

Over the past decade, the Chatham Police Department has emerged as one of the consistent leaders in the Illinois Traffic Safety Challenge (ITSC), a friendly competition between law enforcement agencies across the state categorized by size. The program began in the early 2000s and is coordinated by the Illinois Association of Chiefs of Police.

Last year, Chatham PD won ILACP's 2019-2020 judge's award, the top honor among all 12 categories for the Illinois Traffic Safety Challenge. The award is one of many that the department has won in recent years for its dedication to traffic safety.

Updates for I-UCR Coordinators from NIBRS

The annual law enforcement employee collection opened on November 1st, 2021 and is being reported on the Illinois NIBRS Repository (INR) Production site (<https://illinois.nibrs.com/>). If you do not have access, please send an email requesting access to: ISP.UCR.Access@Illinois.gov.

You will not be able to access INR until you have requested and received a user name and password. The collection of LEE data will close on January 7th.

As a reminder, the Use of Force and Mental Health Incident reporting is now available in the Illinois NIBRS Repository (INR) Production site (<https://illinois.nibrs.com/>). Illinois Law Enforcement Agencies, whether reporting NIBRS or Summary data, will be able to access this report and have the ability to report back to July 1st, 2021, per statutory requirement.

Summary Reporting System will sunset on December 31st, 2022. All agencies are encouraged to move to NIBRS prior to the sunset date. Agencies who want more details about NIBRS, please send an email to ISP.NIBRS.Transition@illinois.gov. As always, everyone in the I-UCR program appreciates your agency's willingness to help.

*If you do not have credentials to sign into the INR, please send an email to ISP.UCR.Access@Illinois.gov

Still time to sign up for body camera training in Fairview Heights or Springfield for December

The Illinois Law Enforcement Officer-Worn Body Camera Act was amended by the SAFE-T Act of 2021, which requires all Illinois LE agencies to implement a body-worn camera program, depending on agency type and size, no later than January 1, 2025. To help prepare all agencies for the new law, this training from ILACP will teach you what's in the law, but more important, you will learn how you can best plan for and implement a successful body-worn camera program. The session will address policies, practices, and lessons learned from these agencies. The next sessions are Dec. 1 in Fairview Heights and Dec. 2 in Springfield.

Over the past decade, the Chatham Police Department has emerged as one of the consistent leaders in the Illinois Traffic Safety Challenge (ITSC), a friendly competition between law enforcement agencies across the state categorized by size. The program began in the early 2000s and is coordinated by the Illinois Association of Chiefs of Police.

Last year, Chatham PD won ILACP's 2019-2020 judge's award, the top honor among all 12 categories for the Illinois Traffic Safety Challenge. The award is one of many that the department has won in recent years for its dedication to traffic safety.

Updates for I-UCR Coordinators from NIBRS

The annual law enforcement employee collection opened on November 1st, 2021 and is being reported on the Illinois NIBRS Repository (INR) Production site (<https://illinois.nibrs.com/>). If you do not have access, please send an email requesting access to: ISP.UCR.Access@Illinois.gov.

You will not be able to access INR until you have requested and received a user name and password. The collection of LEE data will close on January 7th.

As a reminder, the Use of Force and Mental Health Incident reporting is now available in the Illinois NIBRS Repository (INR) Production site (<https://illinois.nibrs.com/>). Illinois Law Enforcement Agencies, whether reporting NIBRS or Summary data, will be able to access this report and have the ability to report back to July 1st, 2021, per statutory requirement.

Summary Reporting System will sunset on December 31st, 2022. All agencies are encouraged to move to NIBRS prior to the sunset date. Agencies who want more details about NIBRS, please send an email to ISP.NIBRS.Transition@illinois.gov. As always, everyone in the I-UCR program appreciates your agency's willingness to help.

*If you do not have credentials to sign into the INR, please send an email to ISP.UCR.Access@Illinois.gov

Still time to sign up for body camera training in Fairview Heights or Springfield for December

The Illinois Law Enforcement Officer-Worn Body Camera Act was amended by the SAFE-T Act of 2021, which requires all Illinois LE agencies to implement a body-worn camera program, depending on agency type and size, no later than January 1, 2025. To help prepare all agencies for the new law, this training from ILACP will teach you what's in the law, but more important, you will learn how you can best plan for and implement a successful body-worn camera program. The session will address policies, practices, and lessons learned from these agencies. The next sessions are Dec. 1 in Fairview Heights and Dec. 2 in Springfield.

President Biden To Sign Three Bills In Support Of Law Enforcement

Fox News (11/17, Singman) reports, "President Biden is expected to sign three pieces of bipartisan legislation into law on Thursday in support of police officers, the law enforcement community, and federal officials, Fox News has learned." The Protecting America's First Responders Act of 2021 would "better ensure that law enforcement and first responders who are disabled in the line of duty have prompt access to benefits," while the Confidentiality Opportunities for Peer Support (COPS) Counseling Act "sets requirements for peer support counseling programs to be provided by a law enforcement agency." Finally, the Jaime Zapata and Victor Avila Federal Officers and Employees Protection Act "ensures that individuals who have killed or attempted to kill US federal officers and employees serving abroad can be brought to justice and prosecuted in the United States."

Ohio Lawmakers Advance Bill On Training Rules For Armed School Workers

The AP (11/17, Welsh-Huggins) reports from Columbus, Ohio, "School districts could set their own training requirements for employees they choose to arm under legislation approved by the Republican-controlled Ohio House Wednesday." According to the AP, "The measure aims to undo the effect of an Ohio Supreme Court ruling earlier this year, which held that under current law armed school workers would need hundreds of hours of training. The bill goes next to the Ohio Senate. Under the bill, school employees who carry guns would need to take the eight hours of training required for a concealed weapons permit under Ohio law, then take 18 additional 'general' hours of training and two hours of handgun training. Employees would also have to complete two additional hours of general training and two hours of handgun training each year."

Portland Among US Cities To Restore Police Department Funding

The AP (11/17, Cline) reports, "On Wednesday, the Portland City Council unanimously passed a fall budget bump that included" a $5.2 million increase for that Oregon city's "current $230 million police budget.” Last year, millions of dollars were cut from that budget. Wednesday’s restoration move comes during a year in which Portland has faced its “greatest police staffing shortage in decades,” a record number of homicides, and US Department of Justice reform recommendations. The AP adds, “From New York City to Los Angeles,” police departments “are seeing their finances partially restored in response to rising homicides, an officer exodus and political pressures.”

New England Fentanyl Strike Force Getting Federal Grant Money

In online coverage, WWLP-TV Springfield, MA (11/17) reports a $3.8 million Anti-Heroin Task Force (AHTF) Program grant was awarded to the Massachusetts Attorney General’s Office. The federal money is going to “the AG’s New England Fentanyl Strike Force,” which will use the funds to expand its effort to “disrupt and dismantle drug and fentanyl trafficking throughout New England.” The task force includes members who represent the DEA and other law enforcement organizations.

Proposed Resolutions for Membership Consideration

The IACP Board of Directors recently reviewed resolutions in Support for Incorporating and Enhanced Response to Victims as a Priority in Daily Law Enforcement Operations and to Combat the Dramatic Increase in Traffic Fatalities. Following the IACP Resolutions Process, the proposed resolutions are being sent to the IACP membership for review and comment.

As a reminder, resolutions can be submitted at any time of the year to ensure time-sensitive topics are being addressed. Submitted resolutions are then considered by the IACP Governing Body on a quarterly basis.

Please send any comments to the IACP Resolutions Committee at resolutions@theiacp.org by November 26, 2021.

US Overdose Deaths Top 100,000

A record US overdose deaths total has been set, according to media outlets that cover newly published US Centers for Disease Control and Prevention (CDC) data. The Hill (11/17, Weixel) reports, “More than 100,000 people died of drug overdoses in the United States during the 12-month period ending April 2021, according to provisional data” that was published on Wednesday by the CDC, which said that is a record high total.

On its website, CNN (11/17, McPhillips) reports the head of the Drug Enforcement Administration (DEA), Anne Milgram, spoke about overdoses after the CDC released its data. Milgram said the US overdose crisis “knows no geographical boundaries, and it continues to get worse.”

Police: Liverpool Bomber Likely Acted Alone, Was Preparing For Six Months

The Hill (11/17) reports British police announced Wednesday “that the suspect in the Liverpool car bombing appeared to have acted alone.” British police “say suspect Emad Al Swealmeen was allegedly collecting parts for a bomb for the past six months leading up to the explosion in a taxi on Sunday that killed Swealmeen and injured the taxi driver, The Associated Press reported.” The AP (11/17) reports detectives are also “piecing together details of Al Swealmeen’s life and say a relative told them he was born in Iraq.” He applied for asylum “in Britain in 2014, but was rejected, authorities said. It’s unclear what his legal status was at the time of the bombing.”

Three Salvadoran MS-13 Leaders Convicted By US Federal Jury Of Murder, Racketeering

Reuters (11/17) reports that a federal jury in New Jersey has “convicted three El Salvadoran nationals in the international criminal gang MS-13 of murder and racketeering offenses.” The Justice Department said on Wednesday “that between September 2014 and October 2015, Juan Pablo Escalante-Melgar, 32, Elmer Cruz-Diaz, 33, and Oscar Sanchez-Aguilar, 25, took part in MS-13 affairs by committing multiple racketeering offenses including murder, extortion, witness-tampering and drug trafficking.”

Bill Would Expand Amount Of Medical Marijuana Grown For Ohio Program

The AP (11/17) reports, “The amount of marijuana grown for Ohio’s medical marijuana program would expand and the number of dispensaries able to sell it would be increased, under GOP legislation” that has been proposed in the Ohio Senate. The bill was “proposed by Senate Health Chairman Steve Huffman, a Republican from Tipp City, a physician, and the sponsor of Ohio’s current medical marijuana law.” The WSAZ-TV Huntington, WV (11/18) website also covers this story.

Gunmen Kill At Least 43 In Nigeria’s Sokoto State This Week

Reuters (11/17) reports that “at least 43 people have died following raids by gunmen in Nigeria’s Sokoto state this week, three times more than the initial death toll given by officials, a spokesman for the state governor said on Wednesday.” While the military is “conducting an operation to stamp out a tide of violence by armed gangs known as bandits in the northwest, including a telecoms blackout, the violence and kidnappings have continued.”

Man Claimed To Have “IED” Near FBI Manhattan Office

The New York Post (11/17, Moore) reports a man walked into “the federal building that houses New York’s FBI headquarters in Lower Manhattan and claimed to have an ‘IED’ in a van parked nearby Wednesday, cops said.” The man, who was “immediately arrested and is believed to have been in the army, told workers inside 26 Federal Plaza that he had the improvised explosive device in a white van parked outside a Starbucks on Worth Street close to the federal building, cops said.”

Technology

Iran-Backed Hackers Targeting Critical Infrastructure

The AP (11/17, Tucker, Suderman, Bajak) reports hackers linked to Iran “have been targeting a ‘broad range of victims’ inside the United States, including by deploying ransomware, according to an advisory issued Wednesday by American, British and Australian officials.” The advisory “says that in recent months, Iran has exploited computer vulnerabilities exposed by hackers before they can be fixed and targeted entities in the transportation, health care and public health sectors.” The attackers leveraged the “initial hack for additional operations, such as data exfiltration, ransomware and extortion, according to the advisory.” The AP says the warning is “notable because even though ransomware attacks remain prevalent in the US, most of the significant ones in the past year have been attributed to Russia-based criminal hacker gangs rather than Iranian hackers.” In online coverage, CNN (11/17, Lyngaas) reports the advisory is a “reminder that America’s ransomware problem is not limited to Russia.”

Reuters (11/17, Bing) reports the warning, “jointly authored by the FBI and DHS’ Cybersecurity and Infrastructure Security Agency, said the hackers were exploiting old software vulnerabilities in products made by Microsoft and Fortinet to break into victim computer networks.”

The AP (11/17, Cline) reports, "On Wednesday, the Portland City Council unanimously passed a fall budget bump that included" a $5.2 million increase for that Oregon city's "current $230 million police budget.” Last year, millions of dollars were cut from that budget. Wednesday’s restoration move comes during a year in which Portland has faced its “greatest police staffing shortage in decades,” a record number of homicides, and US Department of Justice reform recommendations. The AP adds, “From New York City to Los Angeles,” police departments “are seeing their finances partially restored in response to rising homicides, an officer exodus and political pressures.”

New England Fentanyl Strike Force Getting Federal Grant Money

In online coverage, WWLP-TV Springfield, MA (11/17) reports a $3.8 million Anti-Heroin Task Force (AHTF) Program grant was awarded to the Massachusetts Attorney General’s Office. The federal money is going to “the AG’s New England Fentanyl Strike Force,” which will use the funds to expand its effort to “disrupt and dismantle drug and fentanyl trafficking throughout New England.” The task force includes members who represent the DEA and other law enforcement organizations.

Proposed Resolutions for Membership Consideration

The IACP Board of Directors recently reviewed resolutions in Support for Incorporating and Enhanced Response to Victims as a Priority in Daily Law Enforcement Operations and to Combat the Dramatic Increase in Traffic Fatalities. Following the IACP Resolutions Process, the proposed resolutions are being sent to the IACP membership for review and comment.

As a reminder, resolutions can be submitted at any time of the year to ensure time-sensitive topics are being addressed. Submitted resolutions are then considered by the IACP Governing Body on a quarterly basis.

US Overdose Deaths Top 100,000

A record US overdose deaths total has been set, according to media outlets that cover newly published US Centers for Disease Control and Prevention (CDC) data. The Hill (11/17, Weixel) reports, “More than 100,000 people died of drug overdoses in the United States during the 12-month period ending April 2021, according to provisional data” that was published on Wednesday by the CDC, which said that is a record high total.

On its website, CNN (11/17, McPhillips) reports the head of the Drug Enforcement Administration (DEA), Anne Milgram, spoke about overdoses after the CDC released its data. Milgram said the US overdose crisis “knows no geographical boundaries, and it continues to get worse.”

Police: Liverpool Bomber Likely Acted Alone, Was Preparing For Six Months

The Hill (11/17) reports British police announced Wednesday “that the suspect in the Liverpool car bombing appeared to have acted alone.” British police “say suspect Emad Al Swealmeen was allegedly collecting parts for a bomb for the past six months leading up to the explosion in a taxi on Sunday that killed Swealmeen and injured the taxi driver, The Associated Press reported.” The AP (11/17) reports detectives are also “piecing together details of Al Swealmeen’s life and say a relative told them he was born in Iraq.” He applied for asylum “in Britain in 2014, but was rejected, authorities said. It’s unclear what his legal status was at the time of the bombing.”

Three Salvadoran MS-13 Leaders Convicted By US Federal Jury Of Murder, Racketeering

Reuters (11/17) reports that a federal jury in New Jersey has “convicted three El Salvadoran nationals in the international criminal gang MS-13 of murder and racketeering offenses.” The Justice Department said on Wednesday “that between September 2014 and October 2015, Juan Pablo Escalante-Melgar, 32, Elmer Cruz-Diaz, 33, and Oscar Sanchez-Aguilar, 25, took part in MS-13 affairs by committing multiple racketeering offenses including murder, extortion, witness-tampering and drug trafficking.”

Bill Would Expand Amount Of Medical Marijuana Grown For Ohio Program

The AP (11/17) reports, “The amount of marijuana grown for Ohio’s medical marijuana program would expand and the number of dispensaries able to sell it would be increased, under GOP legislation” that has been proposed in the Ohio Senate. The bill was “proposed by Senate Health Chairman Steve Huffman, a Republican from Tipp City, a physician, and the sponsor of Ohio’s current medical marijuana law.” The WSAZ-TV Huntington, WV (11/18) website also covers this story.

Gunmen Kill At Least 43 In Nigeria’s Sokoto State This Week

Reuters (11/17) reports that “at least 43 people have died following raids by gunmen in Nigeria’s Sokoto state this week, three times more than the initial death toll given by officials, a spokesman for the state governor said on Wednesday.” While the military is “conducting an operation to stamp out a tide of violence by armed gangs known as bandits in the northwest, including a telecoms blackout, the violence and kidnappings have continued.”

Man Claimed To Have “IED” Near FBI Manhattan Office

The New York Post (11/17, Moore) reports a man walked into “the federal building that houses New York’s FBI headquarters in Lower Manhattan and claimed to have an ‘IED’ in a van parked nearby Wednesday, cops said.” The man, who was “immediately arrested and is believed to have been in the army, told workers inside 26 Federal Plaza that he had the improvised explosive device in a white van parked outside a Starbucks on Worth Street close to the federal building, cops said.”

Iran-Backed Hackers Targeting Critical Infrastructure

The AP (11/17, Tucker, Suderman, Bajak) reports hackers linked to Iran “have been targeting a ‘broad range of victims’ inside the United States, including by deploying ransomware, according to an advisory issued Wednesday by American, British and Australian officials.” The advisory “says that in recent months, Iran has exploited computer vulnerabilities exposed by hackers before they can be fixed and targeted entities in the transportation, health care and public health sectors.” The attackers leveraged the “initial hack for additional operations, such as data exfiltration, ransomware and extortion, according to the advisory.” The AP says the warning is “notable because even though ransomware attacks remain prevalent in the US, most of the significant ones in the past year have been attributed to Russia-based criminal hacker gangs rather than Iranian hackers.” In online coverage, CNN (11/17, Lyngaas) reports the advisory is a “reminder that America’s ransomware problem is not limited to Russia.”

Reuters (11/17, Bing) reports the warning, “jointly authored by the FBI and DHS’ Cybersecurity and Infrastructure Security Agency, said the hackers were exploiting old software vulnerabilities in products made by Microsoft and Fortinet to break into victim computer networks.”

President Biden To Sign Three Bills In Support Of Law Enforcement

Fox News (11/17, Singman) reports, "President Biden is expected to sign three pieces of bipartisan legislation into law on Thursday in support of police officers, the law enforcement community, and federal officials, Fox News has learned." The Protecting America's First Responders Act of 2021 would "better ensure that law enforcement and first responders who are disabled in the line of duty have prompt access to benefits," while the Confidentiality Opportunities for Peer Support (COPS) Counseling Act "sets requirements for peer support counseling programs to be provided by a law enforcement agency." Finally, the Jaime Zapata and Victor Avila Federal Officers and Employees Protection Act "ensures that individuals who have killed or attempted to kill US federal officers and employees serving abroad can be brought to justice and prosecuted in the United States."

Ohio Lawmakers Advance Bill On Training Rules For Armed School Workers

The AP (11/17, Welsh-Huggins) reports from Columbus, Ohio, "School districts could set their own training requirements for employees they choose to arm under legislation approved by the Republican-controlled Ohio House Wednesday." According to the AP, "The measure aims to undo the effect of an Ohio Supreme Court ruling earlier this year, which held that under current law armed school workers would need hundreds of hours of training. The bill goes next to the Ohio Senate. Under the bill, school employees who carry guns would need to take the eight hours of training required for a concealed weapons permit under Ohio law, then take 18 additional 'general' hours of training and two hours of handgun training. Employees would also have to complete two additional hours of general training and two hours of handgun training each year."

Portland Among US Cities To Restore Police Department Funding

FEATURED CONTENT What can police leaders do about murder? By Chief Joel F. Shults, Ed.D.

Using FBI figures, there were 21,570 murders in 2020, up 29% from 16,669 in 2019. A quick calculation rounds to 4,900 more murder victims since the last FBI annual calculation. 2021 totals won't be released until near the end of next year. They will be frightening, based on current trends.

Keep in mind that the total murder numbers are not the highest in a century, but the increase from year to year is record-setting. From a peak in 1991, the murder rate was in a general sharp trend of decline until 2014, after which each succeeding year has shown an increase in murders.

Criminologists have the luxury of time to ponder over statistics and try to identify variables associated with the rise and fall of crime rates. As with any social research, those variables are too many to measure. Is it employment rates? Weather? Politics? What about factors like fatigue, stress and isolation – in other words, COVID? Can we measure hopelessness and fear?

Some analysts, like this writer, see the decline in trust and respect for law enforcement as associated with the rise in violent crime. Ferguson was near the end of 2014 and no year has passed since without the anti-police sentiment being fueled by mainstream and social media.

Those in the "mistrust and defund the police" movement cannot bring themselves to correlate this sentiment with crime. With a fundamental belief that police are the problem, reducing the number of police officers available to actively intervene in criminal activity simply doesn't fit the formula of increased violence. Therefore causation theories include the COVID mess and mental illness, unemployment, the increase in firearms sales (hardly a statistically significant increase in the total number of persons owning firearms), and even climate change.

Looking at the drop in crime following the high crime rates of the 1980s, the historic anti-crime legislation of the 1990s should be given a great deal of credit for the dramatic lowering of crime rates. Some criminologists simply attribute lower crime and increased crime-fighting legislation (including increasing the number of police officers) to the "fedupness" of the populace with crime. We may be on the cusp of such a backlash as we see dramatic reversals in defunding and restrictions on policing.

What can police leaders do about murder? Here are four strategies:

1. Know your local statistics and communicate that to your public. Murder rates are not evenly distributed, and your community may be in good shape.
2. Make the logical and statistical case for more officers and more proactive policing.
3. Trust in law enforcement is correlated with crime rates from both an occurrence and reporting perspective. Do whatever it takes to be trustworthy.
4. Do great police work. One of the sad correlates to the rising murder rate is the lowering clearance rates. Solve those cases, from misdemeanors to murder.

By Jane Wiseman

A worker shortage is sweeping the nation, and law enforcement is no exception. Across the country, law enforcement agencies struggle to recruit, hire and retain police officers for reasons that span social, economic and political factors. [1] Compounding the problem, in some departments, officers are retiring at a faster rate than they are being replaced.

The events following the murder of George Floyd made police hiring more complex as it exacerbated tension between the community and law enforcement and inflamed long-standing beliefs that racial biases exist within the profession. To help address these tensions, law enforcement leaders may want to diversify their organizations – but this is no easy task even before such recent events.

My team reviewed recent scholarly research for relevant insight and surfaced four recommendations (Note: the research was funded by the Massachusetts State Police/Executive Office of Public Safety and Security). [2]

1. Attract a greater volume of qualified candidates

Successful recruitment in law enforcement today is possible but requires effort, experimentation and commitment to continuous improvement of approaches.

In addition to expanding traditional pathways like internships and partnerships with criminal justice programs, departments can begin to look at nontraditional disciplines, such as foreign language programs, technology-centric schools, and hospitality or management programs that offer potential recruits with skills needed to better relations with communities, improve analytics and foster a culture of customer service.

2. Recruit more women and people of color

According to the Police Executive Research Forum, “trying to recruit and hire only candidates who have the same life experiences and outlooks as those currently in the profession is a recipe for failure.”

Successful recruiting of women and people of color can be achieved by:

- Creating targeted outreach programs to reach diverse audiences
- Using targeted digital marketing
- Ensuring prospective candidates can see themselves in the role
- Reviewing job postings and messaging for unintended language biases

- Providing support to applicants from diverse backgrounds
- Considering modifications to physical fitness requirements
- Screening out candidates who exhibit biases
- Assessing organizational culture for any barriers to belonging
- Strengthening policies that prohibit harassment.

3. Retain more candidates during the selection process

Law enforcement recruitment hiring processes can be lengthy and convoluted, forcing many good candidates to simply give up and take other jobs. Strategies to facilitate retention of more candidates during selection include:

- Designing a user-centric process
- One-on-one support via mentors or advisors
- Targeted support at steps of the application when candidates are most likely to drop out
- Coaching so candidates can pass fitness exams
- Streamlining steps and leveraging technology modernization to cut down hiring time
- Giving candidates visibility into their status in the hiring process.

4. Ease pressure on recruiting with less attrition and new staffing models

In most cases, retaining existing officers takes far fewer resources than identifying, screening, selecting and training new ones – and it takes the pressure off the recruiting function.

Research-based ways to reduce attrition include giving recruits a realistic job preview before they start, conducting exit interviews to understand common reasons for leaving, and conducting “stay” interviews to understand key motivations for staff who stay employed.

For some agencies, rethinking deployment models may uncover creative ways to simultaneously improve morale and professionalism while decreasing churn. Scholars Whetstone, Reed and Turner suggest creating a training model akin to the one utilized in the medical field with a standard set of rotations among specialties to be completed in the first three years of service and then allowing staff to choose their specialty.

Finally, a careful review of tasks that can be automated or completed by using remote work options, along with examining roles that can be filled by contracted, part-time, non-sworn, or seasonal staff can modernize the approach to staffing, recruitment and retention within the law enforcement workforce.

Conclusion

A more diverse police force will take time, but incremental progress can gradually shift an organization with annual progress toward ambitious goals.

Diversity hiring goals should be clear and visibly supported by the chief, and accountability for reaching those goals should be vested in a respected senior leader. Partnership with key community stakeholders must be a key part of the strategy.

This is a once-in-a-generation chance to energize the profession toward renewed connection to and investment in the public good via embracing inclusivity and creating a more diverse team. Communities just may respond in kind with greater trust and confidence.

Empathy: What Is It, and How Does it Help Build Community Trust?

Empathy is often mentioned as a key ingredient for enhancing community–police relations. The increased demand for empathic policing is not surprising, as police reform calls have motivated agencies around the country to help their officers develop new skills to enhance community trust. Read on to see how creating a culture of empathy can help your department demonstrate that it understands the needs and concerns of the community it serves. Read the full story »

Does Your Agency Suffer From Tribal Supervision?

When supervisors manage a group of people, they should take pride in their personnel and hold them accountable. They should also provide clear expectations and resources and serve as guardrails for their people, sharing in successes, addressing deficiencies and growing future leaders. Tribal supervision vacates this responsibility entirely by simply declining to act when witnessing improper behavior because no one holds the supervisor accountable for the responsible party. Read the full story »

The Case for More Effective Law Enforcement Leadership Training

Law enforcement is often compared to the military. But when it comes to promotions and training, especially for leadership roles, there is one very significant difference. In the military, you receive the training before you assume the position; but in law enforcement, very often there is no training for new supervisors or managers, or the training comes after you've already taken on the role. Washington, DC Lawmakers Vote To Clarify Definition Of "Ghost Guns"

The Washington Post (11/16) reports that the Washington, DC Council "voted Tuesday to amend the city's law that bans untraceable firearms, also known as 'ghost guns,' in response to a federal lawsuit that alleged the law was overly broad." The lawsuit "was filed in September by a group of plaintiffs including Dick A. Heller, who successfully challenged the city's ban on handguns in the landmark 2008 Supreme Court decision District of Columbia v. Heller. He now asserts that the District's ban on ghost guns, passed last year, unjustly outlaws all polymer-based guns – including Glock handguns, which are issued to many DC police officers. (Military and law enforcement agencies are exempt from the ban.) In the suit, Heller asserted that the city's prohibition on manufacturing guns prevented him from building his own firearm from a kit, even though he was willing to register it and place a serial number on it."

Aurora, Colorado Police Agree To Changes In Use-Of-Force, Hiring, Training

The Denver Post (11/16, Schmelzer) reports that the Aurora, Colorado Police Department "will enact changes to its use-of-force, hiring and training policies as part of a multi-year agreement with the state's top law enforcement official, the Colorado attorney general announced Tuesday." The Colorado Attorney General's Office "and the leaders of the Aurora police and fire departments agreed in a legal document known as a consent decree to make changes to a wide breadth of policies and practices. 'The city shall change, in measurable ways, how Aurora police engages with all members of the community, including by reducing any racial disparities in how Aurora Police engages, arrests and uses force in the community,' the decree states. Aurora is required to hire an outside consent-decree monitor to track progress on the requirements."

Hundreds Of Minnesota Law Enforcement Authorities To Get Body Cameras

The AP (11/16) reports from St. Paul, Minnesota, “Hundreds of state law enforcement officers in Minnesota will soon be outfitted with new body cameras to record everything from traffic stops to civil disturbances. More than 600 Minnesota State Patrol troopers, nearly 200 Department of Natural Resources conservation officers, Bureau of Criminal Apprehension agents and other state-level law enforcement officers will soon wear the 1,100 body cameras that have been ordered.” The State Patrol “will begin distributing the cameras to troopers starting next month, Minnesota Public Radio News reported. The Legislature previously approved more than $8 million to buy the cameras and provide for data storage.”

US Justice Department Recommends Body Cameras For Portland, Oregon Police. The AP (11/16) reports from Portland, Oregon, “The US Justice Department is recommending that all uniformed officers in Portland, Oregon, wear body cameras if they are on tactical, traffic or crowd control operations.” The city “has been in negotiations with the police union over how the cameras would be used and when officers could review footage after an incident. The City Council is set to vote Wednesday on a proposal from Mayor Ted Wheeler to dedicate $2.6 million to start purchasing the cameras.” The AP adds, “A federal judge last week urged the city, the Justice Department, the police union and community groups to return to mediation to come up with a policy on governing the use of the cameras.”

Bartlesville, Oklahoma Police Department Mobilizes Applicants With New Recruitment Video

The Bartlesville (OK) Examiner-Enterprise (11/16, Creager) reports, “In a push to mobilize possible applicants, the Bartlesville Police Department released a new recruitment video featuring current officers speaking about their jobs, paired with video of officers on the job and in training.” The department “posted the video to Facebook along with a promotion of its long-standing sign-on bonus of $6,000 for CLEET-certified officers. While other City of Bartlesville departments generally advertise positions as they become available, the police department cultivates a continuous pool of applicants – due to competition with police departments in other cities and the rigorous application process, Capt. Jay Hastings said. ‘It’s an ongoing thing. We posted that on Facebook trying to generate applications. We take applications throughout the year. ... We continually try to build that list because we have people retiring, it seems like a constant thing,’ Hastings said.”

Proposed Bill Would Change Wisconsin’s Marijuana Enforcement Law

The Milwaukee Journal Sentinel (11/16, Beck) reports a proposed bill in Wisconsin “would create a minimum penalty of $100 for getting caught with half an ounce of marijuana or less but could lead to a dramatic increase in fines in diverse communities like Milwaukee and Madison.” In a similar online article, Wisconsin Public Radio (11/16, White) reports the bill would reduce “the state penalty for possessing up to 14 grams of marijuana...to a $100 civil forfeiture.” Current state law in Wisconsin “makes first-time marijuana possession a misdemeanor, with a penalty of up to a $1,000 fine and six months in jail.” Wisconsin also “allows local governments to set their own penalties for possession, which some have elected to do.” The AP (11/16) reports the bill that was introduced in the Wisconsin State Legislature on Tuesday “would require communities to enforce fines between $100 and $250, along with between 16 and 40 hours of community service.” The city of Madison does not currently “impose any penalties for pot possession under 28 grams for people over 18,” while Milwaukee County fines people one dollar for marijuana possession. The WLUK-TV Green Bay, WI (11/16, Premus) website and the Wisconsin State Journal (11/16, Schmidt) also cover this story.

CBP Agents Seize Large Amounts Of Meth, Cocaine During Vehicle Search Operation

Newsweek (11/16, Impelli) reports Customs and Border Protection (CBP) agents recently seized “over a ton of methamphetamine” and “approximately 110 pounds of cocaine” from a vehicle that traveled from Mexico to the “World Trade Bridge in Laredo, Texas.” The CBP said the drugs that were seized during that vehicle search operation have “an estimated street value of $53,096,364.” The Border Report (11/16, Ortiz) publishes a similar article.

FBI Monitoring Threats Against Teachers, School Boards

In an exclusive, the Wall Street Journal (11/16, Gurman, Viswanatha, Subscription Publication) reports the Federal Bureau of Investigation’s criminal and counterterrorism divisions have instructed agents on how to monitor threats against teacher and school board members, despite the criticism of Republican lawmakers.

Mississippi Man Arrested After Planning “Mass Murder” At Church

Newsweek (11/16, Anglesey) reports a Mississippi man has been “arrested after he allegedly claimed to have planned a mass murder at his church, according to police.” The Lee County Sheriff’s (LCS) Department “said officers went to the home of Ryan C. Evans, 20, on November 12 after they received a tip from the FBI about a ‘credible’ threat to commit mass murder at a church.” According to a LCS Facebook post, “Upon further investigation, it was determined an individual made a comment on a social media platform that he was planning ‘a mass murder’ at his church the next Sunday. The post was not specific as to which church, just that it was his church.”

Officials Say Liverpool Bombing Suspect Was Asylum Seeker

The AP (11/16, Lawless) reports a suspected bomber who “died when his homemade device exploded in a taxi outside a Liverpool hospital was an asylum-seeker from the Middle East who had converted from Islam to Christianity, British police, church officials and others said Tuesday.” Police have called “the blast a terrorist act and believe the dead man built the bomb, but they are still working to determine his motive, how the attack was planned and whether anyone else was involved.” Four men who had been detained “were released late Monday.” Russ Jackson, the head of counterterrorism policing for northwest England, said “following interviews with the arrested men, we are satisfied with the accounts they have provided and they have been released from police custody.”

German Authorities Investigating Potential Terrorism Motivation For Train Attack

The AP (11/16) reports German prosecutors “say they are no longer ruling out an Islamic extremist motive in a knife attack on a train earlier this month that left four people wounded.” Prosecutors in Munich “said Tuesday that Islamic State group propaganda videos had been found on the suspect and that material on the 27-year-old’s Facebook account also points in that direction, news agency dpa reported.”

1226. Annual Report 2021 - draft (11/16)

Attached is my draft for the Annual Report, I still have a lot of the pages missing obviously! The first few pages are cover photo options.

The page numbers/table of content won't really make sense until it's complete. I just started the admin investigations part but I figured this year there may be more information than there was last year. I am still planning out the rest of the pages so it's similar but not exactly the same as last year.

Thanks!

Three Things to Know Now | November 16, 2021

Your weekly update from Executive Director Ed Wojcicki on the top three things you need to know about what is happening at the association.

This week we cover membership renewals, the leadership library and upcoming body camera training.

Good morning and welcome to the first of what we plan to make a weekly communication to keep you informed as a leader in law enforcement.

3. This week, I am starting with a reminder about renewals. The Illinois Chiefs work hard to consistently bring you useful leadership resources. We hope you have found value in the association and plan to renew your membership for another year, if you have not yet done so. You should have received an email about this last month, but don't hesitate to reach out to Carmen (carmen@ilchiefs.org) if you have any questions. It's also a great time for you to refer other chiefs that may benefit to join!

2. Speaking of leadership resources, I was to make sure everyone is aware of our wonderful Leadership Library available on our website. There is a link directly on the homepage or you can find the link under the Events and Trainings menu. Check back often as we plan to continue adding resources here.

1. My last item this week is about our training, PLANNING FOR BODY CAMERAS 2022 AND BEYOND. Last week, we held our first training, and it was excellent. Thank you to the law enforcement leaders from all over the state who helped developed the 3-hour class incorporating their own experiences and expertise and to our sponsors who are well versed in the technology side of body cameras. If this is an area you need some training, I urge you to sign up now for one of the remaining sessions: Dec. 1 in Fairview Heights or Dec. 2 in Springfield. The training is free, but we ask that you register in advance here.

Those are my three things you need to know this week. I hope you all have a great week as you serve your communities; thank you for all you do.

NHTSA Update

With the increased incidents of driving under the influence of drugs and the recent rise in traffic fatalities, the Drug Evaluation and Classification (DEC) Program is more important than ever. The National Highway Traffic Safety Administration (NHTSA) is working to expand and support the DEC Program in a variety of ways. Two new curricula are being developed to assist law enforcement agencies with maintaining a high level of training in impaired driving enforcement. The web-based ARIDE Refresher Course is designed to emphasize key concepts the officer learned in the 16-hour instructor-led course. The DRE Expert Testimony Course is designed to provide DREs with additional tools to enhance their courtroom testimony skills.

For more than 50 years, NHTSA's research division has many projects under way to better understand driver behavior from drug use. NHTSA's research division continues to sponsor many projects that will broaden our understanding on the effects of alcohol and drugs on driving performance. Much is known about how alcohol works, including the way it is metabolized and its effect on driving. However, understanding the effects of other drugs on driving are more challenging.

NHTSA research generally falls into two major categories: 1) Problem Identification, and 2) Developing Countermeasures. Some current projects include:

- Seeking approval to conduct another National Roadside Survey. Surveys in 2007 and 2014 revealed an increase in drug use and driving.
- Examining the feasibility of an SFST for marijuana. This initial project will include laboratory testing for cognitive and physical abilities, specifically focusing on driving skills. If the tests prove promising, efforts will move to develop additional lab and field testing.
- Finalizing the Drugs and Human Performance Fact Sheets. These are cited throughout the - soon to be released – updated Impaired Driving curricula.
- Conducting an alcohol and drug crash risk study. This will examine the impact of drug use on crashes.

Please visit ROSA P NHTSA Research or Active Research Projects for more information on current NHTSA projects.

NYTimes Examines US Homicide Surge

The New York Times (11/15, A1, Bosman, Smith, MacFarquhar, Arango, Reynolds) reports on “a surge in homicides that has swept across the country, touching not only the largest cities in America but suburbs, small towns and even remote rural places that rarely see a murder.” The Times adds, “On a national scale, the murder rate is still far below its height in the 1990s, and in some places the spike seen in 2020, when murders rose by almost 30 percent, has already begun to slow,” but “in many large cities – including Atlanta, Chicago and Philadelphia – the number of homicides this year is on track to surpass last year, leaving the public unnerved and injecting the politics of crime into local elections around the country, as various state and mayoral candidates promise they can restore a greater sense of safety.”

Arlington, Texas Police Warn Gun Owners Against Leaving Weapons In Unlocked Cars

The Dallas Morning News (11/15, Bahari) reports that police in Arlington, Texas “are urging gun owners to better secure their firearms, blaming an uptick in crime on guns swiped from vehicles, many left unlocked.” The Morning News adds, “Both the number of stolen guns and the number of cases involving stolen firearms have increased so far this year, according to police data. ‘Leaving a firearm unsecured in a vehicle is not the responsible gun owner thing to do,’ said Arlington police officer Justin Williams, who’s a firearms safety expert.” According to the Morning News, “This summer, Arlington Police Chief Al Jones blamed an uptick in violence to teenagers having access to guns. Most guns confiscated by police were stolen from vehicles, he said. By Nov. 9 this year, 255 guns were reported stolen from vehicles, according to police figures. In 2019 and 2020, police reported 254 and 217 similar incidents, respectively.”

House Republicans Move To Decriminalize Marijuana

Reuters (11/15) reports House Republicans “introduced legislation on Monday that would decriminalize marijuana at the federal level and eliminate legal hazards facing many cannabis-related businesses while regulating its use like alcohol.” Rep. Nancy Mace (R-SC), “who is spearheading the legislative effort, described the bill as a ‘compromise’ with less onerous regulations than measures proposed earlier by other lawmakers including Democrats. The legislation’s path in the Democratic-controlled House was uncertain. Mace, a first-term lawmaker, said the measure has five Republican co-sponsors.” Reuters adds, “Adult use of cannabis is legal in 18 U.S. states and allowed medically in 36 states,” but “it remains illegal under federal law, which has deterred banks and other investors from involvement with companies that sell marijuana or related products.”

Greenville, South Carolina Police Department Launches Team To Build Community Relationships

The Greenville (SC) News (11/15, Boyd) reports, “The Greenville Police Department – a law-enforcement agency that, like others, has struggled to reflect the communities it serves – has launched a Neighborhood Engagement Team to build more effective relationships with neighborhoods, businesses and churches throughout the city.” Greenville Police Chief Howie Thompson “said the team’s mission is to promote safety, prevent crime and enhance quality of life. And he said it’s not just a department thing. The goal is for the engaged neighborhoods to better promote safety, prevent crime and enhance quality of life, too.” The News adds, “The new team marks a change, Thompson said. ‘I tell my team they’re community patrol but also answering calls in the area – they’ll be so busy answering calls that they won’t have time to be in the community,’ Thompson said. ‘That’ll only pull them out of the community.’”

Three Terrorism Suspects Escape Maximum Security Kenyan Prison

Reuters (11/15, Malalo) reports a Kenyan serving a “41-year sentence for involvement in one of the country’s worst militant attacks escaped from a maximum security prison on Monday, along with two other inmates detained for terrorism-related” offenses. In a statement, Kenya’s “Directorate of Criminal Investigations named one of escapees as Mohamed Ali Abikar, sentenced to 41 years for a 2015 attack on Garissa University that killed 148 people, mostly students.”

UK Police Declare Liverpool Taxi “Terrorist Incident”

Reuters (11/15, Noble) reports British police have identified “the suspect behind an explosion which engulfed a taxi in flames outside a hospital in Liverpool on Sunday, a blast the authorities have declared a terrorist incident.” Police “say 32-year-old Emad Al Swealmeen, who was killed in the blast, boarded the taxi in the northern English city and asked to be driven to the hospital, which was about 10 minutes away.” The country has raised “its national threat level to severe, with interior minister Priti Patel saying the blast was the second fatal incident in one month following the stabbing to death of lawmaker David Amess.” NBC News (11/15, Talmazan, Smith) reports police “say that a taxi passenger made the ‘improvised explosive device’ in the back of a car and that it went off as the vehicle pulled up outside Liverpool Women’s Hospital on Sunday.”

The New York Times (11/15, Specia) reports that local leaders “praised the taxi driver as a hero, saying that he had prevented an even bigger calamity. The mayor of Liverpool, in northwestern England, said that the driver had quickly escaped the burning vehicle and locked the doors, trapping the passenger who was carrying the explosives into the taxi. The passenger was the only person killed in the blast on Sunday.”

LAPD: More Than 100 Robberies Involving Street Gangs Under Investigation

Fox News (11/15, Casiano) reports the Los Angeles Police Department (LAPD) “is investigating more than 110 robberies involving at least six different street gangs in which the victims were followed home.” The investigations were recently highlighted by the LAPD, according to Fox News, which adds, “Many of the victims were followed from high-end restaurants and nightclubs in Hollywood and Wilshire Boulevard, as well as the Jewelry District in downtown Los Angeles and Melrose Avenue, which is home to many trendy shops. ‘In reviewing reports and speaking with area detectives, it is clear that not all these incidents are related, in terms of the same suspects committing these crimes,’ the police said.”

South Dakota Officials Say Gang Activity Is Becoming More Violent

The AP (11/15, Marvel) reports from Rapid City, South Dakota, “Street gang members in Rapid City are becoming less fearful of consequences. That’s according to Tony Harrison, captain of Investigations for the Pennington County Sheriff’s Office, who has been investigating street gang activity in Rapid City and Pennington County over the course of his 25-year career in law enforcement.” The AP adds, “Since the beginning of his career, Harrison said street gangs in the area have become noticeably more prone to use violence than in past years. ‘The fear of consequences seems to be less,’ he said. ‘Consequences can be many things, it could be getting assaulted by another person, arrested, put in jail, killed. Some of the consequences are implemented by the legal system and some of them are implemented by the gang’s own justice system.’”

Iowa Official Prioritizing Overdose Deaths Response

Radio Iowa (11/15) reports the director of the Iowa Governor’s Office of Drug Control Policy “is looking to address the record number of alcohol and drug-related overdose deaths in the next year.” Dale Woolery said that if Iowa citizens have a substance use disorder or an alcohol use disorder and they want to get help, they can call a helpline number that was set up by the Iowa Department of Public Health, which also offers assistance through the website YourLifelowa.org.

Police Investigating Alleged Marijuana Transactions On Amazon India Website

Reuters (11/15, Sharma, Roy) reports a police organization “in India’s Madhya Pradesh state” is investigating a case that involves Amazon. Two men who were recently arrested in that state allegedly used “Amazon’s India shopping website to order” and deliver marijuana. In a statement, Amazon “said...it was investigating whether there was any non-compliance by a seller.” Amazon’s statement also said, “We do not allow the listing and sale of products which are prohibited under law to be sold in India.”

Researchers Create Synthetic Drugs Prediction Model

The Daily Beast (11/15, Patel) reports University of British Columbia researcher have created an artificial intelligence (AI) “model that can predict what kind of new synthetic drugs are most likely to be made and appear on the market, giving cops a heads-up that could shrink drug investigations down from months to days.” During the development phase, “researchers fed an AI model a database of hundreds of known psychoactive substances.” The model then “learned to predict 8.9 million potential synthetic drugs that could be developed.”

Most guns confiscated by police were stolen from vehicles, he said. By Nov. 9 this year, 255 guns were reported stolen from vehicles, according to police figures. In 2019 and 2020, police reported 254 and 217 similar incidents, respectively.”

House Republicans Move To Decriminalize Marijuana

Reuters (11/15) reports House Republicans “introduced legislation on Monday that would decriminalize marijuana at the federal level and eliminate legal hazards facing many cannabis-related businesses while regulating its use like alcohol.” Rep. Nancy Mace (R-SC), “who is spearheading the legislative effort, described the bill as a ‘compromise’ with less onerous regulations than measures proposed earlier by other lawmakers including Democrats. The legislation’s path in the Democratic-controlled House was uncertain. Mace, a first-term lawmaker, said the measure has five Republican co-sponsors.” Reuters adds, “Adult use of cannabis is legal in 18 U.S. states and allowed medically in 36 states,” but “it remains illegal under federal law, which has deterred banks and other investors from involvement with companies that sell marijuana or related products.”

Greenville, South Carolina Police Department Launches Team To Build Community Relationships

The Greenville (SC) News (11/15, Boyd) reports, “The Greenville Police Department – a law-enforcement agency that, like others, has struggled to reflect the communities it serves – has launched a Neighborhood Engagement Team to build more effective relationships with neighborhoods, businesses and churches throughout the city.” Greenville Police Chief Howie Thompson “said the team’s mission is to promote safety, prevent crime and enhance quality of life. And he said it’s not just a department thing. The goal is for the engaged neighborhoods to better promote safety, prevent crime and enhance quality of life, too.” The News adds, “The new team marks a change, Thompson said. ‘I tell my team they’re community patrol but also answering calls in the area – they’ll be so busy answering calls that they won’t have time to be in the community,’ Thompson said. ‘That’ll only pull them out of the community.’”

Security, Crime, and Drugs

Three Terrorism Suspects Escape Maximum Security Kenyan Prison

Reuters (11/15, Malalo) reports a Kenyan serving a “41-year sentence for involvement in one of the country’s worst militant attacks escaped from a maximum security prison on Monday, along with two other inmates detained for terrorism-related” offenses. In a statement, Kenya’s “Directorate of Criminal Investigations named one of escapees as Mohamed Ali Abikar, sentenced to 41 years for a 2015 attack on Garissa University that killed 148 people, mostly students.”

UK Police Declare Liverpool Taxi “Terrorist Incident”

Reuters (11/15, Noble) reports British police have identified “the suspect behind an explosion which engulfed a taxi in flames outside a hospital in Liverpool on Sunday, a blast the authorities have declared a terrorist incident.” Police “say 32-year-old Emad Al Swealmeen, who was killed in the blast, boarded the taxi in the northern English city and asked to be driven to the hospital, which was about 10 minutes away.” The country has raised “its national threat level to severe, with interior minister Priti Patel saying the blast was the second fatal incident in one month following the stabbing to death of lawmaker David Amess.” NBC News (11/15, Talmazan, Smith) reports police “say that a taxi passenger made the ‘improvised explosive device’ in the back of a car and that it went off as the vehicle pulled up outside Liverpool Women’s Hospital on Sunday.”

The New York Times (11/15, Specia) reports that local leaders “praised the taxi driver as a hero, saying that he had prevented an even bigger calamity. The mayor of Liverpool, in northwestern England, said that the driver had quickly escaped the burning vehicle and locked the doors, trapping the passenger who was carrying the explosives into the taxi. The passenger was the only person killed in the blast on Sunday.”

LAPD: More Than 100 Robberies Involving Street Gangs Under Investigation

Fox News (11/15, Casiano) reports the Los Angeles Police Department (LAPD) “is investigating more than 110 robberies involving at least six different street gangs in which the victims were followed home.” The investigations were recently highlighted by the LAPD, according to Fox News, which adds, “Many of the victims were followed from high-end restaurants and nightclubs in Hollywood and Wilshire Boulevard, as well as the Jewelry District in downtown Los Angeles and Melrose Avenue, which is home to many trendy shops. ‘In reviewing reports and speaking with area detectives, it is clear that not all these incidents are related, in terms of the same suspects committing these crimes,’ the police said.”

South Dakota Officials Say Gang Activity Is Becoming More Violent

The AP (11/15, Marvel) reports from Rapid City, South Dakota, “Street gang members in Rapid City are becoming less fearful of consequences. That’s according to Tony Harrison, captain of Investigations for the Pennington County Sheriff’s Office, who has been investigating street gang activity in Rapid City and Pennington County over the course of his 25-year career in law enforcement.” The AP adds, “Since the beginning of his career, Harrison said street gangs in the area have become noticeably more prone to use violence than in past years. ‘The fear of consequences seems to be less,’ he said. ‘Consequences can be many things, it could be getting assaulted by another person, arrested, put in jail, killed. Some of the consequences are implemented by the legal system and some of them are implemented by the gang’s own justice system.’”

Iowa Official Prioritizing Overdose Deaths Response

Radio Iowa (11/15) reports the director of the Iowa Governor’s Office of Drug Control Policy “is looking to address the record number of alcohol and drug-related overdose deaths in the next year.” Dale Woolery said that if Iowa citizens have a substance use disorder or an alcohol use disorder and they want to get help, they can call a helpline number that was set up by the Iowa Department of Public Health, which also offers assistance through the website YourLifelowa.org.

Police Investigating Alleged Marijuana Transactions On Amazon India Website

Reuters (11/15, Sharma, Roy) reports a police organization “in India’s Madhya Pradesh state” is investigating a case that involves Amazon. Two men who were recently arrested in that state allegedly used “Amazon’s India shopping website to order” and deliver marijuana. In a statement, Amazon “said...it was investigating whether there was any non-compliance by a seller.” Amazon’s statement also said, “We do not allow the listing and sale of products which are prohibited under law to be sold in India.”

Technology

Researchers Create Synthetic Drugs Prediction Model

The Daily Beast (11/15, Patel) reports University of British Columbia researcher have created an artificial intelligence (AI) “model that can predict what kind of new synthetic drugs are most likely to be made and appear on the market, giving cops a heads-up that could shrink drug investigations down from months to days.” During the development phase, “researchers fed an AI model a database of hundreds of known psychoactive substances.” The model then “learned to predict 8.9 million potential synthetic drugs that could be developed.”

Subject: FOIA ACT

Attachment: image001.png

Hello All,

The ILACP is looking at updating the FOIA ACT, and my Chief is asking to identify which parts of the act are problematic or needs further clarification (and suggested language to update the problematic sections). He isn't promising all suggestions/comments will be made but the Act needs updating. They are also looking for some municipal attorneys that may have interest in assisting with the re-write.

Thank you,

Melissa Gracia

Subject: LERMI - Civilian Position Question

Hi LERMI group,

Do any of your departments have a civilian position that is in charge of maintaining state accreditation as well as planning and research for you department? We are looking to implement a position like this in the future are wanting to see what surrounding Departments have as the salary for that position. Any help is greatly appreciated. Hope you are all having a great day!

Thank you,

Kirsten Balog

ON DEMAND WEBINAR: Police Chiefs Across the Nation Discuss the 2021 Law Enforcement Trust &Transparency Report

Hi Joseph,

Earlier this year, Veritone commissioned a national survey which included a wide-ranging set of questions regarding transparency and the use of technology by our country's law enforcement agencies (LEAs). These findings were recently published in a 2021 US Law Enforcement Agency Trust &Transparency Report.

The report highlights that public misconceptions about policing sometimes occur due to a lack of understanding about operations, a lack of access to records, or how LEAs manage and retain records. With better technology and objective data leading the way, LEAs have the opportunity to shine a light on their operations and answer the public's call for increased transparency.

On November 9, 2021 Veritone and Microsoft hosted a virtual panel discussion with law enforcement leaders from across the country and discussed the report's findings as well as other related topics and what it all means for our nation's law enforcement agencies and suggested next steps. Law enforcement leaders on the panel included: -

- Chief Steven Casstevens, Buffalo Grove, IL PD (past IACP president) -
- Chief Jorge Cisneros, Anaheim, CA PD -
- Police Commissioner &Superintendent-in-Chief, William Gross, Boston, MA PD -
- Chief John Letteney, Thomasville, GA PD (incoming IACP president) If you missed this webinar, simply register below and watch the free on-demand replay.

DNA Identifies Suspected Killer In 1980 California Cold Case

The Orange County (CA) Register (8/9, Rasmussen) reports, “A man who died 22 years ago was publicly identified by police on Monday, Aug. 9, as the suspected killer in a 1980 case in Newport Beach after they used DNA, genetic genealogy and a process that never before had been used to solve a murder in the United States.” Kenneth Elwin Marks “was the man who shot and killed Judith ‘Judy’ Nesbitt, 42, while showing him her family’s boat on Nov. 26, 1980, Newport Beach police said.” The OCR adds, “In 2002, investigators first tried to use DNA taken from roots of the hair and entered that information into the FBI’s Combined DNA Index System, but the profile did not find a match. About three years ago, a more expanded DNA profile was taken from the remaining hair shafts. That type of extraction was the first of its kind used to identify someone in a murder investigation in the nation, police said.”

Infrastructure Measure Features Funds Meant To Address Traffic Fatalities

The Washington Post (11/13) reports the Administration “is launching a multibillion-dollar initiative to reverse a surge in road deaths and overhaul federal safety efforts, tapping new bipartisan infrastructure spending and policy changes to try to address one of the most wrenching and persistent problems in the U.S. transportation system.” The objective is to address both a development which Transportation Secretary Buttigieg “has called an immediate ‘crisis,’ with deaths soaring faster in the first half of this year than in more than four decades,” as well as the nation’s road death toll which tops the corresponding toll in other wealthy countries. The infrastructure legislation President Biden will be signing on Monday features “dozens of safety provisions and adds billions to the money already sent to states to curtail traffic crashes and deaths.” According to “Transportation Department officials and outside safety experts,” the legislation “opens the door to a major shift in federal safety policy.”

Albuquerque, New Mexico Using Behavioral Specialists Instead Of Police Officers For Some Calls

The Christian Science Monitor (11/12, Gass) reports from Albuquerque, New Mexico, “As cities wrestle with how to reform policing to reduce the use of lethal force, Albuquerque has created a new kind of responder on the streets. It sends behavioral specialists to deal with calls that involve emergencies like mental health issues and homelessness,” and “what they do is not normal emergency response work nor normal police work. It’s something of a hybrid of the two – part of an experiment that Albuquerque is hoping will change public safety in America. They are members of the Albuquerque Community Safety (ACS) department. Launched in August, the agency is intended to complement the city’s police and fire departments by having teams of behavioral health specialists patrol and respond to low-level, nonviolent 911 calls.”

British Columbia Police Discuss Challenges To Policing Indigenous Communities

The Vancouver (CAN) Sun (11/14, Cordasco) reports, “RCMP leaders in B.C. say developing good working relationships with Indigenous communities is a priority for them, but the province’s expansive geography, lack of localized cultural awareness training, the frequent rotation of officers and a lopsided funding formula have slowed or prevented progress. That was the message from RCMP detachment commanders recently to a provincial legislature committee whose job is to recommend reforms to B.C’s 50 year-old Police Act.” The Sun adds, “Over the past year, Canada’s national police force has acknowledged Indigenous people are overrepresented in the criminal justice system and said it is trying to advance reconciliation through more culturally sensitive policing in Indigenous communities,” but “Sgt. Anthony Fletcher, who leads the RCMP’s Northern Rockies detachment, a 97,000 square kilometre region that borders the Northwest Territories, Yukon and Alberta, testified that policing large, remote areas is a challenge in serving Indigenous communities.”

News Analysis: Path To Federal Policing Reform Appears To Be Narrowing

Newsday (NY) (11/14, Figueroa Hernandez) reports, “After bipartisan congressional negotiations over a federal police reform bill collapsed earlier this fall, lawmakers, civil rights groups and police unions are again looking to President Joe Biden to see if he can deliver on one of his central campaign promises to overhaul policing standards.” Biden “notched a victory when Congress passed a $1.2 trillion bipartisan infrastructure package, a major part of his domestic agenda,” but as the President “continues to focus on pushing lawmakers to pass a follow-up $1.75 trillion social infrastructure package before the end of the year, and as the midterm election season nears, criminal justice reform advocates concede that the path to passing a police reform bill...during this current session of Congress is narrowing. The diminishing chances of passing major legislation were underscored by the Nov. 2 election results — Republican candidates brandishing tough-on-crime messaging won in local races throughout the East Coast.”

Police agencies have been tasked with responding to quality-of-life issues that add to the workload of their officers and the impact that recent budget shortfalls and calls to shift police funding to other government services have had. Quantifying the community needs and differentiating between police and social service workloads is critical for police leaders to lead and make informed budget decisions while ensuring community services needs are met.

People Who Are Barred From Owning Guns Turn To Untraceable Firearms

The New York Times (11/14, A1, Thrush) reports, “Ghost guns – untraceable firearms without serial numbers, assembled from components bought online – are increasingly becoming the lethal weapon of easy access for those legally barred from buying or owning guns around the country.

The criminal underground has long relied on stolen weapons with sanded-off serial numbers, but ghost guns represent a digital-age upgrade, and they are especially prevalent in coastal blue states” that have “strict firearm laws.”

Cocaine Worth $44M Found In Onion Rings Shipment At UK Border

CNN (11/14, Haq) reports, “A shipment of $44 million (£33 million) worth of cocaine was found in an onion ring cargo in Coquelles, France, UK border officials said.” According to CNN, “Border Force officers spotted the 922-pound (418 kg) shipment on Thursday evening after halting a lorry, which was headed to the UK, according to the country’s National Crime Agency (NCA). Piotr Perzenowski, 30, has since been charged with smuggling the shipment, and appeared at Kent’s Folkestone Magistrates’ Court on Saturday morning.”

Gunfight Between Gangs In Ecuadorean Prison Leaves At Least 68 Inmates Dead

The AP (11/13, Solano) reports, “A prolonged gunbattle between rival gangs inside Ecuador’s largest prison killed at least 68 inmates and wounded 25 on Saturday, while authorities said it took most of the day to regain control at the Litoral Penitentiary, which recently saw the country’s worst prison bloodbath.” The killing commenced prior to daybreak “in what officials said was the latest outbreak of fighting among prison gangs linked to international drug cartels.” Officials indicated that the shooting went on for roughly eight hours.

The Washington Post (11/13, Schmidt) reports the violence was sparked partly “by the recent release of a gang leader, which left behind a power vacuum in one of the prison’s units, officials said.” During a news conference, Pablo Arosemena, Governor of the province in which the facility is located, said, “Left without a ringleader, other wards, other gangs tried to break them down and carry out a total massacre.”

Three Arrested After Apparent Terror Attack On British Hospital

Bloomberg (11/14, Ashton) reports three men “were arrested under the Terrorism Act in Liverpool, in northwest England, after a car explosion at a hospital killed one person and injured another.” CNN (11/14, Smith-Spark) adds, “Local police as well as police specializing in counter-terrorism are investigating the explosion, which took place outside Liverpool Women’s Hospital in northwest England Sunday.”

The AP (11/14) reports, “Merseyside Police said in a statement that the vehicle, a taxi, ‘pulled up at the hospital shortly before the explosion occurred. Work is still going on to establish what has happened and could take some time before we are in a position to confirm anything.’” The “male passenger of the car died and the driver was being treated for non life-threatening injuries, police said.” The New York Times (11/14, Medina) reports Merseyside’s Chief Constable, Serena Kennedy, “said that investigators were still asking for information and that there would be ‘an increased and visible police presence on the streets of Merseyside.’” She added, “It is also important that, at this very early stage, people do not speculate about what has happened.”

Police In California Identify Members Of Huge Catalytic Converter Theft Ring

SFGate (CA) (11/12, Robertson) reports, “A tip from a citizen led to massive, 11-month-long investigation resulting in the identification of 30 people suspected to be involved in catalytic converter thefts in the Bay Area, the Livermore Police Department announced Thursday.” In January, “a Livermore resident reportedly noticed people acting suspiciously and obtained a photo of a partial license plate, which they submitted to police. Livermore police, in conjunction with Pleasanton police, decided to pursue the partial license plate, given the immense rise in catalytic converter thefts throughout the state in recent years. The investigation led them to three different Bay Area counties, police said.” SFGate adds, “On Oct. 25, the two police departments concluded their initial investigation and served a search warrant in Stockton, leading to the identification of about 30 suspects, police said. More than 50 catalytic converters, $91,000 in cash, illegal weapons and drugs and stolen vehicles were also found during the search, police said.”

Hackers Send Messages From FBI Email Account Cautioning About Potential Cyberattack

Bloomberg (11/13, Cao) reports, “Hackers compromised the Federal Bureau of Investigation’s external email system on Saturday.” They dispatched “tens of thousands of emails from an FBI email account warning about a possible cyberattack, according to the Spamhaus Project, which tracks spam and related cyber threats.”

Reuters (11/13, Stone, Bhalla) reports that while the hardware affected by the hack “was taken offline quickly upon discovery of the issue,” the FBI said, “This is an ongoing situation.” Reuters also says, “A copy of an email posted by Spamhaus on Twitter showed a subject line of ‘Urgent: Threat actor in systems’ and appeared to end with a sign-off from the Department of Homeland Security.”

CNN (11/14, Lyngaas) reports the FBI “said Sunday that someone had taken advantage of the software misconfiguration to send emails using an IT system the FBI uses to communicate with state and local law enforcement partners. They added it did not impact its main computer network.”

US, Israel To Form Joint Task Force To Combat Ransomware

Reuters (11/14, Singh) reports the Treasury Department “said on Sunday it will partner with Israel to combat ransomware, with the two countries launching a joint task force to address cybersecurity.” Deputy Secretary of the Treasury Wally Adeyemo “met with Israeli Finance Minister Avigdor Lieberman and Director General of the National Cyber Directorate Yigal Unna in Israel on Sunday to establish a bilateral partnership, the department said in a statement.”

Featuring Current &Past Chiefs from Boston PD, Anaheim PD, Buffalo Grove PD, and Thomasville PD

Hi Allie,

Earlier this year, Veritone commissioned a national survey which included a wide-ranging set of questions regarding transparency and the use of technology by our country's law enforcement agencies (LEAs). These findings were recently published in a 2021 US Law Enforcement Agency Trust &Transparency Report.

The report highlights that public misconceptions about policing sometimes occur due to a lack of understanding about operations, a lack of access to records, or how LEAs manage and retain records. With better technology and objective data leading the way, LEAs have the opportunity to shine a light on their operations and answer the public's call for increased transparency.

On November 9, 2021 Veritone and Microsoft hosted a virtual panel discussion with law enforcement leaders from across the country and discussed the report's findings as well as other related topics and what it all means for our nation's law enforcement agencies and suggested next steps. Law enforcement leaders on the panel included: ·

- Chief Steven Casstevens, Buffalo Grove, IL PD (past IACP president) ·
- Chief Jorge Cisneros, Anaheim, CA PD ·
- Police Commissioner &Superintendent-in-Chief, William Gross, Boston, MA PD ·
- Chief John Letteney, Thomasville, GA PD (incoming IACP president) If you missed this webinar, simply register below and watch the free on-demand replay.

Amid anti-police rhetoric from some members of the press, the public, and political leadership, young people are staying away from the law enforcement profession in drives, and many senior officers are leaving the profession—often to embark on a different career—well before reaching retirement age. Police leaders may consider the following strategies to help them prevail:

1. Engage young people through programs like Explorers, PAL, SRO, and the like to plant the seed in young minds the policing is "something worth doing".

- Identify people who aspire to the profession
- Prepare those people with tools to do the job
- Enhance agency/community relations

2. Ensure that training programs meet the needs of officers seeking to rise in the ranks, therefore increasing job satisfaction and improving retention.

- Cultivate future leaders through recognition of superior service
- Create pathways for advancement with excellent in-service training
- Check on (and credit) officers' outside training and advanced education

Without Specific Threat, DHS Warns Of Potential Attacks Around Holidays

The AP (11/10) reports DHS warned Wednesday that the US faces a “heightened threat environment” from domestic extremists and those inspired by foreign terrorists in the run-up to the holiday season. While DHS “said it had no credible information on a specific threat, the agency warns in its latest national terrorism advisory bulletin that mass gatherings for the upcoming religious holidays could be potential targets, including from people and organizations seeking to exploit resentment over pandemic lockdowns and recent events such as the U.S. withdrawal from Afghanistan.”

Medical Marijuana Laws In Colorado Will Be More Strict Beginning January 1

The Denver Post (11/11) reports, “Colorado will impose stricter rules for the purchase of medical marijuana starting Jan. 1 following several months of deliberation over how to execute a new state law meant largely to limit young people’s access to and abuse of high-potency THC products.”

Police In Cheshire, England Will Allow Vulnerable People To Video Control Room

BBC News (11/11) reports, “A new system that allows vulnerable people to video call a force’s control room will help them ‘feel safer’, a police commissioner has said.” According to BBC News, “Cheshire Police’s new technology will let control room operators to send a secure video link to a smartphone. A spokesman said the system would ensure people can access instant help and allow the force to immediately start gathering evidence if necessary. Cheshire PCC John Dwyer said the system would have ‘huge benefits’. The Conservative commissioner, who secured £300,000 from the Home Office’s Safety of Women at Night Fund to fund the scheme, said it would ‘go a long way in helping to provide reassurance, especially at night, when people may have an increased feeling of vulnerability’.”

Violence Down In Dallas, Texas As Police Focus On Next Phase Of Anti-Crime Plan

The Dallas Morning News (11/11, Smith) reports, "Violence continues to trend downward in Dallas as police begin to focus on the second phase of the chief's crime plan and strategies specific for the holiday season." According to the Morning News, "The department's updated stats through October show overall violent crime is down 7.4%, or 773 offenses, this year compared with 2020. Murders and robberies continue to decrease in 2021 compared with last year, while aggravated assaults remain slightly up year-to-date but have begun to decline. All three types of crime were down in the months since May 7, when the chief's data-driven violent crime plan went into effect." The Morning News adds, "Police began undergoing training last month on the violent crime plan's next phase, which focuses on locating and disrupting criminal networks."

UK Police To Get Drink Spiking Test Kits

Independent (UK) (11/10, Tidman) reports, "Drink spiking test kits are set to be rolled out across police stations and dozens of night-time venues in Bristol as part of a trial. Funding will also go towards providing kits to check whether drinks have been tampered with for police to use on call-outs, after the council [successfully] bid for government funding for initiatives to support women's safety." According to the Independent, "The Home Office said the measure will 'enable officers to test drinks on the spot preventing assaults and helping them to gain early evidence for any investigation'. Nightclubs across the country are also introducing drink testing kits, along with full body searches and other safety measures, amid student boycotts and calls for greater action to tackle spiking."

Massachusetts Sees Slight Increase In Deaths From Opioid-Related Overdoses This Year Over Last Year

The AP (11/10) reports, "The number of Massachusetts residents who died of opioid-related overdoses in the first nine months of the year rose slightly compared to the same period in 2020, and Black and Latino residents continued to be disproportionately affected," according to state data. Statewide, "there were 1,613 confirmed and estimated opioid-related overdose deaths from January through September, 21 more than during the same nine-month period last year." The data also show that "the synthetic opioid fentanyl continues to be the main driver of opioid-related overdose deaths in Massachusetts, with fentanyl present in 92% of fatal overdoses through the first half of the year."

The Boston Herald (11/10, Cohan) reports that Acting Public Health Commissioner Margret Cooke said, "Prior to the pandemic, opioid-related overdose death rates in Massachusetts had been stable. Unfortunately, the pandemic exacerbated the opioid crisis, particularly in communities of color which have also been disproportionately impacted by COVID-19." State data also show that "cocaine was found in 52% of toxicology reports in the first six months of this year, which is up 13% from last year."

Drug With Similar Potency To Fentanyl Detected In Montreal For The First Time

CFCF-TV Montreal (CAN) Montreal, CAN (11/11) reports, “The synthetic opioid ‘etodesnitazene’ – a drug with a similar potency to fentanyl – has been detected for the first time in Montreal. The substance was discovered in a purpley-red paste sold on the city’s black market, according to an Oct. 29 report from Montreal’s regional health authority (DRSP). Traces of fentanyl were also detected in the paste.”

Salvadoran President Deploys Military To Streets To Counter Murder Spike

Reuters (11/11) reports Salvadoran President Nayib Bukele on Thursday “deployed the military to patrol streets throughout the country in response to a sharp surge in murders this week.” The deployment “follows more than 30 homicides on Tuesday and Wednesday in the impoverished Central American nation of about 6.5 million people,” well above the recent daily average of about two per day. According to the report, the majority of the troops will be deployed in San Salvador.

Law Enforcement Seizes More Than $16M Worth Of Meth In Texas In Recent Weeks

The Fort Worth (TX) Star-Telegram (11/11, Harkay) reports, “Over the course of the last five weeks, the Tarrant County Sheriff’s Office and other law enforcement agencies across North Texas confiscated over 1,400 lbs of pure meth – a record seizure in Tarrant County – they announced Thursday morning.” According to the Star-Telegram, “Police said the street value of the drugs that were seized, in both crystallized and liquidized form, is around $16 million. The sheriff’s office, Drug Enforcement Administration, Texas Department of Public Safety (DPS)/Anti-Gang Unit and Dallas, Fort Worth, Mansfield and River Oaks police departments partnered in the two seizures, which began with investigative and surveillance work. “

The Dallas Morning News (11/11, Bahari) reports, “The first operation began with a street-level seizure that led detectives to a conversion lab, where liquid methamphetamine was being converted into crystal form, the sheriff’s office said on Facebook. Agents seized 192 kilograms of liquid meth and 58 kilograms of crystal. A second operation began when sheriff’s deputies found a stolen vehicle parked outside of a business. Investigators then got a search warrant for the business, where they found 393 kilograms of crystal methamphetamine. Law enforcement officials said much of the drug distribution is coming from Mexican cartels.”

Massachusetts Sees Slight Increase In Deaths From Opioid-Related Overdoses This Year Over Last Year

The AP (11/10) reports, "The number of Massachusetts residents who died of opioid-related overdoses in the first nine months of the year rose slightly compared to the same period in 2020, and Black and Latino residents continued to be disproportionately affected," according to state data. Statewide, "there were 1,613 confirmed and estimated opioid-related overdose deaths from January through September, 21 more than during the same nine-month period last year." The data also show that "the synthetic opioid fentanyl continues to be the main driver of opioid-related overdose deaths in Massachusetts, with fentanyl present in 92% of fatal overdoses through the first half of the year."

The Boston Herald (11/10, Cohan) reports that Acting Public Health Commissioner Margret Cooke said, "Prior to the pandemic, opioid-related overdose death rates in Massachusetts had been stable. Unfortunately, the pandemic exacerbated the opioid crisis, particularly in communities of color which have also been disproportionately impacted by COVID-19." State data also show that "cocaine was found in 52% of toxicology reports in the first six months of this year, which is up 13% from last year."

Drug With Similar Potency To Fentanyl Detected In Montreal For The First Time

CFCF-TV Montreal (CAN) Montreal, CAN (11/11) reports, “The synthetic opioid ‘etodesnitazene’ – a drug with a similar potency to fentanyl – has been detected for the first time in Montreal. The substance was discovered in a purpley-red paste sold on the city’s black market, according to an Oct. 29 report from Montreal’s regional health authority (DRSP). Traces of fentanyl were also detected in the paste.”

Salvadoran President Deploys Military To Streets To Counter Murder Spike

Reuters (11/11) reports Salvadoran President Nayib Bukele on Thursday “deployed the military to patrol streets throughout the country in response to a sharp surge in murders this week.” The deployment “follows more than 30 homicides on Tuesday and Wednesday in the impoverished Central American nation of about 6.5 million people,” well above the recent daily average of about two per day. According to the report, the majority of the troops will be deployed in San Salvador.

Law Enforcement Seizes More Than $16M Worth Of Meth In Texas In Recent Weeks

The Fort Worth (TX) Star-Telegram (11/11, Harkay) reports, “Over the course of the last five weeks, the Tarrant County Sheriff’s Office and other law enforcement agencies across North Texas confiscated over 1,400 lbs of pure meth – a record seizure in Tarrant County – they announced Thursday morning.” According to the Star-Telegram, “Police said the street value of the drugs that were seized, in both crystallized and liquidized form, is around $16 million. The sheriff’s office, Drug Enforcement Administration, Texas Department of Public Safety (DPS)/Anti-Gang Unit and Dallas, Fort Worth, Mansfield and River Oaks police departments partnered in the two seizures, which began with investigative and surveillance work. “

The Dallas Morning News (11/11, Bahari) reports, “The first operation began with a street-level seizure that led detectives to a conversion lab, where liquid methamphetamine was being converted into crystal form, the sheriff’s office said on Facebook. Agents seized 192 kilograms of liquid meth and 58 kilograms of crystal. A second operation began when sheriff’s deputies found a stolen vehicle parked outside of a business. Investigators then got a search warrant for the business, where they found 393 kilograms of crystal methamphetamine. Law enforcement officials said much of the drug distribution is coming from Mexican cartels.”

Treasury Official Looking To Build Cybersecurity Partnerships On Middle Eastern Swing

Reuters (11/11, Psaledakis) reports Deputy Treasury Secretary Adeyemo “will travel to the Middle East on Friday, a Treasury spokesperson told Reuters, where he will seek to build partnerships on ransomware and cybersecurity as hackers wreak havoc among some of America’s more vital industries.” Adeyemo “will also discuss countering terrorist financing and proliferation as well as economic recovery following the coronavirus pandemic in his visits to Israel, Saudi Arabia, the United Arab Emirates and Qatar.”

Message from President Mitch Davis about the power of ILACP

Weekly Bulletin | November 11, 2021

Illinois' Voice of Professional Law Enforcement

Today, we recognize our many members who have served our country. Thank you for your service.

A message from President Mitch Davis about the power of ILACP

It's renewal time for the Illinois Chiefs and we hope that you choose to renew your membership for another year. Listen to this message from President Chief Mitch Davis (Hazel Crest) about ILACP's focus on serving our members from across the state.

We are working hard to serve the needs of all members.

And if you believe that the association has brought value to your department this year, please share that with others and encourage all law enforcement leaders in Illinois to join us. Thank you for helping to make us Illinois' Voice of Professional Law Enforcement.

ILACP will begin a new weekly communication with members to help keep you informed and up to date on the most pressing items the association is working on each week. We hope these videos will help set you up for success and ensure you hear about the most important trainings and resources the Illinois Chiefs have to offer. Watch your email every Tuesday to see the new video or access them from the website. Ed will star in the videos, but there may be some guests and surprises, so stay tuned.

Update your contact information

Don't miss out on important information from the association. We have added a form on the homepage for members to update their mailing addresses, emails or share any other relevant information so we can keep in touch. If you have updates to share, please take a couple of minutes to send us the new info.

Still time to sign up for body camera training for December

The Illinois Law Enforcement Officer-Worn Body Camera Act was amended by the SAFE-T Act of 2021, which requires all Illinois LE agencies to implement a body-worn camera program, depending on agency type and size, no later than January 1, 2025. To help prepare all agencies for the new law, this training from ILACP will teach you what's in the law, but more important, you will learn how you can best plan for and implement a successful body-worn camera program. The session will address policies, practices, and lessons learned from these agencies. The next sessions are Dec. 1 in Fairview Heights and Dec. 2 in Springfield.

Message from President Mitch Davis about the power of ILACP

Weekly Bulletin | November 11, 2021

Illinois' Voice of Professional Law Enforcement

Today, we recognize our many members who have served our country. Thank you for your service.

A message from President Mitch Davis about the power of ILACP

It's renewal time for the Illinois Chiefs and we hope that you choose to renew your membership for another year. Listen to this message from President Chief Mitch Davis (Hazel Crest) about ILACP's focus on serving our members from across the state.

We are working hard to serve the needs of all members.

And if you believe that the association has brought value to your department this year, please share that with others and encourage all law enforcement leaders in Illinois to join us. Thank you for helping to make us Illinois' Voice of Professional Law Enforcement.

Watch for new "Three Things to Know Now" videos

ILACP will begin a new weekly communication with members to help keep you informed and up to date on the most pressing items the association is working on each week. We hope these videos will help set you up for success and ensure you hear about the most important trainings and resources the Illinois Chiefs have to offer. Watch your email every Tuesday to see the new video or access them from the website. Ed will star in the videos, but there may be some guests and surprises, so stay tuned.

Update your contact information

Don't miss out on important information from the association. We have added a form on the homepage for members to update their mailing addresses, emails or share any other relevant information so we can keep in touch. If you have updates to share, please take a couple of minutes to send us the new info.

Still time to sign up for body camera training for December

The Illinois Law Enforcement Officer-Worn Body Camera Act was amended by the SAFE-T Act of 2021, which requires all Illinois LE agencies to implement a body-worn camera program, depending on agency type and size, no later than January 1, 2025. To help prepare all agencies for the new law, this training from ILACP will teach you what's in the law, but more important, you will learn how you can best plan for and implement a successful body-worn camera program. The session will address policies, practices, and lessons learned from these agencies. The next sessions are Dec. 1 in Fairview Heights and Dec. 2 in Springfield.
