Still time to sign up for body camera training for December

The Illinois Law Enforcement Officer-Worn Body Camera Act was amended by the SAFE-T Act of 2021, which requires all Illinois LE agencies to implement a body-worn camera program, depending on agency type and size, no later than January 1, 2025. To help prepare all agencies for the new law, this training from ILACP will teach you what's in the law, but more important, you will learn how you can best plan for and implement a successful body-worn camera program. Colorado Attorney General Seeks To Reduce Crime By Helping People Leaving Prison Find Jobs

The Denver Post (11/10) reports, "The more than 8,500 people who leave Colorado prisons every year often step back into society with only a bus pass and a small sack of belongings." But "that's not an effective way to help people transition to stable, law-abiding lives outside of prison walls, Colorado Attorney General Phil Weiser said Tuesday." Weiser and other top state criminal justice leaders on Tuesday "announced the creation of a $1.1 million grant that will help connect people leaving prison to jobs that will help them stabilize and avoid committing another crime."

Pottawatomie County Commissioners To Honor Deputy, Other Officers

The Shawnee (OK) News-Star (11/10, Slay) reports Pottawatomie County Commissioners on Monday "voted to honor Pottawatomie County Sheriff's Deputy Garey Knoles and other officers who responded to a domestic disturbance in Bethel Acres on Friday, Oct. 29." Deputy Knoles "remains hospitalized and is recovering from his wounds after being shot seven times that day."

DHS: US Faces "Heightened Threat" In Holiday Season

The AP (11/10) reports the US "faces a 'heightened threat environment' from domestic extremists and people inspired by foreign terrorist groups with the approach of the holiday season, the Department of Homeland Security warned Wednesday." While DHS "said it had no credible information on a specific threat, the agency warns in its latest national terrorism advisory bulletin that mass gatherings for the upcoming religious holidays could be potential targets, including from people and organizations seeking to exploit resentment over pandemic lockdowns and recent events such as the U.S. withdrawal from Afghanistan.”

Maryland Man Sentenced For Distributing Heroin On Dark Web

The Washington Post (11/10) reports a man “has been sentenced to seven years in federal prison for advertising and distributing heroin on the dark web, according to the U.S. Attorney’s Office in Maryland.” In addition “to the prison sentence, Russell Ramseur, 44, of Largo was given five years of supervised release on Tuesday, for conspiracy to distribute and possess with intent to distribute at least one kilogram of heroin and for possession with intent to distribute heroin.”

Colorado Attorney General Seeks To Reduce Crime By Helping People Leaving Prison Find Jobs

The Denver Post (11/10) reports, "The more than 8,500 people who leave Colorado prisons every year often step back into society with only a bus pass and a small sack of belongings." But "that's not an effective way to help people transition to stable, law-abiding lives outside of prison walls, Colorado Attorney General Phil Weiser said Tuesday." Weiser and other top state criminal justice leaders on Tuesday "announced the creation of a $1.1 million grant that will help connect people leaving prison to jobs that will help them stabilize and avoid committing another crime."

Pottawatomie County Commissioners To Honor Deputy, Other Officers

The Shawnee (OK) News-Star (11/10, Slay) reports Pottawatomie County Commissioners on Monday "voted to honor Pottawatomie County Sheriff's Deputy Garey Knoles and other officers who responded to a domestic disturbance in Bethel Acres on Friday, Oct. 29." Deputy Knoles "remains hospitalized and is recovering from his wounds after being shot seven times that day."

DHS: US Faces "Heightened Threat" In Holiday Season

The AP (11/10) reports the US "faces a 'heightened threat environment' from domestic extremists and people inspired by foreign terrorist groups with the approach of the holiday season, the Department of Homeland Security warned Wednesday." While DHS "said it had no credible information on a specific threat, the agency warns in its latest national terrorism advisory bulletin that mass gatherings for the upcoming religious holidays could be potential targets, including from people and organizations seeking to exploit resentment over pandemic lockdowns and recent events such as the U.S. withdrawal from Afghanistan.”

Maryland Man Sentenced For Distributing Heroin On Dark Web

The Washington Post (11/10) reports a man “has been sentenced to seven years in federal prison for advertising and distributing heroin on the dark web, according to the U.S. Attorney’s Office in Maryland.” In addition “to the prison sentence, Russell Ramseur, 44, of Largo was given five years of supervised release on Tuesday, for conspiracy to distribute and possess with intent to distribute at least one kilogram of heroin and for possession with intent to distribute heroin.”

Heart Disease: #1 Killer of Active and Retired Police Officers

Twenty-two years—The average life expectancy of a police officer in the United States is 22 fewer years than their civilian counterparts. As a police officer, life expectancy is only 57 years, compared to 79 years in the civilian sector. This staggering fact, however, is just the tip of the iceberg. Read more.

Kenny,

Yes this would be great to do as I was the “guinea pig” for AWB so I advised Jennifer I’d do the same with PowerDMS. My files for both policy and procedure are up to date and we are awaiting the final tier 2 status of ILEAP accreditation. Please upload both manuals. As far as PowerDMS site name, I don’t have one as I have been awaiting this integration. Can you name it Niles Police Department?

Hi Bob!

I am happy to reach out to you to ask if you'd be willing for us to manually send your manual(s) over to Power DMS for you to look at and help us determine what is working well for you with the integration and what is not working well for you.

The expectation is that we would do a one-time export/import and might be able to do another before the integration is automated and would occur each time a policy is issued in a manual (we expect this by year end).

In order to get started, I would need to know the manuals you would want exported/imported to Power DMS and I need to know your Power DMS site name. With this information we can perform the export/import and I will check in with you again to get started reviewing.

Thanks and I look forward to working with you through this process.

Policing and Policy

Kentucky Governor Proposes Body Cameras, Pay Raises For State Police

The Louisville (KY) Courier-Journal (11/9, Sonka) reports that Kentucky Gov. Andy Beshear's "proposed budget request for the Kentucky State Police next year will include $12.2 million for the agency's troopers to be equipped with body cameras for the first time. The governor's budget request also proposes a $15,000 raise for state troopers and an $8,000 raise for dispatch telecommunicators, part of an effort to recruit new hires and retain current personnel, who are increasingly leaving for other law enforcement agencies that pay more." Beshear "said the 'historic investments' of his budget proposal would amount to the single largest pay increase ever for state troopers."

Wisconsin County Sheriff's Office To Have Full-Time Mental Health Professional In Pilot Program

The Milwaukee Journal Sentinel (11/9, Groth) reports that the Waukesha County, Wisconsin Sheriff's Office "is embedding a full-time mental health professional to address the rising number of calls to law enforcement that are related to mental health. The pilot program started Nov. 8 and will run through June 30, 2022." Lauren Koster, "a licensed clinical social worker and certified substance abuse counselor, will offer mental health services through the sheriff's office. She's been employed at Waukesha County Health and Human Services since 2016. Working out of the sheriff's office, Koster will have access to real-time information when calls are made to the office. When she's dispatched on a mental health-related call, she'll arrive at a similar time as law enforcement. Koster will also follow up with people after a day or two to see whether they're still having a mental health crisis, said Wrucke."

Canton, Ohio Lawmakers Agree To Boost Police Starting Pay

The Canton (OH) Repository (11/9, Byer) reports that the Canton City Council “has agreed to increase the starting pay for police officers to $51,500 a year in an attempt to attract and retain officers. New officers with Ohio Police Officer Training Academy certification currently earn $40,000 and those without the training earn $39,000. The new salary was unanimously approved by the council Monday and would apply to all officers regardless of state certification.” Canton Mayor Thomas Bernabei “said the change is dependent on collective bargaining with the Canton Police Patrolmen’s Association (CPPA), which is ongoing, and would not take effect until a contract is approved. ‘We will be proposing raises, particularly for the early year officers in the police department, comparable to these numbers,’ he said.”

New Jersey Vehicle Registration Law Has Some Drivers Worried About Privacy, Officers Looking At Their Phones

The New Jersey Star-Ledger (11/9, Higgs) reports, “New Jersey became the third state Monday to allow drivers to show a police officer an electronic copy of their vehicle registration during a traffic stop,” and “while the actual change could be over a year away, what are the ramifications of handling an unlocked cell phone to an officer to prove your registration is current?” The new law signed by Gov. Phil Murphy “follows the lead of two other states passed that allow drivers to show an electronic copy of the registration on a cell phone or tablet. Readers who commented and emailed NJ Advance Media voiced concerns about that, and whether the new law is an end run around Fourth Amendment protections against unreasonable searches and seizures. Some said they weren’t comfortable handing their unlocked phone over to the police.”

Columbus, Ohio Mayor Proposes Alternative 911 Program

The AP (11/9) reports from Columbus, Ohio, “The mayor of Ohio’s capital city has proposed spending more than $5 million next year to provide an alternative police response to 911 calls involving mental health and addiction crises.” Columbus Mayor Andrew Ginther “said Tuesday the alternative response program would team paramedics, social workers, and police dispatchers to review the best response to non-emergency 911 calls. The announcement follows a six-week pilot program earlier this year that showed that more than 60% of calls received by those teams did not require immediate police or fire dispatch. The goal of the program is ‘to ensure the right response for residents facing emergencies, while freeing up our police officers to fight violent crime,’ Ginther said. His proposed $5.2 million plan would fund 17 social workers, six paramedics and six dispatchers.”

Cypriot Police Arrest Suspected Contract Killer Targeting Israelis

The AP (11/9, Hadjicostis) reports Cypriot police have “formally charged an Azeri man on suspicion that he planned to carry out the contract killings of Israelis living in Cyprus, a law enforcement official said on Tuesday.” The official “said that the 38-year-old suspect will go on trial next month on eight charges including conspiracy to commit murder, belonging to a criminal enterprise and illegal possession of firearms and ammunition. The suspect also faces a terrorism-related charge.” The official, who spoke anonymously, “said the Azeri’s arrest last month during which a pistol was found in his possession came in the ‘nick of time’ as police believe he was about to carry out the killings.”

French Police Arrest Three Linked To Cannes Stabbing

Reuters (11/9, Hummel) reports French police have arrested “three persons linked to a man suspected of having attacked police officers in the French Riviera city of Cannes on Monday, French media reported on Tuesday, citing police sources.” Le Parisien newspaper “added that France’s anti-terrorism prosecutors had not yet opened a probe.”

DEA Warning Public About Counterfeit Pills Threat

The Chicago Tribune (11/9, Keilman) reports DEA Chicago Special Agent in Charge Robert Bell is part of the DEA’s ongoing effort to warn the public that they face a serious counterfeit pills threat. After highlighting that such pills may contain illicit fentanyl, the Tribune quotes Bell, who stated, “Buying a pill on the street is gambling,” as it could cause a fatal overdose. A video clip that is posted to the WMAQ-TV Chicago (11/9) website shows Bell saying, “Fentanyl is a very powerful, potent synthetic drug that is driving” a fatal overdose crisis in the US. Christian Farr, a WMAQ reporter who can be heard speaking in the clip, highlighted that the DEA “recently issued” a counterfeit pills safety alert. Farr also took note of the DEA’s One Pill Can Kill campaign.

Police In Israel Make Historic Arms Dealer Bust

The Jerusalem Post (ISR) (11/9, Breuer) reports, “Police officers made the single largest arrest of illegal arms dealers in Israel’s history after a year-long covert operation, the Israel Police announced on Tuesday morning.” According to the Post, “The operation resulted in the seizure of 40 rifles, 13 pistols, two machine guns and two explosives linked to a cell phone. A total of 65 suspects from 25 different localities across Israel were arrested, among them a father and his three sons who operated a family arms dealing business. The raid saw the use of approximately 1,000 police officers, including from the special forces and Border Police.” The Post adds, “The operation, coined Operation Ocean, was made possible through the use of an undercover operative who had formerly been a criminal. The operative was recruited by the police in August 2020 and began his assignment in November, police said.”

Technology

Dallas Police Probing How Hundreds Of Hours Of Aerial Surveillance Videos Were Hacked

The Dallas Morning News (11/9, Bailey) reports, "An activist group says it received hundreds of hours of mostly Dallas police aerial surveillance footage from an anonymous hacker claiming to target law enforcement data in unsecured cloud storage." The data breach "is the latest incident drawing concerns about the city's security of electronic police information after a former IT worker deleted millions of evidence files earlier this year. Distributed Denial of Secrets, which describes itself as a transparency collective nonprofit, posted more than 600 hours, or almost 2 terabytes, of police helicopter and drone footage on its website Friday. Emma Best, a cofounder, confirmed to The Dallas Morning News this week that the videos were from Dallas police and the Georgia State Patrol."

Congress To Automakers: Use Technology To Try To Prevent DUI Deaths

Newsweek (11/9, Davis) reports, "Congress is mandating" that automakers "use technology to find a way to prevent" driving under the influence (DUI) deaths. That "mandate is one of many in" an infrastructure legislation package that is "aimed at improving auto safety amid growing road fatalities." President Biden is expected to sign that package soon. The AP (11/9, Yen, Krisher) publishes a similar article.

Kentucky Governor Proposes Body Cameras, Pay Raises For State Police

The Louisville (KY) Courier-Journal (11/9, Sonka) reports that Kentucky Gov. Andy Beshear's "proposed budget request for the Kentucky State Police next year will include $12.2 million for the agency's troopers to be equipped with body cameras for the first time. The governor's budget request also proposes a $15,000 raise for state troopers and an $8,000 raise for dispatch telecommunicators, part of an effort to recruit new hires and retain current personnel, who are increasingly leaving for other law enforcement agencies that pay more." Beshear "said the 'historic investments' of his budget proposal would amount to the single largest pay increase ever for state troopers."

Wisconsin County Sheriff's Office To Have Full-Time Mental Health Professional In Pilot Program

The Milwaukee Journal Sentinel (11/9, Groth) reports that the Waukesha County, Wisconsin Sheriff's Office "is embedding a full-time mental health professional to address the rising number of calls to law enforcement that are related to mental health. The pilot program started Nov. 8 and will run through June 30, 2022." Lauren Koster, "a licensed clinical social worker and certified substance abuse counselor, will offer mental health services through the sheriff's office. She's been employed at Waukesha County Health and Human Services since 2016. Working out of the sheriff's office, Koster will have access to real-time information when calls are made to the office. When she's dispatched on a mental health-related call, she'll arrive at a similar time as law enforcement. Koster will also follow up with people after a day or two to see whether they're still having a mental health crisis, said Wrucke."

Canton, Ohio Lawmakers Agree To Boost Police Starting Pay

The Canton (OH) Repository (11/9, Byer) reports that the Canton City Council “has agreed to increase the starting pay for police officers to $51,500 a year in an attempt to attract and retain officers. New officers with Ohio Police Officer Training Academy certification currently earn $40,000 and those without the training earn $39,000. The new salary was unanimously approved by the council Monday and would apply to all officers regardless of state certification.” Canton Mayor Thomas Bernabei “said the change is dependent on collective bargaining with the Canton Police Patrolmen’s Association (CPPA), which is ongoing, and would not take effect until a contract is approved. ‘We will be proposing raises, particularly for the early year officers in the police department, comparable to these numbers,’ he said.”

New Jersey Vehicle Registration Law Has Some Drivers Worried About Privacy, Officers Looking At Their Phones

The New Jersey Star-Ledger (11/9, Higgs) reports, “New Jersey became the third state Monday to allow drivers to show a police officer an electronic copy of their vehicle registration during a traffic stop,” and “while the actual change could be over a year away, what are the ramifications of handling an unlocked cell phone to an officer to prove your registration is current?” The new law signed by Gov. Phil Murphy “follows the lead of two other states passed that allow drivers to show an electronic copy of the registration on a cell phone or tablet. Readers who commented and emailed NJ Advance Media voiced concerns about that, and whether the new law is an end run around Fourth Amendment protections against unreasonable searches and seizures. Some said they weren’t comfortable handing their unlocked phone over to the police.”

Columbus, Ohio Mayor Proposes Alternative 911 Program

The AP (11/9) reports from Columbus, Ohio, “The mayor of Ohio’s capital city has proposed spending more than $5 million next year to provide an alternative police response to 911 calls involving mental health and addiction crises.” Columbus Mayor Andrew Ginther “said Tuesday the alternative response program would team paramedics, social workers, and police dispatchers to review the best response to non-emergency 911 calls. The announcement follows a six-week pilot program earlier this year that showed that more than 60% of calls received by those teams did not require immediate police or fire dispatch. The goal of the program is ‘to ensure the right response for residents facing emergencies, while freeing up our police officers to fight violent crime,’ Ginther said. His proposed $5.2 million plan would fund 17 social workers, six paramedics and six dispatchers.”

Cypriot Police Arrest Suspected Contract Killer Targeting Israelis

The AP (11/9, Hadjicostis) reports Cypriot police have “formally charged an Azeri man on suspicion that he planned to carry out the contract killings of Israelis living in Cyprus, a law enforcement official said on Tuesday.” The official “said that the 38-year-old suspect will go on trial next month on eight charges including conspiracy to commit murder, belonging to a criminal enterprise and illegal possession of firearms and ammunition. The suspect also faces a terrorism-related charge.” The official, who spoke anonymously, “said the Azeri’s arrest last month during which a pistol was found in his possession came in the ‘nick of time’ as police believe he was about to carry out the killings.”

French Police Arrest Three Linked To Cannes Stabbing

Reuters (11/9, Hummel) reports French police have arrested “three persons linked to a man suspected of having attacked police officers in the French Riviera city of Cannes on Monday, French media reported on Tuesday, citing police sources.” Le Parisien newspaper “added that France’s anti-terrorism prosecutors had not yet opened a probe.”

DEA Warning Public About Counterfeit Pills Threat

The Chicago Tribune (11/9, Keilman) reports DEA Chicago Special Agent in Charge Robert Bell is part of the DEA’s ongoing effort to warn the public that they face a serious counterfeit pills threat. After highlighting that such pills may contain illicit fentanyl, the Tribune quotes Bell, who stated, “Buying a pill on the street is gambling,” as it could cause a fatal overdose. A video clip that is posted to the WMAQ-TV Chicago (11/9) website shows Bell saying, “Fentanyl is a very powerful, potent synthetic drug that is driving” a fatal overdose crisis in the US. Christian Farr, a WMAQ reporter who can be heard speaking in the clip, highlighted that the DEA “recently issued” a counterfeit pills safety alert. Farr also took note of the DEA’s One Pill Can Kill campaign.

Police In Israel Make Historic Arms Dealer Bust

The Jerusalem Post (ISR) (11/9, Breuer) reports, “Police officers made the single largest arrest of illegal arms dealers in Israel’s history after a year-long covert operation, the Israel Police announced on Tuesday morning.” According to the Post, “The operation resulted in the seizure of 40 rifles, 13 pistols, two machine guns and two explosives linked to a cell phone. A total of 65 suspects from 25 different localities across Israel were arrested, among them a father and his three sons who operated a family arms dealing business. The raid saw the use of approximately 1,000 police officers, including from the special forces and Border Police.” The Post adds, “The operation, coined Operation Ocean, was made possible through the use of an undercover operative who had formerly been a criminal. The operative was recruited by the police in August 2020 and began his assignment in November, police said.”

Dallas Police Probing How Hundreds Of Hours Of Aerial Surveillance Videos Were Hacked

The Dallas Morning News (11/9, Bailey) reports, "An activist group says it received hundreds of hours of mostly Dallas police aerial surveillance footage from an anonymous hacker claiming to target law enforcement data in unsecured cloud storage." The data breach "is the latest incident drawing concerns about the city's security of electronic police information after a former IT worker deleted millions of evidence files earlier this year. Distributed Denial of Secrets, which describes itself as a transparency collective nonprofit, posted more than 600 hours, or almost 2 terabytes, of police helicopter and drone footage on its website Friday. Emma Best, a cofounder, confirmed to The Dallas Morning News this week that the videos were from Dallas police and the Georgia State Patrol."

Hi Robert,

It is a pleasure to e-meet you. I have put in a request to activate your 90 day free trial of PowerDMS Standards. Patrick Precord and Amy Reynolds will help you learn the product and access your Lexipol policy manual in our system.

You will receive an email soon from PowerDMS to login to your free trial site for the first time. Be sure to check your spam folder as this occasionally can get trapped there. Your Site Key will be NilesPD. If you would like to change it later, we can do that for you.

We look forward to working with you and receiving your feedback on this collaborative effort between Lexipol and PowerDMS.

Hi Bob,

I have copied Josh Snyder from Power DMS on this email as he can assist in getting the standards version of Power DMS up for you so we can progress on the integration testing we have been discussing.

Josh will need the name and email address of your accreditation manager or whomever you would like to be the master admin of Power DMS.

Thanks!

Kenny

Kenny,

Yes this would be great to do as I was the “guinea pig” for AWB so I advised Jennifer I’d do the same with PowerDMS. My files for both policy and procedure are up to date and we are awaiting the final tier 2 status of ILEAP accreditation. Please upload both manuals. As far as PowerDMS site name, I don’t have one as I have been awaiting this integration. Can you name it Niles Police Department?

Thank you,

Hi Bob!

I am happy to reach out to you to ask if you'd be willing for us to manually send your manual(s) over to Power DMS for you to look at and help us determine what is working well for you with the integration and what is not working well for you.

The expectation is that we would do a one-time export/import and might be able to do another before the integration is automated and would occur each time a policy is issued in a manual (we expect this by year end).

In order to get started, I would need to know the manuals you would want exported/imported to Power DMS and I need to know your Power DMS site name. With this information we can perform the export/Import and I will check in with you again to get started reviewing.

Thanks and I look forward to working with you through this process.

Hi Bob!

I am happy to reach out to you to ask if you'd be willing for us to manually send your manual(s) over to Power DMS for you to look at and help us determine what is working well for you with the integration and what is not working well for you.

The expectation is that we would do a one-time export/import and might be able to do another before the integration is automated and would occur each time a policy is issued in a manual (we expect this by year end).

In order to get started, I would need to know the manuals you would want exported/imported to Power DMS and I need to know your Power DMS site name. With this information we can perform the export/Import and I will check in with you again to get started reviewing.

Thanks and I look forward to working with you through this process.

Will do. Both Lansing and DuPage County Sheriff are ILEAP agencies. Ben keeps getting hammered with new ILEAP agencies, maybe we can assign to VP's and Ben can be consulted if ILEAP specific questions are asked?

Law Enforcement Agencies Still Failing To Report Shootings To FBI

The Pittsburgh Post-Gazette (11/7, Silver, Jacobs) reports that “nearly two-thirds of the country’s roughly 18,000 law enforcement agencies are still not turning over details about violent encounters that national experts had hoped could lead to improved training and ultimately save lives. Near the bottom of the list: Pennsylvania – where just 1% of police agencies have sent their use-of-force statistics to the FBI during the first three months of the year, a Pittsburgh Post-Gazette analysis shows.” The Post-Gazette adds, “Despite support from the White House, top members of Congress, and the International Association of Chiefs of Police, the program’s lack of participation has created gaps in a system that was created during one of the most tumultuous periods in the nation’s history.”

WSJournal Analysis: Texas Border Arrests Overwhelm Courts, Result In Few Convictions

The Wall Street Journal (11/8, Findell, Caldwell, Subscription Publication) reports that Texas Gov. Greg Abbott’s use of state law enforcement to enforce immigration laws by arresting migrants for trespassing is overwhelming Texas courts and resulting in few convictions. According to the Journal, court records show that only three percent of the approximately 1,500 migrants arrested on misdemeanor trespassing charges since July in what Abbott dubbed Operation Lone Star have been convicted, all through guilty pleas.

Security, Crime, and Drugs

Criminal Groups Profiting From Trafficking In Plastic Waste

The Los Angeles Times (11/8, Phillips) reports, “Americans like to think they are recycling their plastic takeout food containers, cutlery and flimsy grocery bags when they toss them into those green or blue bins. But, too often, that waste is shipped overseas, sometimes with the help of organized crime groups, where it litters cities, clogs waterways or is burned, filling the air with toxic chemicals.” According to the Times, “A report published Monday by the independent Swiss research group Global Initiative Against Transnational Organized Crime, whose members include current and former law-enforcement officials, sheds new light on how this waste winds up in poorer countries that had agreed not to accept it. Building on a previous investigation by Interpol, the new report maps the web of brokers, middlemen, legitimate recycling companies and organized crime groups that move millions of tons of discarded plastic from the United States, Europe and Australia to countries in Southeast Asia and Africa.”

Missing North Carolina Teen Found After Using Hand Sign Alerting She Was In Danger

NBC News (11/6, Acevedo) reports, “Authorities were able to find a missing 16-year-old girl after she caught the attention of a driver by using hand gestures popularized on the social media platform TikTok.” NBC News adds, “According to the Laurel County Sheriff’s Office in Kentucky, the girl was inside a silver-colored Toyota car when the driver saw her using hand signals known on TikTok ‘to represent violence at home – I need help – domestic violence.’ After recognizing what the signals meant and seeing that the teen ‘appeared to be in distress,’ the driver called 911, the sheriff’s office said in a statement. The alert led to the arrest of 61-year-old James Herbert Brick of Cherokee, North Carolina, Thursday afternoon while driving near a Kentucky interstate.”

Oil Stolen In Colombia Used In Illegal Drug Trade

Reuters (11/8, Griffin) reports, “Theft from oil pipelines in Colombia is booming as criminal gangs look to replace dwindling supplies of smuggled Venezuelan gasoline for use in” the illegal drug trade, according to data that comes from tax authorities and the oil pipeline operation company Cenit. Gasoline “is a key component in making cocaine but there have been shortages of the fuel in Venezuela during that country’s social and economic crisis.” So, members of “criminal groups in Colombia are tapping pipelines for ever more crude, which they must later refine.”

Federal Agents Seize 100 Kilos Of Cocaine In Chicago

The AP (11/9) reports from Chicago, “Federal agents have seized 100 kilograms (220 pounds) of cocaine in Chicago. Three people were arrested, and a private plane was seized as part of last Wednesday’s operation, the US Attorney’s office for the Northern District of Illinois said Monday in a release.” The cocaine “was part of a suspected Mexico-to-Chicago drug pipeline. Eighty kilograms (176 pounds) were found in a vehicle in the city’s River North neighborhood, while another 20 kilograms (44 pounds) were taken from a hotel room along Chicago’s Gold Coast, according to criminal complaints filed in federal court. The drugs allegedly had been flown into an airport in Gary, Indiana, earlier Wednesday from Houston. The flight originated southwest of Mexico City in Toluca, Mexico.”

Police Arrest Man Suspected In Series Of Random Shootings In Missouri

The New York Times (11/8, Robles) reports law enforcement authorities in Missouri have arrested Perez D. Reed, who is “suspected of killing six people and injuring two others in what appeared to be a series of random attacks.” Reed, “who turns 26 on Wednesday, was charged with four counts of first-degree murder after the police tracked his cellphone and arrested him carrying a weapon that had been linked to all six shootings in Missouri.”

Coroner Worried That Illicit Fentanyl May Be Found In Marijuana

In online coverage, Fox News (11/8) reports that it interviewed Dr. William Clark, who said he is concerned that illicit fentanyl may be found in marijuana. Clark, who is the coroner for East Baton Rouge Parish in Louisiana, said, “We’re already seeing” that other drugs have been laced with illicit fentanyl, “so the next iteration of this would be that it ends up in marijuana.” The Fox News coverage links to a video clip of the Clark interview segment. That segment briefly highlights the DEA’s effort to prevent fentanyl-related problems in the US.

AP Report: Frustration Rising As Mexican Army Doesn’t Combat Cartels

The AP (11/8, Stevenson) runs an extensive piece highlighting how the Mexican army is no longer actively fighting drug cartels in some parts of the country. In one region, the army “has largely stopped fighting drug cartels here, instead ordering soldiers to guard the dividing lines between gang territories so they won’t invade each other’s turf — and turn a blind eye to the cartels’ illegal activities just a few hundred yards away.” The piece highlights the frustration of Mexicans with the military and its failure to fight the cartels under President Andrés Manuel López Obrador’s policy of “hugs, not bullets.”

US Indicts Two Congolese Nationals Indicted For Trafficking Ivory, Rhinoceros Horn

Reuters (11/8, Singh) reports the Justice Department on Monday announced “two people from the Democratic Republic of Congo have been arrested in the United States and indicted by a federal grand jury for allegedly trafficking elephant ivory and white rhinoceros horn from DRC to Seattle.” Reuters adds that according to the indictment, they “also sold 55 pounds of pangolin scales to a U.S. buyer but ultimately did not ship them.”

International Crackdown Results In Indictment Of REvil Ransomware Hackers

The Washington Post (11/8, Nakashima, Bennett) reports the DOJ on Monday “announced arrests and charges against hackers allegedly affiliated with the REvil ransomware group, which officials said has been involved in thousands of attacks.” The actions “include the arrest of a Ukrainian national in Poland last month, and the announcement of charges against him and a Russian national, Yevgeniy Polyinin, Attorney General Merrick Garland said in a briefing at the department.” The DOJ “also announced that authorities seized at least $6.1 million in funds allegedly linked to ransom payments received by Polyinin.” The AP (11/8, Tucker, Suderman) reports Garland said, “The Justice Department is sparing no resource to identify and bring to justice anyone, anywhere who targets the United States with a ransomware attack.”

Reuters (11/8, Hosenball, Singh) reports that in a statement on Monday, President Biden said his Administration has taken “important steps to harden” critical infrastructure against cyberattacks. The President added, “When I met with President Putin in June, I made clear that the United States would take action to hold cybercriminals accountable. That’s what we have done today.”

The New York Times (11/8, Benner, Perloth) reports Polyanin is “accused of conducting ransomware attacks against American government entities and businesses, including one that temporarily shut down the meat supply giant JBS.” Yaroslav Vasinskyi, who was arrested in Poland last month, is accused of “multiple ransomware attacks, including the July 2021 assault on the technology company Kaseya. The attack on Kaseya, which manages internet technology infrastructure for other companies, allowed hackers to infect the systems of Kaseya’s hundreds of customers.” The Wall Street Journal (11/8, Volz, McMillan, Subscription Publication) also covers this story.

Law Enforcement Agencies Still Failing To Report Shootings To FBI

The Pittsburgh Post-Gazette (11/7, Silver, Jacobs) reports that “nearly two-thirds of the country’s roughly 18,000 law enforcement agencies are still not turning over details about violent encounters that national experts had hoped could lead to improved training and ultimately save lives. Near the bottom of the list: Pennsylvania – where just 1% of police agencies have sent their use-of-force statistics to the FBI during the first three months of the year, a Pittsburgh Post-Gazette analysis shows.” The Post-Gazette adds, “Despite support from the White House, top members of Congress, and the International Association of Chiefs of Police, the program’s lack of participation has created gaps in a system that was created during one of the most tumultuous periods in the nation’s history.”

WSJournal Analysis: Texas Border Arrests Overwhelm Courts, Result In Few Convictions

The Wall Street Journal (11/8, Findell, Caldwell, Subscription Publication) reports that Texas Gov. Greg Abbott’s use of state law enforcement to enforce immigration laws by arresting migrants for trespassing is overwhelming Texas courts and resulting in few convictions. According to the Journal, court records show that only three percent of the approximately 1,500 migrants arrested on misdemeanor trespassing charges since July in what Abbott dubbed Operation Lone Star have been convicted, all through guilty pleas.

Security, Crime, and Drugs

Criminal Groups Profiting From Trafficking In Plastic Waste

The Los Angeles Times (11/8, Phillips) reports, “Americans like to think they are recycling their plastic takeout food containers, cutlery and flimsy grocery bags when they toss them into those green or blue bins. But, too often, that waste is shipped overseas, sometimes with the help of organized crime groups, where it litters cities, clogs waterways or is burned, filling the air with toxic chemicals.” According to the Times, “A report published Monday by the independent Swiss research group Global Initiative Against Transnational Organized Crime, whose members include current and former law-enforcement officials, sheds new light on how this waste winds up in poorer countries that had agreed not to accept it. Building on a previous investigation by Interpol, the new report maps the web of brokers, middlemen, legitimate recycling companies and organized crime groups that move millions of tons of discarded plastic from the United States, Europe and Australia to countries in Southeast Asia and Africa.”

Missing North Carolina Teen Found After Using Hand Sign Alerting She Was In Danger

NBC News (11/6, Acevedo) reports, “Authorities were able to find a missing 16-year-old girl after she caught the attention of a driver by using hand gestures popularized on the social media platform TikTok.” NBC News adds, “According to the Laurel County Sheriff’s Office in Kentucky, the girl was inside a silver-colored Toyota car when the driver saw her using hand signals known on TikTok ‘to represent violence at home – I need help – domestic violence.’ After recognizing what the signals meant and seeing that the teen ‘appeared to be in distress,’ the driver called 911, the sheriff’s office said in a statement. The alert led to the arrest of 61-year-old James Herbert Brick of Cherokee, North Carolina, Thursday afternoon while driving near a Kentucky interstate.”

Oil Stolen In Colombia Used In Illegal Drug Trade

Reuters (11/8, Griffin) reports, “Theft from oil pipelines in Colombia is booming as criminal gangs look to replace dwindling supplies of smuggled Venezuelan gasoline for use in” the illegal drug trade, according to data that comes from tax authorities and the oil pipeline operation company Cenit. Gasoline “is a key component in making cocaine but there have been shortages of the fuel in Venezuela during that country’s social and economic crisis.” So, members of “criminal groups in Colombia are tapping pipelines for ever more crude, which they must later refine.”

Federal Agents Seize 100 Kilos Of Cocaine In Chicago

The AP (11/9) reports from Chicago, “Federal agents have seized 100 kilograms (220 pounds) of cocaine in Chicago. Three people were arrested, and a private plane was seized as part of last Wednesday’s operation, the US Attorney’s office for the Northern District of Illinois said Monday in a release.” The cocaine “was part of a suspected Mexico-to-Chicago drug pipeline. Eighty kilograms (176 pounds) were found in a vehicle in the city’s River North neighborhood, while another 20 kilograms (44 pounds) were taken from a hotel room along Chicago’s Gold Coast, according to criminal complaints filed in federal court. The drugs allegedly had been flown into an airport in Gary, Indiana, earlier Wednesday from Houston. The flight originated southwest of Mexico City in Toluca, Mexico.”

Police Arrest Man Suspected In Series Of Random Shootings In Missouri

The New York Times (11/8, Robles) reports law enforcement authorities in Missouri have arrested Perez D. Reed, who is “suspected of killing six people and injuring two others in what appeared to be a series of random attacks.” Reed, “who turns 26 on Wednesday, was charged with four counts of first-degree murder after the police tracked his cellphone and arrested him carrying a weapon that had been linked to all six shootings in Missouri.”

Coroner Worried That Illicit Fentanyl May Be Found In Marijuana

In online coverage, Fox News (11/8) reports that it interviewed Dr. William Clark, who said he is concerned that illicit fentanyl may be found in marijuana. Clark, who is the coroner for East Baton Rouge Parish in Louisiana, said, “We’re already seeing” that other drugs have been laced with illicit fentanyl, “so the next iteration of this would be that it ends up in marijuana.” The Fox News coverage links to a video clip of the Clark interview segment. That segment briefly highlights the DEA’s effort to prevent fentanyl-related problems in the US.

AP Report: Frustration Rising As Mexican Army Doesn’t Combat Cartels

The AP (11/8, Stevenson) runs an extensive piece highlighting how the Mexican army is no longer actively fighting drug cartels in some parts of the country. In one region, the army “has largely stopped fighting drug cartels here, instead ordering soldiers to guard the dividing lines between gang territories so they won’t invade each other’s turf — and turn a blind eye to the cartels’ illegal activities just a few hundred yards away.” The piece highlights the frustration of Mexicans with the military and its failure to fight the cartels under President Andrés Manuel López Obrador’s policy of “hugs, not bullets.”

US Indicts Two Congolese Nationals Indicted For Trafficking Ivory, Rhinoceros Horn

WEBINAR TOMORROW: US Law Enforcement Agency Transparency & How Technology Can Help Featuring Current & Past Chiefs from Boston PD, Anaheim PD, Buffalo Grove PD, and Thomasville PD

Featuring Current & Past Chiefs from Boston PD, Anaheim PD, Buffalo Grove PD, and Thomasville PD

Hi paul,

Earlier this year, Veritone commissioned a national survey which included a wide-ranging set of questions regarding transparency and the use of technology by our country's law enforcement agencies (LEAs). These findings were recently published in a 2021 US Law Enforcement Agency Trust & Transparency Report.

The report highlights that public misconceptions about policing sometimes occur due to a lack of understanding about operations, a lack of access to records, or how LEAs manage and retain records. With better technology and objective data leading the way, LEAs have the opportunity to shine a light on their operations and answer the public's call for increased transparency.

Join Us TOMORROW: November 9, 2021 at 10AM Pacific / 1PM Eastern, Veritone and Microsoft will host a virtual panel discussion with law enforcement leaders from across the country discussing the report's findings as well as other related topics and what it all means for our nation's law enforcement agencies and suggested next steps. Law enforcement leaders on the panel include:

- Chief Steven Casstevens, Buffalo Grove, IL PD (past IACP president)
- Chief Jorge Cisneros, Anaheim, CA PD
- Police Commissioner & Superintendent-in-Chief, William Gross, Boston, MA PD
- Chief John Letteney, Thomasville, GA PD (incoming IACP president)

Attend and ask your questions.

If you're interested in attending, please register below. During the registration process you will have an opportunity to include a question you would like for the panel to discuss.

Ana,

Here's a copy of your budget for this current year. To illustrate my point about the Capital Improvement Plan (CIP)—the only object code item you have here from the capital costs object codes is $350 worth of office furniture—a far cry from the $10,000 dollar threshold we're setting for submitting CIP items. But more on that soon—

Let me know if this isn't what you were thinking and I can send something else.

Politico Details US Commitment To Community Violence Intervention Initiatives

Politico (11/5, Ward) says President Biden “has promised billions of dollars in funding for community violence intervention, or CVI, programs that have been shown to break cycles of violence by connecting high-risk individuals to wraparound social services.” Politico adds that “this summer, the White House announced a 15-jurisdiction CVI collaborative, a group of mayors, law enforcement, CVI experts and philanthropic leaders, who are working over the next 18 months to improve their jurisdictions’ CVI infrastructure and add to the body of evidence supporting these programs.” The Departments of Treasury and Education “announced this summer that two buckets of American Rescue Plan funding – $350 billion in flexible state and local funding and $122 billion in school funding – could be used for CVI initiatives.” And Biden “proposed an additional $5 billion in CVI funding this spring in his Build Back Better agenda.”

Some Police Justify Killing Motorists By Saying Automobile Was Weapon

In an approximately 4,000 word piece, the New York Times (11/6, A1, Barker, Eder, Kirkpatrick, Sundaram) discusses a 2017 killing by a police officer who fatally shot Cedric Mifflin, “a 27-year-old Black man” who continued to drive his car after law enforcement attempted to pull him over. The officer was under the impression that Mifflin meant “to run him over, he said later.” According to the Times, “The officer’s defense of killing Mr. Mifflin, who wielded neither a gun nor a knife, is one repeated over and over across the country: The vehicle was a weapon.” A Times analysis of automobile stops that resulted in the deaths of in excess of 400 similarly unarmed individuals over the last half decade shows that “those words were routinely used to explain why police officers had fired at drivers.”

Supreme Court To Weigh What Ministers Can Do At Executions

The Washington Post (11/6, Barnes) reports the Supreme Court on Tuesday “will consider the fate of...convicted murderer John Henry Ramirez” in a case that “asks the court to consider exactly what kind of religious accommodations must be available to inmates at the moment the state puts them to death, a question that has vexed the court and divided the justices over the last several years.” The Post adds that although Ramirez “wants [Pastor Dana] Moore by his side in the death chamber, to pray aloud and lay hands on him at the moment the inmate is executed by lethal injection,” the state of Texas “says its protocols protecting the ‘security, integrity and solemnity’ of executions allow Moore to be present, but only if he stays quiet and does not touch Ramirez.”

La Porte, Indiana Police To Increase Traffic Enforcement During November

WIMS-AM South Shore, IN (11/5) reports that the La Porte, Indiana Police Department “announced Thursday it will be increasing patrols during the holiday season. From now until Nov. 30, officers will be showing zero tolerance for impaired drivers, whether it’s alcohol or drugs, and will be on the lookout for Aggressive Driving behaviors. Impaired driving includes more than alcohol. Drugs and even some over-the-counter medications can also cause impairment, and can slow coordination, judgment and reaction times on the road. ‘With the weather starting to change, it is important to slow down and buckle up. We want everyone to have a safe Thanksgiving season, and driving sober and wearing a seat belt is the best way to protect yourself on the road,’ said Chief Paul Brettin.”

Spokane, Washington Sheriff Advertises For Officers In New York City

The AP (11/5) reports from Spokane, Washington, “The Spokane County Sheriff’s Office spent $12,000 for two days of billboard advertising in Times Square in New York City intended to recruit deputies, but ended up with a lot of nationwide attention as a result. The ads, which run Thursday and Friday, might seem like an odd choice for a law enforcement agency 2,500 miles away.” The AP adds, “The message was that Spokane County is looking to hire 40 experienced law enforcement officers, and pay them a $15,000 hiring bonus. Sheriff Ozzie Knezovich said he bought billboards in cities where elected officials have spoken negatively about police officers. “

Reuters Review Finds Problems With Many Immigration Crackdown Cases In Texas

Reuters (11/7, Ulmer) reports there have been approximately “1,600 trespassing arrests of recent border-crossers in Texas since July.” But a Reuters review shows that many of those cases, which are part of an immigration crackdown operation that Tex Gov. Greg Abbott (R) launched, “appear to be falling apart.” Defense attorneys “and at least one county prosecutor have cited problems with many of the cases, including imprecise details of the alleged misdemeanors on charging documents and lack of clarity about whether migrants were properly given notice that they were about to potentially trespass.”

Police Give All Clear After Bomb Threats At Cornell, Brown, Columbia

Reuters (11/7, O'Brien) reports police at the “elite Ivy League universities” of Cornell University in Ithaca, New York, Brown University in Providence, Rhode Island, and Columbia University in New York City “gave the all clear and said activities could resume normally at the schools on Sunday after each received separate bomb threats.” USA Today (11/7, Tebor) says the universities were evacuated prior to receiving the all clear, “days after several Ohio universities received similar threats.” The Wall Street Journal (11/7, Ramey, Subscription Publication) provides similar coverage.

Police In Delaware Arrest 46 During One-Day “Enforcement Blitz”

The AP (11/6) reports from Wilmington, Delaware, “Forty-six people were arrested on criminal charges in northern Delaware during a one-day, multidepartment ‘enforcement blitz’ involving weapons, drugs and probation violations and other counts, troopers said Saturday. The operation at targeted locations in New Castle County occurred on Thursday over an eight-hour period, according to a Delaware State Police news release.” According to the AP, “Authorities cleared 54 active warrants related to the criminal arrests. Officers recovered firearms along with cocaine, marijuana and heroin, the news release said. ‘This combined effort (highlights) how the cooperation of multiple law enforcement agencies combat crime which in turn increases quality of life for the communities we serve,’ state police said.”

Four Stabbed “At Random” Aboard German Train

The AP (11/7) reports a 27-year-old man who “stabbed four people with a knife on a German high-speed train apparently attacked his victims ‘at random’ and showed signs of mental illness, authorities said Sunday.” Police and investigators “told reporters in Neumarkt in der Oberpfalz that the attacker’s intentions were still unclear, but there is no indication currently of a terror motive.” The suspect was arrested “on the train after Saturday’s attack, offering no resistance to police, and has since been taken to a psychiatric clinic.”

AFP (11/6) also reported.

Spanish Police Arrest 12 After Emergency Landing In Mallorca

Reuters (11/6, Jones) reported police in Spain arrested “12 people and were looking for 12 more after a group of passengers fled a plane onto the runway at Palma de Mallorca airport on Friday night, causing the closure of the airport for several hours.” The Air Arabia Maroc flight “from Casablanca to Istanbul made an emergency landing at Palma de Mallorca airport after reports of an ill passenger, Guardia Civil said.” Police are trying to “establish why the passengers ran away and whether it was an orchestrated plan or an isolated incident.” None of those arrested “have tried to claim asylum in Spain.”

Mexican Official Says Gangs Fighting To Control Caribbean Coastline

The AP (11/5, Rojas) reports a recent shooting at a resort in Quintana Roo, Mexico “is part of a fight among about a dozen gangs to carve up the lucrative market of selling drugs to tourists and locals, an official said Friday.” The AP says that according to the chief prosecutor of Quintana Roo, “about 10 gangs are fighting over street-level drug sales in Tulum, a beach town further south.” The AP adds, “Cartels fighting for the area’s lucrative retail drug trade include the Jalisco cartel and the a gang allied with the Gulf cartel.”

Former DEA Official: “Unprecedented” Amounts Of Fentanyl, Meth Smuggled Into US

In online coverage, Fox News (11/7) reports the recently retired leader of the DEA's El Paso Division said "unprecedented" amounts of methamphetamine have been smuggled into the US from Mexico. Kyle W. Williamson's comment was made after the DEA issued a national public safety alert that warned of a counterfeit pills threat in the US. The DEA stated, "These counterfeit pills are easy to purchase, widely available, and often contain deadly doses of fentanyl."

Amid anti-police rhetoric from some members of the press, the public, and political leadership, young people are staying away from the law enforcement profession in drives, and many senior officers are leaving the profession—often to embark on a different career—well before reaching retirement age. Police leaders may consider the following strategies to help them prevail:

1. Engage young people through programs like Explorers, PAL, SRO, and the like to plant the seed in young minds the policing is "something worth doing".

- Identify people who aspire to the profession
- Prepare those people with tools to do the job
- Enhance agency/community relations

2. Ensure that training programs meet the needs of officers seeking to rise in the ranks, therefore increasing job satisfaction and improving retention.

- Cultivate future leaders through recognition of superior service
- Create pathways for advancement with excellent in-service training
- Check on (and credit) officers' outside training and advanced education

Election Results Show How Political Winds Have Shifted On Policing Reform

The Washington Post (11/4) reports that “Tuesday’s election results underscored how much the political winds have shifted since the start of what many activists had hoped was a new national awakening to the stubborn legacy of America’s racist history.” The Post adds, “Republican Glenn Youngkin won the governor’s race in Virginia, in part, by warning about anti-racism curriculums in schools that examine the ways policies and laws perpetuate systemic discrimination,” and “a proposal to overhaul policing was defeated in Minneapolis – the liberal city that gave rise to the summer of protests after a police officer murdered George Floyd – as voters rejected the idea of replacing a traditional law enforcement presence with one that would take a ‘comprehensive public health approach’ to public safety.” The Post adds, “Democratic cities elected mayors more focused on economic, crime and education issues than implementing major police and racial justice policies advocated by the protesters in summer 2020.”

US Weighs Prosecuting Dozens Of Unruly Airline Passengers

The Washington Post (11/4, Villegas) reports that the Federal Aviation Administration announced on Thursday “that it has referred the cases of more than three dozen unruly passengers to the FBI for potential criminal prosecution in hopes of curbing a sharp uptick in people acting violently on planes this year. ‘Let this serve both as a warning and a deterrent: If you disrupt a flight, you risk not just fines from the FAA but federal criminal prosecution as well,’ FAA Administrator Steve Dickson said Thursday in a news release.” According to the Post, in August, the FAA and the Justice Department “began developing an information-sharing protocol to refer the most serious cases to the FBI for further review and faster prosecution, the agencies said in a joint statement. The step comes as U.S. airlines grapple with an increase in disruptive or violent incidents onboard flights – many involving hostile passengers protesting mask mandates as travel goes back to pre-pandemic levels.”

Denver Police Hope Therapy Dog Will Strengthen Bonds To Community

The AP (11/4, Slevin) reports from Denver, Colorado, “The Denver Police Department’s first therapy dog was originally trained to be a guide dog, but she turned out to be too friendly to focus on helping one person,” and “now the department is counting on the Black English Labrador Retriever’s outgoing nature to help it break down barriers and start conversations with people in high-crime areas and those wary of the police.” Shelby, “an eager 19-month-old who will work with the downtown area’s community resource officer, Teresa Gillian, was officially sworn onto the force Thursday by Judge Renee Goble.” Denver “joins about 300 law enforcement agencies around the United States that have acquired therapy dogs for a range of duties, said Sgt. Jason Ratcliff of the Franklin County Sheriff’s Office in Ohio. The department was believed to be one of the first agencies to use therapy dogs when it first acquired them in 2017, he said.”

Baltimore Police Recruits To Get Credit Toward Associate Degrees During Training Under New Agreement With Community College

The Baltimore Sun (11/4, Anderson) reports, “Baltimore Police recruits will be able to work toward an associate degree while training to become a police officers thanks to a new agreement with Baltimore City Community College.” The Baltimore Police department “announced a new Articulation Agreement Thursday that allows police academy graduates to earn up to 36 credits toward an Associate of Applied Science Degree in Law Enforcement at the Community College. The agreement comes after the city and police union reached a new contract last month that pays officers with degrees more money. Beginning in January, all officers with an associate degree, bachelor’s degree or master’s degree will earn an additional $1,500, $3,000 or $4,500, respectively, each year. ‘This partnership with BCCC creates a pathway to increased educational opportunities for our officers and will pave the way for success in their Law Enforcement careers,’ Police Commissioner Michael Harrison said in a statement. ‘Making it more convenient for officers to earn their degrees also allows them to be eligible for salary incentives sooner.’”

Security, Crime, and Drugs

Multi-National Police Disrupt International Human Smuggling Network In Spain

The AP (11/4) reports police from nine countries “helped break up a network that smuggled hundreds of Pakistanis into the European Union through the Balkans, cramming them into the back of trucks and charging them up to 20,000 euros ($23,000) each, Spanish police announced Thursday.” The migrants were transported “in dangerous and inhumane conditions, with trucks usually carrying more than 50 people in a space of 8 square meters (86 square feet), Spain’s National Police said.” The operation, which “lifted a lid on how smuggling gangs work, involved police from Bosnia, Croatia, Slovenia, France, Italy, Greece, Italy and Romania, with the EU crime agency Europol in support.”

Louisiana Coroner Warns Of Growing Fentanyl Overdose Problem

Fox News (11/4, Castor) reports law enforcement agencies across the country are “sounding the alarms” over the growing overdose crisis, “especially in Louisiana where officials say fentanyl is running rampant. The coroner for East Baton Rouge Parish, Dr. William Clark, says he’s already recorded nearly 250 drug deaths this year, a number he’s never reached before. He adds that 90% of the drug deaths so far include fentanyl.”

Research: Alcohol, Cannabis Sales In Canada Spiked During Pandemic

CBC (CAN) (11/4) reports that according to new research published in the journal JAMA Network Open, “sales of alcohol and cannabis in Canada overshot predictions by over $2.6 billion over the course of the pandemic.” James MacKillop, director of McMaster’s Peter Boris Centre for Addictions Research, “said the research suggests that as we come out of the pandemic, we should plan to deal with increased issues around substance abuse.”

Police In UK See Rise In Drink-Spiking

BBC News (11/4) reports, “A police force has reported a steep rise in drink-spiking incidents in the past month.” BBC News adds, “Humberside Police received 27 reports of spiking incidents in October, the highest number since the end of lockdown restrictions. Two-thirds of those spiked since January 2021 were women, while a third of incidents involved a male victim. ‘Anybody can become vulnerable, anybody can be targeted,’ said Det Ch Insp Becky Dickinson. ‘Just because you are a male you are not immune,’ she added. The force also recorded six cases where the victim was aged between 10 and 16.”

New York Police Use DNA To Solve 46-Year-Old Case Of Missing Veteran

Newsday (NY) (11/4, DeStefano) reports, “For the first time in NYPD history, detectives in Queens used breakthrough genetic genealogy techniques to solve the murder of an aging World War I veteran whose body parts were dumped in a grave over 46 years ago, officials said Thursday.” George Clarence Seitz, “who served in the war as a ‘Doughboy’ in the U.S. Army disappeared in December 1976 after he left his Queens home to get a haircut and was never seen alive again, said investigators. He was 81 at the time of the disappearance and had been working as a chauffeur after his time in the military. ‘I have to say the work that was done in this case was not just relentless but amazing,’ said NYPD Chief Jerry O’Sullivan. ‘Those ... detectives found out where the crime was committed, they were able to conduct an investigation on who committed that crime and then they had to determine the identify of that person who was 81 years old in the year 1976.’”

Denver Police Hope Therapy Dog Will Strengthen Bonds To Community

The AP (11/4, Slevin) reports from Denver, Colorado, “The Denver Police Department’s first therapy dog was originally trained to be a guide dog, but she turned out to be too friendly to focus on helping one person,” and “now the department is counting on the Black English Labrador Retriever’s outgoing nature to help it break down barriers and start conversations with people in high-crime areas and those wary of the police.” Shelby, “an eager 19-month-old who will work with the downtown area’s community resource officer, Teresa Gillian, was officially sworn onto the force Thursday by Judge Renee Goble.” Denver “joins about 300 law enforcement agencies around the United States that have acquired therapy dogs for a range of duties, said Sgt. Jason Ratcliff of the Franklin County Sheriff’s Office in Ohio. The department was believed to be one of the first agencies to use therapy dogs when it first acquired them in 2017, he said.”

Baltimore Police Recruits To Get Credit Toward Associate Degrees During Training Under New Agreement With Community College

The Baltimore Sun (11/4, Anderson) reports, “Baltimore Police recruits will be able to work toward an associate degree while training to become a police officers thanks to a new agreement with Baltimore City Community College.” The Baltimore Police department “announced a new Articulation Agreement Thursday that allows police academy graduates to earn up to 36 credits toward an Associate of Applied Science Degree in Law Enforcement at the Community College. The agreement comes after the city and police union reached a new contract last month that pays officers with degrees more money. Beginning in January, all officers with an associate degree, bachelor’s degree or master’s degree will earn an additional $1,500, $3,000 or $4,500, respectively, each year. ‘This partnership with BCCC creates a pathway to increased educational opportunities for our officers and will pave the way for success in their Law Enforcement careers,’ Police Commissioner Michael Harrison said in a statement. ‘Making it more convenient for officers to earn their degrees also allows them to be eligible for salary incentives sooner.’”

Security, Crime, and Drugs

Multi-National Police Disrupt International Human Smuggling Network In Spain

The AP (11/4) reports police from nine countries “helped break up a network that smuggled hundreds of Pakistanis into the European Union through the Balkans, cramming them into the back of trucks and charging them up to 20,000 euros ($23,000) each, Spanish police announced Thursday.” The migrants were transported “in dangerous and inhumane conditions, with trucks usually carrying more than 50 people in a space of 8 square meters (86 square feet), Spain’s National Police said.” The operation, which “lifted a lid on how smuggling gangs work, involved police from Bosnia, Croatia, Slovenia, France, Italy, Greece, Italy and Romania, with the EU crime agency Europol in support.”

Louisiana Coroner Warns Of Growing Fentanyl Overdose Problem

Fox News (11/4, Castor) reports law enforcement agencies across the country are “sounding the alarms” over the growing overdose crisis, “especially in Louisiana where officials say fentanyl is running rampant. The coroner for East Baton Rouge Parish, Dr. William Clark, says he’s already recorded nearly 250 drug deaths this year, a number he’s never reached before. He adds that 90% of the drug deaths so far include fentanyl.”

Research: Alcohol, Cannabis Sales In Canada Spiked During Pandemic

CBC (CAN) (11/4) reports that according to new research published in the journal JAMA Network Open, “sales of alcohol and cannabis in Canada overshot predictions by over $2.6 billion over the course of the pandemic.” James MacKillop, director of McMaster’s Peter Boris Centre for Addictions Research, “said the research suggests that as we come out of the pandemic, we should plan to deal with increased issues around substance abuse.”

Police In UK See Rise In Drink-Spiking

BBC News (11/4) reports, “A police force has reported a steep rise in drink-spiking incidents in the past month.” BBC News adds, “Humberside Police received 27 reports of spiking incidents in October, the highest number since the end of lockdown restrictions. Two-thirds of those spiked since January 2021 were women, while a third of incidents involved a male victim. ‘Anybody can become vulnerable, anybody can be targeted,’ said Det Ch Insp Becky Dickinson. ‘Just because you are a male you are not immune,’ she added. The force also recorded six cases where the victim was aged between 10 and 16.”

Technology

New York Police Use DNA To Solve 46-Year-Old Case Of Missing Veteran

Newsday (NY) (11/4, DeStefano) reports, “For the first time in NYPD history, detectives in Queens used breakthrough genetic genealogy techniques to solve the murder of an aging World War I veteran whose body parts were dumped in a grave over 46 years ago, officials said Thursday.” George Clarence Seitz, “who served in the war as a ‘Doughboy’ in the U.S. Army disappeared in December 1976 after he left his Queens home to get a haircut and was never seen alive again, said investigators. He was 81 at the time of the disappearance and had been working as a chauffeur after his time in the military. ‘I have to say the work that was done in this case was not just relentless but amazing,’ said NYPD Chief Jerry O’Sullivan. ‘Those ... detectives found out where the crime was committed, they were able to conduct an investigation on who committed that crime and then they had to determine the identify of that person who was 81 years old in the year 1976.’”

ADD PSYCHOLOGICAL ASSESSMENT TO YOUR PRE-EMPLOYMENT SCREENING PROCESS PolicePsyc.com Many departments have learned the value of including psychological assessment in their pre-employment screening process. Let our unique testing procedure improve your department's performance through more effective employee selection, as well as decrease costly hiring mistakes.

PolicePsyc.com is the premier online pre-employment testing site for law enforcement positions. We have over forty years' experience assisting departments in their employee selection. All testing is conducted online, and a virtual oral interview can be added to the process.

Our process utilizes widely accepted and well-validated instruments to accurately assess each candidate's aptitudes and personality traits. Our written reports are detailed, and they evaluate candidates on the full range of personal characteristics required in law enforcement. Each report is prepared by a Licensed Psychologist.

To learn more about how our process can improve your employee selection, we invite you to explore our website:

<https://www.policepsyc.com>

For additional information on our process, also feel free to contact Larry Thompson at 952-923-2600 or at the above email address.

Retired Wheaton Chief Mark Field provides five tips

An estimated 22 million employees are “actively disengaged” in their current positions, resulting in $350 billion per year in lost productivity and absenteeism. Another 53% of workers fall into the “not engaged” category. Generally, they are satisfied but “not cognitively and emotionally connected to their work and workplace,” i.e. they usually show up for work, do the minimum required, but will quickly head for the door for a slightly better offer. If you are struggling with recruiting and retaining law enforcement professionals, this article will give you five actionable tips. Find more leadership resources at the link below.

Member perspective: 'Defund Police' Hurts Recruiting: Ex-Riverside Chief

Police departments have a harder time recruiting officers because of an anti-police environment that involves messages such as "defund the police," Riverside's former police chief. Tom Weitzel says. Weitzel, who retired in May after nearly 40 years with the Riverside department, said police agencies need the full support of elected officials, and in many areas, officers are not getting that.

In case you missed it: Trailer bill doesn't pass

We helped to negotiate HB 3512 (Senate Amendment 1) -- what we called Trailer Bill 2 -- as an amendment to the SAFE-T Act. The Senate passed it by a 40-17 vote on Oct. 28, but when the House met early on Friday, Oct. 29, they did not call our bill. There evidently were not enough votes. We were officially neutral, but Democrats and Republicans knew that we wanted it to pass. The Sheriffs, State Police, and FOP were all neutral as well. The result is that we will not have a Trailer Bill 2 before January 1, because the veto session ended yesterday. As a result, the effective dates for the new training, new decertification requirements, and mental health screenings remain January 1, 2022. Click below to see specific upcoming

2 chiefs announce candidacy for 3rd VP of ILACP

Chief John Bucci of Algonquin and Chief David Wermes of Wauconda have submitted letters of nomination to run for 3rd Vice President of the Illinois Association of Chiefs of Police in the 2022 election. We will have elections for two vice president positions in 2022. This is a statewide position and the winner will be in line to become ILACP President in April 2025.

When there is more than one candidate, we conduct an online election. The Executive Board at its December meeting determines the specific criteria for the election process. Most likely, the election will take place electronically from April 25-28, 2022, and the winner will be installed on Friday evening, April 29, 2022, during a banquet at the conclusion of the Annual Conference in Northbrook.

The deadline for filing to be a candidate is February 27, which is 60 days before the beginning of the Annual Conference on April 27-29 in Northbrook. If you have any questions about this, ask any member of the Board of Officers.

REMINDER: ISP seeks your help in compiling list of LPRs in use in Illinois

Working with the Statewide Terrorism & Intelligence Center (STIC), the Illinois State Police (ISP) Division of Criminal Investigation (DCI) is compiling an index of the license plate readers (LPR) in use in Illinois. The goal of this project is to leverage this information for use by all law enforcement organizations in their investigations. We have some quick questions about the use, sharing and storage of LPR data. None of this material will be released outside the STIC and ISP. Thank you for your participation. Send any questions to aaron.kustermann@illinois.gov.

If you have not yet completed this effort click the link here or the button below. ISP hosts this data internally and the link is free of any cyber threats.

Retired Wheaton Chief Mark Field provides five tips

An estimated 22 million employees are “actively disengaged” in their current positions, resulting in $350 billion per year in lost productivity and absenteeism. Another 53% of workers fall into the “not engaged” category. Generally, they are satisfied but “not cognitively and emotionally connected to their work and workplace,” i.e. they usually show up for work, do the minimum required, but will quickly head for the door for a slightly better offer. If you are struggling with recruiting and retaining law enforcement professionals, this article will give you five actionable tips. Find more leadership resources at the link below.

Member perspective: 'Defund Police' Hurts Recruiting: Ex-Riverside Chief

Police departments have a harder time recruiting officers because of an anti-police environment that involves messages such as "defund the police," Riverside's former police chief. Tom Weitzel says. Weitzel, who retired in May after nearly 40 years with the Riverside department, said police agencies need the full support of elected officials, and in many areas, officers are not getting that. In case you missed it: Trailer bill doesn't pass

We helped to negotiate HB 3512 (Senate Amendment 1) -- what we called Trailer Bill 2 -- as an amendment to the SAFE-T Act. The Senate passed it by a 40-17 vote on Oct. 28, but when the House met early on Friday, Oct. 29, they did not call our bill. There evidently were not enough votes. We were officially neutral, but Democrats and Republicans knew that we wanted it to pass. The Sheriffs, State Police, and FOP were all neutral as well. The result is that we will not have a Trailer Bill 2 before January 1, because the veto session ended yesterday. As a result, the effective dates for the new training, new decertification requirements, and mental health screenings remain January 1, 2022. Click below to see specific upcoming

Some Ambitious Policing Reform Efforts Failed In Municipal Elections

Politico (11/3, King, Kashinsky) reports, "Tuesday's municipal elections tested some of Democrats' most ambitious policies and candidates in more than half a dozen big cities. Most of them didn't make the cut. Public safety dominated a majority of big city elections as the top issue this year, offering a dividing line between the left and more moderate Democrats. While well-funded moderates sought incremental reforms to some cities' police departments, progressive organizations like the Working Families Party and Our Revolution poured hundreds of thousands of dollars into campaigns for candidates who supported divesting funds from law enforcement to reinvest in communities of color," and yet, "amid a nationwide crime spike and voter concerns about defunding the police, a majority of progressive candidates and ballot measures fizzled."

Supreme Court Appears Skeptical Of New York Gun Law

The AP (11/3, Gresko) reports, "The Supreme Court on Wednesday seemed ready to strike down a restrictive New York gun permitting law, but the justices also seemed worried about issuing a broad ruling that could threaten gun restrictions on subways, bars, stadiums and other gathering places." According to the AP, "The court was hearing arguments in its biggest guns case in more than a decade, a dispute over whether New York's law violates the Second Amendment right to 'keep and bear arms.' The law's defenders have said striking it down would lead to more guns on the streets of cities including New York and Los Angeles. Supreme Court decisions in 2008 and 2010 established a nationwide right to keep a gun at home for self-defense. The question the court is now confronting is about the right to carry a gun outside the home."

The Washington Post (11/3, Barnes, Marimow) explains that while a "majority of Supreme Court justices indicated...that they believe Americans generally have a right to carry a handgun outside the home for self-defense and that a New York law requiring special need for such a permit is too restrictive ... there was also concern during the two-hour argument about the proliferation of guns in public spaces, and it was unclear how broadly the court might go in

Austin, Texas Voters Reject Ballot Measure To Hire More Police Officers

The Hill (11/3, Schnell) reports, “Voters in Austin, Texas rejected a ballot measure that sought to hire more police officers in the city, a sign that residents are in favor of Austin’s restricted policing system.” According to The Hill, “Sixty-eight percent of the more than 155,000 voters who cast ballots on Tuesday opposed the measure. If approved, the measure would have directed the city to hire hundreds of additional police officers so there were enough on staff to have two individuals on patrol for every 1,000 residents. The proposition came amid a spike in homicides in Austin and a number of larger U.S. cities.”

Philadelphia Bans Traffic Stops For Minor Infractions

The AP (11/3) reports that Philadelphia Mayor Jim Kenney “ordered police Wednesday to stop pulling over drivers for low-level offenses that critics say lead to disproportionate stops of minority drivers, making Philadelphia the largest city government in the U.S. to ban what are sometimes called pretextual stops.” Kenney’s executive order “puts a bill passed last month by the City Council – called the Driving Equality Bill – into effect. It bans officers from pulling over vehicles solely for a handful of traffic offenses deemed ‘secondary violations,’ such as improperly displayed registration or inspection stickers, and single broken taillights.” According to the AP, “Advocates for law enforcement say such stops can uncover illegal drugs and weapons, noting that the U.S. Supreme Court ruled in 1996 that they were acceptable,” but “critics say the practice has led to Black and Latino motorists being unfairly stopped and searched at high rates and sometimes being detained for small infractions.”

Detroit Voters Approve Decriminalizing Psychedelics

Newsweek (11/3) reports Detroit voters on Tuesday approved a ballot initiative “to effectively decriminalize some psychedelic plants and fungi, such as magic mushrooms, with the city becoming the latest in the U.S. to loosen restrictions regarding the use of psychoactive substances.” The vote “means that the city will decriminalize ‘to the fullest extent permitted under Michigan law’ the personal possession and therapeutic use of entheogenic plants and fungi, such as magic mushrooms, peyote and iboga, by adults.”

PBS NewsHour (11/3, Kai) reports the vote places Detroit among “the growing number of cities and states that have decriminalized entheogenic plants and fungi, more colloquially known as ‘magic mushrooms and psychedelics.’ The vote decriminalizes “entheogenic plants and fungi. Just more than 61 percent of voters supported the measure, with nearly 39 percent of voters opposing it, according to the City of Detroit’s unofficial election results Wednesday.

Portland, Oregon Mayor Proposes Increasing Police Budget

The AP (11/3, Cline) reports from Portland, Oregon, “A year after Portland’s police department underwent significant budget cuts amid demands to defund the police, Mayor Ted Wheeler announced Wednesday he is seeking more than $5 million this fall for police investments, including hiring more officers and buying body-worn cameras. Wheeler’s announcement came during the city’s most violent year with a record number of 72 homicides, surpassing its previous full-year record of 66 in 1987.” The AP adds, “Nationally, homicides increased by nearly 30% from 2019 to 2020, based on FBI data. However, in Portland, deadly violence – which has been exacerbated by the pandemic, economic hardships, gang-related crime and mental health crises – increased at a faster rate than nearly all major cities, with an 83% increase in homicides in 2020.”

Police In Waco, Texas Learn New Tactics To Help Children On Autism Spectrum

KWKT-TV Waco, TX (11/3, Rivera) reports from Waco, Texas, “Crisis Intervention courses help ease communication between officers and people in need – especially in a high stress situation. On Wednesday evening, officers sat in a Crisis Intervention course – a new way for officers to help those in our community who may have developmental or cognitive challenges. ‘So all law enforcement in the last training cycle were required to take the 40-hour course, and we give them this time, where they get to learn specifically about autism,’ says Waco police officer Bradley Delange.”

FBI Sees Equal Threat To US From Islamic, Domestic Extremists

Reuters (11/3, Hosenball) reports US law enforcement and “security agencies believe domestic extremists, notably white supremacists, pose a violent threat in the United States similar to that of Islamic State militants, top U.S. security officials told Congress on Wednesday.” Concern about racially motivated “domestic extremists had prompted the FBI to elevate the threat to a level equal with that posed by the Islamist militants, said Timothy Langan, the assistant director who heads the counterintelligence division.” Langan told a House Intelligence subcommittee “the Federal Bureau of Investigation had detected a significant increase in the threat of violence from domestic extremists over the last 18 months.”

San Francisco’s New Street Overdose Response Teams Race To Combat Fatal Overdoses

NPR (11/3, Westervelt) reports that the Street Overdose Response Teams (SORT), a “collaboration between [San Francisco’s] health and fire departments, aim to deliver a broad range of support and care directly following an overdose” utilizing naloxone. Recently, the frequent presence of fentanyl in other drugs, including non-opioids, has played a part in making San Francisco the home of the “highest per capita drug overdose death rates of any city in the U.S.”

Officials Say Colombian Gang Network Extends To 28 Countries

Reuters (11/3, Acosta) reports, “Colombian authorities are focused on breaking up the Clan del Golfo gang – whose network extends to 28 countries around the world – after the capture of the group’s leader late last month, the country’s top cop said on Wednesday.” Dairo Antonio Usuga, ‘alias ‘Otoniel,’ was the country’s most-wanted drug lord until he was detained in the northern jungle region of Uraba, in what President Ivan Duque said was the hardest recent blow to drug trafficking. Usuga’s former organization has alliances with five international cartels and mafia groups to distribute 20 tonnes of cocaine per month, General Jorge Luis Vargas, the director of the national police, told journalists. ‘Five mafias and international cartels are the principals with whom the Clan del Golfo traffics: Jalisco Nueva Generacion and Sinaloa in Mexico, the Calabresa and Siciliana mafias in Italy and the Balkan networks,’ Vargas said.”

Prisoners In Wisconsin To Only Receive Photocopies Of Mail To Curb Infiltration Of Paper Laced With K2

The Wisconsin State Journal (11/3, Hamer) reports that beginning December “6, all Wisconsin prisoners will only receive photocopies of their personal mail – not the originals – because of a new policy aimed at curbing the infiltration of paper laced with a dangerous drug.” The new “policy was implemented as a pilot at Fox Lake Correctional Institution in April, but is now being expanded to the entire state prison system because of its success in reducing overdoses and violent behavior associated with K2, or ‘spice,’ a mind-altering synthetic cannabinoid.” It is possible to lace paper with K2 and then smoke it, “which is how the drug was getting through the mail.” NIDA is mentioned.

US Justice Department Promises Crackdown On Cyber Criminals

The AP (11/4, Tucker) reports the Justice Department is “stepping up actions to combat ransomware and cyber crime through arrests and other actions, its No. 2 official told The Associated Press, as the Biden administration escalates its response to what it regards as an urgent economic and national security threat.” Deputy AG Lisa Monaco said that “in the days and weeks to come, you’re going to see more arrests,’ more seizures of ransom payments to hackers and additional law enforcement operations.”

Some Ambitious Policing Reform Efforts Failed In Municipal Elections

Politico (11/3, King, Kashinsky) reports, "Tuesday's municipal elections tested some of Democrats' most ambitious policies and candidates in more than half a dozen big cities. Most of them didn't make the cut. Public safety dominated a majority of big city elections as the top issue this year, offering a dividing line between the left and more moderate Democrats. While well-funded moderates sought incremental reforms to some cities' police departments, progressive organizations like the Working Families Party and Our Revolution poured hundreds of thousands of dollars into campaigns for candidates who supported divesting funds from law enforcement to reinvest in communities of color," and yet, "amid a nationwide crime spike and voter concerns about defunding the police, a majority of progressive candidates and ballot measures fizzled."

Supreme Court Appears Skeptical Of New York Gun Law

The AP (11/3, Gresko) reports, "The Supreme Court on Wednesday seemed ready to strike down a restrictive New York gun permitting law, but the justices also seemed worried about issuing a broad ruling that could threaten gun restrictions on subways, bars, stadiums and other gathering places." According to the AP, "The court was hearing arguments in its biggest guns case in more than a decade, a dispute over whether New York's law violates the Second Amendment right to 'keep and bear arms.' The law's defenders have said striking it down would lead to more guns on the streets of cities including New York and Los Angeles. Supreme Court decisions in 2008 and 2010 established a nationwide right to keep a gun at home for self-defense. The question the court is now confronting is about the right to carry a gun outside the home."

The Washington Post (11/3, Barnes, Marimow) explains that while a "majority of Supreme Court justices indicated...that they believe Americans generally have a right to carry a handgun outside the home for self-defense and that a New York law requiring special need for such a permit is too restrictive ... there was also concern during the two-hour argument about the proliferation of guns in public spaces, and it was unclear how broadly the court might go in

Austin, Texas Voters Reject Ballot Measure To Hire More Police Officers

The Hill (11/3, Schnell) reports, “Voters in Austin, Texas rejected a ballot measure that sought to hire more police officers in the city, a sign that residents are in favor of Austin’s restricted policing system.” According to The Hill, “Sixty-eight percent of the more than 155,000 voters who cast ballots on Tuesday opposed the measure. If approved, the measure would have directed the city to hire hundreds of additional police officers so there were enough on staff to have two individuals on patrol for every 1,000 residents. The proposition came amid a spike in homicides in Austin and a number of larger U.S. cities.”

Philadelphia Bans Traffic Stops For Minor Infractions

The AP (11/3) reports that Philadelphia Mayor Jim Kenney “ordered police Wednesday to stop pulling over drivers for low-level offenses that critics say lead to disproportionate stops of minority drivers, making Philadelphia the largest city government in the U.S. to ban what are sometimes called pretextual stops.” Kenney’s executive order “puts a bill passed last month by the City Council – called the Driving Equality Bill – into effect. It bans officers from pulling over vehicles solely for a handful of traffic offenses deemed ‘secondary violations,’ such as improperly displayed registration or inspection stickers, and single broken taillights.” According to the AP, “Advocates for law enforcement say such stops can uncover illegal drugs and weapons, noting that the U.S. Supreme Court ruled in 1996 that they were acceptable,” but “critics say the practice has led to Black and Latino motorists being unfairly stopped and searched at high rates and sometimes being detained for small infractions.”

Detroit Voters Approve Decriminalizing Psychedelics

Newsweek (11/3) reports Detroit voters on Tuesday approved a ballot initiative “to effectively decriminalize some psychedelic plants and fungi, such as magic mushrooms, with the city becoming the latest in the U.S. to loosen restrictions regarding the use of psychoactive substances.” The vote “means that the city will decriminalize ‘to the fullest extent permitted under Michigan law’ the personal possession and therapeutic use of entheogenic plants and fungi, such as magic mushrooms, peyote and iboga, by adults.”

PBS NewsHour (11/3, Kai) reports the vote places Detroit among “the growing number of cities and states that have decriminalized entheogenic plants and fungi, more colloquially known as ‘magic mushrooms and psychedelics.’ The vote decriminalizes “entheogenic plants and fungi. Just more than 61 percent of voters supported the measure, with nearly 39 percent of voters opposing it, according to the City of Detroit’s unofficial election results Wednesday.

Portland, Oregon Mayor Proposes Increasing Police Budget

The AP (11/3, Cline) reports from Portland, Oregon, “A year after Portland’s police department underwent significant budget cuts amid demands to defund the police, Mayor Ted Wheeler announced Wednesday he is seeking more than $5 million this fall for police investments, including hiring more officers and buying body-worn cameras. Wheeler’s announcement came during the city’s most violent year with a record number of 72 homicides, surpassing its previous full-year record of 66 in 1987.” The AP adds, “Nationally, homicides increased by nearly 30% from

2019 to 2020, based on FBI data. However, in Portland, deadly violence – which has been exacerbated by the pandemic, economic hardships, gang-related crime and mental health crises – increased at a faster rate than nearly all major cities, with an 83% increase in homicides in 2020.”

Police In Waco, Texas Learn New Tactics To Help Children On Autism Spectrum

KWKT-TV Waco, TX (11/3, Rivera) reports from Waco, Texas, “Crisis Intervention courses help ease communication between officers and people in need – especially in a high stress situation. On Wednesday evening, officers sat in a Crisis Intervention course – a new way for officers to help those in our community who may have developmental or cognitive challenges. ‘So all law enforcement in the last training cycle were required to take the 40-hour course, and we give them this time, where they get to learn specifically about autism,’ says Waco police officer Bradley Delange.”

Special Alert | November 3, 2021 2 chiefs announce candidacy for 3rd VP of ILACP

Chief John Bucci of Algonquin and Chief David Wermes of Wauconda have submitted letters of nomination to run for 3rd Vice President of the Illinois Association of Chiefs of Police in the 2022 election. Their letters, both submitted today (November 3, 2021), are attached.

When there is more than one candidate, we conduct an online election. The Executive Board at its December meeting determines the specific criteria for the election process. Most likely, the election will take place electronically from April 25-28, 2022, and the winner will be installed on Friday evening, April 29, 2022, during a banquet at the conclusion of the Annual Conference in Northbrook.

The deadline for nominations for the 2022 election is February 27, 2022.

Amid anti-police rhetoric from some members of the press, the public, and political leadership, young people are staying away from the law enforcement profession in drives, and many senior officers are leaving the profession—often to embark on a different career—well before reaching retirement age. Police leaders may consider the following strategies to help them prevail:

1. Engage young people through programs like Explorers, PAL, SRO, and the like to plant the seed in young minds the policing is "something worth doing".

- Identify people who aspire to the profession
- Prepare those people with tools to do the job
- Enhance agency/community relations

2. Ensure that training programs meet the needs of officers seeking to rise in the ranks, therefore increasing job satisfaction and improving retention.

- Cultivate future leaders through recognition of superior service
- Create pathways for advancement with excellent in-service training
- Check on (and credit) officers' outside training and advanced education

DNA Identifies Suspected Killer In 1980 California Cold Case

The Orange County (CA) Register (8/9, Rasmussen) reports, "A man who died 22 years ago was publicly identified by police on Monday, Aug. 9, as the suspected killer in a 1980 case in Newport Beach after they used DNA, genetic genealogy and a process that never before had been used to solve a murder in the United States.” Kenneth Elwin Marks “was the man who shot and killed Judith ‘Judy’ Nesbitt, 42, while showing him her family’s boat on Nov. 26, 1980, Newport Beach police said.” The OCR adds, “In 2002, investigators first tried to use DNA taken from roots of the hair and entered that information into the FBI’s Combined DNA Index System, but the profile did not find a match. About three years ago, a more expanded DNA profile was taken from the remaining hair shafts. That type of extraction was the first of its kind used to identify someone in a murder investigation in the nation, police said.”

All,

The SAFE-T Act is requiring updated postings be placed around police departments come January 01, 2022 with regard to 725 ILCS 5.0/103-7 which is a posting notice of rights statute.

Attached is a document my chief has put together that he believes would meet all the requirements (just a draft), but we are wondering if anyone knows of an "official" poster that may be available. The current notice of rights poster we have posted in our booking room is in both English and Spanish, and looks to have come from the Department of Corrections.

Any insight you may have would be greatly appreciated.

Greetings Joseph Romano

Wednesday, November 3, 2021

brought to you with support from

Policing and Policy

Voters Reject Minneapolis Ballot Initiative To Replace Police Department

The AP (11/2, Karnowski, Ibrahim) reports Minneapolis voters on Tuesday “rejected a proposal to replace the city’s police department with a new Department of Public Safety, an idea that supporters hoped would bring radical change to policing in the city where George Floyd’s death under an officer’s knee brought calls for racial justice.” The Minneapolis Star Tribune (10/29, Navratil) says voters “soundly rejected” the proposal “by a 13% margin, with 97% of precincts reporting.”

The Washington Post (11/2) reports the measure “also would have removed decades-old language from the city charter requiring a minimum number of police officers based on its population. The new department ‘could include’ police officers ‘if necessary’ — wording that potentially doomed the measure among residents concerned about rising violent crime in the city.” The Post adds, “Although the White House never formally weighed in on the ballot measure, advisers to President Biden worked on opposite sides of the fight, which spurred millions of dollars in contributions to both sides — much of that money from interests outside Minneapolis and a nod to the national implications of the election.”

Cleveland, Ohio Voters Approve Boosting Civilian Oversight Of Police Department

The Cleveland Plain Dealer (11/2, Higgs) reports, “Voters approved an amendment to Cleveland’s charter Tuesday that will make sweeping changes to oversight of the police department, giving citizens the final say in disciplinary action.” The amendment, “Issue 24 on the ballot, gives a Civilian Police Review Board authority to investigate complaints from the public against officers and to order disciplinary action.”

Boston Opens Special Court For Homeless Encampment

WBTS-TV Boston (11/2) reports Boston has established “a special court for people arrested near the homeless encampment in Boston known as Mass. and Cass.” The court “began hearing cases on Monday, while local criminal justice advocates said exaggerated concerns about public health were being used to arrest and detain people.” Local officials “have said those dependent on opioids will be connected with substance abuse treatment options.” The AP (11/2) also covers this story.

New Law Causes Closure Of West Virginia Needle Exchange Program

The Mountain State Spotlight (11/2, King) reports on a program at the Mercer County, West Virginia, Health Department at which “county health professionals ran the area’s only needle exchange – offering disease testing, counseling and clean needles to stop the spread of infectious diseases among people who use drugs.” The program had been credited with reducing hepatitis C infections and bringing other benefits, but “a new West Virginia law placing more restrictions on these public health programs” has caused the program to shut down.

Supreme Court To Hear New York Gun Rights Case

The Los Angeles Times (11/2, Savage) reports the Supreme Court “is preparing to decide whether the 2nd Amendment gives Americans a right to carry a loaded gun when they leave home – and some justices are looking back to the England of 1328 for an answer” to “the meaning of the ‘right to keep and bear arms’ that was added to the Constitution in 1791 and expanded by the high court in 2008.” The Times adds that in the “dispute to be argued Wednesday, a newly strengthened conservative Supreme Court majority will have an opportunity to go even further in broadening the rights of gun owners.”

The New York Times (11/2, Liptak) says that while “many expect that the court’s recently expanded conservative majority will be poised to strike down the New York law under review, one that imposes strict limits on carrying guns outside the home,” a brief “filed by a group of prominent conservative lawyers and former government officials in Republican administrations has complicated that picture. Drawing on originalism, the interpretive method embraced by the conservative legal movement, the brief argued that ‘the original understanding of the Second Amendment was that there is not an absolute, unfettered right to carry loaded guns in public.’”

SAKI Site Success

Sexual Assault Kit Initiative (SAKI) sites continue to demonstrate real-world impact on enhancing response to sexual assault cases and for sexual assault survivors.

Check out these recent convictions:

- Dallas County DA's Office - More than 30 years after the incident, a man was found guilty of one count of aggravated sexual assault and three counts of aggravated rape in a series of attacks between 1980 and 1985 after forensic genetic genealogy testing identified him as the suspect.
- Wisconsin SAKI - A man entered a guilty plea to third degree sexual assault that occurred in 1994. This is the sixth conviction of an offender as a result from testing previously unsubmitted SAKs in Wisconsin.

Police Seize $188,000 In Drugs In Ontario

CHWI-TV Windsor, CAN (11/2) reports police in Windsor, Ontario, “have charged two people and seized $188,000 in illegal drugs after an investigation. In the summer of 2021, investigators from the Windsor Police Service Drugs and Guns DIGS Unit launched the investigation into the suspected trafficking of illicit drugs in the city.”

Despite Five Years Of Legal Marijuana, California Still Has Thriving Illicit Market

The Guardian (UK) (11/2, Lewis) reports, “Five years after cannabis legalization, California is awash with signs of an apparently booming industry.” Despite a “flashy façade,” California’s “legal weed industry remains far from the law-abiding, prosperous sector many had hoped for. In fact, it’s a mess.” Since the law that legalized marijuana “gave municipalities the power to ban weed as they see fit,” most “of the market remains underground – about 80-90% of it, according to experts.” Legitimate businesses also face “high taxes, the limited availability of licenses, and expensive regulatory costs.”

Former Colombia Drug Kingpin Pleads Guilty In US To Trafficking, Supporting Terrorism

Reuters (11/2, Cohen) reports from New York, “A man once considered Colombia’s most wanted drug lord pleaded guilty on Tuesday to U.S. charges of narcotics distribution and supporting a terrorist group as part of a billion-dollar cocaine empire.” Prosecutors said Daniel Rendon Herrera, 56, “accepted responsibility for trafficking at least 73,645 kilograms (81 tons) of cocaine that spread addiction and death in his home country and the United States. Prosecutors said the defendant was also leader of a group known as the Urabenos along with Dairo Antonio Usuga, an alleged Colombian drug kingpin known as Otoniel who was captured last month in what officials in Colombia called a blow to trafficking.” Herrera, “known as Don Mario, entered his plea before U.S. District Judge Dora Irizarry in Brooklyn. He was charged in the United States with shipping cocaine to U.S. territory, and buying weapons for paramilitary fighters he commanded.”

White House Addresses Suicides By Gun, As Well As Military And Veterans’ Suicides

The AP (11/2, Balsamo) reports that the Administration is “rolling out a new initiative aimed at reducing suicides by gun and combating the significant increases in suicides by members of the military and veterans.” The White House “is announcing the new plan on Tuesday, which officials say is an unprecedented focus by the federal government on reducing the risk of suicide through awareness and training campaigns and new regulations to increase the availability of gun storage products.” According to the AP, “As part of the plan, the Bureau of Alcohol, Tobacco, Firearms and Explosives will distribute a guide for firearms dealers that spells out both safety steps that are required under the law and additional steps the federal government recommends.”

Voters Reject Minneapolis Ballot Initiative To Replace Police Department

The AP (11/2, Karnowski, Ibrahim) reports Minneapolis voters on Tuesday “rejected a proposal to replace the city’s police department with a new Department of Public Safety, an idea that supporters hoped would bring radical change to policing in the city where George Floyd’s death under an officer’s knee brought calls for racial justice.” The Minneapolis Star Tribune (10/29, Navratil) says voters “soundly rejected” the proposal “by a 13% margin, with 97% of precincts reporting.”

The Washington Post (11/2) reports the measure “also would have removed decades-old language from the city charter requiring a minimum number of police officers based on its population. The new department ‘could include’ police officers ‘if necessary’ — wording that potentially doomed the measure among residents concerned about rising violent crime in the city.” The Post adds, “Although the White House never formally weighed in on the ballot measure, advisers to President Biden worked on opposite sides of the fight, which spurred millions of dollars in contributions to both sides — much of that money from interests outside Minneapolis and a nod to the national implications of the election.”

Cleveland, Ohio Voters Approve Boosting Civilian Oversight Of Police Department

The Cleveland Plain Dealer (11/2, Higgs) reports, “Voters approved an amendment to Cleveland’s charter Tuesday that will make sweeping changes to oversight of the police department, giving citizens the final say in disciplinary action.” The amendment, “Issue 24 on the ballot, gives a Civilian Police Review Board authority to investigate complaints from the public against officers and to order disciplinary action.”

Boston Opens Special Court For Homeless Encampment

WBTS-TV Boston (11/2) reports Boston has established “a special court for people arrested near the homeless encampment in Boston known as Mass. and Cass.” The court “began hearing cases on Monday, while local criminal justice advocates said exaggerated concerns about public health were being used to arrest and detain people.” Local officials “have said those dependent on opioids will be connected with substance abuse treatment options.” The AP (11/2) also covers this story.

New Law Causes Closure Of West Virginia Needle Exchange Program

The Mountain State Spotlight (11/2, King) reports on a program at the Mercer County, West Virginia, Health Department at which “county health professionals ran the area’s only needle exchange – offering disease testing, counseling and clean needles to stop the spread of infectious diseases among people who use drugs.” The program had been credited with reducing hepatitis C infections and bringing other benefits, but “a new West Virginia law placing more restrictions on these public health programs” has caused the program to shut down.

Supreme Court To Hear New York Gun Rights Case

The Los Angeles Times (11/2, Savage) reports the Supreme Court “is preparing to decide whether the 2nd Amendment gives Americans a right to carry a loaded gun when they leave home – and some justices are looking back to the England of 1328 for an answer” to “the meaning of the ‘right to keep and bear arms’ that was added to the Constitution in 1791 and expanded by the high court in 2008.” The Times adds that in the “dispute to be argued Wednesday, a newly strengthened conservative Supreme Court majority will have an opportunity to go even further in broadening the rights of gun owners.”

The New York Times (11/2, Liptak) says that while “many expect that the court’s recently expanded conservative majority will be poised to strike down the New York law under review, one that imposes strict limits on carrying guns outside the home,” a brief “filed by a group of prominent conservative lawyers and former government officials in Republican administrations has complicated that picture. Drawing on originalism, the interpretive method embraced by the conservative legal movement, the brief argued that ‘the original understanding of the Second Amendment was that there is not an absolute, unfettered right to carry loaded guns in public.’”

Sexual Assault Kit Initiative (SAKI) sites continue to demonstrate real-world impact on enhancing response to sexual assault cases and for sexual assault survivors.

Check out these recent convictions:

- Dallas County DA's Office - More than 30 years after the incident, a man was found guilty of one count of aggravated sexual assault and three counts of aggravated rape in a series of attacks between 1980 and 1985 after forensic genetic genealogy testing identified him as the suspect.
- Wisconsin SAKI - A man entered a guilty plea to third degree sexual assault that occurred in 1994. This is the sixth conviction of an offender as a result from testing previously unsubmitted SAKs in Wisconsin.

Police Seize $188,000 In Drugs In Ontario

CHWI-TV Windsor, CAN (11/2) reports police in Windsor, Ontario, “have charged two people and seized $188,000 in illegal drugs after an investigation. In the summer of 2021, investigators from the Windsor Police Service Drugs and Guns DIGS Unit launched the investigation into the suspected trafficking of illicit drugs in the city.”

Despite Five Years Of Legal Marijuana, California Still Has Thriving Illicit Market

The Guardian (UK) (11/2, Lewis) reports, “Five years after cannabis legalization, California is awash with signs of an apparently booming industry.” Despite a “flashy façade,” California’s “legal weed industry remains far from the law-abiding, prosperous sector many had hoped for. In fact, it’s a mess.” Since the law that legalized marijuana “gave municipalities the power to ban weed as they see fit,” most “of the market remains underground – about 80-90% of it, according to experts.” Legitimate businesses also face “high taxes, the limited availability of licenses, and expensive regulatory costs.”

Former Colombia Drug Kingpin Pleads Guilty In US To Trafficking, Supporting Terrorism

Reuters (11/2, Cohen) reports from New York, “A man once considered Colombia’s most wanted drug lord pleaded guilty on Tuesday to U.S. charges of narcotics distribution and supporting a terrorist group as part of a billion-dollar cocaine empire.” Prosecutors said Daniel Rendon Herrera, 56, “accepted responsibility for trafficking at least 73,645 kilograms (81 tons) of cocaine that spread addiction and death in his home country and the United States. Prosecutors said the defendant was also leader of a group known as the Urabenos along with Dairo Antonio Usuga, an alleged Colombian drug kingpin known as Otoniel who was captured last month in what officials in Colombia called a blow to trafficking.” Herrera, “known as Don Mario, entered his plea before U.S. District Judge Dora Irizarry in Brooklyn. He was charged in the United States with shipping cocaine to U.S. territory, and buying weapons for paramilitary fighters he commanded.”

White House Addresses Suicides By Gun, As Well As Military And Veterans’ Suicides

The AP (11/2, Balsamo) reports that the Administration is “rolling out a new initiative aimed at reducing suicides by gun and combating the significant increases in suicides by members of the military and veterans.” The White House “is announcing the new plan on Tuesday, which officials say is an unprecedented focus by the federal government on reducing the risk of suicide through awareness and training campaigns and new regulations to increase the availability of gun storage products.” According to the AP, “As part of the plan, the Bureau of Alcohol, Tobacco, Firearms and Explosives will distribute a guide for firearms dealers that spells out both safety steps that are required under the law and additional steps the federal government recommends.”

Hi Bob, I hope you have recovered from the September on-site visit!

I have two questions as I finish up my report.

Is the full Evidence inventory close to being finished?

After the McDonald's incident and internal investigation, did Chief Tigera address the officers with respect to emphasizing the importance of DUI enforcement (by memo, speaking in briefing, etc)?

Thanks Holly

Hi Holly,

All recovered!!

To answer your questions.

1. The Support Services Manager and Evidence Custodian just returned yesterday from vacations. We will be conducting our full audit in the upcoming month.
2. Chief Tigera addressed all personnel at each roll call regarding the internal investigation.

If you need anything else let me know.

Thanks again,

Discussion on 2021 Law Enforcement Agency Trust & Transparency Report

Hi Louis,

Earlier this year, Veritone commissioned a national survey which included a wide-ranging set of questions regarding transparency and the use of technology by our country's law enforcement agencies (LEAs). These findings were recently published in a 2021 US Law Enforcement Agency Trust & Transparency Report.

The report highlights that public misconceptions about policing sometimes occur due to a lack of understanding about operations, a lack of access to records, or how LEAs manage and retain records. With better technology and objective data leading the way, LEAs have the opportunity to shine a light on their operations and answer the public's call for increased transparency.

On November 9, 2021 at 10AM Pacific / 1PM Eastern, Veritone and Microsoft will host a virtual panel discussion with law enforcement leaders from across the country discussing the report's findings as well as other related topics and what it all means for our nation's law enforcement agencies and suggested next steps. Law enforcement leaders on the panel include:

- Chief Steven Casstevens, Buffalo Grove, IL PD (past IACP president)
- Chief Jorge Cisneros, Anaheim, CA PD
- Police Commissioner & Superintendent-in-Chief, William Gross, Boston, MA PD
- Chief John Letteney, Thomasville, GA PD (incoming IACP president)

Attend and ask your questions.

If you're interested in attending, please register below. During the registration process you will have an opportunity to include a question you would like for the panel to discuss.

Hey DC Huff and Admin Officer Zielinski,

I have two upcoming assessments that I think would be great for you to get a look at.

West Chicago is going up for Re-accreditation and plans to have a mid-November assessment. I'd love for one or both of you to participate as a shadow role. This gives you a great opportunity to play the assessor role and get your feet wet assessing. You'll get to steal some great ideas and we will be working with Dean Myles. I've learned tons from him over the years.

Alsip PD is coming up as well. This one would probably go the first week of December. They are Tier 1 initial accreditation, using Power DMS.

Let me know if you can help out. I really appreciate the support.

Take care,

Jeff

Supreme Court Declines Case On Access To Surveillance Court Rulings

Reuters (11/1) reports the Supreme Court on Monday “declined to consider whether the public has a right to see significant decisions issued by a secretive court that approves government surveillance requests including some that are highly contentious.” The ACLU had sought to “gain access to U.S. Foreign Intelligence Surveillance Court decisions made before 2015” and had appealed “a decision by a specialized appellate court on surveillance matters denying it such access.” Justices Gorsuch and Sotomayor “said they would have taken up the case.”

The AP (11/1) reports the justices “[argued] that the public has a constitutional right to see significant opinions of the Foreign Intelligence Surveillance Court,” and “that federal courts, not the executive branch, should decide when opinions that potentially affect the privacy of millions of Americans should be made public.” Gorsuch wrote that the case “presents questions about the right of public access to...judicial proceedings of grave national importance. If these matters are not worthy of our time, what is?”

Amid Pandemic, Prisons Struggle As Staffing Issues Worsen

The AP (11/1, Sisak, Blakinger, Lartey, Schwartzapfel, Thompson) reports, in a piece produced in conjunction with the Marshall Fund, that “staff shortages have long been a challenge for prison agencies, given the low pay and grueling nature of the work. But the coronavirus pandemic — and its impact on the labor market — has pushed many corrections systems into crisis. Officers are retiring and quitting in droves, while officials struggle to recruit new employees. And some prisons whose prisoner populations dropped during the pandemic have seen their numbers rise again, exacerbating the problem.”

The AP (11/1) reports, "Cleveland's police department plans to rescind its policy requiring officers to notify crime victims before sending low-level, non-violent offenders to a county diversion program." US Police Departments Hit Hard By COVID Vaccine Mandates

The Washington Examiner (11/1, Harper, Square) reports, “COVID-19 vaccine mandates have sparked nationwide controversy and led to firings and resignations around the country. Police officers have been hit hard by the requirements, and their exodus may leave many cities understaffed even on the heels of a spike in violent crime.” In New York City, “officers passed the mayor’s deadline for vaccination Friday. The city announced that there are 26,000 unvaccinated municipal workers, including 17% of police officers. Those who refuse to comply will be placed on unpaid leave beginning Monday,” but “New York City is far from the only local government to take that route. Several municipalities have instituted vaccine mandates for police officers only to see a significant drop-off in staffing. Chicago, Minneapolis, Los Angeles and Seattle police departments have all grappled over this issue as well. In some areas, like Denver, data suggest that many officers who fought the mandate were in the end unwilling to resign over it. However, in other areas, police departments around the country have lost many officers due to the mandate.”

Supreme Court Declines Case On Access To Surveillance Court Rulings

Reuters (11/1) reports the Supreme Court on Monday “declined to consider whether the public has a right to see significant decisions issued by a secretive court that approves government surveillance requests including some that are highly contentious.” The ACLU had sought to “gain access to U.S. Foreign Intelligence Surveillance Court decisions made before 2015” and had appealed “a decision by a specialized appellate court on surveillance matters denying it such access.” Justices Gorsuch and Sotomayor “said they would have taken up the case.”

The AP (11/1) reports the justices “[argued] that the public has a constitutional right to see significant opinions of the Foreign Intelligence Surveillance Court,” and “that federal courts, not the executive branch, should decide when opinions that potentially affect the privacy of millions of Americans should be made public.” Gorsuch wrote that the case “presents questions about the right of public access to...judicial proceedings of grave national importance. If these matters are not worthy of our time, what is?”

Amid Pandemic, Prisons Struggle As Staffing Issues Worsen

The AP (11/1, Sisak, Blakinger, Lartey, Schwartzapfel, Thompson) reports, in a piece produced in conjunction with the Marshall Fund, that “staff shortages have long been a challenge for prison agencies, given the low pay and grueling nature of the work. But the coronavirus pandemic — and its impact on the labor market — has pushed many corrections systems into crisis. Officers are retiring and quitting in droves, while officials struggle to recruit new employees. And some prisons whose prisoner populations dropped during the pandemic have seen their numbers rise again, exacerbating the problem.”

Cleveland Police Will No Longer Be Required To Notify Victims Before Sending Non-Violent Offenders To Diversion Program

The AP (11/1) reports, "Cleveland's police department plans to rescind its policy requiring officers to notify crime victims before sending low-level, non-violent offenders to a county diversion program." The AP (11/1) reports from Columbus, Ohio, "A concealed weapons permit would become optional and the requirement that individuals "promptly" notify police officers they are carrying a concealed weapon would be eliminated, under proposed legislation in the Ohio House." The bill "is similar to a measure pending in the state Senate, and one of several...proposals in recent years seeking to expand gun rights in Ohio. The concealed weapons bill, dubbed 'Constitutional Carry' by its backers, is sponsored by Republican Reps. Tom Brinker of Cincinnati and Kris Jordan of Ostrander in central Ohio. Gunowners could still apply for a concealed weapons permit under the measure, allowing those who obtain it to carry a concealed weapon in states with reciprocity agreements recognizing such permits. The GOP-controlled House Government Oversight Committee approved the bill along party lines last week."

Subject: Assessor shirts

Good Morning,

I am putting together an order for assessor shirts.

They are a polo style with ILEAP logo embroidered on it. Also they are free to you guys and gals.

I just need your size shirt and tell me men's or women's style polo.

You don't have to ever wear them, but I usually wear them on the second day of an assessment or at the Expo.

Thanks,

Jeff

Subject: Shadow Assessor assignment

Hey DC Huff and Admin Officer Zielinski,

I have two upcoming assessments that I think would be great for you to get a look at.

West Chicago is going up for Re-accreditation and plans to have a mid-November assessment. I'd love for one or both of you to participate as a shadow role. This gives you a great opportunity to play the assessor role and get your feet wet assessing. You'll get to steal some great ideas and we will be working with Dean Myles. I've learned tons from him over the years.

Alsip PD is coming up as well. This one would probably go the first week of December. They are Tier 1 initial accreditation, using Power DMS.

Let me know if you can help out. I really appreciate the support.

Take care,

Jeff

Featuring Current &Past Chiefs from Boston PD, Anaheim PD, Buffalo Grove PD, and Thomasville PD

Hi,

Earlier this year, Veritone commissioned a national survey which included a wide-ranging set of questions regarding transparency and the use of technology by our country's law enforcement agencies (LEAs). These findings were recently published in a 2021 US Law Enforcement Agency Trust &Transparency Report .

The report highlights that public misconceptions about policing sometimes occur due to a lack of understanding about operations, a lack of access to records, or how LEAs manage and retain records. With better technology and objective data leading the way, LEAs have the opportunity to shine a light on their operations and answer the public's call for increased transparency.

On November 9, 2021 at 10AM Pacific / 1PM Eastern , Veritone and Microsoft will host a virtual panel discussion with law enforcement leaders from across the country discussing the report's findings as well as other related topics and what it all means for our nation's law enforcement agencies and suggested next steps. Law enforcement leaders on the panel include:

- Chief Steven Casstevens, Buffalo Grove, IL PD (past IACP president)
- Chief Jorge Cisneros, Anaheim, CA PD
- Police Commissioner &Superintendent-in-Chief, William Gross, Boston, MA PD
- Chief John Letteney, Thomasville, GA PD (incoming IACP president)

Attend and ask your questions.

If you're interested in attending, please register below. During the registration process you will have an opportunity to include a question you would like for the panel to discuss.

LAST CHANCE TO REGISTER

Law Enforcement officers are continuously facing challenges, being tasked with solving more crimes with lower budgets and fewer officers. Robbery, burglary, thefts, and all types of organized crime continue to grow in scope and violence. What are police, retailers, businesses, and communities to do to stay safe?

To address these challenges, more agencies and businesses are turning to technology. Leading security solution providers like 3SI partner with these groups and, together, can work to arrest criminals and recover stolen property. The impact on quality of life in the affected communities is significant – and the positive public-police interactions serve to create stronger relationships and build trust.

Led by 3SI's Senior Vice President & Director of Global Law Enforcement, Richard Long, CPP, you will hear real-world success stories from 3SI Law Enforcement Division (LED) Bureau Chiefs to illustrate the impact that technology can have on crime. We'll also discuss how your agency can proactively use this technology to address serial crimes. From protecting bikes to cars to packages, truck tires, lawn maintenance equipment, and more, police departments have solved hundreds of crimes and put away many career criminals using 3SI technology.

Philadelphia To Bar Police From Stopping Motorists Over Low-Level Traffic Infractions

On its website, CNN (10/30, Brown) reports, "When Philadelphia's mayor signs landmark legislation as soon as this week, the city will become the first major US city to ban police from stopping drivers for low-level traffic violations – stops that studies show target Black drivers at disproportionately higher rates." The Drive Equality Bill, which has received city council approval, "categorizes certain motor vehicle code violations as 'primary violations,' which allow officers to pull people over in the name of public safety, and 'secondary violations' that don't meet the criteria for a lawful traffic stop, according to the office of Councilmember Isaiah Thomas, who authored the bill."

Supreme Court To Hear New York Gun Permitting Case

The AP (10/31, Gresko) reports the Supreme Court on Wednesday will "hear a gun rights case that could lead to more guns on the streets of New York and Los Angeles and threaten restrictions on guns in subways, airports, bars, churches, schools and other places where people gather." The AP says the case, which "centers on New York's restrictive gun permit law and whether challengers to the law have a right to carry a firearm in public for self-defense," comes "as gun violence has surged, and it could dramatically increase the number of people eligible to carry firearms as they go about their daily lives."

Justice Department Revives Office For Access To Justice

The New York Times (10/29, Benner) reports that "the Justice Department on Friday revived an Obama-era office that was created to make legal aid accessible to citizens who cannot afford it, more than three years after it was essentially shuttered under the Trump administration." Attorney

General Merrick B. Garland “said the restoration of the Office for Access to Justice was part of the department’s mission to deliver on its promise to ensure equal justice.” Garland said, “There can be no equal justice without equal access to justice. And because we do not yet have equal access to justice in America, the task before us is urgent.”

Minneapolis Voters To Decide On Replacing Police Department

Reuters (10/31) reports from Minneapolis that on Tuesday, “a ballot question asks residents whether they want to replace the police department with a new department of public safety, in the first big electoral test of reform efforts sparked by” George Floyd’s May 2020 killing, “but even after the outrage over his death and the tense protests that followed, the progressive city is deeply divided over the future of its law enforcement. The split illustrates the tricky calculus around overhauling policing in major U.S. cities, as residents fear for their safety amid crime spikes and Democratic politicians worry about Republicans weaponizing the issue in next year’s congressional elections.”

The AP (10/31, Ibrahim, Forliti) reports the ballot proposal “has drawn strong support from younger Black activists who were mobilized by Floyd’s death, as well as from some Black and white residents across this liberal city.” The AP adds, “Many people of color who live in the city’s highest-crime areas say they fear a steep drop in the number of police officers will leave them more vulnerable amid a dramatic spike in violent crime.” According to the AP, “The debate over racial justice in policing that erupted after Floyd’s death has brought national attention to Tuesday’s vote, as well as a river of out-of-state money seeking to influence an outcome that might shape change elsewhere, too.”

Baltimore To Raise Police Salaries To Boost Recruitment

The AP (10/29) reports, “Baltimore’s police union members have voted to accept a new three-year contract that would raise new officers’ pay to boost recruitment.” According to the AP, “Starting salaries for new officers would increase from $55,000 to $60,000 a year under this contract, making Baltimore the state’s highest paying major law enforcement agency. So far this year, at least 206 officers have left and 140 officers have been hired, leaving a deficit of 66 officers, according to the departmental data. ‘We are confident that this targeted approach is a smart investment that will significantly enhance our efforts in attracting new recruits, while also incentivizing retention for our experienced officers,’ Commissioner Michael Harrison said in a statement.”

Acts of mass violence pose unique challenges for law enforcement leaders. Responding to these incidents while operating under extreme pressure and public scrutiny may be one of the most difficult experiences of your career.

The IACP’s Mass Violence Advisory Initiative is here to provide assistance if an incident occurs in your jurisdiction. Through the Mass Violence Peer to Peer Advisory Team, experienced law enforcement leaders and public information officers who have responded to similar incidents in the past will deploy to provide immediate and ongoing guidance at no cost to the community.

Since Capitol Attack, Violent Threats On Capitol Hill Have Transpired “With Unsettling Regularity”

Referring to the January 6 attack on the Capitol, the Washington Post (10/29) says, “Since Jan. 6, evacuation orders and violent threats on the streets of Capitol Hill have unfolded with unsettling regularity. Even as many have turned out to be false alarms, the specter of political violence still hangs heavy with each alert, generating reminders of Jan. 6 and sending the city into a constant state of hypervigilance.” However, “the relative regularity of the threats has also normalized them, staffers said, making them seem to be increasingly just part of life on the Hill.”

Pennsylvania, New Jersey Collaborate In Ghost Gun Case

The AP (10/29, Catalini) reports from Trenton, New Jersey, “A New Jersey man faces criminal charges after he purchased more than a dozen kits to make “ghost,” or untraceable, guns at a Pennsylvania exhibition, the top law enforcement officers from both states said Friday.” New Jersey Acting Attorney General Andrew Bruck and Pennsylvania Attorney General Josh Shapiro “said William Pillus of Lincoln Park, New Jersey, was indicted on five charges this week, including second-degree unlawful possession of an assault firearm, third-degree purchasing firearm parts to manufacture untraceable firearms, third-degree possession of firearm without a serial number, and two counts of fourth-degree possession of a large capacity ammunition magazine. His girlfriend was also charged with one count of fourth-degree possession of a large-capacity magazine.” The attorneys general “billed the arrest as a crackdown on ghost guns, which are illegal in New Jersey.”

Northern Virginia On Alert For Potential Terror Plot

In online coverage, CNN (10/30, Sands, Swire, Carrega) reports authorities in Virginia’s northern region “announced an increased police presence Friday amid warnings about a possible terror plot.” Officials are determining the “validity of the threat, according to a law enforcement source.” As a precaution, federal and “local law enforcement departments are investigating and moving to protect potential targets, the source said.” The FBI and Department of Homeland Security “briefed state and local law enforcement officials in Maryland, Washington, DC, and Virginia on a possible terror plot in the region in the coming days, according to the source.”

FBI Director Calls For Greater Cooperation Between Agency, Private Companies To Stop Chinese Hacking

Bloomberg (10/29) reports, "FBI Director Chris Wray urged companies to work more closely with law enforcement to stop foreign hacking, as he reiterated warnings about Chinese infiltration of American information networks." According to prepared remarks, Wray said, "Most of the time, that threat is coming from the Chinese government or companies under its sway. ... No company is armed to defend against that kind of multi-avenue threat alone. That's why we've got to work together." He "said the FBI needs to work closely with private companies to stem hacking," and "called on companies to build closer relationships with the agency."

Federal, Congressional Push To Protect Critical National Security Groups From Cyberthreats Gaining Ground, Officials Say

The Hill (10/29, Miller) reports, "Efforts in the federal government and Congress to identify and further protect groups critical to national security from cyber threats are gaining ground amid recent destructive ransomware attacks, officials say." Cybersecurity and Infrastructure Security Agency Director Jen Easterly on Friday "said...that her agency has kicked off an effort to identify 'primary systemically important entities' to be protected from threats, often those critical to national continuity." The Hill adds CISA's effort "is being explored as momentum builds on Capitol Hill to take action to guard against such attacks," pointing to the introduction of the Securing Systemically Important Critical Infrastructure Act in the House.

Supreme Court To Hear New York Gun Permitting Case

The AP (10/31, Gresko) reports the Supreme Court on Wednesday will "hear a gun rights case that could lead to more guns on the streets of New York and Los Angeles and threaten restrictions on guns in subways, airports, bars, churches, schools and other places where people gather." The AP says the case, which "centers on New York's restrictive gun permit law and whether challengers to the law have a right to carry a firearm in public for self-defense," comes "as gun violence has surged, and it could dramatically increase the number of people eligible to carry firearms as they go about their daily lives."

Justice Department Revives Office For Access To Justice

The New York Times (10/29, Benner) reports that "the Justice Department on Friday revived an Obama-era office that was created to make legal aid accessible to citizens who cannot afford it, more than three years after it was essentially shuttered under the Trump administration." Attorney

General Merrick B. Garland “said the restoration of the Office for Access to Justice was part of the department’s mission to deliver on its promise to ensure equal justice.” Garland said, “There can be no equal justice without equal access to justice. And because we do not yet have equal access to justice in America, the task before us is urgent.”

Minneapolis Voters To Decide On Replacing Police Department

Reuters (10/31) reports from Minneapolis that on Tuesday, “a ballot question asks residents whether they want to replace the police department with a new department of public safety, in the first big electoral test of reform efforts sparked by” George Floyd’s May 2020 killing, “but even after the outrage over his death and the tense protests that followed, the progressive city is deeply divided over the future of its law enforcement. The split illustrates the tricky calculus around overhauling policing in major U.S. cities, as residents fear for their safety amid crime spikes and Democratic politicians worry about Republicans weaponizing the issue in next year’s congressional elections.”

The AP (10/31, Ibrahim, Forliti) reports the ballot proposal “has drawn strong support from younger Black activists who were mobilized by Floyd’s death, as well as from some Black and white residents across this liberal city.” The AP adds, “Many people of color who live in the city’s highest-crime areas say they fear a steep drop in the number of police officers will leave them more vulnerable amid a dramatic spike in violent crime.” According to the AP, “The debate over racial justice in policing that erupted after Floyd’s death has brought national attention to Tuesday’s vote, as well as a river of out-of-state money seeking to influence an outcome that might shape change elsewhere, too.”

Baltimore To Raise Police Salaries To Boost Recruitment

The AP (10/29) reports, “Baltimore’s police union members have voted to accept a new three-year contract that would raise new officers’ pay to boost recruitment.” According to the AP, “Starting salaries for new officers would increase from $55,000 to $60,000 a year under this contract, making Baltimore the state’s highest paying major law enforcement agency. So far this year, at least 206 officers have left and 140 officers have been hired, leaving a deficit of 66 officers, according to the departmental data. ‘We are confident that this targeted approach is a smart investment that will significantly enhance our efforts in attracting new recruits, while also incentivizing retention for our experienced officers,’ Commissioner Michael Harrison said in a statement.”

Acts of mass violence pose unique challenges for law enforcement leaders. Responding to these incidents while operating under extreme pressure and public scrutiny may be one of the most difficult experiences of your career.

The IACP’s Mass Violence Advisory Initiative is here to provide assistance if an incident occurs in your jurisdiction. Through the Mass Violence Peer to Peer Advisory Team, experienced law enforcement leaders and public information officers who have responded to similar incidents in the past will deploy to provide immediate and ongoing guidance at no cost to the community.

Since Capitol Attack, Violent Threats On Capitol Hill Have Transpired “With Unsettling Regularity”

Referring to the January 6 attack on the Capitol, the Washington Post (10/29) says, “Since Jan. 6, evacuation orders and violent threats on the streets of Capitol Hill have unfolded with unsettling regularity. Even as many have turned out to be false alarms, the specter of political violence still hangs heavy with each alert, generating reminders of Jan. 6 and sending the city into a constant state of hypervigilance.” However, “the relative regularity of the threats has also normalized them, staffers said, making them seem to be increasingly just part of life on the Hill.”

Pennsylvania, New Jersey Collaborate In Ghost Gun Case

The AP (10/29, Catalini) reports from Trenton, New Jersey, “A New Jersey man faces criminal charges after he purchased more than a dozen kits to make “ghost,” or untraceable, guns at a Pennsylvania exhibition, the top law enforcement officers from both states said Friday.” New Jersey Acting Attorney General Andrew Bruck and Pennsylvania Attorney General Josh Shapiro “said William Pillus of Lincoln Park, New Jersey, was indicted on five charges this week, including second-degree unlawful possession of an assault firearm, third-degree purchasing firearm parts to manufacture untraceable firearms, third-degree possession of firearm without a serial number, and two counts of fourth-degree possession of a large capacity ammunition magazine. His girlfriend was also charged with one count of fourth-degree possession of a large-capacity magazine.” The attorneys general “billed the arrest as a crackdown on ghost guns, which are illegal in New Jersey.”

Northern Virginia On Alert For Potential Terror Plot

In online coverage, CNN (10/30, Sands, Swire, Carrega) reports authorities in Virginia’s northern region “announced an increased police presence Friday amid warnings about a possible terror plot.” Officials are determining the “validity of the threat, according to a law enforcement source.” As a precaution, federal and “local law enforcement departments are investigating and moving to protect potential targets, the source said.” The FBI and Department of Homeland Security “briefed state and local law enforcement officials in Maryland, Washington, DC, and Virginia on a possible terror plot in the region in the coming days, according to the source.”

FBI Director Calls For Greater Cooperation Between Agency, Private Companies To Stop Chinese Hacking

Bloomberg (10/29) reports, "FBI Director Chris Wray urged companies to work more closely with law enforcement to stop foreign hacking, as he reiterated warnings about Chinese infiltration of American information networks." According to prepared remarks, Wray said, "Most of the time, that threat is coming from the Chinese government or companies under its sway. ... No company is armed to defend against that kind of multi-avenue threat alone. That's why we've got to work together." He "said the FBI needs to work closely with private companies to stem hacking," and "called on companies to build closer relationships with the agency."

Federal, Congressional Push To Protect Critical National Security Groups From Cyberthreats Gaining Ground, Officials Say

The Hill (10/29, Miller) reports, "Efforts in the federal government and Congress to identify and further protect groups critical to national security from cyber threats are gaining ground amid recent destructive ransomware attacks, officials say." Cybersecurity and Infrastructure Security Agency Director Jen Easterly on Friday "said...that her agency has kicked off an effort to identify 'primary systemically important entities' to be protected from threats, often those critical to national continuity." The Hill adds CISA's effort "is being explored as momentum builds on Capitol Hill to take action to guard against such attacks," pointing to the introduction of the Securing Systemically Important Critical Infrastructure Act in the House.

General description:

The Illinois Law Enforcement Officer-Worn Body Camera Act was effective January 1, 2016. It was amended by the SAFE-T Act of 2021, which requires all Illinois LE agencies to implement a body-worn camera program, depending on agency type and size, no later than January 1, 2025.

Attachment:

Good Morning,

I am putting together an order for assessor shirts.

They are a polo style with ILEAP logo embroidered on it. Also they are free to you guys and gals.

I just need your size shirt and tell me men's or women's style polo.

You don't have to ever wear them, but I usually wear them on the second day of an assessment or at the Expo.

Thanks,

Jeff

Illinois' Voice of Professional Law Enforcement

Special Alert | October 29, 2021

Trailer bill does not pass, despite our efforts

The Illinois House did not call the trailer bill for a vote before adjourning early this morning.

We helped to negotiate HB 3512 (Senate Amendment 1) -- what we called Trailer Bill 2 -- as an amendment to the SAFE-T Act. The Senate passed it by a 40-17 vote yesterday afternoon. The House met until early this morning (Friday, October 29), but sometime after midnight did not call our bill. There evidently were not enough votes. We were officially neutral, but Democrats and Republicans knew that we wanted it to pass. The Sheriffs, State Police, and FOP were all neutral as well.

The result is that we will not have a Trailer Bill 2 before January 1, because the veto session ended yesterday.

We would have been much better off had it passed, because now the effective dates for the new training, new decertification requirements, and mental health screenings remain January 1, 2022.

Executive Director Ed Wojcicki wants all of our members to know that ILACP President Mitchell R. Davis III and Legislative Committee Chair Marc Maton worked tirelessly in recent weeks, especially in the past two weeks, negotiating with the bill's sponsors on Zooms and in private conversations.

We are already beginning to discuss our next steps on the legislative front.

As a reminder, we are attaching a document with the effective dates of various parts of the SAFE-T Act and the first trailer bill that passed in May.

Trailer bill does not pass, despite our efforts

The Illinois House did not call the trailer bill for a vote before adjourning early this morning.

We helped to negotiate HB 3512 (Senate Amendment 1) -- what we called Trailer Bill 2 -- as an amendment to the SAFE-T Act. The Senate passed it by a 40-17 vote yesterday afternoon. The House met until early this morning (Friday, October 29), but sometime after midnight did not call our bill. There evidently were not enough votes. We were officially neutral, but Democrats and Republicans knew that we wanted it to pass. The Sheriffs, State Police, and FOP were all neutral as well.

The result is that we will not have a Trailer Bill 2 before January 1, because the veto session ended yesterday.

We would have been much better off had it passed, because now the effective dates for the new training, new decertification requirements, and mental health screenings remain January 1, 2022.

Executive Director Ed Wojcicki wants all of our members to know that ILACP President Mitchell R. Davis III and Legislative Committee Chair Marc Maton worked tirelessly in recent weeks, especially in the past two weeks, negotiating with the bill's sponsors on Zooms and in private conversations.

We are already beginning to discuss our next steps on the legislative front.

As a reminder, we are attaching a document with the effective dates of various parts of the SAFE-T Act and the first trailer bill that passed in May.

Special Alert | October 29, 2021 Trailer bill does not pass, despite our efforts

The Illinois House did not call the trailer bill for a vote before adjourning early this morning.

We helped to negotiate HB 3512 (Senate Amendment 1) -- what we called Trailer Bill 2 -- as an amendment to the SAFE-T Act. The Senate passed it by a 40-17 vote yesterday afternoon. The House met until early this morning (Friday, October 29), but sometime after midnight did not call our bill. There evidently were not enough votes. We were officially neutral, but Democrats and Republicans knew that we wanted it to pass. The Sheriffs, State Police, and FOP were all neutral as well.

The result is that we will not have a Trailer Bill 2 before January 1, because the veto session ended yesterday.

We would have been much better off had it passed, because now the effective dates for the new training, new decertification requirements, and mental health screenings remain January 1, 2022.

Executive Director Ed Wojcicki wants all of our members to know that ILACP President Mitchell R. Davis III and Legislative Committee Chair Marc Maton worked tirelessly in recent weeks, especially in the past two weeks, negotiating with the bill's sponsors on Zooms and in private conversations.

We are already beginning to discuss our next steps on the legislative front.

As a reminder, we are attaching a document with the effective dates of various parts of the SAFE-T Act and the first trailer bill that passed in May.

Administration Outlines Steps To Curb Urgent Cyber Threats

The Hill (10/28) reports, "Top Biden administration officials on Thursday outlined steps taken to confront the increase in cyber threats against the nation, including through strengthening key critical infrastructure groups." National Cyber Director Chris Inglis "detailed these steps in both a strategic intent document issued by the White House and an op-ed in The Wall Street Journal, prioritizing issues including enhancing federal cybersecurity efforts, improving public-private coordination and shoring up resources and resilience to face cyber threats. Inglis also spoke about the strategic intent document during an event at the Center for Strategic and International Studies (CSIS). 'It's really a statement of what we intend to be held accountable for, contributions we intend to make that complement what the National Security Council does, what the Office of Management and Budget does, the sector risk management agencies, and so on and so forth,' Inglis said Thursday."

DOJ Reaches $88 Million Settlement With Victims Of 2015 Charleston, South Carolina Church Shooting

The Washington Post (10/28, Barrett) reports that the Justice Department agreed on Thursday "to pay $88 million to victims of a racially motivated shooting at a historic Black church in South Carolina – a substantial but also symbolic figure meant to compensate for a background-check failure that allowed the killer to buy a weapon." Bakari Sellers, an attorney for the victims, "said the figure was particularly meaningful because the number 88 is significant among white supremacists like gunman Dylann Roof, who was convicted on federal hate crimes charges and sentenced to death. Photos of Roof before the shooting show him wearing a shirt with the number 88. He also brought 88 bullets with him to Mother Emanuel AME Church the day of the 2015 massacre. White supremacists use 88 as a code for 'Heil Hitler,' because 'H' is the eighth letter of the alphabet."

The Hill (10/28) reports, "The DOJ said in a statement that it settled with the 14 plaintiffs in the case, awarding between $6 million to $7.5 million for each of the nine people killed and $5 million for each survivor. The survivors and family members first alleged in 2016 that FBI's National Instant Criminal Background Checks System (NICS) failed to prevent the sale of a gun to Dylann Storm Roof, who wasn't allowed to have a firearm under federal law."

Colorado Law Enforcement Prepares For Increased DUI Enforcement For Halloween

The Denver Gazette (10/28, Metzger) reports, "Additional patrols and DUI checkpoints are set to begin statewide Friday as officials prepare for increased impaired driving incidents over Halloween weekend, the Colorado Department of Transportation said." According to the Gazette, "So far this year, 194 people have been killed in car crashes involving impaired drivers in Colorado, according to department data. That is a 15% increase from last year and includes 22 deaths in Denver County – the most of any county in the state. 'Education and enforcement are our top priorities for reaching zero deaths on our roads,' said Darrell Lingk, director of the Office of Transportation Safety. 'It's not just alcohol that's affecting drivers behind the wheel. Alcohol mixed with other drugs, such as cannabis, can substantially impair one's ability to drive.' Nearly half of fatal crashes on Halloween night involve a drunk driver, according to the National Highway Safety Administration."

Law Enforcement Officials Announce New Harm-Reduction Strategy For Drug Users

The Baltimore Sun (10/28, Davis) reports federal officials visited "Baltimore Wednesday to promote harm-reduction strategies intended to reduce overdoses, speaking from Maryland's hardest hit city after the state suffered its worst year for fatal drug and alcohol overdoses." This is "part of a national effort to tackle the growing problem, and brought senior Biden administration officials and Baltimore Mayor Brandon Scott to the Healthcare for the Homeless building. The plan allows federal funding to purchase fentanyl test strips and allocates about $30 million toward overdose prevention programs and initiatives." HHS Secretary Xavier Becerra said, "We want to address the full spectrum of drug use and addiction that can result in overdose and perhaps death. ... Our strategy seeks to eliminate barriers and advance equity and reflects the administration's commitment to putting [the] very individuals who have struggled with addiction in positions of power."

Dallas, Texas Launches New Program To Curb Panhandling

The Dallas Morning News (10/28, Bailey) reports, "Dallas is making another attempt to discourage panhandling around the city. A six-month pilot program will launch next month to offer help to people who solicit money and citations to those who refuse aid. The effort will also offer alternatives to giving money to panhandlers." The Morning News adds, "Signs will be placed at nine intersections across Dallas urging people to report panhandling to the city's 311 non-emergency line and to donate to nonprofits and organizations rather than directly to people asking for money. City marshals and crisis intervention caseworkers will respond to areas where panhandling is reported and provide referrals to homeless service providers and other groups for help with housing, food, mental health or physical ailments. People who decline help could be issued citations to appear in community court, which handles minor cases like open container infractions and drug paraphernalia possession. People who plead guilty or no contest may be ordered to perform community service."

St. Louis Mayor Invites State Lawmakers To Meeting On Crime

The St. Louis Post-Dispatch (10/28, Erickson) reports, "St. Louis Mayor Tishaura O. Jones is inviting members of a state Senate panel studying the region to a gun violence prevention panel she's hosting with Kansas City Mayor Quinton Lucas" this Friday. In a "letter to members of the Senate Interim Committee on Greater St. Louis Regional Emerging Issues, Jones called on the eight-member panel to join public health experts, gun violence prevention advocates, community violence interrupters, elected leaders and representatives from the US Department of Justice at the meeting in the city's Dutchtown neighborhood. 'No matter our ZIP code, the color of our skin or any identity we hold, all of us want to live in neighborhoods where our families can feel safe and thrive,' Jones wrote in the letter."

District Attorneys Replacement Legislation Proposed In Tennessee

The AP (10/28, Mattise, Kruesi) reports proposed legislation in Tennessee would allow the Tennessee Attorney General's Office to "petition a court to replace district attorneys who...refuse to prosecute certain laws." The legislation is related to "an issue that has sparked national tension as more progressive prosecutors have declined to enforce policies handed down by conservative lawmakers." In Tennessee, "Republicans have pointed to Nashville District Attorney Glenn Funk, who publicly stated he won't prosecute multiple hot-button policies that target abortion rights, transgender people, mask requirements in schools and small marijuana possession cases."

Security, Crime, and Drugs

Police In New Jersey Seize 132 Pounds Of Cocaine In Drug Trafficking Probe

The New Jersey Star-Ledger (10/28, Cohen) reports, "Bergen County detectives seized 132 pounds of cocaine from a Montana man, who was arrested in a drug trafficking investigation, authorities said Thursday." Juan Carlos Nunez-Perez "faces one count of possession with intent to distribute cocaine, according to Bergen County Prosecutor Mark Musella. Investigators with the county prosecutor's office narcotics task force served a search warrant on Nunez-Perez's car Tuesday and found the cocaine, Musella said in a statement. Authorities estimated the drugs carried an estimated street value of $3 million."

US Sees Steep Rise In Traffic Fatalities In First Half Of 2021

In online coverage, Fox News (10/28, Best) reports, “More than 20,000 people died in car accidents throughout the United States in the first six months of 2021, an 18.4% increase over the same time period last year, according to” the US Department of Transportation (DOT). That percentage “marks the biggest six-month increase in traffic fatalities since the Fatality Analysis Reporting System started tracking the numbers in 1979.” Fox News adds, “Vehicle miles traveled jumped about 13% to 173.1 billion miles, which may explain some of the increase in traffic fatalities, but the DOT also said that ‘incidents of speeding and traveling without a seat belt remain higher than’” before the COVID-19 pandemic began. A recently released National Highway Traffic Safety Administration report said that after the pandemic started, some drivers “engaged in riskier behavior, including speeding, failure to wear seat belts and driving under the influence of alcohol or other drugs.”

Capitol Police Arrest Fugitive With “Ghost Gun,” Large Capacity Magazine

The Hill (10/28, Vakil) reports, “Capitol Police on Wednesday announced that they had arrested a fugitive who was found with a loaded, self-assembled gun, otherwise known as a ‘ghost gun.’” Capitol Police “reported that they had found a Polymer80 9mm ghost gun, which officials said had 13 rounds of ammunition in it, after they pulled over a suspect on Tuesday evening. Officials said that the person, identified by police as 20-year-old Trevon Nibblins from Suitland, Md., was pulled over after they saw a reported stolen vehicle being driven in the Capitol Hill area. Nibblins, for whom Prince George’s County had issued a warrant, acknowledged to police that he had a firearm, which was situated between the center console and driver’s seat.” Nibblins “faces multiple charges, including fugitive from justice, carrying a pistol without a license, no valid permit, unauthorized use of a vehicle, unlawful possession of a firearm, possession of unregistered ammunition and possession of a large capacity ammunition feeding device.”

Six Arrested In Connection With Three-Year-Old’s Suspected Overdose Death

The Evansville (IN) Courier & Press (10/28) reports the Evansville Police Department in Indiana recently arrested six people in connection with three year-old Kamari Opperman’s suspected overdose death. The arrests were made after “Amber Opperman told detectives her stepdaughter and mother of the child, Makaylee Opperman, called Tuesday around 6:30 p.m., and said her three kids had all possibly” ingested fentanyl pills that were left in a nightstand in an Evansville home. Detectives who are investigating this case believe that another, unrelated child consumed some of that fentanyl. A similar story that is posted to the USA Today (10/28) website says a three-year-old “is dead and three other children were hospitalized after they reportedly ingested fentanyl pills.” The WEHT-TV Evansville, IN (10/28, Belcher) and WFIE-TV Evansville, IN (10/28) websites also cover this story. Kamari Opperman’s death is also covered in another online WFIE-TV Evansville, IN (10/28) story.

He also brought 88 bullets with him to Mother Emanuel AME Church the day of the 2015 massacre. White supremacists use 88 as a code for 'Heil Hitler,' because 'H' is the eighth letter of the alphabet."

The Hill (10/28) reports, "The DOJ said in a statement that it settled with the 14 plaintiffs in the case, awarding between $6 million to $7.5 million for each of the nine people killed and $5 million for each survivor. The survivors and family members first alleged in 2016 that FBI's National Instant Criminal Background Checks System (NICS) failed to prevent the sale of a gun to Dylann Storm Roof, who wasn't allowed to have a firearm under federal law."

Colorado Law Enforcement Prepares For Increased DUI Enforcement For Halloween

The Denver Gazette (10/28, Metzger) reports, "Additional patrols and DUI checkpoints are set to begin statewide Friday as officials prepare for increased impaired driving incidents over Halloween weekend, the Colorado Department of Transportation said." According to the Gazette, "So far this year, 194 people have been killed in car crashes involving impaired drivers in Colorado, according to department data. That is a 15% increase from last year and includes 22 deaths in Denver County – the most of any county in the state. 'Education and enforcement are our top priorities for reaching zero deaths on our roads,' said Darrell Lingk, director of the Office of Transportation Safety. 'It's not just alcohol that's affecting drivers behind the wheel. Alcohol mixed with other drugs, such as cannabis, can substantially impair one's ability to drive.' Nearly half of fatal crashes on Halloween night involve a drunk driver, according to the National Highway Safety Administration."

Law Enforcement Officials Announce New Harm-Reduction Strategy For Drug Users

The Baltimore Sun (10/28, Davis) reports federal officials visited "Baltimore Wednesday to promote harm-reduction strategies intended to reduce overdoses, speaking from Maryland's hardest hit city after the state suffered its worst year for fatal drug and alcohol overdoses." This is "part of a national effort to tackle the growing problem, and brought senior Biden administration officials and Baltimore Mayor Brandon Scott to the Healthcare for the Homeless building. The plan allows federal funding to purchase fentanyl test strips and allocates about $30 million toward overdose prevention programs and initiatives." HHS Secretary Xavier Becerra said, "We want to address the full spectrum of drug use and addiction that can result in overdose and perhaps death. ... Our strategy seeks to eliminate barriers and advance equity and reflects the administration's commitment to putting [the] very individuals who have struggled with addiction in positions of power."

Dallas, Texas Launches New Program To Curb Panhandling

The Dallas Morning News (10/28, Bailey) reports, "Dallas is making another attempt to discourage panhandling around the city. A six-month pilot program will launch next month to offer help to people who solicit money and citations to those who refuse aid. The effort will also offer alternatives to giving money to panhandlers." The Morning News adds, "Signs will be placed at nine intersections across Dallas urging people to report panhandling to the city's 311 non-emergency line and to donate to nonprofits and organizations rather than directly to people asking for money. City marshals and crisis intervention caseworkers will respond to areas where panhandling is reported and provide referrals to homeless service providers and other groups for help with housing, food, mental health or physical ailments. People who decline help could be issued citations to appear in community court, which handles minor cases like open container infractions and drug paraphernalia possession. People who plead guilty or no contest may be ordered to perform community service."

St. Louis Mayor Invites State Lawmakers To Meeting On Crime

The St. Louis Post-Dispatch (10/28, Erickson) reports, "St. Louis Mayor Tishaura O. Jones is inviting members of a state Senate panel studying the region to a gun violence prevention panel she's hosting with Kansas City Mayor Quinton Lucas" this Friday. In a "letter to members of the Senate Interim Committee on Greater St. Louis Regional Emerging Issues, Jones called on the eight-member panel to join public health experts, gun violence prevention advocates, community violence interrupters, elected leaders and representatives from the US Department of Justice at the meeting in the city's Dutchtown neighborhood. 'No matter our ZIP code, the color of our skin or any identity we hold, all of us want to live in neighborhoods where our families can feel safe and thrive,' Jones wrote in the letter."

District Attorneys Replacement Legislation Proposed In Tennessee

The AP (10/28, Mattise, Kruesi) reports proposed legislation in Tennessee would allow the Tennessee Attorney General's Office to "petition a court to replace district attorneys who...refuse to prosecute certain laws." The legislation is related to "an issue that has sparked national tension as more progressive prosecutors have declined to enforce policies handed down by conservative lawmakers." In Tennessee, "Republicans have pointed to Nashville District Attorney Glenn Funk, who publicly stated he won't prosecute multiple hot-button policies that target abortion rights, transgender people, mask requirements in schools and small marijuana possession cases."

Police In New Jersey Seize 132 Pounds Of Cocaine In Drug Trafficking Probe

The New Jersey Star-Ledger (10/28, Cohen) reports, "Bergen County detectives seized 132 pounds of cocaine from a Montana man, who was arrested in a drug trafficking investigation, authorities said Thursday." Juan Carlos Nunez-Perez "faces one count of possession with intent to distribute cocaine, according to Bergen County Prosecutor Mark Musella. Investigators with the county prosecutor's office narcotics task force served a search warrant on Nunez-Perez's car Tuesday and found the cocaine, Musella said in a statement. Authorities estimated the drugs carried an estimated street value of $3 million."

US Sees Steep Rise In Traffic Fatalities In First Half Of 2021

In online coverage, Fox News (10/28, Best) reports, “More than 20,000 people died in car accidents throughout the United States in the first six months of 2021, an 18.4% increase over the same time period last year, according to” the US Department of Transportation (DOT). That percentage “marks the biggest six-month increase in traffic fatalities since the Fatality Analysis Reporting System started tracking the numbers in 1979.” Fox News adds, “Vehicle miles traveled jumped about 13% to 173.1 billion miles, which may explain some of the increase in traffic fatalities, but the DOT also said that ‘incidents of speeding and traveling without a seat belt remain higher than’” before the COVID-19 pandemic began. A recently released National Highway Traffic Safety Administration report said that after the pandemic started, some drivers “engaged in riskier behavior, including speeding, failure to wear seat belts and driving under the influence of alcohol or other drugs.”

Capitol Police Arrest Fugitive With “Ghost Gun,” Large Capacity Magazine

The Hill (10/28, Vakil) reports, “Capitol Police on Wednesday announced that they had arrested a fugitive who was found with a loaded, self-assembled gun, otherwise known as a ‘ghost gun.’” Capitol Police “reported that they had found a Polymer80 9mm ghost gun, which officials said had 13 rounds of ammunition in it, after they pulled over a suspect on Tuesday evening. Officials said that the person, identified by police as 20-year-old Trevon Nibblins from Suitland, Md., was pulled over after they saw a reported stolen vehicle being driven in the Capitol Hill area. Nibblins, for whom Prince George’s County had issued a warrant, acknowledged to police that he had a firearm, which was situated between the center console and driver’s seat.” Nibblins “faces multiple charges, including fugitive from justice, carrying a pistol without a license, no valid permit, unauthorized use of a vehicle, unlawful possession of a firearm, possession of unregistered ammunition and possession of a large capacity ammunition feeding device.”

Six Arrested In Connection With Three-Year-Old’s Suspected Overdose Death

The Evansville (IN) Courier & Press (10/28) reports the Evansville Police Department in Indiana recently arrested six people in connection with three year-old Kamari Opperman’s suspected overdose death. The arrests were made after “Amber Opperman told detectives her stepdaughter and mother of the child, Makaylee Opperman, called Tuesday around 6:30 p.m., and said her three kids had all possibly” ingested fentanyl pills that were left in a nightstand in an Evansville home. Detectives who are investigating this case believe that another, unrelated child consumed some of that fentanyl. A similar story that is posted to the USA Today (10/28) website says a three-year-old “is dead and three other children were hospitalized after they reportedly ingested fentanyl pills.” The WEHT-TV Evansville, IN (10/28, Belcher) and WFIE-TV Evansville, IN (10/28) websites also cover this story. Kamari Opperman’s death is also covered in another online WFIE-TV Evansville, IN (10/28) story.

Administration Outlines Steps To Curb Urgent Cyber Threats

The Hill (10/28) reports, "Top Biden administration officials on Thursday outlined steps taken to confront the increase in cyber threats against the nation, including through strengthening key critical infrastructure groups." National Cyber Director Chris Inglis "detailed these steps in both a strategic intent document issued by the White House and an op-ed in The Wall Street Journal, prioritizing issues including enhancing federal cybersecurity efforts, improving public-private coordination and shoring up resources and resilience to face cyber threats. Inglis also spoke about the strategic intent document during an event at the Center for Strategic and International Studies (CSIS). 'It's really a statement of what we intend to be held accountable for, contributions we intend to make that complement what the National Security Council does, what the Office of Management and Budget does, the sector risk management agencies, and so on and so forth,' Inglis said Thursday."

DOJ Reaches $88 Million Settlement With Victims Of 2015 Charleston, South Carolina Church Shooting

The Washington Post (10/28, Barrett) reports that the Justice Department agreed on Thursday "to pay $88 million to victims of a racially motivated shooting at a historic Black church in South Carolina – a substantial but also symbolic figure meant to compensate for a background-check failure that allowed the killer to buy a weapon." Bakari Sellers, an attorney for the victims, "said the figure was particularly meaningful because the number 88 is significant among white supremacists like gunman Dylann Roof, who was convicted on federal hate crimes charges and sentenced to death. Photos of Roof before the shooting show him wearing a shirt with the number 88. He also brought 88 bullets with him to Mother Emanuel AME Church the day of the 2015 massacre. White supremacists use 88 as a code for 'Heil Hitler,' because 'H' is the eighth letter of the alphabet."

The Hill (10/28) reports, "The DOJ said in a statement that it settled with the 14 plaintiffs in the case, awarding between $6 million to $7.5 million for each of the nine people killed and $5 million for each survivor. The survivors and family members first alleged in 2016 that FBI's National Instant Criminal Background Checks System (NICS) failed to prevent the sale of a gun to Dylann Storm Roof, who wasn't allowed to have a firearm under federal law."

Subject: Pedestrian Safety Information from NPD
Attachment: 2020 Strategic Plan.pdf

Trustee Niedermaier,

The Chief asked me to send you information as it relates to pedestrian and bicycle safety initiatives at NPD.

The below information was provided by our records supervisor and commander in regards to pedestrian and bicycle crashes during the grant year October 1, 2020 – September 30, 2021:

This information shows only 8 bicycle / pedestrian crashes. The annual average for the past 5 years has been 27.6 crashes per year. There were only 5 injury crashes when the 5 year average has been 25.1 annually. There were no fatalities when the 5 year average showed 1.6 annually.

The fatal crash in the parking lot on Dempster in September is not included in these statistics as it was not on a roadway.

Commander Brandt said that we have completed the yearlong grant for pedestrian and bike safety and have met our goals of crash reduction. In addition, he will compile a more in depth report at a later date.

In addition, please see attachment for our strategic plan that has information on pedestrian and bicycle safety.

If you have any questions please let me know. Have a great day!

WEBINAR: Police Chiefs Across the Nation To Discuss the 2021 Law Enforcement Trust &Transparency Report

Hi Dean,

Earlier this year, Veritone commissioned a national survey which included a wide-ranging set of questions regarding transparency and the use of technology by our country's law enforcement agencies (LEAs). These findings were recently published in a 2021 US Law Enforcement Agency Trust &Transparency Report.

The report highlights that public misconceptions about policing sometimes occur due to a lack of understanding about operations, a lack of access to records, or how LEAs manage and retain records. With better technology and objective data leading the way, LEAs have the opportunity to shine a light on their operations and answer the public's call for increased transparency.

On November 9, 2021 at 10AM Pacific / 1PM Eastern, Veritone and Microsoft will host a virtual panel discussion with law enforcement leaders from across the country discussing the report's findings as well as other related topics and what it all means for our nation's law enforcement agencies and suggested next steps. Law enforcement leaders on the panel include:

- Chief Steven Casstevens, Buffalo Grove, IL PD (past IACP president)
- Chief Jorge Cisneros, Anaheim, CA PD
- Police Commissioner &Superintendent-in-Chief, William Gross, Boston, MA PD
- Chief John Letteney, Thomasville, GA PD (incoming IACP president)

Attend and ask your questions.

If you're interested in attending, please register below. During the registration process you will have an opportunity to include a question you would like for the panel to discuss.

Illinois' Voice of Professional Law Enforcement

2 openings for Vice President positions in 2022 on ILACP Board of Officers

We will have elections for two vice president positions in 2022:

- 3rd Vice President, a statewide position. The winner will be in line to become ILACP President in April 2025.
- Vice President at-Large, Region 2 (northwest Illinois and parts of central Illinois). The incumbent, Chief Dean Stiegemeier, is not eligible to run because he will have completed two terms.

A map of the ILACP regions is available here. Click here to see a description of these regions. To become a candidate for vice president, send a letter to Executive Director Ed Wojcicki, at ed@ilchiefs.org, announcing your intention to run, and for which office. In about a page, provide an explanation of why you want to run and a little information about your background. Provide a photo of yourself to be used on the ILACP website.

The deadline for filing to be a candidate is February 27, which is 60 days before the beginning of the Annual Conference on April 27-29 in Northbrook. If you have any questions about this, ask any member of the Board of Officers.

Trailer bill 2 filed; ILACP and Sheriffs are neutral

With the General Assembly scheduled to meet for the last day of veto session today (Thursday, October 28), ILACP leaders continued discussions into last night about additional changes we seek in the SAFE-T Act.

The second trailer bill that we requested was filed late last night. It was filed as Senate Amendment 1 to HB 3512, and a copy of the language is attached to this Weekly Bulletin. The Illinois Chiefs are officially neutral on the bill, but we would like to see it passed so that we get some of what we requested, such as moving the implementation dates for training, mental health screenings, and the new decertification process to July 1, 2022, instead of January 1. Plus, there are improvements in the three-phone-call language.

Details about what's in it will be forthcoming soon.

Continue wearing mourning badges for Pontoon Beach officer killed by gunfire

As was announced earlier this week, Officer Tyler Timmins, 36, of the Pontoon Beach Police Department, died after being shot by a suspect in a stolen vehicle at a gas station early Tuesday morning. The Illinois Chiefs ask all sworn officers in the state to continue wearing their mourning badges until the services for Officer Timmins have ended, as is our custom. A long line of police vehicles escorted the body of the fallen hero from the St. Louis Medical Examiner's office to a funeral home in Wood River yesterday. Hundreds of people lined the route to pay their respects. Read more here

ISP seeks your help in compiling list of LPRs in use in Illinois

Working with the Statewide Terrorism & Intelligence Center (STIC), the Illinois State Police (ISP) Division of Criminal Investigation (DCI) is compiling an index of the license plate readers (LPR) in use in Illinois. The goal of this project is to leverage this information for use by all law enforcement organizations in their investigations. We have some quick questions about the use, sharing and storage of LPR data. None of this material will be released outside the STIC and ISP. Thank you for your participation. Send any questions to aaron.kustermann@illinois.gov.

To get started and participate in this effort click the link here or the button below. ISP hosts this data internally and the link is free of any cyber threats.

Trailer bill 2 filed; ILACP and Sheriffs are neutral

With the General Assembly scheduled to meet for the last day of veto session today (Thursday, October 28), ILACP leaders continued discussions into last night about additional changes we seek in the SAFE-T Act.

The second trailer bill that we requested was filed late last night. It was filed as Senate Amendment 1 to HB 3512, and a copy of the language is attached to this Weekly Bulletin. The Illinois Chiefs are officially neutral on the bill, but we would like to see it passed so that we get some of what we requested, such as moving the implementation dates for training, mental health screenings, and the new decertification process to July 1, 2022, instead of January 1. Plus, there are improvements in the three-phone-call language.

Details about what's in it will be forthcoming soon.

As was announced earlier this week, Officer Tyler Timmins, 36, of the Pontoon Beach Police Department, died after being shot by a suspect in a stolen vehicle at a gas station early Tuesday morning. The Illinois Chiefs ask all sworn officers in the state to continue wearing their mourning badges until the services for Officer Timmins have ended, as is our custom. A long line of police vehicles escorted the body of the fallen hero from the St. Louis Medical Examiner's office to a funeral home in Wood River yesterday. Hundreds of people lined the route to pay their respects. Read more here

WEBINAR: Police Chiefs Across the Nation To Discuss the 2021 Law Enforcement Trust &Transparency Report

Hi Louis,

Earlier this year, Veritone commissioned a national survey which included a wide-ranging set of questions regarding transparency and the use of technology by our country's law enforcement agencies (LEAs). These findings were recently published in a 2021 US Law Enforcement Agency Trust &Transparency Report.

The report highlights that public misconceptions about policing sometimes occur due to a lack of understanding about operations, a lack of access to records, or how LEAs manage and retain records. With better technology and objective data leading the way, LEAs have the opportunity to shine a light on their operations and answer the public's call for increased transparency.

On November 9, 2021 at 10AM Pacific / 1PM Eastern, Veritone and Microsoft will host a virtual panel discussion with law enforcement leaders from across the country discussing the report's findings as well as other related topics and what it all means for our nation's law enforcement agencies and suggested next steps. Law enforcement leaders on the panel include:

- Chief Steven Casstevens, Buffalo Grove, IL PD (past IACP president)
- Chief Jorge Cisneros, Anaheim, CA PD
- Police Commissioner &Superintendent-in-Chief, William Gross, Boston, MA PD
- Chief John Letteney, Thomasville, GA PD (incoming IACP president)

Attend and ask your questions.

If you're interested in attending, please register below. During the registration process you will have an opportunity to include a question you would like for the panel to discuss.

I will need to check with PDMS on the site name as that is something they use. I will reach out to those I am working with on this integration. I will let you know what next steps are.

Thanks!

Kenny,

Yes this would be great to do as I was the "guinea pig" for AWB so I advised Jennifer I'd do the same with PowerDMS. My files for both policy and procedure are up to date and we are awaiting the final tier 2 status of ILEAP accreditation. Please upload both manuals. As far as PowerDMS site name, I don't have one as I have been awaiting this integration. Can you name it Niles Police Department?

Thank you,

Hi Bob!

I am happy to reach out to you to ask if you'd be willing for us to manually send your manual(s) over to Power DMS for you to look at and help us determine what is working well for you with the integration and what is not working well for you.

The expectation is that we would do a one-time export/import and might be able to do another before the integration is automated and would occur each time a policy is issued in a manual (we expect this by year end).

In order to get started, I would need to know the manuals you would want exported/imported to Power DMS and I need to know your Power DMS site name. With this information we can perform the export/Import and I will check in with you again to get started reviewing.

Thanks and I look forward to working with you through this process.

Amid anti-police rhetoric from some members of the press, the public, and political leadership, young people are staying away from the law enforcement profession in drives, and many senior officers are leaving the profession—often to embark on a different career—well before reaching retirement age. Police leaders may consider the following strategies to help them prevail:

1. Engage young people through programs like Explorers, PAL, SRO, and the like to plant the seed in young minds the policing is "something worth doing".

- Identify people who aspire to the profession
- Prepare those people with tools to do the job
- Enhance agency/community relations

2. Ensure that training programs meet the needs of officers seeking to rise in the ranks, therefore increasing job satisfaction and improving retention.

OFFICER AMBUSH AWARENESS SKILLS....

Lessons Learned

NOVEMBER 9, 2021 -An ONLINE TRAINING EVENT!

TRAINING FORCE USA

Good Day,

On November 9, 2021, Training Force USA will present a training class which could save your life! The class is:

Officer Ambush Awareness Skills.... Lessons Learned -During the past few years, there has been an emerging trend in felonious officer deaths as a result of ambush confrontations with armed individuals.

From Dallas to Philly, Florida to New York, law enforcement officers face the threat of someone opening fire as they arrive at a call or when they are sitting in the patrol car writing a report. Not every law enforcement encounter involves an officer involved shooting and no officer is totally immune to ambushes.

Officers must train to be alert and sharpen their situational awareness skills on and off duty.

With the increasing proportion of police murders being classified as ambushes, education must include skills developed from lessons learned in the field. Officers must be prepared for the unexpected.

There are generally four factors that define an ambush assault:

- The element of surprise

- Concealment of the assailant, their intentions or weapons

- The suddenness of the attack

- A lack of provocation

This four hour class offers the following:

- A brief look at the history of ambush attacks on law enforcement.
- A review of definitions, classifications and types of ambush attacks.
- A review of current data provided by the Department of Justice COPS Program and IACP.
- A review of ambush attack cases on law enforcement officers.
- The Importance of Developing Situational Awareness Skills.
- The effective use of cover and the dangers associated with arriving at a scene, approaching a stopped car, parking to take a break, fueling up your car and entering and exiting the police station.
- The importance of your distance and the speed you approach each call.
- The importance of hands-on training: Beginning at the academy and throughout an officer's career.
- Preparing for the aftermath: Dealing with the mental and physical toll on the mind and body.
- Learning to develop a mindset of survival and the will to win. Safety is Job One!

THIS IS NOT A TACTICAL HANDS-ON TRAINING CLASS

TARGET AUDIENCE: All members of the criminal justice community (sworn or non-sworn). This fraud class is for fraud investigators, investigators, and law enforcement officers.

Administration: Immigration Enforcement Not Allowed In Some Areas

The New York Times (10/27, Jordan) reports the Biden Administration on Wednesday “designated the nation’s schools and hospitals, as well as a wide array of other locations, off limits to immigration enforcement, the latest sign that it is committed to protecting millions of undocumented residents from deportation while efforts to offer them a path to legalization remain stalled in Congress.” The new guidelines, which are effective immediately, “list ‘protected areas’ where immigration agents are to refrain from making arrests, conducting searches, serving, subpoenas or carrying out other enforcement actions.” The sites “include schools and university campuses; hospitals, clinics and other medical facilities, in addition to Covid-19 testing and vaccination sites; places of worship; and sites where children gather, such as playgrounds, day care centers and foster care facilities.” The list is more extensive and more specific than a similar one put in place during the Obama Administration.

Federal Appellate Court Stays Two Executions In Oklahoma

Reuters (10/27, Bernstein) reports that on Wednesday, a three-judge panel of the US Court of Appeals for the 10th Circuit ruled “Oklahoma must postpone the executions of condemned inmates John Grant and Julius Jones while a legal challenge to the state’s lethal injection protocol is adjudicated.” Reuters explains the judges “said a lower court had unfairly denied the two men delays granted to numerous other defendants pursuing a lawsuit challenging the constitutionality of the state’s three-drug lethal injection protocol.” Opponents argue the method “could result in a prolonged and painful death in violation of the Constitution’s protection against cruel and unusual punishment.” The executions “will now go forward only if the U.S. Supreme Court overturns” the appellate court ruling.

Authorities Launch Campaign To End Sexual Harassment On London Transport

BBC News (10/27) reports, “A campaign to try and stop sexual harassment on London’s public transport network has been launched. Transport for London (TfL) says it will take a zero-tolerance approach to any form of unwanted sexual behaviour.” BBC News adds, “Victims and bystanders are being urged to report incidents so that action can be taken against offenders. Heidi Alexander, deputy mayor for transport, said: ‘Any incident of sexual harassment on our public transport network is one too many.’ She added: ‘Ensuring that women and girls feel safe while travelling around the capital is our top priority.’ Seven behaviours are being highlighted by the campaign as common examples of sexual harassment, including cat-calling, staring and upskirting.”

Five Men Indicted For Running Narcotics Ring In NYC Through Mail By Using Children’s Lunchboxes

The New York Post (10/27) reports, “Five men were indicted Wednesday for allegedly running a ‘vast narcotics conspiracy’ where they smuggled millions of dollars worth of cocaine into New York City – using children’s lunchboxes, prosecutors said.” The lunchboxes “were mailed to homes across New York and Massachusetts via the US Postal Service, according to the city’s Office of the Special Narcotics Prosecutor.” The alleged ringleaders “are accused of shipping several packages of coke from Puerto Rico to the Big Apple between May 2020 and July 2021.” Investigators “said they seized 30 kilograms of coke over the course of the probe – though they believe scores more could have been trafficked by the narcotics ring.”

Operators Of Illegal Marijuana Farms In California Stealing Water

An online PBS NewsHour (10/26) story says, “Byrhonda Lyons of...the nonprofit news site” CalMatters is reporting that water which was meant for residential use in the drought-stricken state of California “is flowing to illegal marijuana farms.” The story quotes DEA Los Angeles Special Agent in Charge Bill Bodner, who said such farms are located in parts of California that “do not have running water,” so the operators of the farms “either have to drill wells, or they have to truck in water from other areas. And that’s where the incentive to steal water comes from.” Bodner can be seen making those comments in a video clip that accompanies the story.

NYTimes Analysis: Tainted Halloween Candy Scare Lacks Evidence

The New York Times (10/27, Victor, Ortiz) reports, “As children go trick-or-treating, it is exceedingly unlikely that your neighbor will put a razor blade in an apple, poison a wrapped Snickers bar, or, in this year’s version of the same old story, swap THC-laced gummies for regular candy, tricking innocent youngsters into accidentally getting high.” In the past, “such acts have not just been rare, but very close to completely undocumented.” Recently, “with marijuana becoming legal in more states, the concern has shifted to children accidentally ingesting edible weed candies, laced with THC and designed to look like traditional snacks.” However, the Times says experts say “the specter of THC-laced candies is no more threatening than past baseless legends.”

Ten Alleged Members Of Louisville, Kentucky Street Gang Arrested

The Louisville (KY) Courier-Journal (10/27, Duvall) reports, “Ten people affiliated with an alleged local street gang have been indicted on various federal drug trafficking charges, a move which officials said will help combat violent crime in the city. ‘Make no mistake: these subjects are violent offenders,’ FBI Louisville Special Agent in Charge Jodi Cohen said Wednesday morning when announcing the charges.” The Courier-Journal adds, “The accused are all members or associates of ‘Everybody Shines Together’ or ‘EST,’ according to the US Attorney’s Office for the Western District of Kentucky.” That “group shares its name with Everybody Shine Together Entertainment, which lists Louisville native and rapper EST Gee, legally named George Stone III, as a member, according to records filed with the Kentucky Secretary of State’s office.”

State Troopers Seize Record Amount Of Meth In Wyoming

A Cox Media Group article that is posted to the KIRO-TV Seattle (10/27) website says, “State troopers in Wyoming seized 601 pounds of methamphetamine and 108 pounds of cocaine during” a recent traffic stop operation. That is “the largest amount of meth seized at once in Wyoming history,” according to DEA agent David Tyree. State troopers arrested two Canadian nationals in connection with the seizure. The Casper (WY) Star-Tribune (10/27, Gerst) publishes a similar article.

Gangs Reportedly Rule About Half Of Haiti’s Capital

In a front-page article, the New York Times (10/27, A1, Kitroeff, Abi-Habib) reports, “A severe fuel shortage is pushing” Haiti “to the brink of collapse because gangs, not the government, rule about half of” Port-au-Prince. After highlighting that Port-au-Prince is the capital of Haiti, the article says “suspected drug dealers” occupy some seats in the Haitian Parliament.

Man Arrested For Allegedly Robbing 23 Arizona Banks

The AP (10/27) reports from Phoenix, Arizona, “A man dubbed the ‘Back Again Bandit’ who allegedly robbed 22 banks in Arizona and one in Nevada over a 10-month span has been arrested, the FBI said Wednesday.” An FBI Violent Crimes Task Force, “with help from Phoenix police, took 44-year-old Richard Zumbro into custody Monday after a robbery at a US Bank location in Mesa. The FBI said the string of robberies began in December 2020 and almost all of them were at banks or credit unions that were inside supermarkets. Zumbro got his nickname because he allegedly robbed the same two banks in Phoenix and Tempe a total of five times. He’s charged in a federal criminal complaint of entering supermarkets and handing a demand note to a teller.”

Young Women Boycotting UK Nightclubs Over “Spiking” Concerns

The AP (10/27, Hui) reports from London, “Young women across the UK are boycotting nightclubs and pubs Wednesday as university towns and cities join in a national ‘girls night in’ protest after increasing reports of drink spiking and students being drugged by needle injections.” The AP adds, “The online campaign, which has gained momentum in university cities including Bristol, Brighton and Nottingham, wants to raise awareness about women’s safety and demand more urgent action by the government and nightclubs to prevent ‘date rape’ drugs from being brought into clubs. ‘Girls Night In’ accounts organizing boycotts in British cities this week have gathered thousands of followers on social media. The protests came after a sharp rise in recent months of reports of drink spiking and needle ‘spiking’ – where women report being injected with drugs in the back or in the leg at nightclubs – as students return to campuses after a long spell away due to the coronavirus pandemic.”

WEBINAR: US Law Enforcement Agency Transparency &How Technology Can Help Featuring Current &Past Chiefs from Boston PD, Anaheim PD, Buffalo Grove PD, and Thomasville PD
Featuring Current &Past Chiefs from Boston PD, Anaheim PD, Buffalo Grove PD, and Thomasville PD

Hi Allie,

Earlier this year, Veritone commissioned a national survey which included a wide-ranging set of questions regarding transparency and the use of technology by our country's law enforcement agencies (LEAs). These findings were recently published in a 2021 US Law Enforcement Agency Trust &Transparency Report.

The report highlights that public misconceptions about policing sometimes occur due to a lack of understanding about operations, a lack of access to records, or how LEAs manage and retain records. With better technology and objective data leading the way, LEAs have the opportunity to shine a light on their operations and answer the public's call for increased transparency.

On November 9, 2021 at 10AM Pacific / 1PM Eastern, Veritone and Microsoft will host a virtual panel discussion with law enforcement leaders from across the country discussing the report's findings as well as other related topics and what it all means for our nation's law enforcement agencies and suggested next steps. Law enforcement leaders on the panel include:

- Chief Steven Casstevens, Buffalo Grove, IL PD (past IACP president)
- Chief Jorge Cisneros, Anaheim, CA PD
- Police Commissioner &Superintendent-in-Chief, William Gross, Boston, MA PD
- Chief John Letteney, Thomasville, GA PD (incoming IACP president)

Attend and ask your questions.

WEBINAR: US Law Enforcement Agency Transparency &How Technology Can Help Featuring Current &Past Chiefs from Boston PD, Anaheim PD, Buffalo Grove PD, and Thomasville PD
Featuring Current &Past Chiefs from Boston PD, Anaheim PD, Buffalo Grove PD, and Thomasville PD

Hi paul,

Earlier this year, Veritone commissioned a national survey which included a wide-ranging set of questions regarding transparency and the use of technology by our country's law enforcement agencies (LEAs). These findings were recently published in a 2021 US Law Enforcement Agency Trust &Transparency Report.

The report highlights that public misconceptions about policing sometimes occur due to a lack of understanding about operations, a lack of access to records, or how LEAs manage and retain records. With better technology and objective data leading the way, LEAs have the opportunity to shine a light on their operations and answer the public's call for increased transparency.

On November 9, 2021 at 10AM Pacific / 1PM Eastern, Veritone and Microsoft will host a virtual panel discussion with law enforcement leaders from across the country discussing the report's findings as well as other related topics and what it all means for our nation's law enforcement agencies and suggested next steps. Law enforcement leaders on the panel include:

- Chief Steven Casstevens, Buffalo Grove, IL PD (past IACP president)
- Chief Jorge Cisneros, Anaheim, CA PD
- Police Commissioner &Superintendent-in-Chief, William Gross, Boston, MA PD
- Chief John Letteney, Thomasville, GA PD (incoming IACP president)

Attend and ask your questions.

If you're interested in attending, please register below. During the registration process you will have an opportunity to include a question you would like for the panel to discuss.

WEBINAR: Police Chiefs Across the Nation to Discuss the 2021 Law Enforcement Trust & Transparency Report

Featuring Current & Past Chiefs from Boston PD, Anaheim PD, Buffalo Grove PD, and Thomasville PD

Hi Luis,

Earlier this year, Veritone commissioned a national survey which included a wide-ranging set of questions regarding transparency and the use of technology by our country's law enforcement agencies (LEAs). These findings were recently published in a 2021 US Law Enforcement Agency Trust & Transparency Report.

The report highlights that public misconceptions about policing sometimes occur due to a lack of understanding about operations, a lack of access to records, or how LEAs manage and retain records. With better technology and objective data leading the way, LEAs have the opportunity to shine a light on their operations and answer the public's call for increased transparency.

On November 9, 2021 at 10AM Pacific / 1PM Eastern, Veritone and Microsoft will host a virtual panel discussion with law enforcement leaders from across the country discussing the report's findings as well as other related topics and what it all means for our nation's law enforcement agencies and suggested next steps. Law enforcement leaders on the panel include:

- Chief Steven Casstevens, Buffalo Grove, IL PD (past IACP president)
- Chief Jorge Cisneros, Anaheim, CA PD
- Police Commissioner & Superintendent-in-Chief, William Gross, Boston, MA PD
- Chief John Letteney, Thomasville, GA PD (incoming IACP president)

Attend and ask your questions.

If you're interested in attending, please register below. During the registration process you will have an opportunity to include a question you would like for the panel to discuss.

The Importance of Building Physical Resiliency
MARK YOUR CALENDARS...November 3, 2021

Join us Wednesday, November 3, 2021, @ 11:00 am ET, as Olivia Mead discusses The Importance of Building Physical Resiliency.

Olivia Mead

Founder &CEO of Yoga for First Responders

Olivia is a life-long yoga practitioner and has been teaching yoga since 2003 having studied with many master teachers around the country as well as in Rishikesh, India. Her education for teaching segments of the population that are at-risk for Post Traumatic Stress and Vicarious Traumatization began by becoming certified in Trauma-Sensitive Yoga under Yoga Warriors International.

She started working with veterans who struggle with Post Traumatic Stress and active military specifically before bringing this work to first responders.

While living in Los Angeles, Olivia adapted her offering of yoga to veterans to fit the first responder population by working directly with the Los Angeles Fire Department and department psychologist, Dr. Robert Scott. From there she taught weekly yoga classes at the Los Angeles Fire Department (LAFD) Training Center, as well as presenting training on yoga and the neurological system for LAFD's Peer Support Team, and special workshops for high-ranking command staff of the Los Angeles Police Department (LAPD). She continues to work with LAPD's Behavioral Sciences Services by partnering for special training events including The Smart Detective for International Association of Chiefs of Police.

This method Olivia developed of offering yoga to first responders soon became a field-tested protocol specifically for processing stress, building resilience, and enhancing job performance in a method which was job-specific and culturally informed. Olivia was requested to train others to bring the resiliency-building tools of yoga to the first responder demographic nationwide. The development of this teacher training program (Instructor School) was the birth of YogaShield® Yoga For First Responders® (YFFR) as an official 501c3 not-for-profit organization. Today, Olivia and the YFFR team offers Instructor Schools, In-Service Trainings and Protocol Demos, department programs, training academy curriculum, and conference presentations around the country. Notable agencies who have hosted YFFR Train the Trainers and/or adopted the YFFR Protocol include, Chicago Police Department, Denver Public Safety, Kansas City Police Department, Indianapolis Fire Department, Detroit Police Department, Tempe Police Department, Wichita Police Department, Seattle Fire Department and Des Moines Police Department among several others.

In 2018, YFFR was honored as a finalist for Yoga Journal's Good Karma Awards.

Besides running YFFR as an organization, Olivia teaches weekly YFFR classes for several Fire and Police Departments, specifically Denver Sheriff Academy and Denver Fire Academy. While living in Iowa Olivia taught consistently for Iowa Army National Guard, The Army Reserves, The United States Air Force Leadership School, The FBI Office of Victims Assistance, Iowa Law Enforcement Academy, Des Moines Police Academy and Warren County Fire Academy. Olivia has been a guest instructor for Chicago Police Academy, City of Las Vegas Department of Public Safety, Austin, TX Department of Public Safety among many others. Speaking engagements include International Association of Law Enforcement Educators and Trainers Association, FBI National Academy Associates, 1st Responder Conferences, International Association of Firefighters, EMS World, Iowa State Fire School, C.O.P.S. (Concerns of Police Survivors), International Association of Firefighters (IAFF) National Convention and more.

Olivia is former Assistant Editor of LA Yoga Magazine. Her writing for other publications and blogs includes American Military University's In Public Safety, PoliceOnce.com, FireRescue1, National Association of Tactical Officer's magazine, The Tactical Edge, Emergency Responders Blog, and the inaugural issue of Yoga Iowa, with her article on the benefits of yoga in the military being the cover story. While living in Iowa, Olivia had a weekly segment offering yoga tips on the Des Moines' morning news show, CW Iowa LIVE.

Olivia is a member of the International Law Enforcement Educators and Trainers Association (ILEETA), Iowa Society of Fire Service Instructors, National Tactical Officers Association and the International Association of Yoga Therapists. Olivia is the recipient of the 2016 Warrior Award and Community Choice Award from Yoga Alliance International for her work with first responders and veterans/military.

Special Alert | October 27, 2021 Pontoon Beach officer killed by gunshot; please wear mourning badges

We are saddened to report that Officer Tyler Timmins, 36, of the Pontoon Beach Police Department, died hours after being shot at a gas station early Tuesday morning.

Officer Timmins approached a man in a suspected stolen vehicle. The male suspect began to fire at and shot Timmins who was taken to Gateway Regional Medical Center in Granite City before being airlifted to St. Louis for further treatment. Timmins succumbed to injuries a short time later and was pronounced dead. The suspect, who has not been named, was taken into custody on the scene.

Timmins was a police officer in Madison County for 14 years, serving at several police departments including Roxana, Worden and Hartford before joining the Pontoon Beach police force in April 2020.

Minneapolis Voters To Decide Push To Restructure Policing

In an analysis piece for the Washington Post (10/26), David Weigel examines the effort to replace the Minneapolis' police department "with a new Department of Public Safety." Voters will decide Question 2, which would "dramatically restructure policing, 17 months after the killing of George Floyd ignited a national racial reckoning," and that "has divided the city's liberal voters, with both the 'yes' and 'no' campaigns warning of disaster if they lose." Weigel adds, "There's much more on the Nov. 2 ballot, including the mayor's office, city council and a ballot measure that would allow the city to enact rent control," but "Question 2 hangs over all of it, with advocates well aware of the national attention that would come their way if they vote to replace the police department – or if they don't."

Texas Governor Signs Bill That Bans Dog-Chaining

The San Antonio Express-News (10/26, Hennes) reports, "A long-awaited animal cruelty bill aimed at protecting restrained outdoor dogs was finally signed into law by Gov. Greg Abbott on Monday, effectively banning the use of chain tethers and empowering law enforcement officers to act quickly when they find an animal in dire conditions." According to the Express-News, "Senate Bill 5, otherwise known as the "Safe Outdoor Dogs" Act, narrowly made it into Texas law after Abbott vetoed a nearly identical version called SB 474 that passed both chambers with wide bipartisan support in a previous session. In a veto statement, Abbott claimed that version micro-managed and over-penalized pet owners. The bill strikes the use of chain tethers, weights or improperly fitted collars; requires animals housed outside have adequate shelter that keeps them safe from inclement weather and allows them to sit, stand and move around comfortably; and eliminates a 24-hour waiting period for law enforcement to intervene if they come across an animal in inhumane conditions."

Arizona Judge Likely To Block Law Barring Civilian Police Oversight

The AP (10/26, Christie) reports from Phoenix, Arizona, “A judge on Tuesday told lawyers that he will likely rule that a new Arizona law that prevents a majority of civilians from serving on police oversight panels is unconstitutional,” but “Maricopa County Superior Court Judge John Hannah indicated that he was unlikely to strike down the whole state budget bill containing the police oversight provision that was challenged by the city of Phoenix.” The law “took effect on Sept. 29 and is preventing Phoenix from appointing a director for its new police oversight office. Phoenix also is challenging a part of the criminal justice funding bill that expands an existing law that allows a single lawmaker to request an attorney general investigation into city or county laws.”

Pennsylvania Senate Approves Bill Criminalizing Fleeing Arrest On Foot

The AP (10/26, Levy) reports from Harrisburg, Pennsylvania, “Pennsylvania’s state Senate on Tuesday approved a bill that would make it a crime to flee a police officer who is trying to arrest them, and an additional crime if a police dog is hurt in the pursuit.” The bill passed 36-14 and now “goes to the House of Representatives for consideration. The severity of the penalty for knowingly fleeing arrest rises based on the seriousness of the underlying crime. It also rises if someone – including a police officer – is hurt or killed in the pursuit. If someone dies, the penalty is a second-degree felony. Someone fleeing a summary offense would face an additional summary charge if no one is injured in the pursuit.”

Louisville, Kentucky Seeks To Direct Federal Funding Toward Police Reforms, Bonuses

The Louisville (KY) Courier-Journal (10/26, Costello) reports, “Bonuses of up to $5,000 for ‘essential’ Metro Government workers. Roughly $41 million for Louisville Metro Police to implement reforms around accountability, improve performance and update technology. An additional $30 million for youth programming and violence deterrence and prevention. And about $100 million for affordable housing and homelessness programs.” The Courier-Journal adds, “City officials on Tuesday rolled out plans for how they hope to spend $262.9 million of the city’s remaining $340 million in federal American Rescue Plan funds – focusing efforts this round on public safety, housing and premium pay. Mayor Greg Fischer called the federal funding an ‘opportunity to help each other,’ and one that ‘we must seize to address some of our most pressing needs.’”

Security, Crime, and Drugs

US, EU Law Enforcement Arrest 150 People, Seize More Than $31M In International Drug Trafficking Investigation

The AP (10/26, Balsamo) reports US and European law enforcement officials “have arrested 150 people and seized more than $31 million in an international drug trafficking investigation stemming from sales on the darknet, the Justice Department said Tuesday.” The arrests “are connected to a 10-month investigation between federal law enforcement officials in the US and Europol in Europe.” Prosecutors “allege those charges are responsible for tens of thousands of illegal sales in the US, the United Kingdom, Australia, Bulgaria, France, Germany, Italy, the Netherlands and Switzerland.” Investigators “also recovered a slew of illegal drugs, including counterfeit medication and opioid pills, along with more than 152 kilograms of amphetamine, 21 kilograms of cocaine and 32.5 kilograms of MDMA, according to prosecutors.”

The New York Times (10/26, Benner) reports the sting – Operation Dark HunTor – “followed the takedown in January of DarkMarket, at the time the world’s largest online marketplace for illicit goods, located in an encrypted and relatively hidden corner of the internet.” Deputy Attorney General Lisa Monaco said that the operation sent “one clear message to those hiding on the dark net peddling illegal drugs: There is no dark internet.” She added, “We can and will shine a light.”

Crime Decrease In Akron, Ohio Attributed To Effort To Get Guns Off The Streets

WOIO-TV Cleveland (10/26) reports from Akron, Ohio, “Crime is on a downward trend in Akron, and it isn’t a fluke.” WOIO-TV adds, “While many cities battle a spike in crime, 19 Investigates found the Akron Police Department is tracking a decrease in nearly all major crime categories. We dug deeper into the department’s latest crime statistics for 2020 and 2021, comparing the data for the first nine months of each year to see what has changed. Eight of the 10 serious offense categories we reviewed show some degree of improvement, varying from slight to significant. ‘I think that’s indicative of what’s going to come in the future,’ said Deputy Chief Jesse Leeser, who commands the police department’s Investigative Subdivision. Leeser believes it is a direct result of the department’s targeted efforts to get guns off of Akron’s streets. ‘We’ve really taken a precision type focus as it deals with gun violence,’ Leeser said.”

New York Authorities Warn Of Candy And Snacks Containing High Levels Of THC

Insider (10/26, Mitchell) reports, “The New York Attorney General tweeted Tuesday that New York parents should keep an eye out for ‘snacks and candy’ in ‘deceptive’ packaging containing ‘dangerously high concentrations of THC.’ ‘New York parents should be on the alert for deceptive cannabis products that look like standard snacks and candy but contain dangerously high concentrations of THC,’ New York Attorney General Letitia James said in a press statement Tuesday.” Insider adds, “Tuesday’s statement included pictures of a bag resembling Hot Cheeto Puffs containing marijuana edibles with 600mg of THC, which is ‘120 times the maximum legal adult serving in most states’ if the whole bag is consumed, according to the statement. The statement included other photos of THC products packaged to look like snacks such as Oreos, Sour Patch Kids, Fruity Pebbles, Nerds, and Doritos, all labeled with a THC amount.”

School Violence Increases As Students Return From Remote Learning

The Washington Post (10/26, Meckler, Strauss) reports “a Pennsylvania high school reverted to virtual classes last week, but it wasn’t because of coronavirus fears.” It was “because of ‘credible threats’ after student fights.” In a Waldorf, Maryland high school, “a school resource officer was assaulted as three separate fights unfolded in the hallways and one spilled into the student parking lot.” Much of the attention “around the return to school after months of remote learning has focused on academic losses, but educators also feared emotional damage and behavioral unrest as students who have seen their lives upended by the pandemic adjust to being in school buildings again.” Those fears now “appear to be materializing, in big ways and small.” The National Association of School Resource Officers “reports that from Aug. 1 to Oct. 1 this year, there were 97 reported gun-related incidents in schools.” During the “same span in 2019, there were 29.”

Apparent Cyberattack Hits Iranian Gas Stations

Reuters (10/26) reports a cyberattack disrupted gasoline sales in Iran on Tuesday, according to state media, “causing long queues at gas stations across the country weeks before the anniversary of 2019 street protests that followed fuel price hikes.” The oil ministry “said only sales with smart cards used for cheaper rationed gasoline were disrupted and clients could still buy fuel at higher rates, the ministry’s news agency SHANA reported.” The New York Times (10/26, Yee) reports, “Not only the pumps may have been hacked. Photographs on social media showed digital billboards in Tehran, the capital, and Isfahan, another major Iranian city, displaying the message, ‘Khamenei, where is our fuel?’ The question appeared to refer to Ayatollah Ali Khamenei, Iran’s supreme leader, perhaps suggesting a political motivation for the attack.”

The Washington Post (10/26, Fahim) reports Iran “has been a frequent target of cyberattacks in recent years, including state-sponsored attacks on its atomic energy program and other critical infrastructure and hacks attributed to shadowy groups apparently aiming to expose abuses by the government. There was no immediate claim of responsibility for Tuesday’s attack.” The AP (10/26, Gambrell) reports this attack “bore similarities to another attack months earlier that seemed to directly challenge Iran’s Supreme Leader Ayatollah Ali Khamenei as the country’s economy buckles under American sanctions.”

Minneapolis Voters To Decide Push To Restructure Policing

In an analysis piece for the Washington Post (10/26), David Weigel examines the effort to replace the Minneapolis' police department "with a new Department of Public Safety." Voters will decide Question 2, which would "dramatically restructure policing, 17 months after the killing of George Floyd ignited a national racial reckoning," and that "has divided the city's liberal voters, with both the 'yes' and 'no' campaigns warning of disaster if they lose." Weigel adds, "There's much more on the Nov. 2 ballot, including the mayor's office, city council and a ballot measure that would allow the city to enact rent control," but "Question 2 hangs over all of it, with advocates well aware of the national attention that would come their way if they vote to replace the police department – or if they don't."

Texas Governor Signs Bill That Bans Dog-Chaining

The San Antonio Express-News (10/26, Hennes) reports, "A long-awaited animal cruelty bill aimed at protecting restrained outdoor dogs was finally signed into law by Gov. Greg Abbott on Monday, effectively banning the use of chain tethers and empowering law enforcement officers to act quickly when they find an animal in dire conditions." According to the Express-News, "Senate Bill 5, otherwise known as the "Safe Outdoor Dogs" Act, narrowly made it into Texas law after Abbott vetoed a nearly identical version called SB 474 that passed both chambers with wide bipartisan support in a previous session. In a veto statement, Abbott claimed that version micro-managed and over-penalized pet owners. The bill strikes the use of chain tethers, weights or improperly fitted collars; requires animals housed outside have adequate shelter that keeps them safe from inclement weather and allows them to sit, stand and move around comfortably; and eliminates a 24-hour waiting period for law enforcement to intervene if they come across an animal in inhumane conditions."

Arizona Judge Likely To Block Law Barring Civilian Police Oversight

The AP (10/26, Christie) reports from Phoenix, Arizona, “A judge on Tuesday told lawyers that he will likely rule that a new Arizona law that prevents a majority of civilians from serving on police oversight panels is unconstitutional,” but “Maricopa County Superior Court Judge John Hannah indicated that he was unlikely to strike down the whole state budget bill containing the police oversight provision that was challenged by the city of Phoenix.” The law “took effect on Sept. 29 and is preventing Phoenix from appointing a director for its new police oversight office. Phoenix also is challenging a part of the criminal justice funding bill that expands an existing law that allows a single lawmaker to request an attorney general investigation into city or county laws.”

Pennsylvania Senate Approves Bill Criminalizing Fleeing Arrest On Foot

The AP (10/26, Levy) reports from Harrisburg, Pennsylvania, “Pennsylvania’s state Senate on Tuesday approved a bill that would make it a crime to flee a police officer who is trying to arrest them, and an additional crime if a police dog is hurt in the pursuit.” The bill passed 36-14 and now “goes to the House of Representatives for consideration. The severity of the penalty for knowingly fleeing arrest rises based on the seriousness of the underlying crime. It also rises if someone – including a police officer – is hurt or killed in the pursuit. If someone dies, the penalty is a second-degree felony. Someone fleeing a summary offense would face an additional summary charge if no one is injured in the pursuit.”

Louisville, Kentucky Seeks To Direct Federal Funding Toward Police Reforms, Bonuses

The Louisville (KY) Courier-Journal (10/26, Costello) reports, “Bonuses of up to $5,000 for ‘essential’ Metro Government workers. Roughly $41 million for Louisville Metro Police to implement reforms around accountability, improve performance and update technology. An additional $30 million for youth programming and violence deterrence and prevention. And about $100 million for affordable housing and homelessness programs.” The Courier-Journal adds, “City officials on Tuesday rolled out plans for how they hope to spend $262.9 million of the city’s remaining $340 million in federal American Rescue Plan funds – focusing efforts this round on public safety, housing and premium pay. Mayor Greg Fischer called the federal funding an ‘opportunity to help each other,’ and one that ‘we must seize to address some of our most pressing needs.’”

Security, Crime, and Drugs

US, EU Law Enforcement Arrest 150 People, Seize More Than $31M In International Drug Trafficking Investigation

The AP (10/26, Balsamo) reports US and European law enforcement officials “have arrested 150 people and seized more than $31 million in an international drug trafficking investigation stemming from sales on the darknet, the Justice Department said Tuesday.” The arrests “are connected to a 10-month investigation between federal law enforcement officials in the US and Europol in Europe.” Prosecutors “allege those charges are responsible for tens of thousands of illegal sales in the US, the United Kingdom, Australia, Bulgaria, France, Germany, Italy, the Netherlands and Switzerland.” Investigators “also recovered a slew of illegal drugs, including counterfeit medication and opioid pills, along with more than 152 kilograms of amphetamine, 21 kilograms of cocaine and 32.5 kilograms of MDMA, according to prosecutors.”

The New York Times (10/26, Benner) reports the sting – Operation Dark HunTor – “followed the takedown in January of DarkMarket, at the time the world’s largest online marketplace for illicit goods, located in an encrypted and relatively hidden corner of the internet.” Deputy Attorney General Lisa Monaco said that the operation sent “one clear message to those hiding on the dark net peddling illegal drugs: There is no dark internet.” She added, “We can and will shine a light.”

Crime Decrease In Akron, Ohio Attributed To Effort To Get Guns Off The Streets

WOIO-TV Cleveland (10/26) reports from Akron, Ohio, “Crime is on a downward trend in Akron, and it isn’t a fluke.” WOIO-TV adds, “While many cities battle a spike in crime, 19 Investigates found the Akron Police Department is tracking a decrease in nearly all major crime categories. We dug deeper into the department’s latest crime statistics for 2020 and 2021, comparing the data for the first nine months of each year to see what has changed. Eight of the 10 serious offense categories we reviewed show some degree of improvement, varying from slight to significant. ‘I think that’s indicative of what’s going to come in the future,’ said Deputy Chief Jesse Leeser, who commands the police department’s Investigative Subdivision. Leeser believes it is a direct result of the department’s targeted efforts to get guns off of Akron’s streets. ‘We’ve really taken a precision type focus as it deals with gun violence,’ Leeser said.”

New York Authorities Warn Of Candy And Snacks Containing High Levels Of THC

Insider (10/26, Mitchell) reports, “The New York Attorney General tweeted Tuesday that New York parents should keep an eye out for ‘snacks and candy’ in ‘deceptive’ packaging containing ‘dangerously high concentrations of THC.’ ‘New York parents should be on the alert for deceptive cannabis products that look like standard snacks and candy but contain dangerously high concentrations of THC,’ New York Attorney General Letitia James said in a press statement Tuesday.” Insider adds, “Tuesday’s statement included pictures of a bag resembling Hot Cheeto Puffs containing marijuana edibles with 600mg of THC, which is ‘120 times the maximum legal adult serving in most states’ if the whole bag is consumed, according to the statement. The statement included other photos of THC products packaged to look like snacks such as Oreos, Sour Patch Kids, Fruity Pebbles, Nerds, and Doritos, all labeled with a THC amount.”

School Violence Increases As Students Return From Remote Learning

The Washington Post (10/26, Meckler, Strauss) reports “a Pennsylvania high school reverted to virtual classes last week, but it wasn’t because of coronavirus fears.” It was “because of ‘credible threats’ after student fights.” In a Waldorf, Maryland high school, “a school resource officer was assaulted as three separate fights unfolded in the hallways and one spilled into the student parking lot.” Much of the attention “around the return to school after months of remote learning has focused on academic losses, but educators also feared emotional damage and behavioral unrest as students who have seen their lives upended by the pandemic adjust to being in school buildings again.” Those fears now “appear to be materializing, in big ways and small.” The National Association of School Resource Officers “reports that from Aug. 1 to Oct. 1 this year, there were 97 reported gun-related incidents in schools.” During the “same span in 2019, there were 29.”

Training sponsored by Axon, Genetec and Motorola Solutions (Watchguard)

General description:

The Illinois Law Enforcement Officer-Worn Body Camera Act was effective January 1, 2016. It was amended by the SAFE-T Act of 2021, which requires all Illinois LE agencies to implement a body-worn camera program, depending on agency type and size, no later than January 1, 2025.

You will learn what's in the law, but more important, you will learn how you can best plan for and implement a successful body-worn camera program. The session will address policies, practices, and lessons learned from these agencies. You will learn about interaction with state's attorneys' offices and how the use of cameras can assist with citizen complaints.

Who should attend? Chiefs and command staff who oversee or plan to oversee a BWC program. It will be helpful for agencies already using cameras and the other 90 percent that are looking into it.

Illinois' Voice of Professional Law Enforcement

Special Alert | October 27, 2021 In case you missed it: Planning for body cameras 2022 and beyond: 3 dates and locations: Elgin, Fairview Heights, Springfield

Training sponsored by Axon, Genetec and Motorola Solutions (Watchguard)

General description:

The Illinois Law Enforcement Officer-Worn Body Camera Act was effective January 1, 2016. It was amended by the SAFE-T Act of 2021, which requires all Illinois LE agencies to implement a body-worn camera program, depending on agency type and size, no later than January 1, 2025.

Only about 10 percent of Illinois agencies have implemented body cameras so far. To help prepare all agencies for the new law, this training from ILACP will provide you the collective experience of agencies in northern, central, and southeastern Illinois that have been using the cameras.

You will learn what's in the law, but more important, you will learn how you can best plan for and implement a successful body-worn camera program. The session will address policies, practices, and lessons learned from these agencies. You will learn about interaction with state's attorneys' offices and how the use of cameras can assist with citizen complaints.

Who should attend? Chiefs and command staff who oversee or plan to oversee a BWC program. It will be helpful for agencies already using cameras and the other 90 percent that are looking into it.

COST: FREE - Registration is required

Working Agenda

1. Welcome and introductions, Ed Wojcicki, ILACP Executive Director
2. Lessons already learned and updates in the law: What you need to do to plan for and implement body-worn cameras.
 1. ELGIN: Chiefs Ana Lalley, Elgin, and Patrick Kreis, Vernon Hills
 2. FAIRVIEW HEIGHTS: Chief Steve Johnson, Swansea
 3. SPRINGFIELD: Chief Kenny Winslow, Springfield

We will use the lessons and expertise of all of them at all three locations.

3. A state's attorney perspective
 1. ELGIN: Kane County State's Attorney Jamie Mosser
 2. FAIRVIEW HEIGHTS: Representative from Madison and St. Clair County SA's office (invited)
 3. SPRINGFIELD: Representative from Sangamon County SA's office (invited)
 4. How these vendors can assist you:
 1. Axon
 2. Genetec
 3. Motorola Solutions
 5. Q&A throughout the program.
 6. Adjourn
- PLUS:

1. A handout about the Illinois Body Worn Camera Act with updates
2. The three vendors will have exhibit booths with opportunities for you to talk to them
