UNOPPOSED GOVERNMENT’S MOTION TO STRIKE PORTIONS OF THE INDICTMENT

The United States of America respectfully moves to strike portions of the indictment in this case. For the reasons set forth below, the Court should strike language referring to the “Vice President-elect” in the counts charging the defendant with violations of 18 U.S.C. § 1752.

I. Background

In 18 U.S.C. § 1752, Congress prohibited certain types of conduct in any “restricted building or grounds.” As relevant here, Section 1752 defines a “restricted building and grounds” as “any posted, cordoned off, or otherwise restricted area . . . of a building or grounds where the President or other person protected by the Secret Service is or will be temporarily visiting.” 18 U.S.C. § 1752(c)(1)(B). An individual violates Section 1752 by, among other things, “knowingly entering without lawful authority to do so in any posted, cordoned off, or otherwise restricted area of a building or grounds where a person protected by the Secret Service is or will be temporarily visiting,” or if that individual “intends to and does impede government business through disorderly or disruptive conduct while in the restricted area.” United States v. Griffin, No. 21-cr-92 (TNM), --- F.Supp.3d ---, 21 WL 27778557, at *3 (D.D.C. July 2, 2021) (cleaned up). The list of individuals whom the United States Secret Service is authorized to protect includes the Vice President and the Vice President-elect. 18 U.S.C. § 3056(a)(1).

The indictment in this case alleges that the defendant violated Section 1752 on January 6, 2021. Specifically, Count Three alleges that the defendant violated Section 1752(a)(1) when he “did knowingly enter and remain in a restricted building and grounds, that is, any posted, cordoned-off, and otherwise restricted area within the United States Capitol and its grounds, where the Vice President and Vice President-elect were temporarily visiting, without lawful authority to do so.” ECF No. 14, at 2 (emphasis added). Count Four alleges that the defendant violated Section 1752(a)(2) when he “did knowingly, and with intent to impede and disrupt the orderly conduct of Government business and official functions, engage in disorderly and disruptive conduct in and within such proximity to a restricted building and grounds, that is, any posted, cordoned-off, and otherwise restricted area within the United States Capitol and its grounds, where the Vice President and Vice President-elect were temporarily visiting, when and so that such conduct did in fact impede and disrupt the orderly conduct of Government business and official functions.” ECF No. 14, at 3 (emphasis added). Similarly, Count Five alleges that the defendant violated Section 1752(a)(4) when he “did knowingly, engage in any act of physical violence against any person and property in a restricted building and grounds, that is, any posted, cordoned-off, and otherwise restricted area within the United States Capitol and its grounds, where the Vice President and Vice President-elect were temporarily visiting.” ECF No. 14, at 3 (emphasis added).

Further investigation has shed light on the whereabouts of the Vice President and Vice President-elect during January 6, 2021. See Exhibit A, Declaration of Sergeant Stephen T. James (“James Declaration”); Exhibit B, Declaration of Jason Jolly, Staff Assistant, United States Secret Service (“Jolly Declaration”). The Vice President left the Senate Chamber at 2:26 pm and entered a “secure location within the Capitol Complex” around 2:28 pm. James Declaration, ¶ 4. The Vice President remained at that secure location until he returned to the Senate Chamber around 6:29 pm. Id. at ¶ 4-5. The Capitol Complex refers to “the Capitol Building and Capitol Visitor Center,” id. at ¶ 3, and was “entirely within the restricted perimeter” established around the Capitol building and Grounds on January 6, 2021. Id. at ¶ 7. By contrast, the Vice President-elect, although present at the Capitol on the morning of January 6, had left and was planning to return to the Capitol until her travel there “was delayed when the Joint Session was interrupted by the riot.” Jolly Declaration, ¶ 3. The Vice President-elect thus did not return to the Capitol until approximately 7 pm to participate in the Certification of the Electoral College vote. Id. at ¶ 4.

Based on these factual developments, the government moves the Court to amend the charging language in all counts charging a violation of Section 1752. Specifically, the government requests that the Court amend the reference to “where the Vice President and Vice President-elect were temporarily visiting” to “where the Vice President was temporarily visiting” in Counts Three, Four and Five.¹

II. Argument

The Fifth Amendment of the Constitution requires that the prosecution of a criminal defendant facing a felony charge² “be begun by indictment.” Stirone v. United States, 361 U.S. 212, 215 (1960). Once an indictment has issued, that charge “may not be broadened through amendment except by the grand jury itself.” Id. at 216. By contrast, where the indictment “fully and clearly” charges an offense’s elements, no constitutional infirmity arises if that indictment “alleges more crimes or other means of committing the same crime.” United States v. Miller, 471

² The counts charging violations of Section 1752 are not felony offenses. But they appear in an indictment because the defendant is facing felony offenses in other counts. See ECF No. 14, at 1 and 2, charging violations of 18 U.S.C. § 111(a)(1) and 18 U.S.C. § 231(a)(3).

U.S. 130, 136 (1985). Thus, language in the indictment that is “unnecessary to and independent of” the offense’s allegations “may normally be treated as ‘a useless averment’ that ‘may be ignored.’” Ibid. (quoting Ford v. United States, 273 U.S. 593, 602 (1927)).

A court therefore has the authority “to drop from an indictment those allegations that are unnecessary to an offense that is clearly contained within it.” Miller, 471 U.S. at 144; see United States v. Quinn, 401 F. Supp. 2d 80, 90 (D.D.C. 2005) (granting government motion to strike from an indictment language that referred not to “essential elements” but instead to “different means by which the defendants committed an alleged offense (any one which alone could support a conviction)”); see also United States v. Holland, 117 F.3d 589, 594-95 (D.C. Cir. 1997) (“Paring down the conspiracy’s time frame added no new charges to the indictment” and thus did not require re-submission to the grand jury).³ In United States v. Poindexter, 719 F. Supp. 6 (D.D.C. 1989) (Greene, J.), the government sought to narrow a conspiracy charge by dropping all language referring to one object of the alleged scheme. Id. at 7. In granting that motion, Judge Greene concluded that striking language from an indictment was consistent with the Constitution because “(1) the indictment as so narrowed constitute[d] a completed criminal offense, and (2) the offense [wa]s contained in the indictment as originally returned.” Id. at 9.

Here, after removal of the language that the government seeks to strike, the indictment continues to state viable offenses that have been in the charging document since the date of its return by the grand jury. In Counts Three, Four and Five, the key language on which the Section 1752 charge relies—that a person protected by the Secret Service was temporarily visiting a posted, cordoned-off, or otherwise restricted area within the Capitol—remains. The indictment issued by the grand jury identified the same protected person—the Vice President—on which the amended language relies. Deleting reference to the Vice President-elect “simply ‘narrows’ the scope of the charges, which ‘adds nothing new to the grand jury’s indictment and constitutes no impermissible broadening.’” Quinn, 401 F. Supp. 2d at 90 (quoting Holland, 117 F.3d at 595) (brackets from quotation omitted).⁴

⁴ Amending the subject-verb agreement—from the “Vice President and Vice President-elect were temporarily visiting” to the “Vice President was temporarily visiting”—is an “insignificant” correction that does not require resubmission to the grand jury. See United States v. Bush, 659 F.2d 163, 167 (D.C. Cir. 1981).

DECLARATION OF SERGEANT STEPHEN T. JAMES

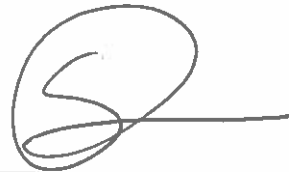

1. I, Sergeant Stephen T. James, am a sworn member of the United States Capitol Police (USCP). I have been employed as a law enforcement officer with this Department since April 27, 1993 (over 28 years). I became a sergeant in February of 2004 (18 years). On March 1, 2020, I was assigned to the Department's Office of the General Counsel (OGC), where I am permanently assigned. Prior to being assigned to the OGC, I served as a supervisor on the Capitol Division from February 2012 to February 2020. Between February 2008 and February 2012, I served as an investigator with the USCP Office of Professional Responsibility.
2. As part of my duties at the USCP, I view and analyze camera footage from the Department's extensive system of closed circuit cameras on U.S. Capitol Grounds. These cameras, part of a sophisticated closed circuit video (CCV) system, are resident both inside and outside the buildings including the U.S. Capitol itself and the other Congressional office buildings on the Grounds. This CCV system provides the backbone of the security for the U.S. Capitol Grounds.
3. I have viewed archived USCP closed circuit videos from January 6, 2021, of then Vice President Michael Pence (VP) as he exited the United States Senate Chamber and arrived at a secure location within the Capitol Complex. The Capitol Complex is a term that we use to include the Capitol Building and Capitol Visitor Center.
4. My review of the relevant CCV footage confirmed that on January 6, 2021, the VP and his entourage exited the Senate Chamber at approximately 2:26 pm and arrived at a secure location within the Capitol Complex at approximately 2:28 pm. The VP left the secure location at approximately 6:29 pm to return to the Senate Chamber.
5. Based on discussions I have had with USCP personnel who were with the VP from the time he exited the Senate Chamber until he returned, other than taking a comfort break twice to use the restroom (also within a secure location in the Capitol Complex), the VP remained in the secure location from the time he arrived after leaving the Senate Chamber until the time he returned to the Senate Chamber.

6. The exact location and description of the secure location to which the VP was evacuated is among the most sensitive information maintained by the USCP. That information is carefully protected by the USCP and the United States Secret Service.
7. On January 6, 2021, the USCP established a restricted perimeter around the Capitol Building and Grounds for security purposes. That restricted perimeter is reflected in the attached image. The Capitol Complex is entirely within the restricted perimeter shown in the image.

I declare under the penalty of perjury under the laws of the United States of America that the foregoing is true and correct.

Executed on this 3rd day of February, 2022.
