Ok, I just got off the phone with Gretchen O'Barr. I think we can all stand down. [REDACTED]

[REDACTED]

[REDACTED] She said she has been able to talk with him through "the iPad" and has been in communications with his nurse. She said she just wants to be able to hold his hand, but they won't let her in. I explained that we have no control over their internal policies and asked her about the welfare check issue, she said she has spoken with him, and doesn't think that is needed (she just let Shower talk).

Is St Elias part of Prov?

Amy Demboski

AD

Yes. That is what she told me.

Yes. That is what she told me.

I believe it's part of Providence.

Amy Demboski

It's an inpatient rehab facility. [REDACTED]

[REDACTED] But she was in good spirits and from our conversation a welfare check would not be warranted.

I tried to call Shower, but he didn't answer. This is the message I am about to send him (unless I'm told otherwise).

I just got off the phone with Gretchen and she told me she has been able to communicate with [REDACTED] via the iPad and she has been in communication with his nurse. She is upset that she can't hold his hand and be with him (understandably). I explained the MOA has no ability to control Providence's internal visitor's policy, and since Gretchen communicated she has been in contact with him and his nurse, APD has no basis for a welfare check.

This reminds me of the warning I received from Vakalis years ago: Amy remember, the first story is always wrong.... (well. there is

This reminds me of the warning I received from Vakalis years ago: Amy remember, the first story is always wrong.... (well, there is generally more to the story anyway).

AD Sorry for taking your time; next time, I'll do all the recon myself first before calling you all. 🤔

That's the message that I tell myself often. I also remind myself to slow down, if it's not an emergency.

Great team effort! Have a good night everyone.

Thanks all.
