Welcome to Leigh's world! As a little girl, I've always been attracted to big ideas. I used to try to sneak into adult conversations and express those big ideas the best way I knew how. Today I am still little in stature and the ideas have only gotten bigger. What you'll find on my blog is an interesting mix of psychological, philosophical, sociological and spiritual ideas that make an impact on our culture.

I am a passionate worshipper and follower of Jesus Christ and have been so for as long as I can remember. I have spent most of my life serving the body of Christ in various forms as a children's director, small groups leader, church planter, and executive/teaching pastor. While I have an undeniable passion for the church, I also believe that the presence of the church extends beyond its four walls into realms of business, government, arts, education and all other public sectors. My desire is to shift paradigms in our culture to reflect kingdom truths.
