ADMINISTRATIVE MAP OF THE USSR

A new map entitled USSR: Administrative Divisions, 1973, recently published by the Central Intelligence Agency, is considered to be the most up-to-date administrative map of the USSR available. This one sheet (15½" x 9½") map at the scale 1:21,800,000 shows three recent internal administrative boundary changes in the Kazakh S.S.R.

1. On 12 May 1971 some territory of Syrdar'inskaya Oblast', Uzbek S.S.R., was transferred to Chimkentskaya Oblast', Kazakh S.S.R.
2. On 20 March 1973 Dzhezkazganskaya Oblast', with its center at Dzhezkazgan, was formed from part of Karagandinskaya Oblast', Kazakh S.S.R.
3. On 20 March 1973 Mangyshlaksкая Oblast', with its center at Shevchenko, was formed from part of Gur'yevskaya Oblast', Kazakh S.S.R.

These last two actions reduced considerably the territory of both Gur'yevskaya and Karagandinskaya Oblasts. (Refer to orientation map on reverse side.)

Retention copies of this map can be obtained by requesting CIA map number 501808 from the main Reference Branch of the CIA Map Library, Building 159-E (code 143, extension 2688); the Reference Facility in Room GE-0444 of the CIA Headquarters Building (extension 6563); or the Reference Facility in Room 902 of the Magazine Building (extension 3447). Department of Defense personnel can obtain copies through their normal map procurement channel (DMATC, DMAAC, or DMAHC). The map is unclassified.
