Plus Amanda Mays on chain.

Gina, Chamber is asking if there is proactive press you could do to help /reassure the public that important work is being done but you are still essentially in r and d mode which will have down time associated with it. One thought that comes to mind is getting press access to Panasonic production area.

Hey Pamm - here's what we'd generally say if this becomes a media thing. Obviously, we'll need to see what the inquiries look like so I wouldn't consider this final.

I think what might be more helpful beyond the below is to talk through some of the claims in the letter, as there are a number of inaccuracies and places where we can provide much more context. Best to probably do that over the phone at your convenience. Thanks...

We have been upfront about our operations in Buffalo. As we've said repeatedly, Solar Roof is a product that needs to last decades, and therefore has a long development cycle, and we've been thoughtful and deliberate as we gradually ramped production. We understand that job cuts like those we announced last week are never easy, and we are grateful to everyone who departed for their contributions to Tesla's mission.

We're working on it. Sorry obviously moving quickly.

Just to be clear, I know you need our position regardless, but have you received any media inquiries yet?
