

Amazon Announces New Last Mile Facility Coming to Anchorage; Begins Hiring for Hundreds of Roles Ahead of Building Launch

Full-time and part-time roles become available for Amazon's new facility in Anchorage

In-Person Hiring Event Held October 11-13

ANCHORAGE, Alaska.-- October 9, 2023— Amazon announced its new last mile facility coming to Anchorage, Alaska. The planned site, also known as a delivery station, is currently under construction and won't be fully operational until 2024. However, the company has begun hiring for hundreds of full-time and part-time roles this week.

Jobs offer a starting wage of $20 an hour and eligible employees will receive comprehensive benefits such as career advancement opportunities, healthcare, vision, and dental insurance from the first day on the job; a 401(k) with company match; up to 20 weeks paid parental leave with 6 weeks for supporting parents.

"We are thrilled to continue investing in the great state of Alaska. Our forthcoming last mile facility in Anchorage will help us provide faster, more efficient deliveries for customers. We look forward to sharing more details as the site gets closer to launch," said Natalie Banke, Amazon spokesperson.

Amazon's fulfillment network is made up of state-of-the-art technology and a variety of building types and sizes to support processing orders.

"This delivery station will play a pivotal role in Amazon's logistics network, serving as the last stop before packages arrive at customers' doorsteps in Anchorage and surrounding areas," explained Banke. "Employees will sort packages based on delivery routes, then load them onto vehicles for delivery service partners and flex drivers who will finalize the delivery of a wide array of goods to customers."

Amazon will be hosting an in-person hiring event from October 11-13 at 700 E Dimond Blvd, Anchorage, AK, US, 99515. Interested candidates can learn more and review new positions weekly at amazon.com/apply.
