Urgent hearing application, application for interim injunction and contempt are taken on record.

Arguments heard.

I am prima-facie satisfied that the articles so published by the title of 'How an Indian Start up hacked by Reuters' is indicative of defamation and the website should not retain in such article in the public domain. However, it is clarified that this is only a prima-facie opinion and the defendants shall have sufficient opportunity to express their views through reply, contest in the main suit etc. and the final decision shall be taken subsequently. I am of the opinion that even if the defendants for some period do not retain the article on the website and on that account they suffer any market value, the can be ultimately compensated by money from the plaintiff but the retention of such material on the website if allowed, the same may have devastating effect on the general students population of India.

The balance of convenience therefore lies in directing withdrawal of the content. So far as the company Alphabet Inc, (Google global) is concerned, on 24.11.2023, the plaintiff was allowed to approach the said company. Ld. Counsel submit that they are ready to deindex the articles but needs a direction from the Court. If the Alphabet Inc.(Google global) has any policy for deindexing, it shall deindex the aforesaid Article till further orders. The URL's of the same are mentioned as under:
