You're right, that was it. I went in and granted us access using the alternate account.

I like your idea of at least moving the FAQ into the wiki. I've seen other projects that use the wiki for the FAQ or even the whole site. If you can figure out how to make it so regular users can edit things, then anyone who wants to can help.

The site layout is looking nicer. More impressive looking.

There are a lot of things you can say on the sourceforge site that I can't say on my own site. Even so, I'm uncomfortable with explicitly saying "consider it an investment". That's a dangerous thing to say and you should delete that bullet point. It's OK if they come to that conclusion on their own, but we can't pitch it as that.

A few details: the FAQ says "see section 2.3", but the sections aren't numbered. Also, could you delete the last sentence on the FAQ "They are planned to be hidden in v0.1.6, since they're just confusing and annoying and there's no reason for users to have to see them." -- that's not really something I meant to say publicly.

The links to sites to help set up 8333 port forwarding is great. favicon is a nice touch.

Someone came up with the word "cryptocurrency"... maybe it's a word we should use when describing Bitcoin, do you like it?

Sourceforge is so slow right now I can't even get the login page to load. Maybe due to the site reorg they just did. I'll keep trying and try to get you that logo stats thing.

Thanks, I've been really busy lately.

I registered username "satoshi". Since there's no SSL login, I want to mainly use that account with sub-admin powers and use the admin account as little as possible. I created a "Moderators" group to give my satoshi account as much editing control as possible without the ability to overthrow everything.

There's something weird with the download bar on the right covering
