Happy Friday, Ladies and Gents...

Now is a great time to push this message out to those among your personal list of contacts, who might want to attend the CLE Election Law Tool Kit. If you could push this to your best contacts with urgency, we can fill the (maximum 50 person) room with our primary target audience. If they register by this Wednesday, March 15, they will get the priority slot. After Wednesday, we're opening it up to our list of activists and politicians who may wind up hiring some of the attorneys in the room. Only a little overly hyped, my pitch is simple:

This event will equip attendees with the tools they need to develop an election season side hustle. Some who take the training, like presenter Tim Haga, may eventually become legal counsel for their county board of elections. Others, like presenters, Josh Howard and Adam Draper, may eventually serve as state and county election board members. Along the way, all will be sharing how they helped local clients fend off recounts, provisional ballot fights, nuisance complaints, residency challenges, and even election protests. Boyd Worley's quo warranto segment delves into an emerging field that attempts to knock out elected candidates after certification. You won't be bored. While the paid staff on Hillsboro Street can't be distracted with very many local cases, this training empowers our first line of defense in the fight for freedom. The training and networking gained in this CLE Election Law Tool Kit is your first step into this scarce--but seasonal--niche area of practice.

The price for 5.25 CLE credits is just $75 and that includes lunch and snacks for the day. Those not needing the CLE credit can attend for $50. To learn more and to secure your tickets, click this link.

Jay DeLancy is Director of Voter Integrity Project - NC, a 501(c)(4), non-profit organization, founded in 2011, dedicated to open and honest elections. When not mentoring other state-based election integrity organizations, VIP has conducted forensic audits, that uncovered almost 30,000 deceased persons on one state's voter rolls; more than 500 registered voters in one county who had also convinced the courts that they were not US citizens; a four-state criminal investigation into nearly 400 cases of suspected interstate-double voting that has triggered multiple criminal referrals; five felony indictments and four convictions (to date)...which also exposed the prosecutorial bias against punishing vote fraud. Among their recent projects, one involved finding enough votes cast by deceased persons to trigger numerous election protests by a state Supreme Court candidate, which effectively countered his opponent's protests, promoting felon voters.
