DIVISION OF JOURNALISM

EVERETT WALLACE SMITH, Professor

BUFORD O. BROWN, Associate Professor

JOHN M. BAKER (University of Hawaii), Acting Instructor (Summer Quarter)

The Journalism curriculum is based on the conviction that the proper college training for journalism provides (1) a broad foundation of general information, (2) more specific knowledge of economics, political science, history, and other subjects with which the journalist largely deals, and (3) some technical ability in journalism and an intelligent comprehension of the obligations and responsibilities of the profession.

The requirements of the Lower Division insure that the student will come into contact with the chief branches of human knowledge and lay a basis for more advanced studies along the lines of his particular needs and interests. The requirements of the School of Social Sciences insure his specializing somewhat in the work of the departments of Economics, History, Philosophy, and Political Science, and in related subjects, at the same time leaving him opportunity for meeting the Journalism requirements and for electives.

Students in the Division of Journalism will meet all the requirements of the School of Social Sciences, and will take a minimum of 30 units in Journalism, including News Writing (10 units), Copy Reading (5 units), American Journalism (3 units), and Ethics of Journalism (2 units). The work in Journalism will count toward the 80 units required by the School of Social Sciences, but will not replace any of the 36 units specifically required.

Intending journalists are encouraged to engage in college journalism and thus obtain practical experience during their course. Students in the Division of Journalism who do such work systematically and under the supervision of the Division will be given credit for it toward graduation. Lower Division students who plan to enter the Division of Journalism may receive 1 unit of credit per quarter for regular work on The Stanford Daily under the supervision of the Division of Journalism.

In some of the journalism courses the written work must be done on the typewriter. On this account and because ability to use the typewriter is necessary for practically all newspaper work, prospective journalism students are advised to gain this ability as early as possible.
