

These documents have been voluntarily provided by the President to the Special Counsel and the congressional committees – and include privileged material of all kinds. The cooperation and transparency are unprecedented.

Voluntary Document Production by the White House:

In all, the White House provided over 20,000 pages to the Special Counsel in connection with the categories of material identified (over 100,000 pages of documents were reviewed by the White House). Productions by topic include:

- Issues regarding Michael Flynn and Russia: 1,601 documents totaling 5,079 pages
- Issues Regarding James Comey: 1,245 documents totaling 7,799 pages

Voluntary Production by Campaign:

- In all, over 1.4 million pages of documents were produced to the Special Counsel by the Campaign.
- And over 28,000 pages of documents were produced to the Hill by the Campaign.
- Copies of all documents provided to the committees by the Campaign, and all search term lists and the privilege log, were also provided to the Special Counsel.
- By letter dated May 17, 2017, the Campaign received a request for documents from the Senate Select Committee on Intelligence (SSCI).
- By letter dated June 7, 2017, the Campaign received a request for documents from the House Permanent Select Committee on Intelligence (HPSCI). The records requested included records generated from June 16, 2015, to 12pm on January 20, 2017, and hence, included the transition period.
- The Campaign voluntarily responded to these requests by providing 840 documents on July 21, 2017, and another set of 4,800 documents on July 31, 2017. By letter dated July 19, 2017, the Campaign received a request for documents from the Senate Judiciary Committee (SJC).
- The Campaign responded by providing the requested documents, totaling 4,800, on August 2, 2017. By letter dated August 9, 2017, the Campaign sent all three committees a letter identifying the search terms used to identify the responsive documents. And on September 15, 2017, the Campaign provided all three committees with an additional set of responsive documents, totaling 2,100, which included an attached list of all record custodians whose records were searched along with a complete list of the search terms used.
- Finally, on September 29, 2017, the Campaign sent all three committees its final set of documents, which included 19 documents and 113 documents now provided with revised or removed privilege redactions. This production was accompanied with a privilege log.

Voluntary Interviews:

- Over 20 White House personnel (not including Campaign team members) voluntarily gave interviews; including 8 people from the White House Counsel's Office.
- 17 Campaign employees plus 11 additional individuals affiliated in some way or another with the Campaign, voluntarily gave interviews to Special Counsel or the Hill.
