I would add that we are a company that runs 100 percent no touch freight that is almost entirely general freight Like General Mills cereals, Cargill Salt, Nestle products, Pepsi, all sorts of other small shelf stock, stable items that are not super time sensitive. We do not have any Automotive contracted freight as it is volatile with the freight contracts being short term and the freight being super time sensitive. We have purposely decided to stay away from that so that we can secure longer term freight contracts with these other customers and so that we can provide a working environment that is less stressful and more flexible than our competitors.
