TALLADEGA - The newest member of the Talladega Police Department is an 18- month- old Belgian Malinois named Andor. His partner and handler will be patrolman Daniel Chesser, and the two will be heading off to complete their training together this weekend.

"We're really happy to have progressed to this point with our canine program," Chief Jason Busby said Wednesday. "I would like to thank the manager and council who backed us up, the generous support of the Talladega County Sheriff 's Office and all the private businesses and citizens who contributed. I think they will see pretty quickly what a great asset having a dog of this type is to the public safety of the citizens of this city and county."

Andor has already been trained in narcotics detection, tracking and apprehension, Busby said. "He's very impressive."

Chesser and Andor will be heading to Indiana Sunday for a six week course to let the dog and handler learn to work
